Bilbo Debate Slackens Work Of New Senate

Sides Border Along North-South Lines

Washington, Jan. 3 (UP)—After six hours of debate, the Bilbo case still is undecided. The Senate has recessed until noon tomorrow after having talked about nothing but Bilbo all day—and the same topic will start the Senate day tomorrow. The Bilbo debate held up all other Senate business, and only one new Senator—Baldwin of Conneticut—was sworn in.

Fight Grudge

The fight over admitting the man from Mississippi into the most exclusive club in the world is divided—not along party lines, but along North-South lines. The Republicans—aided by some Northern Democrats—want to keep Bilbo out of the Senate until the Rules Committee has had a chance to check the validity of the charges against him. But a band of Southern Senators insist that he be allowed to sit in the Senate now. And they've managed to halt all other Senate business by their defense of Bilbo.

The fight against the Mississippian, stems from two sets of charges against him. One has to do with his alleged intimidation of Negroes in the Mississippi elections, and the other with his alleged corruption in the acceptance of gifts from war contractors in return for favors.

Knutson Hands Senate Long List of New Bills

Washington, Jan. 3 (UP)—Minnesota's Harold Knutson was the first Republican to hand the House one of a long list of new bills. Knutson has offered his promised tax reduction measure which calls for a 20 per cent slash in taxes on incomes up to 300-thousand dollars, and 10 and-a-half percent on those over 300-thousand.

New Bill Will Permit GIs to Cash in Bonds

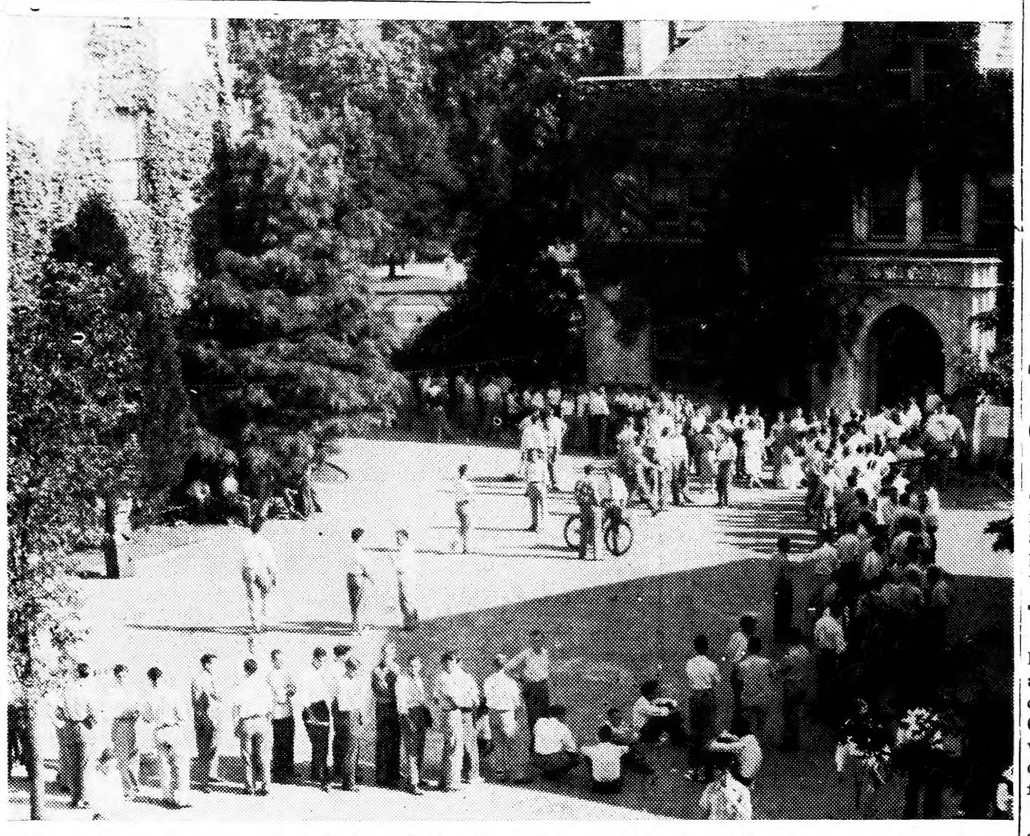
Washington, Jan. 3 (UP)—Representative Wright Patman of Texas introduced a bill which would permit veterans to cash in terminal leave bonds at any time they wish. Patman also called for a House unamerican activities committee investigation of Fascist activities in this country.

Martin Will Take Over Speakership of House

Washington, Jan. 3 (UP)—Representative Joseph Martin of Massachusetts was named the new speaker of the House, succeding Democrat Sam Rayburn of Texas. Martin called on the Democrats to help Republicans save the country from what he called "Ruin and destruction by internal economic suicide."

Government Will Enter Michigan Pottery Case

Detroit, Jan. 3 (UP)—The Federal Government has been granted permission to enter the original portal to portal case involving the Mount Clemens, Michigan Pottery Company. The Government will ask for clarification of the Supreme Court's historic decision in this case.



Britian May Consider Action in Holy Land

London, Jan. 3 (UP)—Britain may be considering further military action in the Holy Land. The Chief of the General Staff, Marshall Montgomery, sat in today on a meeting between colonial officials and the high commissioner for Palestine, Sir Alan Cunningham.

Ritchie Terms 'Booketeria' Success

400 Students Receive Books on Opening Day

The new self service book store for veterans located in Steele dormitory basement was praised as an overwhelming success by H. R. Ritchie, manager, after the first day of operation yesterday during which approximately 400 early arriving students received books.

Ritchie estimated, on the basis of yesterday's service, that 2,000 veterans could be served by the "booketeria" each day. One veteran yesterday collected all of his texts in three minutes.

Open Evenings Temporarily

Regular hours for the booketeria will be from 8:30 in the morning until 6 in the evening. However, until after the rush is over the booketeria will remain open until 9 at night.

For maximum service, book buyers are requested to strictly observe all of the following rules: No personal books are to be carried into the stacks. To be admitted a veteran must have his ID card. New veterans, who have not yet been issued ID cards, must present a letter of identification.

Used texts can be sold either in the Book Exchange or "booketeria." School supplies are on sale in the "Booketeria," lobby. Not only regular texts are available in the booketeria but also parallel books, which are arranged on the top shelves of the regular stacks.

Dorsey Faces $11,000 Suit For Damages Against Grail

The Crder of the Grail filed its formal suit against Tommy Dorsey with the Orange County Court last month asking $11,000 damages for breach of contract pertaining to the Duke-Carolina week-end dances and concerts last November.

Dorsey will have to file his complaint with the Orange County Court before January 20. The date for court appearance has not been set.

In its original complaint against the Dorsey orchestra, the Grail proposed to file a $20,000 suit against the band. The $11,000 suit, now formally lodged may be altered in a possible final compromise before the hearing.

Entire Band Failed to Come

Charlie Fulton, Delegata of the Grail, explained that the original agreement in the contract stated that Dorsey was to bring a complete 38-piece orchestra for appearance. However, at the dance only about half of this number appeared, and the entire string section was missing. Another feature in the complaint stated that the orchestra violated the concert agreement in not playing the entire two hours of the concert.

Of the total amount of damages the Grail is claiming $5,000 for breach of contract in regard to the number of musicians appearing, an additional $5,000 for loss of profits due to breach of contract, and $1,000 for failure to give a full two-hour concert.

Campus Marching Band Considered Highlight Of Sugar Bowl Classic

The elaborate halftime show of the Sugar Bowl classic in New Orleans Wednesday was featured in part by the appearance of the Carolina marching band, which presented a replica of circus day as its portion of the program.

A total of 80 pieces represented Carolina on the field, and the performance of the Tar Heel musicians was considered one of the highlights of the intermission show. Director Earl Slocum of the band expressed satisfaction and pride in the showing of his group.

It marked the second trip for the band this year, the musicians having followed the Tar Heels to Knoxville for the Tennessee skirmish.

The Tar Heel music organization also took part in the pre-game show put on by the New Orleans Mid-Winter sports association, marching in a parade with two high school bands and one American legion band.

First UNC Service Plant Was Operated by Student

By A. A. Wilkinson

Before the completion of the first electric generating plant in Chapel Hill, in the summer of 1895, oil lamps and tallow candles were the only source of illumination at the university for one hundred years.

The instilation of electric lighting here holds more interest for Charles G. Yarborough of Glendale, Calif. than for any other living person, for it was he who was put in charge of the generating plant. Yarborough, who is the brother of E. S. Yarborough of Durham was freshly graduated from A. and M. (now N. C. State) College when the opportunity came to him to operate the university's brand new system. The then up-to-date equipment was housed in a one story brick building 300 feet south of Main street in the direction of Memorial hall.

Small Salary

The young engineers's remuneration consisted of a small salary, a room, and free tuition to any classes he chose to attend. His immediate superior was Professor J. W. Gore, head of the physics department.

Since the hours were between 5 and 11 p.m. Yarborough recalls that it was probably the easiest job on the campus. A handyman fired the wood-burning boiler and carried out the ashes. There were only 300 electric bulbs to be fed by the generators.

Explained Machinery

Moose Gives Welcome To Incoming Veterans

Roy C. Moose, President of the University Veterans Association yesterday welcomed the new veterans entering the University and extended to them an invitation to become members of the University Veterans association.

Moose also announced that the new veterans clubhouse recently completed behind Lenoir dining hall will be reopened the latter part of next week as soon as interior decorations are finished.

The club has a snack bar, juke-box and large dance floor and will be open for use in the evenings by all veterans and their guests.

Legislation Is Begun To Make Hawaii State

Washington, Jan. 3 (UP)—Hawaiian delegate Joseph Farrington introduced legislation to authorize his territory to take necessary steps towards becoming a state.

Don Cossacks to Appear In Memorial hall Monday

Russian Singers Make First Appearance Here for Student Entertainment Series

Now on its seventeenth annual tour of the United States the Don Cossack Chorus conducted by Serge Jaroff will make its first appearance in Chapel Hill Monday evening at 8:30 o'clock in Memorial hall.

The chorus, composed of 32 six-foot Russian singers and their "half-pint", five-foot tall conductor, is the first attraction on the new year in the Student Entertainment Series which brought famed pianist Alec Templeton to the University campus last fall.

Season Tickets Available

Tickets for the concert are now on sale at Swain hall and Ledbetter-Pickards for $1.25. Season tickets entitling the holder to attend this concert and three others by different groups this year may be bought for $4.75.

Formed in Constantinople in 1920 the Don Cossack Chorus has since sung over five thousand concerts and for the past sixteen years has annually toured the United States singing in more than 120 American cities.

Two years ago the members of the chorus embraced American citizenship en masse, memorizing the Constitution in both Russian and English before they took the oath of allegiance.

University Named To Receive Part of Gray Endowment

The University has been named as one of the 11 educational institutions in the state to receive a portion of the $1,700,000 endowment fund that has been set up by James A. Gray, of Winston-Salem, chairman of the R. J. Reynolds Tobacco company.

Administer of the Fund, the Wachovia Bank and Trust company has announced that the University will receive the annual income from $250,000 of the total endowment. The funds will be used in the establishment of chairs of instruction in the Bible and for courses in related fields.

The total annual income from the entire endowment is estimated at $60,000 to be divided among the 11 beneficiaries.

The remaining 10 beneficiaries are as follows: Duke University, $100,000; Bowman Gray School of Medicine, Wake Forest college, $900,000; Salem college and Academy, $150,000; Winston-Salem Teachers college, $100,000; Greensboro college, High Point college, Brevard college and Louisburg college, $50,000 each; Davidson college and Saint Mary's Junior college, $25,000 each.

Advisor Jobs Open For Four Seniors

Openings for student advisor positions in Stacy, Mangum, Whitehead, and Miller dormitories were announced yesterday by Dean Fred Weaver, who is in charge of the program. Only seniors or graduate students with a C average or better will be accepted.

Student advisors act as freshmen counselors to men living in their dormitory sections and cooperate with the inter-dormitory council in promoting campus government.

Men accepted as advisors receive free room rent and a $50 deduction in their quarterly bill. Those interested in applying may get application blanks in Dean Weaver's office.

Middle West Cold Wave Sweeps Toward Coast

Chicago, Jan. 3 (UP)—A new cold wave descended upon the middle west today. The Chicago weather bureau predicts the cold will sweep into the Appalachians and middie Atlantic states within the 24 hours.

Playmakers to Sponsor Barter Theatre Group In Shakespearean Play

The nationally famous Barter Theatre of Virginia, founded and directed by Robert Porterfield, will give a one-night performance of Shakespeare's romantic comedy, "Much Ado About Nothing," in Memorial hall next Wednesday evening at 8:30, under the sponsorship of the Carolina Playmakers.

The Barter Theatre is the only state subsidized theatrical group in this country, receiving a yearly amount of $10,000. Until this year the Barter Theatre was little more than the name of a group of actors performing in the mountain country of Western Virginia, but the applause and praise that followed the theatre's tour of Virginia this year are testimonials of well-acted and worth while productions.

Tickets priced at $1.23, and are now on sale at Ledbetter-Pickard's and the Playmakers Business Office in Swain Hall. All seats are reserved.

President to Address Joint Session Monday

Washington, Jan. 3 (UP)—President Truman watched the Congressional proceedings by television. He plans to address a joint session on Monday with his State of the Union message, if the Senate tangle over Bilbo is straightened out by then.

Oslo University to Hold American Summer Session

The University of Oslo, Norway, will open its doors to 150 American students to attend a special summer school to be conducted between July 7 and August 16, it was announced by Norwegian Ambassador Wilhelm Morgenstierne.

One of the first projects of its kind to be undertaken in post-war Europe, this special six-week course represents the opening phase of what is envisioned as a permanent program for the exchange of students between the United States and Norway.

Student Center

The 150 American students will be selected from applications submitted and will be housed at Blindern Students Center in the Oslo suburbs only a few minutes drive from the University's modern Science building where all class and laboratory work will take place.

Several full and partial scholarships will be made available and the University of Oslo will honor all reciprocal exchange agreements made with American institutions. Oslo University is on the list of Foreign institutions approved by the Veterans Administration and an American student may study there under the G. I. Bill of Rights.

Special Courses

Courses will be listed under three headings: A General survey of Norwegian culture (required), Special courses in Science (elective), and special humanistic courses (elective) with the opportunity to earn up to six semester-hour credits during the six week period.

All American college students with at least sophomore standing interested in a summer of study and travel in Norway are requested to write Oslo Summer School, Norwegian Information Service, Room 1826, 30 Rockefeller Plaza, New York City.

Praise and Prestige

Beaten, but far from disgraced, Carolina's valiant Tar Heel Sugar Bowl gridders have returned to Chapel Hill. We want to take advantage of this, our first opportunity, to congratulate Coach Snavely, his assistants, the players who fought their hearts out in the face of numerous bad breaks, and everyone connected with our great Carolina football team.

Although Georgia's undefeated eleven came out on top in the final reckoning, it was a gallant Carolina team that garnered the highest praise from many of the country's leading sports-writers for the manner in which they outplayed the favored Bulldogs for a large part of the game. The Carolina spirit, an ever-present 12th man at every Tar Heel contest, asserted itself once again as it has done so often in the past. The Tar Heels had every student and alumnus scattered about this nation who, unfortunately, were unable to attend the game, following every play over a coast-to-coast broadcast—and everyone of them was, and is, righteously proud of the Carolina club.

Kay Kyser, famed bandleader and UNC alumnus, while good-naturedly paying off a bet on the game by pushing a fotball down Vine Street in Hollywood with his nose, made the remark that he would do the same thing anytime "for those Tar Heel boys the way they played down there today."

And his remarks echo the sentiments of all who were and are at Carolina. For a grand job that brought a great deal of added prestige to the University and the state, congratulations to a courageous band of coaches and players. You played a bang-up game and deserved to win. New Orleans and the nation's sports experts will not soon forget the "boys from Chapel Hill."

And Those Who Didn't Play

A lot of praise is also due those Tar Heels who weren't wearing football suits New Year's Day, but whose contributions toward making Carolina's first bowl venture a success in spite of defeat was noteworthy.

To the members of the various committees appointed for handling ticket distribution, housing, et cetera, to the Athletic council, to the cheerleaders, to the band, to the members of the student body who got to New Orleans in spite of cancelled flights, crowded rooming conditions, and a generous sprinkling of bad weather to cheer their team to what was almost a brilliant upset win goes much credit.

Embittered over officials' decisions that most press box sports experts labeled "wrong", the Tar Heel supporters conducted themselves notably throughout the Sugar Bowl festival and left a good opinion of the University in their wake.

To the boxing and debating teams and track athletes who also wore Carolina's colors and gave excellent performances goes another hand.

And to the Sugar Bowl Committee itself, which can well be proud over having supplied sports fans with the most exciting bowl game of the day, we also extend praise. Everyone was enthusiastic over the game, the events leading up to the football finale and the general atmosphere of cordiality that prevailed in spite of misty skies.

The only people we have left out are the officials and most of the country's sports pages seem to have summed up their officiating sufficiently. It is sad that the questionable decisions had to occur, but the Sugar Bowl jaunt must still be considered successful—a proud feather in Carolina's cap.

The constant interchange of those thousand little courtesies which imperceptibly sweeten life, has a happy effect upon the features, and spreads a mellow evening charm over the wrinkles of old age.—Washington Irving.

"How we doin'?"

Jeeps On Carolina Campus Vary in Color, Character

By Arnold Schulman

To ex-service men who have grown to love and live with the four-wheeled masterpiece known as the "jeep," nothing the tiny swish-buggy could do would come as a surprise. Yet, on the Carolina campus there are certain jeeps with character.

The sky-blue 'passion wagon' of Bill Corley's, for example not only can boast of having been on a dance floor, but also claims to be the only jeep in existence with an offspring. The offspring, a miniature jeep tacked to the hood of the car, is a female, Corley says, named 'Winkie, Jr.' When asked how a female can be a junior, Corley merely said, "What to hell. With Winkie anything can happen."

Other 'Freezemobiles'

Other campus 'freezemobiles' range in color from baby pink to mustard brown with every imaginable type of added attachments, plus several unimaginable ones. Cutlar Moore's jeep, for instance, comes equipped with what he calls "a radio controlled freezing unit." This unit, Moore insists, can automatically turn human blood to ice cubes in less than 15 minutes.

When asked if owning a jeep proves helpful in influencing coeds, the invariable answer was, "Are you kidding?"

No further probing could qualify the ambiguness of that answer, but campus authorities on 'woo-ology' claim that a free translation of "are you kidding" can mean "oh brother!" which should explain everything.

'Most Wonderful Since Sex'

Married couples, untroubled with dates and pickups, find the jeep "the most wonderful invention since sex." Mr. and Mrs. Paul Jones (no relation to John Paul) contend that jeeps are much cheaper to operate than "sensible" cars and, by far, harder to wreck. The only disadvantage they can see is that "the jeep is definitely a summertime car."

There is no limit to the amount of people that can crowd into the midget blockbusters. Steve Davis claims that as many as 23 have riden comfortabiy in his roadmite. Other jeep owners settled for a smaller number. For the Navy game, however, the average number of passengers in each jeep was 15.

To people who only see them the jeep may seem like a baby freak, but to proud owners there doesn't seem to be anything unusual about them. Bill Corley summarized the situation when further quizzed on his. "My jeep?" he asked. "Oh, she's just one of the girls at the Pi Phi house."

MIND-CHANGING EXPENSIVE

Chicago — (UP) — It cost Steve Horozinski $15 to change his mind about who robbed him of $210. At a detective line-up identified a suspect as the man who took the money. When he appeared before Judge Charles S. Dougherty he wasn't so sure. The case was dismissed and Horozinski was fined $15 for wasting the court's time.

3-FOOT SNAKE INTRUDES

Chicago (UP)—F. A. Swett, grocer, reached up to a shelf, felt something strange, and called police. Chief George Mason killed the "thing." It was a three-foot boa constrictor which probably arrived in a banana shipment.

Letters To The Editor

Financial Frustration

A sense of financial frustration and mental despair prompts me to write this item. This condition of mind has been brought about by my unfortunate position of having to earn my own school expenses and by my sensitiveness to the seemingly unjust increases in prices.

I have upon my study desks a number of bound notebooks which have accumulated over a period of a little more than a year. Two of these, purchased from the local five and dime when I first came here, are 140 page books which cost 15 cents plus tax. The next group are in two sizes, both advanced in price, 30 cents for 120 pages and 50 cents for 200 pages plus tax. These same books soon advanced to 35 and 55 cents respectively plus tax.

Now upon my return to school in the new year 1947, the Book-Ex has a new series of notebooks priced as follows: 152 pages at 60 cents and 200 pages at 75 cents again plus tax. Thus the price per page of notebook space has increased from about 1.1 cents to about 4.0 cents. This seems unreasonable in these times of inflation.

Even Ledbetter-Pickard has 200 page books for 55 cents plus tax (I have just bought several there.) It would certainly be gratifying if the venders of school supplies would try to purchase their goods so that minimum selling prices might prevail on the campus.

J. PAUL WILLIAMS

A Quiet Christmas . . .

"Well, did you have a big Christmas? they ask me. "Yeah," I said, "I spent mine right here in Chapel Hill." Chapel Hill? Gee, that's too bad you didn't get home.

But was it? No, to tell you the truth, those of us who stayed here over the holidays really enjoyed it. Just think, men, one could walk into a barber shop and choose one's own barber for a change. No waiting in line, and the barbers had time to talk and give a first rate haircut.

The Sunday night movie wasn't crowded either. We enjoyed the movie, especially since we could pick a seat away from a popcorn cruncher. And there were no catcalls when the lovers clinched.

The resturants were back to normal. The waiters had time to take an order. No one breathed over our soup as they waited for a table. Just think of that! And beer—everybody had beer. That was really a surprise.

There was no line waiting for packages at the postoffice. The weather was good the whole vacation.

All in all, it was a pleasure to see a quiet, unrushed Chapel Hill again.

Best wishes for the New Year.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Drew Pearson

JOE MARTIN HAD CHANCE TO RUN FOR PRESIDENT BUT CHOSE TO BE SPEAKER; MARTIN VOTED FOR ROOSEVELT'S NEW DEAL; HAS CHANCE TO CLEAN UP CONGRESS

Ed. Note—Drew Pearson today awards the brass ring, good for one free ride on the Washington Merry-Go-Round, to Joseph W. Martin, new Speaker of the House of Representatives.)

Washington.—When Joseph William Martin Jr. was 21 years old he faced a three-way decision between a career of politics, newspapering or professional baseball. He had been star shortstop on the North Attleboro semi-pro team, and had begun a career on the North Attleboro Chronicle. In the end, however, he chose politics. When this decision was announced to his father, the elder Martin advised: "You'll be better off Joe, if you stick to newspapering. Politics is dirty business." Joe Martin, however, spurned parental advice, stuck to politics and today becomes the first Republican Speaker of the House of Representatives since the fabulous, almost forgotten days of Nick Longworth.

As such, Joe Martin will be a popular, unspectacular, common-sense leader of the Republican majority. Joe has his feet firmly grounded in the basic caution of his party, but his eyes are not riveted wholly on the past. He does not believe in making a fetish out of tradition merely for tradition's sake; he recognizes the necessity of making concessions to changing times.

When Roosevelt was riding the crest of New Deal reforms, Joe rode the ways too. Once when joshed about his liberal voting record, Martin half-jokingly replied:

"The world moves and I move with it."

Joe is no militant, either in temperament or experience. Nor is he a conservative. Joe is a quiet, friendly, small businessman who believes in honesty and decency in public as well as in private life. He abhors greed, crookedness and public suffering.

NO DICTATOR MARTIN

That was why he has championed labor's right to organize, supported social security, voted for the FEPC and many Roosevelt reforms. Once when Martin was approached by Wall Street moguls with a proposal to weaken the Securities and Exchange Commission on the pretext of helping business, he replied that he wouldn't touch their proposition with a "a 10-foot pole."

During the pre-Pearl Harbor days when many Republicans were undercutting Roosevelt's preparedness policies, Martin swung his weight vigorously behind the President. He voted for national defense, against isolation, and when the question of lend-lease came before a secret GOP caucus, he advised.

"Read the testimony. Listen carefully to the discussion. Go home and think it over. Use your judgment, but vote like Americans."

The idea of suggestion rather than dictation has been Martin's strategy as a leader. Unlike Senator Taft and some Old Guard members of the Senate, he does not crack the whip. Perhaps he will have to be tougher now that his party is in the majority, but during his eight years as minority leader, Joe has never laid down the law as to how colleagues should vote.

COOLIDGE'S FRIEND

It was Calvin Coolidge who gave Joe Martin his first real life in politics. At the age of 23, Joe had been elected to the Massachusetts Senate where he met Coolidge, then Chairman of the Rules Committee. Coolidge made Martin secretary of his committee and the two became lifelong friends

In 1924 when Coolidge ran for re-election, Martin climbed on his bandwagon and was easily elected to Congress. He has been returned to the same seat ever since.

In two Presidential elections, Martin played important backstage roles. One was in the Landon campaign, whom he helped nominate—but could not elect. The other was in the Willkie campaign, when Martin tried to weld together conflicting wings of the Republican party as National Chairman

In 1940, shortly before Willkie was nominated, several friends urged Martin to run for President himself, and one wealthy Pittsburgh backer offered to put $85,000 behind him.

"There are no strings attached to this," Martin was told. "My friends and I just think you are the best White House timber in the field."

"I have no ambitions in that direction," Martin replied. "I am perfectly satisfied to remain in the House. My one ambition is to be Speaker."

FRIENDLY ENEMIES

Four years ago, that ambition was almost fulfilled. Rolling up an unexpected vote in the 1942 off-year election, it looked for a moment as if the GOP would control the House of Representatives. In the end, the Democrats won out by a few votes, however, and when it came time to swear in the Speaker, Joe went into the office of Sam Rayburn to escort him to the Speaker's rostrum.

"Sam," said Joe, "I've got bad news for you. I hope you can hold up under the shock. You've been re-elected Speaker."

Actually, Sam Rayburn and Joe Martin have a lot in common. Both are bachelors, both are good friends, both have somewhat the same middle-of-the-road, square-shooter point of view.

Like most bachelors, also, the new Speaker is very fond of children and keeps trinkets in his office to give to friends for their youngsters.

Homeward-bound one Christmas vacation, Martin phoned his office from Washington's Union Station and asked his secretary, Jim Milne, to hurry over with a package he had left in his desk.

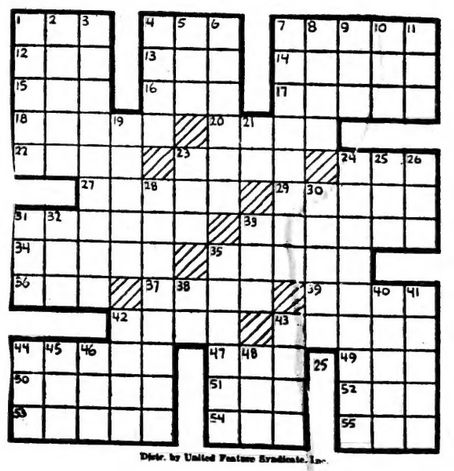
"I can't go without it and my train leaves in 20 minutes," he explained.

Milne rushed the package to the train just in time.

"Say, what's in this, anyhow?" he asked. "Sure must be important I haven't seen you so agitated about anything since the election."

"It's very important," said the Speaker-elect. "It's a doll for my little grandniece."

MARTIN'S BIG OPPORTUNITY



Back in the days when Martin was 21 and his father advised him not to go into politics because "politics is dirty business," Joe replied:

"That's why I'm getting into it, dad. It needs to be cleaned up and you can't do that by holding your nose and standing on the sidelines."

Tar Heel Basketballers To Engage Maryland Here Tonight

SPORT SPINS - -

IRWIN SMALLWOOD

A well-deserving, valiant crew of Tar Heel footballers and coaches returned to the gray mist of Chapel Hill in the wee hours this morning, disheartened over the loss of a tough Sugar Bowl game to Georgia's Bulldog's, yet filled somewhat with self-satisfaction over their great showing against the nation's No. 3 ball club.

The Tar Heels, who virtually outplayed the Bulldogs during the entire game with the exception of one last Georgia drive, failed to gain a single break in the 13th renewal of the New Orleans classic and still almost turned the tide on the vaunted T formation combine of Wally Butts. And it was two "questionable" plays that broke the back of the Tar Heels.

Chatter is still heard from all circles on the apparent boner made by official Gabe Hill on the alleged "lateral" pass from Joe Terreshinski to Dick McPhee which set up the initial Georgia touchdown. This play left the Tar Heels dazed with wonder about whether they were playing 11 or 12 men. Nothing can be done, however, even if the pictures prove to the satisfaction of even Mr. Hill that the pass was forward, and the Tar Heels are taking their defeat in stride. They are making no claims of what would have happened "if", even though they did out-play the Georgians throughout the majority of the ball game.

The other "questionable" instance was when the Tar Heels drove for a touchdown with four minutes left to play, only to have it nullified by a pushing penalty. Kenny Powell was pushing while trying to snag the ball in the end zone according to official George Gardner, and this brought the ball back to the line of scrimmage and subsequently all the way back to the Georgia 35 to end the threat. This is by far the lesser of the two critical decisions, although it is hard to see how a player in front of another can do much illegal pushing while trying to gather in a pass.

That's all there is to say on the two bobbles, only that we hope that when officials are picked for future Carolina games, they are picked more carefully. We sincerely hope, too, that Mr. Hill, who incidentally was covering that "illegal" pass play in the Duke-Tennessee game, is never the official for a Carolina football game again.

It was the opinion of virtually all of the sports writers from over the nation perched high above the spacious Tulane stadium in the press box that the pass from Terreshinski was forward, and there was much question about the judgment in the pushing instance. That's enough evidence for us that a mistake was made. Bob Cooke in the New York Herald Tribune even went so far as to say in his lead paragraph Thursday morning that "Georgia's unbeaten football team, energized by Charlie Trippi and Gabe Hill, a little known and irresponsible field judge, whipped North Carolina in the Sugar Bowl, 20-10, this afternoon before a lot of people who still think North Carolina is the better team." That exemplifies the feeling of most of the writers covering the event.

Moving from the dispute and on to the ball game, there are a lot of rugged Tar Heels who deserve more praise than will ever be handed them. . .For instance there is Sid Varney, the little guard who started the game with a bum ankle but charged through the Bulldog line ferociously. And there was his running mate, Ralph Strayhorn, who played equally as well after having reported to the training camp just Friday before the ball game. Strayhorn had been at the bedside of his critically ill father until that time. . . .The entire line, from Joking Joe Romano at one end to George Sparger on the other, was sensational. Tackles Len Szafaryn, Ernie Williamson, Baxter Jarrell, Ted Hazelwood, guards Bob Mitten, Marvin Cheek, and Centers Dan Stiegman and Bobby Weant were the boys. They literally tore up the Georgia line the first half.

In the backfield Charlie Justice proved himself every bit a great backfield man, not only for his constantly threatening offensive play, but for his brilliant exhibition of defensive game. . .And Walt Pupa, the big boy who comes from Charley Trippi's home town, ploughed through the Georgians with terrific force. And his passes were more outstanding than those from the hands of Johnny Rauch and Trippi. . .Little wingback Jim Camp was the leading ground gainer for both teams, and had he not fumbled while hurdling a Bulldog, the Tar Heels might have had another score in the first half. He averaged 8.5 yards per try in eight attempts.

Johnny Clements did a great job as defensive fullback, and Bobby Weant's line backing was good. . . and you can't leave out the passing of Max Spellman in practice that perfected the Carolina aerial defense.

A whole host of the nation's top football coaches were on hand for the classic. Leading the list were Frank Leahy of Notre Dame, Jeff Cravath of USC, Frank Thomas of Alabama, Henry Frnka of Tulane, Paul Bryant of Kentucky, Cecil Isabell of Purdue, Ed McKeever formerly of Cornell and Notre Dame, and Ray Wolfe of Florida. Other sports notables on hand were Glen Dobbs, Virgil Trucks, Boon Ferris, Steve Owen, Adolph Rupp, Hank Iba and many others. . .The Tar Heels were entertained royally at a banquet after the game Wednesday night, with each player receiving a watch. Georgia's Bulldogs were feted along with Carolina's gridders, as were many other of the top flight sports men on hand for the game. . .The entertainment was good to say the least—if you don't believe it just ask John Tandy. He sat with open mouth for several minutes gazing at one performer. . .The Christmas part for the Carolina party at Edgewater Park was a gala affair, with End Coach Jim Gill as Santa Claus. . . Chunk Simmons caught a 40-pound fish off the pier at the Edgewater Gulf hotel.

The trip was by and large successful for Carolina, even though there wasn't a victory to bring home. The boxers had tough going because of poor condition, but Jimmy Miller was the surprise of the two-mile race. . .Ed McGee's win in the heavyweight division was the outstanding match. . .The nation's top sports writers were on hand, as were most of the members of the North Carolina press. We had WPTF's Jim Reid and the Tobacco Network's Elmer Oettinger as roommates during the trip. . .And we found a top-notch publicity job done down there by Orville Campbell, who went with the team as advance public relations man.

Phantoms Lose Holiday Battles

Carolina's White Phantom basketballers, ready to settle down to the job of tackling a tough winter schedule after a holiday jaunt to Chicago, face the Maryland cagers here in Woollen gym tonight at 8 p.m.

This tilt tonight will be the last for the Tar Heels until their inter-sectional journey the end of next week to play LaSalle in Philadelphia Saturday night. The following Wednesday the charges of Coach Tom Scott will meet New York University in Madison Square Garden.

The Phants will be trying to get back into the win column against the tough Maryland squad tonight. The starting lineup will have Bob Paxton at center, Johnny Dillon and Jim Hamilton at forwards, and Norman Kohler and Jim White at guards. It is the same five that started the last five ball games.

During the swing into the midwest, Carolina dropped decisions to Northwestern and DePaul. The Wildcats from Northwestern tabbed the Tar Heels by a score of 65-51 but DePaul had to go into overtime to trim the Phants 58-51. The Carolina cagers held a 10-point lead with 10 minutes to play but faltered in the waning minutes to go down in defeat.

The schedule:
Jan. 4—Maryland, here.
Jan. 11—LaSalle at Philadelphia.
Jan. 14—N.Y.U. at New York.
Jan. 12—Virginia, here.
Jan. 24—Maryland, there.
Jan. 15—Navy at Annapolis.
Jan. 28—South Carolina, here.
Jan. 30—Wake Forest, here.

In the Northwestern tilt, Jim Hamilton and Bob Paxton led the scoring, while John 'Hook' Dillon and Norm Kohler were high men against DePaul.

Coach Scott has had the Phantoms back at practice since last Sunday, and the Tar Heels appear ready to bounce back from the two defeats and begin a victory march.

Mural Managers To Meet Tuesday

Director of Intramural athletics Walter Rabb has announced that all mural managers will convene in Woollen gym room 304 Tuesday night at 7:30 o'clock for an important meeting to formulate plans for activity for the winter quarter.

The boxing program was wound up just before the holidays, and a hot session of basketball is anticipated.

Carolina Supporters Proud of Showing Of Tar Heels In New Orleans Classic

Poor Weather Keeps Scores of Ticket Holders from Attending Sugar Bowl

By Billy Carmichael

A somewhat disappointed crowd of Carolina student and alumni were among the 70,000 fans that filed out of the mammouth Sugar Bowl stadium late Wednesday afternoon after witnessing what will go down in the books as the most exciting, if not the most highly contested game in the 13 years of the colorful New Year's day classic.

There were no tears in the eyes of the Tar Heels supporters, nor were there to be found any looks of shame upon their faces. For they knew for sure which had been the better team on the field. To any witness of this New Orleans spectacle it was evident that the boys from Chapel Hill had outcharged, outran, outpassed and outmanuvered the highly touted gentlemen from Georgia.

Had it not been for two very critical decisions of the part of the officials, it might have been a different story that flashed out across the nation last Wednesday night. One of these plays, a supposed forward lateral, which set up Georgia's first touchdown, may take its place along side of such immortal plays as the famous "Fifth down" at Dartmouth some years back. It proved to be the North Carolinians' downfall.

Even in defeat the Tar Heels had won something. Of course, the final score is what will stand in the record book, but the Carolina boys with their inspired play awoke the nation's sportwriters to the fact that Coach Snavely had an up-and-coming team that might even threaten the power and might of Notre Dame. Then again, if nothing else, it was financial defeat for Georgia bettors most of whom had given from 13 points up.

The Sugar Bowl stadium, home of the Tulane Green Wave, proved to be a fine place to watch a football game. For the first time this season, students and alumni following the Tar Heel team, were alloted some well-located seats, the majority of which were between the 20 and 40 yard lines on the West side of the field.

After five hectic weeks of scrambling for tickets, it was ironical the number of ducats that were available on the day of the game because of the poor weather. Numerous students did not even redeem their stupons. Others who had planned to fly down on New Year's spent the day in Carolina airports. Scalpers were caught with hundreds of tickets as the cold and dampness put scores of pasteboards on the selling block.

The weather for the contest was not something the late Huey Long would have been proud of. The rain did hold off throughout the major portion of the game, but there was a heavy mist shrouding the stadium throughout the entire afternoon and skin-soaking dampness filled the air.

Win or lose, it was a fine trip. Everyone had fun. Everyone was somewhat satisfied. Sugar Bowlers were broad with their hints that next year's Carolina team would be a leading contender for a return performance in New Orleans, an unprecedented event. The Tar Heels' newmade friends in Louisiana will not easily forget the bang-up game played by the Snavelymen.

The referees may have stolen the ball game, but the Tar Heels stole the show.

Tar Heel Dressing Room Was Alive With Congratulations

Detroit Tigers' Virgil Trucks Makes Appearance, Praises Charlie Justice

By Irwin Smallwood

Following the thrill-packed Carolina-Georgia Sugar Bowl clash last Wednesday, the Tar Heel dressing room was alive with congratulations—probably more congratulations than a losing team ever got.

There was, naturally, the dull curtain of defeat hanging over things, but nevertheless there was a slight sign of satisfaction, for the Carolina gridders had proved themselves as good a ball club as Georgia—to their satisfaction as well as that of the scores of persons who crowded into the dressing room to laud players and coach alike.

Virgil Trucks, the Detroit Tiger pitching star who lives in Birmingham, came in to see his old frined from the navy—Charlie Justice. "I have a special like for Charlie," said Trucks, "in addition to the fact that he's one of the greatest backs I have ever seen. And that is that he wears that same number 22 that I do on the ball field."

Hosea Rodger's father was there, as was the father of Jack Fitch, who incidentally has followed the team nearly everywhere it has gone this season. Students, alumni and general friends of the old North State made their appearance to bid cheer to the Carolina team, and they were all met by the same statement from King Carl Snavely, coach of the Tar Heels.

"I'm not ashamed of the performance of my team today," said Snavely. "They played a good game and fought hard all the way. I believe we were meeting the toughest team we have faced all season."

Snavely continued: "I can't single out any one because every player played well. With a little luck in the breaks we could have upset the traditions and won the game. Anyway, I'm glad we played so well against a really fine Georgia team."

Coach Wally Butts said: "North Carolina made a great fight. They completely outplayed us the first half, especially in the line. I'm proud of our team. It had enough 'stickability' to win in the second. . .Justice is a great back, and Pupa and Rodgers are just as good as they were said to be."

Bill Pritchard Returns to UNC

Bill Pritchard, former Carolina football star who spent this season at the Naval Academy nursing a broken leg, has resigned from the Annapolis institution and will re-enter Carolina for the winter quarter.

Pritchard, who lettered at end on the 1945 Tar Heel team, will be a welcome addition to the flank department after the departure of Art Weiner.

Syracuse Boxers Defeat Tar Heels

A high-powered Syracuse University boxing team, paced by five eastern intercollegiate champions, pounded out a 5½ to 2½ victotry over a less experienced North Carolina crew in New Orleans last Monday night. The competition was held in connection with the Sugar Bowl midwinter sport carnival.

The Tar Heel mitmen succeeded in winning only two bouts and drawing another. Richard Young and Ed McGee came through to win decisions for Coach Mike Ronman's boys, taking the 165 and heavyweight class, while Charles Lambeth gained Carolina's other half point by battling Syracuse's Walter Bowe to a draw in the feature fight of the evening. The results:

155—Bill Byrnes (S) decisioned Green (NC); 165 —Young (NC) decisioned Prussin (S); 175—Fine (S) won by TKO from Craven (NC) and Heavyweight—McGee (NC) decisioned McArdle (S).

Los Angeles, Jan. 3—(UP)— The pre-tournament favorite—Little Ben Hogan—has come in off the course with a card of 70, to tie for the lead in the $10,000 Los Angeles Open Golf tournament. Earlier, Western Amateur Champion Frank Stranahan of Toledo, Ohio, had carded a 70 to top the large field.

Jim Miller Second In Sugar Bowl Run

Jimmy Miller, captain of the 1946 Carolina cross country team, finished a fast second behind Earl Mitchell of Indiana in the invitational two-mile of the Sugar Bowl December 29 to take second-place honors ahead of the national cross country champion from Drake University.

Miller, who had Julian McKenzie of Carolina also as a running mate, stayed right up with the leaders most of the race and finished in a blazing final quarter to pull up some on the fleet Mitchell. Mitchell himself made a 61.7 jaunt of the final lap. McKenzie had back luck in the meet, but his condition played a large part in his running. He was not given the invitation until the day before Christmas.

Artist Betty Jones Enjoys Living in UNC Trailer Lot

By Dave Owens

Chapel Hill, Dec. 14—Betty Warren Jones looked up from her sketchboard and suddenly asked, "Have you ever smelled horsemeat cooking?"

Pretty and brunette with soft blue eyes, artist Betty Warren Jones wasted no time in explaining that she and her husband Paul had severed all relations with their University of North Carolina budget and bought a Setter pup "about so high" to share their trailer with them.

"That's where the horsemeat comes in," she said. "A Chapel Hill veterinarian said that it was wonderful for pups, so Paul went out and bought some. The process of cooking the stuff smelled up the entire trailer camp, and I feel as though I could still out-skunk a real live skunk."

"Having a dog to play around a trailer is not too good an idea," Betty laughed. "We bought 'Rusty' on Sunday and let him sleep in the trailer that night. Next morning Paul decided (between mumbles of disgust while cleaning up a perfect mess) that there would have to be some changes made."

"Those Big Feet"

Then Betty sighed. "But he was so cute—the dog, not Paul—that we just couldn't resist buying him. The way he looked at us (and then she laughed) and those big feet. Honestly, I've never seen such huge feet on any dog before."

Young Mrs. Jones scoffed at the idea of sympathy at having to live in a trailer camp. "People approach me with questions such as 'Have you found an apartment yet?' and when I tell them 'no' they say, 'Oh, that's too bad.' Then I surprise them by saying that I haven't looked for one. Trailers are perfect for couples like Paul and me. Housework is practically nothing. A bit of dusting here and a little tidying there and the living quarters of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Jones are spick and span. Then we have all day to study or work."

Jones, The Artist

But let's get back to Betty Warren Jones, the artist. Chatham, "a little village in New York state," will always be home to her. Since first she can remember, her father, an artist himself, has allowed her to "help him" on his work.

"When he painted a mural or something, he'd let me mess up the bottom corner," said Betty. Time hurried past and now "father's little helper" is father's pride and joy. "Doin' what comes natcherly," Betty has reached the stage of artistic accomplishment.

The dream of every artist, a one-man show, has already been realized by the young Mrs. Jones. Last December the Berkshire Museum at Pittsfield, Massachusetts, displayed thirty-five of her works. "Portraits and figure composition, still life and flowers," she explained. The show lasted a month.

Betty didn't venture the information, and I didn't know until asking, that a person is invited to give these one-man shows. Then she quietly announced that she was to give another "solo appearance" in Albany next September. She has been invited because three of her paintings were accepted for the big Albany Regional Art Show.

Secret Hope

With voice lowered confidingly, Betty intimated that such shows can be lucrative if the right contacts are made. "Although artists supposedly paint for the love of their art, I have a reason for hoping to get some money from mine. You see, Paul and I have a farm."

The mention of a farm caused the soft blue eyes to sparkle. "It's in a wonderful location—not too far from New York, and although we won't be in the city too much, we can't just bury ourselves out there in our little homestead."

Boston—(UP)—This may be the atomic age, but a recent survey revealed that at least 3,000 work horses still are in harness in Boston.

Raleigh...

The North Carolina Board of Elections has been asked to drop its investigation of alleged election irregularities in Polk county. Grounds for this request are that the accusations don't specify any misconduct by election officials.

The claim of Willis Mabe that he was elected a constable in Stokes county through write-in ballots has been taken under advisement.

Attorney General McMullan says the SBI has investigated charges of election fraud in Haywood county. And, he says, the Solicitor is thinking about sending bills of indictment to the next term of court. He says the investigation indicates that there were enough irregularities to justify criminal prosecutions.

Thirty-one new business concerns have been issued charters in North Carolina. Among the new firms is the Cherokee Farmers Co-operative of Murphy, North Carolina. It's the state's biggest marketing co-op. And its principals are Lawson Lunsford, Neb Hendrix, and J. Franklin Smith—all of Murphy. The co-op has an authorized stock of 100-thousand dollars.

Greensboro...

Greensboro is in the process of raising one million dollars to build a memorial coliseum. It will be in honor of the 266 men and one woman from Greensboro who were killed in World War Two. So far three quarters of a million dollars has been raised. The remaining quarter million is to be obtained between now and the 24th of this month.

The Governor has a plane standing by at the Raleigh-Durham airport, but right now the murky weather makes flying too risky.

job was that the new plant was a curiosity and a wonder to students and residents; consequently he had to give countless impromptu lectures to visitors on the plant's then complicated operation. He was also pleased to describe its operations to physics classes by making complex blackboard diagrams.

His impressive knowledge of electricity and the apparent ease of his job proved to be splendid publicity for A. and M. College, then new and struggling, for many Chapel Hill students suddenly developed a keen interest in electrical engineering.

Yarborough held his campus job for ten months, then Professor Gore obtained for him a position with Westinghouse at the company's new plant in East Pittsburgh. It was the only change of positions Yarborough ever made, for he remained with Westinghouse for 47 years, retiring in 1943.

It's no surprise for both were made of good stuff, Chapel Hill's first electrical plant, and Chapel Hill's first professional electrical engineer.

Cancer Operation for Bilbo Ends Senatorial Filibuster

New Senate Members Sworn In; House Hears Knutson Argue for Income Tax Reduction

From UP Wire Reports

Washington, Jan. 4—An impending jaw operation restored order to the United States Senate today as Senator Bilbo left for a Mississippi hospital and the senators voted unanimously to sidetrack the issue his war-contract dealings and white-supremacy views have precipitated.

Without a dissenting vote, the Senate accepted Alben Barkley's proposal that the Senate pass over the Bilbo case and get on with its business—swearing in 35 other newly elected senators and organizing the Senate.

Two Months' Treatment

Bilbo, said Barkley, is a sick man. He is leaving tonight or tomorrow for New Orleans for a second operation for cancer of the mouth. His physicians say treatment will require at least two months.

Barkley's announcement ended the bitter fight and Southern filibuster that had stalemated the Senate for two days. The to seat or not to seat problem has prevented the Republicans from taking the control that they won in November's election.

Bilbo's only comment so far has been to promise that he will return to Washington as soon as possible. He told newsmen that when he does come back, he'll be wearing his "fighting clothes."

After passage of the motion, the swearing in of the new senators began.

Cable Ship Survivors Land at Finnish Port

Helsinki, Finland, Jan. 4—(UP)—Twenty-eight survivors of the Danish cable repairship Karla, which struck a mine and sank in the Gulf of Finland within five minutes, have been brought to Helsinki by a Russian warship today. Fifteen other members of the crew are missing and believed dead. The body of Captain August Vilhelm, Master of the Karla, was aboard the Russian ship.

UN Secretary General To Visit Mexico City

Mexico City, Jan. 4—(UP)—The Mexican foreign minister has announced that United Nations Secretary General Trygve Lie will arrive in Mexico City next Friday on a five-day visit, opening his extended Latin American tour. With Lie will arrive Benjamin Cohen, Assistant Secretory General in charge of Information, and William H. Stoneman, personal adviser.

DC-4's Will Transport Treasure to Argentina

Buenos Aires, Argentina, Jan. 4—(UP)—The Central Bank has announced that forty DC-4 airplane flights will be made beginning late this month to bring 180 tons of Argentine gold, worth approximately $200,000,000 to Buenos Aires from the New York Federal Reserve Bank.

The fourth steamer shipment of Argentine gold in a fortnight arrived today on the "Moremac Star," amounting to nearly $12,000,000 and bringing the total brought by ship thus far to more than $40,000,000.

Argentine Expedition Sails for South Pole

Buenos Aires, Argentina, Jan. 4—(UP)—Argentina's Antartic expedition sailed today on the naval transport "Patagonia," under Captain Luis Garcia, with the avowed purpose of establishinp a weather station or establishing a weather station "somewhere" on the Antarctic continent.

The naval transport "Chaco" and a whaling boaa will sail shortly to join the "Patagonia" in the far Soutn Atlantic. The "Chaco" will also carry a new crew for the weather station on Laurie Island, in the South Orkneys to relieve the men who already have spent one year there.

WEATHER TODAY

Partly cloudy and colder.

UNC Will Play Host To Outstanding Group Of Entertainers Soon

Several outstanding entertainments are scheduled at the University during the next few weeks, it was announced here today at the opening of the new winter quarter.

Among them will be the appearance of Dorothy Maynor, celebrated Negro singer, who will give a concert Sunday, January 19, under the auspices of the Council for Religion in Life, for the benefit of the Fellowship of Southern Churchmen.

Other events are a concert by the internationally known Don Cossack Chorus tomorrow night, at 8:30 o'clock; the performance of Shakespeare's "Much Ado About Nothing," to be presented by the well known Barter Theatre of Virginia in Memorial Hall this Wednesday evening, at 8:30 o'clock, and a piano recital by Herbert Livingston, a member of the University music faculty member, in Hill Music Hall next Friday night, at 8:30 o'clock.

Tickets for the Dorothy Maynor concert, which is scheduled for Memorial hall at 8 c'clock Sunday night, January 19, may be secured at the Raleigh, Durham and Chapel Hill YMCA offices.

Veterans!

Several hundred veterans checks which were received during the Christmas holidays are now being held by the postmaster at the general delivery window of the post office downtown.

E. G. Bourne, local veterans training officer, said late last night, "No matter what your address is, or what your box number is, if you were expecting a check during the holiday period, check at the post office general delivery window to see if it is there."

Don Cossack Chorus to Appear Here in Entertainment Program Monday Evening

Internationally Famed Russian Troupe To Sing in Memorial Hall at 8:30 o'clock

"A Russian who does not sing is no Russian," says Serge Jaroff, director of the Don Cossack Chorus which makes its first appearance here in Memorial Hall auditorium tomorrow evening at 8:30 o'clock.

Under the sponsorship of the Student Entertainment Series the 32 giant Cossack vocalists are coming here in the course of their seventeenth annual tour of the United States.

Since the Chorus was formed in 1920 the Cossacks have become one of the most widely traveled choral groups in the world, having sung in almost every civilized country of the globe. Their travels have included twenty-five crossings of the Atlantic, eight of the Mediterranean and two of the Pacific, and sixteen trips across the North American Continent from coast to coast.

Well-Known Songs

The "Singing Horsemen of the Steppes," as the Don Cossacks are known, include in their repertoire such well known numbers as "The Volga Boatmen," "Evening Bells," and "How Glorious." They have sung "The Volga Boatmen" over five thousand times, and it was one of the four encores requested by General Eisenhower during their USO tour of Europe.

Concert tickets are now on sale at Swain hall and at Ledbetter Pickard's for $1.25. Season tickets for the entire Student Entertainment Series may be purchased for $4.75, tax included. Attractions in the series include: Jan. 6, Don Cossack Chorus; Jan. 20, Jooss Ballet; Jan. 30-31 and Feb. 1, Operetta, "The Bartered Bride"; Feb. 18, National Symphony Orchestra.

Traffic Problems To Be Considered By Federal School

Traffic problems, including the alarming rise in the number of accidents throughout the country, will be discussed and analyzed at a two-week school of traffic law enforcement, to be conducted by the Federal Bureau of Investigation with the cooperation of the University's Institute of Government here beginning today and continuing through January 18.

Traffic officers from counties and cities throughout the state will attend the school which is part of a program of state-wide safety education being sponsored by the Institute. The School will also serve as a model for locally sponsored traffic schools which are to be conducted in approximately 20 of the larger cities and towns of the state from February to June.

Instruction will be conducted primarily by the FBI which is sending several traffic specialists, including William H. Harper, special agent, to carry on the training program. John C. Bills of Charlotte is special agent in charge in the Carolinas.

Guidebooks in North Carolina traffic control, and accident investigation, prepared by the FBI and the Institute of Government. will be furnished the officers attending the School.

Union to Give Open Dance Set Next Weekend

To Formally Present 'Dream Serenaders'

Graham Memorial will begin its social calendar for the new year with a set of open dances next Friday and Saturday nights with music by Ned Reap and his "Dream Serenaders," the newly-organized student union dance band.

Friday night's dance, from 9 until 12 in the main lounge of the student union, will be strictly formal. This will be the first formal dance sponsored by Graham Memorial in several years.

Honor Football Team

The Carolina Sugar Bowl football team will be honored at the semi-formal dance in Woollen gym on Saturday night, which will also last from 9 until midnight.

The weekend dances will formally introduce the new student union dance band to the Carolina campus. The "Dream Serenaders" have played engagements in Asheboro and Lenoir-Rhyne College in Hickory but have not yet appeared on campus.

Assistant leader of the band is James Levan. Arranger is Jimmy Hall and Maylon Baker is librarian.

The bandstands were designed by Betty Warren Jones, well-known Chapel Hill artist, constructed by Ellington of Carrboro and lettered and painted by the Durham School of Art.

Organized primarily for campus dances, the "Dream Serenaders" have 15 members plus leader Reap and three featured vocalists.

Northerly Blast Faces Not-So-Sunny South

By United Press

When the wintry blasts hit the north, those who can afford it pack their belongings and head for the sunny south. And once they unpack, they write those cute wish-you-were-here cards to those unfortunates who must remain behind.

But this year things apparently are different. Jack Frost also is going south for the winter. And not even Florida and California will escape the cold wave which is moving southward and is expected to send thermometers tumbling in 46 states. The freeze is expected to hit parts of Northern Florida and some California valleys.

Last night's sharp drop in temperature is predicted to continue on today through North Carolina, with cloudy skies shading the sun.

Chief Gunner's Mate Ate Rice for Months...

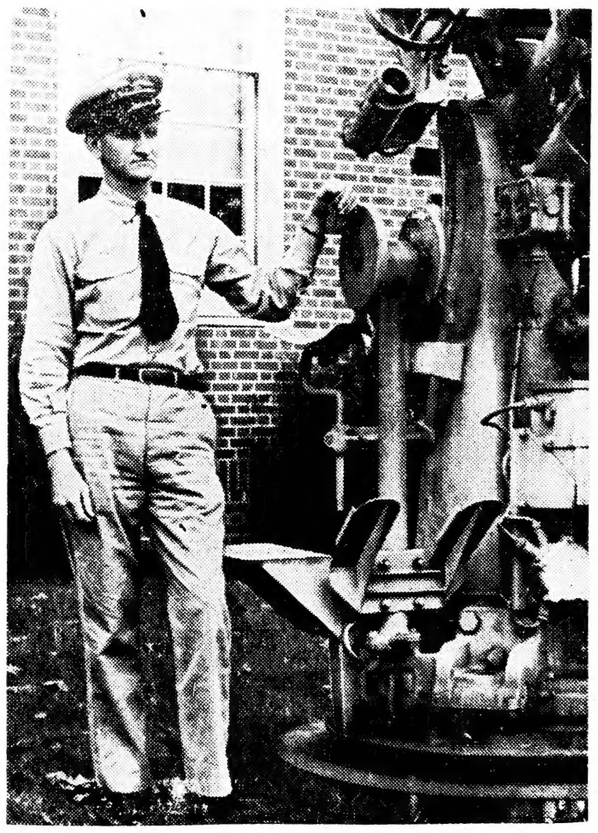
Navy Man, Survivor of Bataan, Corregidor Doesn't Deplore Shortage of Steaks Here

By Raney Stanford

In spite of Chapel Hill's present resemblance to an overcrowded sardine can, Chief Gunner's Mate J. W. Norket of the NROTC unit likes it fine here. For Gunner Norket has Bataan and Corregidor among his personal recollections, along with three and a quarter years in Japanese prison camps. No steaks may be discouraging at times, but try contemplating rice. Rice, in small portions, three times a day, for months on end.

Norket, a veteran of six and one-half years in the Navy, and a native of Charlotte, was serving on a minesweeper in the Phillipines at the time of Pearl Harbor; and the capitulation of "The Rock" on May 6, 1942, found him on the beach with that small group of never-to-be forgotten defenders.

Lashed-Up Affair



"Here I was, in the Navy, attached to the Marines, and serving under the Army," he says. "You can see what kind of a lashed-up affair it was towards the end.

"We held high hopes up until April, but during that month we began to realize it was only a matter of time."

The first he knew of the surrender, Norket continued, was the sight of the white flag over the American position.

"They were shelling us continually, and at the end they had about 600 guns of various types on us at point-

Many UNC Teachers Attend Learned Groups Meetings

A number of University faculty members attended meetings of learned societies at different points in the East and mid-West during the holidays.

Five members of the Law School, Professors Herbert R. Baer, Henry Brandis, Albert Coates, M. S. Breckenridge, and Fred B. McCall, attended a three-day meeting of the Association of American Law Schools in Chicago.

Professor Coates is a member of the Association's committee on criminal law procedure, and Dean R. H. Wettach, who was unable to attend, is a member of the nominating committee.

Geology Meetings

Four members of theGeology and Geography Department attended meetings. Professors J. W. Huddle and William A. White attended sessions of the Geographical Society of America in Chicago, and Professors Samuel T. Emory and Franklin C. Erickson attended joint meetings of the Association of American Geographers and the National Council of Geography Teachers in Columbus, Ohio. Miss Lillian Worley, a graduate student, also attended the latter two meetings.

Professor Huddle presented a paper in Chicago entitled "Devonian and Mississippian Rocks of Central Arizona," and Professor White gave a paper on "Blue Ridge and Fault Scrap."

Four members of the Classics Department, Dr. B. L. Ullman, head of the Department, and Professors J. P. Harland, Albert Suskin, and Walter Allen, Jr., attended meetings of the American Philological association and the Archaeological Institute of America in Rochester.

Dr. Harland was re-elected recorder of the Archaeological Institute, and Dr. Ullman, former president of the American Philological Association, was elected that body's representative to the American Council of Learned Societies.

Romance Language Meetings

Members of the Romance Language department and the English and German departments attended sessions of the Modern Languages association of America in Washington.

From the department of Romance Languages were Professors U. T. Holmes, S. E. Leavitt, N. B. Adams, J. C. Lyons, R. W. Linker, and Hugo Giduz; instructor E. S. Moyer, and a teaching fellow, Miss Marion Greene. Dr. Holmes and Dr. Adams read

Decided Improvement

The general concensus of opinion among the veterans buying their books yesterday was that the new "booketeria" is a decided improvement over the long, never-ending, tedious book-buying lines of previous quarters.

Although the lines still exist to some extent, the new system is helping to alleviate the tremendous traffic that jammed the Book Exchange and giving the veterans a chance to buy their books without spending a whole day in line.

The system seems to be working efficiently and the majority of the students have little trouble finding the books they're looking for in the stacks. It is good to know that corrective measures have been taken in the process of book distribution for the benefit of the students. The men and women buying the books appreciate the improvement—which shows what can be done to make a student's life easier if the will to do it exists.

Needed: Stargazers

Mankind needs a new dream.

The old dreams are threadbare with use and abuse. They have been kicked around so much that they no longer mean anything. The frontier has vanished. The concepts of liberty, justice and democracy have lost their meanings or have become the topics for endless debate. Men have learned to fly like birds, swim like fishes and burrow in the ground like moles.

And fight like mad dogs.

Mankind needs a new dream—a dream that is new in its hopes of realization, yet as old as the race of man itself, that was dreamed when the first man reached his hand toward the stars.

Man has the technical ability and the scientific knowledge today to reach the stars. The army is conduting experiments with guided rockets and predicts that it will reach the moon within 18 months.

If the nations of the earth would pour their resources into the conquest of the universe, they might have no time or energy left to worry about conquering their earth-bound neighbors.

The rewards would be great. The have-not nations might find their natural resources infinitely increased by the exploitation of new planets and new satelites. Life itself would take on a new vigor, a new meaning. There would be new frontiers.

Why should we scrabble for a few miles of disputed earth when there is a universe to conquer? Call the star-struck dreamers fools, idealists, and madmen. Call yourselves realists and practical men of the world, but your world is small and battle-weary; your horizons close you in like prison walls.

There may be peace again when man can dream a new dream dream and reach up to touch a star.—The Daily Kansan, Lawrence, Kansas.

What About North Carolina?

Who is paid better in your home town, teachers or the garbage collectors? There are communities in which garbage collectors receive higher salaries than school teachers. If this is true in your town, you surely cannot be satisfied with the situation.

Education is thought by too many to be only a preliminary to earning a living. It is much more than that. In this age of mass pressures, democracy cannot survive unless its citizens are trained in the analytical method, cultural standards and knowledge of the world. Only then can the citizen resist the evils of propaganda and organized self-interest.

Oklahomans did much to further the cause of better education by adopting four constitutional amendments concerning schools. That is a step in the right direction, but only with continued striving can the citizens get Oklahoma's and the entire nation's educational standards out of the dumps.—Oklahoma Daily.

Trip Through Darkest South With Gun And Camera Is Harrowing Experience

As a student in good standing of the University of North Carolina it was only natural that yesterday should find me deep in preparation for a foray into the wilds of Old South Building. The purpose of my mission was, as you may have guessed, to successfully complete the manifold requirements of registration.

Being fully aware of trials and tribulations of my proposed venture, I took full precautions against any mishaps or obstacles encountered along the way. It was well that I did.

Strapping on my fragile frame, a searchlight, a portable radar outfit, enough victuals for a month, a large bottle of whiskey and a copy of "Double Talk; How To Understand It," I summoned together my safari and proceeded up the steps of darkest South Building without further ado.

At the portals of this aged edifice, my expedition was met by a thundering herd of creatures, wildly gesticulating, and brandishing green paper forms upon which were scribbled that particular combination of frustrated English, heiroglyphics, and writer's cramp known universally as "Old Southernese." These creatures I later learned were college students and, as such, presented no particular danger to my person or those of my caravan.

Pressing on, I encountered swarms of people madly dashing in and out of offices, halls, doors, and windows. Even the chaste chandeliers held one or two gibbering occupants.

I also saw long lines of the aforementioned college students. At the middle of one of these lines I came across a rather elderly man, whom I at once presumed to be a freshman. Upon inquiring as to the purpose of his waiting this individual took a long look at me, rolled a quid of tobacco to the other side of his mouth, and spoke thusly, "You ain't been around here long, have you, bud?"

I answered in the affirmative, and the gentleman's voice took a pleading tone.

"Well, say, young fellow, I'm a veteran, and I been trying to get enrolled around here quite a while. Tell me, just how is it done?"

"Have you written the Veteran's Administration?", I inquired.

"No, I ain't, but I jest writ President Lincoln for the forty-seventh time. Purty soon, I aim to write Horace Greely too, and give him the low down on this here beaurocracy. Hell! I should of stayed in the Army. I made sergeant after the Battle of Bull Run, and I had a dern good deal. What a fool I was to give up all that!"

Speechless, I left the aged habitue of Second Floor South and passed on.

Finally I arrived at the office of the Dean. Dean Battlebrain was ensconced in a deep chair, cutting paper dolls out of a copy of "Education in the Seventh and a Half Grade; Its Tribulations, Implications, Perambulations and other Damned Foolishness."

The Dean received me with much cordiality. "Good evening, Lana," he said.

Perturbed at this unusual occurrance, I answered, "Dean Battlebrain, you have made a slight error. My name is Hodgson, Matthew Marshall-Neil Hodgson, to be exact."

The Dean squinted at me and replied, "Shut up, Lana, and come over here and sit on my knee!"

"My dear sir," I began, exasperated beyond measure, "All I want to do is have you map out my course for me."

"Certainly, Lana," answered the Dean, snatching the bottle of whiskey from my pack with a happy gurgle.

"You can take Russian Architecture, Hindustani, and Modern Sanitary Plumbing. That's all that's open now, although I can probably work you in on Hungarian Culture, No. 44, sometime in 1949."

"Well, that's fine," I replied. "But tell me, what do I do now that you've approved my course?"

"First thing," began the Dean, "is to take this list up to the Mayo Clinic in Minnesota. They'll give you your physical. Then trot back here, and fill in your athletic card, your Daily Tar Heel address card, your alumni card, your veteran's card, get your ID card filled out, sign up with UVC, get your YMCA card, fill out your beer ration card, get your Phi, Di, and IRC cards, get statements from your professors (one of whom is in Chicago now), and you'll be just about through."

"Tell me truthfully, sir," I queried anxiously. "What else must I do?"

"'Tain't much!" said the Dean swilling down a shot of red-eye. "Merely sign your laundry receipt, fill out six or seven hundred more forms, then stand in line for a few weeks for your books."

The die was cast. Frantic thoughts raced through my harried mind.

"Sir!" I cried, "Where is the US Army recruiting station!"

"I don't know, pal," answered Dean Battlebrain dejectedly, "I've been looking for the place myself."

Thus, ended my safari into the wilds of deepest, darkest Old South. Gentle reader, take note!

TRIPLE BIRTHDAY

Long Beach, Cal. (UP)—There will be a lot of birthday presents to open around the Edward W. Chilton household every Aug. 27. Mrs. Chilton, 27, gave birth to Susan Gay on that day, which is also the birthday of the mother and her other child, Patricia Carol, 7.

Baruch, 'Job Finished,' Resigns UN Atom Post; Warren to Succeed Him

(More News Briefs)

Washington, Jan. 4—(UP)—President Truman has accepted Bernard Baruch's resignation as the American representative on the United Nations Atomic Energy Commission. Mr. Truman tonight praised Baruch's work in getting the commission to accept the American plan for international control of atomic energy. He told the aging statesman that at first he was reluctant to accept his resignation, but that after reflection he agreed with the reasons given. Baruch in his letter of resignation to the President said he was leaving because he believed his work has been finished.

Discussion Tuesday

The President also agreed with Baruch that the task of guiding the American control plan through the Security Council should be turned over to former Senator Warren Austin, the permanent American delegate to the Council. On Tuesday the Council will consider the American plan, which was accepted virtually in toto by the commission.

Austin, in a radio aldress tonight (NBC) praised Baruch's work in international atomic discussions, but made no comment upon the suggestion that he himself take over the leadership in future United Nations atomic energy conferences. Secretary of State Byrnes also agreed that Austin should be given Baruch's post.

Letters To The Editor

Wrong Facts

Dear Mr. Editor:

The editorial "Political Paradox" in the recent issue of the Carolina Magazine was written by someone who failed to check his facts. In justice to Jimmy Wallace, the errors in the editorial should be corrected.

The editorial said: "Wallace's first popular vote defeat came in the fall of 1943. The University Party nominated Kat Hill for the DTH editor." This is not true. Wallace's first defeat in running for the DTH editorship came in February of 1943 when he ran against Walter Damtoft. The second editorial defeat came in October, 1943.

Also written into the editorial was: "Closest Wallace came was his last loss, to Bob Morrison by a handful of votes." This is not true. Wallace's closest election came in his race against Charles Wickenberg in the fall of 1944 when the latter was elected by a 38 vote margin. Morrison defeated Wallace by over three times as many votes as Wickenberg, and Hill, Damtoft, and Carter rolled up still higher tallies.

Name withheld on request.

In just 17 minutes the job was completed. The next order of business is a joint session with the House on Monday to hear President Truman's State of the Union message.

20% Tax Cut

While the Senate was wrestling with the Bilbo crisis, the Republicans in the lower house were preparing to fulfill their promises to slice income taxes by 20 per cent. Minnesota's Representative Harold Knutson has called for quick adoption of his tax-reduction bill and has a pile of statistics to support his contention that it will not dent the Federal Treasury.

Cutting one-fifth off most income brackets will cost the Treasury nearly three and one-half billion dollars. But, says Knutson, Americans will spend that money in ways that will boom the nation's business. He claims that the Treasury will gain rather than lose in the end.

Hearings in Two Weeks

Knutson says tax shackles must be removed to permit business to keep the country on the road to full employment. The Minnesota Congressman reaches back to period of the 20's to cinch his argument. He declared that there were four tax reductions when the GOP controlled Congress from 1921 to 1929 and that, despite these reductions, tax revenues continued to rise.

Knutson says hearings probably will start on his tax-reduction bill within two weeks.

Phantoms Drub Maryland, 58-42, In First Conference Clash

SPORT SPINS - -

IRWIN SMALLWOOD

FOOTBALL HAS JUST about passed into the records for this season, but still there are a few angles that are keeping the predominately fall sport in the front even at this late date. The prime one is that the Tar Heels just returned yesterday from playing in the annual Sugar Bowl game in New Orleans, where they made no small impression on the 73,000 spectators present.

Post mortems on the game are being held even to this date, and they probably will be for quite a spell yet. The reason: The fact that Carolina received a rather raw break in a "bogus" decision that netted Georgia its first touchdown and started the unbeaten Bulldogs on the comeback trail.

About all that can be said on that subject has already been voiced, and all there is now to do it wait and see the movies and then talk some more. We are inclined, however, to just drop the subject for the most part, for the score can never be changed, and even though the Tar Heels lost, they were far from a disappointment to their followers, the Sugar Bowl committee or anybody else. And with that in mind we just add a "well done" and move on to a few notes from here and there picked up on the trip South with the North Carolina press party.

It was plain through observations of the numerous coaches and other sports officials on hand that there are some coaching changes in the offing involving some of the nation's best grid mentors. It is practically certain now that Frank Thomas, the famous old gentleman of Alabama football, will not coach there or anywhere next year, and that leaves the job wide open for some football teacher.

There was one big-time coaching name on hand at nearly all the gatherings who is open for a job right now, and that was Ed McKeever, who coached the last two seasons as Cornell, and before that at Notre Dame. . .And the present Notre Dame coach, Frank Leahy was there, too. What does all this mean? Nothing tangible, only that things in the coaching world are going to develop—and soon—unless present speculation is completely whacky.

Among the numerous sports figures we interviewed while on the southern jaunt was Adolph Rupp, the veteran builder of champion basketball teams at the University of Kentucky. Rupp, you know, piloted his team to the National Invitational tournament crown last season, and this year sports the best team he admittedly ever coached. We saw them drop a tough battle to Oklahoma A. and M., but it was their first defeat in 27 games, and they had an off night in losing to the Aggies.

A person familiar to the eyes of Carolina fans was included on the Wildcat roster from Kentucky, that being Jim Jordan, the All-American guard here last season. Jordan, who has been suffering from an acute case of shin splints, has seen little action with the Kentucky quint thus far in the season, but according to Coach Rupp, "it will be impossible to keep Jordan out of my starting lineup as soon as he fully recovers from the leg trouble and smoothes out the wrinkles that still are present with his change from one system to another."

In the same breath we quizzed the Kentucky coach about All-American Johnny Dillon, and Rupp chimed back that "I think Dillon is a great ball player. I would like to have him on my ball club." That was a good compliment for the Carolina hook-shot artist coming from the mouth of the famous Rupp, and his opinion was shared by the publishers of Sport magazine this month as they featured Dillon in a color picture as one of the country's outstanding cage performers.

Still on basketball, it appears as though the Tar Heel cagers are on the upgrade. At this writing they are preparing to meet Maryland in a conference encounter, and if the last week's drills are any criteria they should definitely be back in the win column and on the victory march again.

If you wondered why sportscaster Harry Wismer was so sharp in this pronunciation of Carolina Wednesday, you can credit it to Mrs. Smith Barrier, wife of the Greensboro Daily News sports editor. Mrs. Barrier cornered Wismer at a press banquet at New Orleans and made sure he was straight on his pronunciation of the word. . .One last note in relation to the 1947 Tar Heel grid schedule: There have been two developments, one being the reopening of negotiations with Texas and the other talks with Georgia Tech in relation to a possible game. A third game is needed, but as yet there are no indications as to where it will be obtained.

The bowl-game predictions made by the Daily Tar Heel sports staff just before vacation were none too pleasing. Jim Pharr led the parade with five for eight correct and Bob Goldwater, Bill Woestendiek and yours truly followed with four correct choices. This definitely winds up the prognostications for the season.

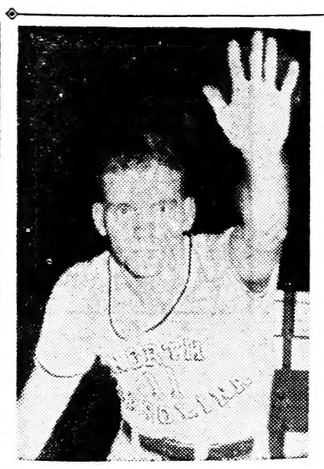
Scoring Spree In Second Half Provides Win

Hamilton Sets Pace With 17 Point Total

By Bob Goldwater

Bouncing back after a listless first half in which they scored 17 points, Carolina's White Phantoms staged a late scoring spree in the final ten minutes to crush Maryland, 58-42, in Woollen gym last night, thus copping their opening Southern conference clash.

The 16-point margin fails to indicate the closeness of the contest. Although Carolina led all the way after the six-and-one-half minute mark, the invaders from Maryland put on several rallies that carried them to within one point of the Scottmen twice. The second time, at 10:15 of the second half when an Old Liner goal made the score read 34-33, proved to be the end of their threat and the Phantoms pulled away steadily during the remaining minutes.



Halftime Score 17-12

Carolina stayed in the game mainly through the efforts of sparkplug Jim Hamilton, high scorer for the evening with 17 points. He led the way to a 17-12 halftime margin with five points. The Phantoms started to pull away at the start of the second half and held a 23-14 advantage before five minutes had passed. Thereafter the two teams traded goals with Maryland gradually closing the gap, finally pulling to within one point of the Carolina quint.

But that was all for Maryland. Bob Paxton, Johnny Dillon anl Norm Kohler took turns hitting the cords and within a few minutes Carolina held a ten-point lead. Hamilton took over the scoring pace from there, hitting for five more tallies. Coach Tom Scott substituted freely, with all 14 squad members seeing action.

Following Hamilton in the Carolina scoring parade was Dillon with nine points, eightof which came in the second half. Jim White, sparkplug on defense, also contributed eight tallies to the Carolina cause. Edwards was high for the Old Liners with a total of 13 points.

The game was the final one of the Phantoms before they begin their northern jaunt next weekend that carries them to contests in Philadelphia and New York. Opponents at the two stops will be LaSalle college and New York University.

Jim White, White Phantom guard from Kannapolis, who scored eight points and played a brilliant floor game in last night's victory over Maryland.

Tankmen Hold Drills For Meet with Tech

Swimming coach Dick Jamerson hopes to keep his record of 24 consecutive victories in home meets intact on January 18, when he will send his mermen splashing against a strongly-rated Georgia Tech Yellow Jacket squad.

Coach Jamerson has been holding daily workouts for the past several weeks, stressing conditioning and timing, and the Blue Dolphins should be in top shape for the opening meet.

The mermen, led by co-captains Mike Morrow and Warren Ficklen, are rated strongest in the springs, with other outstanding entries in the distance events.

the different weight classes are Art Bluthenthal, last year's undefeated 165 pounder; Bill Kemp and Lem Gibbons, both of whom boasting varsity experience, in the 175 pound class; and Demont Roseman and Carol Fischer, winner of the recent intramural tournament, in the 145 pound class.

Matmen to Start Work For Opening Encounter

Carolina's grappling squad will move into full-fledged drills Monday afternoon in preparation for the season mat opener with the V. P. I. wrestlers, which will be held on January 15.

Coaches P. H. Quinlan and Hobie McKeever have been working several weeks on fundamentals and the squad is rated potentially strong, with ten varsity lettermen returning from last year's and other year's squads.

The matmen have a big job cut out for them in keeping up the standard set by last season's outfit, which captured six of seven matches to share the Southern conference crown with the Duke Blue Devils.

Co-Captains Dick Seaver and Tommy Hearn will lead the 1947 edition of the mat squad. Several weights include more than one letterman working out this year and strong competition is predicted.

Coach Ranson Posts Call For Large Track Turnout

Tar Heels Face Tough Indoor Campaign; Schedule Includes Two Meets with Duke

Coach Dale Ranson has sent out a call for all men interested in indoor track to report to the Tin Can tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock.

The Carolina track mentor expressed the desire for a large turnout since the Tar Heel runners face a tough season. The schedule which opens January 25, consists of two meets with Duke, one to be run in the Tin Can and the other to be run on the outdoor board track at Duke. In addition Carolina will be the host team for the annual Southern Conference track event.

Coach Ranson also expects to enter a team in the Milrose games scheduled for early February in New York, to compete in either the two-mile relay or a mile team race to be run on a cross country scoring basis.

The Tin Can, which for the past few months has been used as a storage place, has been cleared and made ready for the tracksters. The full length track has been laid and the jumping pits are available.

Joe Hilton will be on hand to assist Ranson in the coaching duties.

Grid Squad Disbanded After Return of Team

Football dropped from the sports limelight yesterday as the last repercussions of the Carolina-Georgia Sugar Bowl clash found themselves lost amid the din of basketballs on the hardwood courts.

The much talked-of lateral pass play which contributed greatly to the Tar Heels' defeat still was a main topic of conversation in many quarters, but the majority of fans and writers have decided to sit back and wait to see what the pictures of the battle will show, if anything.

The Carolina players and coaches returned from New Orleans early yesterday morning and the team was disbanded. No announcement has been made as yet concerning the starting date for winter drills.

Intramural Meetings

Mural director Walter Rabb has requested that all men who are planning to work as intramural basketball officials this winter, report to the mural office Tuesday afternoon at four o'clock.

Rabb also announced that there will be a meeting of the mural managers, both fraternity and dormitory, Tuesday evening at 7:30 at the Gym. All managers should be sure to attend the session since plans for the winter quarter will be completed.

Ronman to Stress Endurance Drills

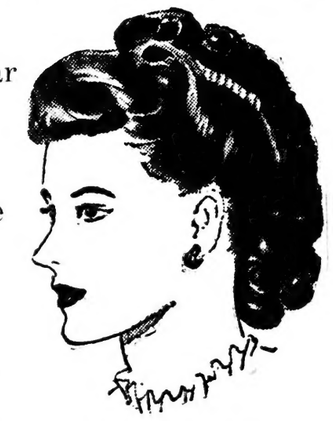
Smarting from the 5 1-2 to 2 1-2 setback handed them by the Syracuse mittmen in the Sugar Bowl battle at New Orleans, Coach Mike Ronman will stress conditioning in the stepped-up drills starting Monday afternoon pointing toward the regular season curtain-raiser with the University of Virginia ringmen on January 18.

The Tar Heels looked far behind the Syracuse squad in endurance, which paid off for the Northerners over the three-round distance of the matches.

Coach Ronman boasts of strength in the 165-pound class and in the heavyweight division, with a wealth of potential material in the other weight classes. Dick Young looked good in breezing to a win in the 165-pound division in the New Orleans battle with heavyweight Ed McGee taking a decisive victory in his ring bout.

McGee is rated the most experienced boxer on the squad according to Ronman who declared—"He knows all the moves. All I have to do is check his speed and timing."

Other leading ring prospects include Paul Gordy—125 lb.; Charles Lambeth—130 lb.; Charles Kimsey—145 lb.; Leonard Green—155 lb.; heavyweight—Max Spellman.



Penna Early Leader In Los Angeles Open

Los Angeles, Jan. 4—(UP)—Little Toney Penna of Cincinnati, Ohio, holds the lead over early finishers in the second round of the Los Angeles Open Gold tournament. Penna fired a 71 today, giving him 140 for the two rounds. "Porky" Oliver of Wilmington, Delaware, has 140, one stroke behind Penna.

One of the fine old American customs is to begin a new year with a lot of resolutions. Some we keep. Others we make with the intention of breaking them to the delight of ourselves and friends. You're being a good American to resolve to do something or other from this day on until eternity. You're being a better, wiser American to make a solemn resolution to strengthen the future security of yourself and family.

blank range."

He was imprisoned first at Cabantaun pricon camps, No.'s 1 and 3, and then in Bilibid Prison, all in the Phillipines, until July, 1944.

"I received no actual abuse myself," he explained. "But there wasn't much consideration shown to prisoners either. We all had all our personal belongings taken from us, and suffered considerably from malnutrition and the weather. The whole 40 months I was a prisoner, I received but 12 small supply parcels from the American Red Cross."

Bilibid was quite a place, Norket says. A huge, ancient, thick-walled fortress with 2300 volts of electricity humming ominously atop its outer walls.

Work in Japan

In July, 1944, he was taken to Nagoya in Japan proper, and put to work in a train factory until the war's end.

"The factory was bombed four times, each time in a different place, until the plant was finally demolished completely. Luckily we were in our prison quarters about a half a mile away while it all was happening."

Norket's place of confinement suffered less from the thorough treatment of the Air Forces, but on one occasion three corners of the camp were hit at once.

"The Japs kept right on trying to work during most of the bombings. That is, up until the first atom bomb was dropped. After that, the very sight of a plane would send them scurrying."

On August 15, 1945, all the American prisoners were taken off their jobs, and six days later the Japanese condescended to give them the welcome news that the war was over.

"From then on out, I had it pretty lucky," Norket said. "I boarded a plane in Tokyo September 7 and flew all the way to Norfolk, Virginia."

Gunner's Mate Norket has been serving as a gunnery maintenance man with the University Navy Unit since October 8.

Truman Speech Condemns Cuts Of Any Taxes

State of Union Talk Asks Balanced Budget

Washington, Jan. 6—(UP)—President Truman has served notice on the new Republican Congress that he opposes any tax cuts at this time. In his annual State of the Union message to both Houses of Congress this afternoon, Mr. Truman promised a balanced budget this year. He asked that present tax rates be maintained so surplus government income can be used to retire part of the national debt.

Mr. Truman also called for new labor legislation. He asked Congress to outlaw jurisdictional strikes, and to require compulsory arbitration of contract interpretation disputes. He proposed that a 20-man commission be appointed to study long-range changes in labor laws.

Other programs which the President asked the GOP Congress to carry out include unification of the armed forces; universal military training; extension of the draft if necessary, and relaxation of immigration laws to permit thousands of European displaced persons to enter America.

Health Program

The President asked for a national health insurance act to be administered by a new Department of Welfare. He urged an aggressive federal housing program, and protection of farm prices. But he indicated opposition to any veterans' bonus.

Solon Introduces Bill To Outlaw Filibusters

Washington, Jan. 6—(UP)—California Republican Senator William F. Knowland has introduced a bill to check filibusters. His action is the first Republican move in the new Congress to restrict the parliamentary tactics of extended debate.

U.S.-Berlin Reporters Make Appeal to Byrnes

Berlin, Jan. 6—(UP)—Over 50 American correspondents of the Berlin Press Association have cabled an appeal through Secretary of State Byrnes for free movement of allied newsmen in all four occupation zones. They ask Byrnes to carry the case to the Council of Foreign Ministers.

Monty Lands in Moscow During Heavy Snowfall

Moscow, Jan. 6—(UP)—Field Marshal Montgomery landed in Moscow in a heavy snowstorm and received a rousing welcome today. He said he is visiting Russia to establish friendly contact with the Soviet army and bring about better understanding.

Heavy Storm Expected In Middlewest Region

Chicago, Jan. 6 — (UP) — The weather bureau says a new storm building up in eastern Colorado threatens to bring more snow to a wide area of the middle-west which still is bogged down in last week's heavy snowstorms.

U. S. Requests Russians To Abide by Agreement

Washington, Jan. 6—(UP)—The United States has asked Russia to live up to its agreement to make Dairen, Manchuria, a free port under Chinese rule. It was the first official U. S. word in connection with the Dairen incident in which Russian officers ordered an American naval vessel to leave the port abruptly.

Jackson, Miss., Jan. 6—(UP)—Senator Bilbo's seat may remain in the family even if the man himself loses it. The former wife of the Mississippi senator says their son, Lieutenant Colonel Theodore Bilbo, Jr., may run for the seat if his father is denied it.

Tin Soldiers Have Ammunition...

Residents of Quonset Huts Think Setup 'Not Too Bad'

By Barron Mills

"I think these Quonset huts will be a pretty good set-up just as soon as these tin soldiers around these parts use up their ammunition," is the general opinion of one of the new inhabitants recently returned from the Bikini crossroad atom bomb tests.

The "tin soldiers" referred to are the residents who are giving the finishing touches to the Christmas supply of fireworks.

In general the small village of fresh Joe College GI's living in their rows of split cylinder shacks are very well pleased with the arrangements. As one ex-photographer's mate terms it, the place "is always warm and the fire in the automatic stoker stove is always roaring—and it's still a mystery who keeps it going."

Like a Race

"Last night," continued the photog, "I thought we were living on a super highway. The small alley between the rows of huts makes a natural race track and you have to watch yourself when you step out the door to keep from bumping into an auto."

Each of the 40 students living in the huts has two lockers in which to keep his clothing and also a clothes racks improvised between the double decker bunks with broom handles.

Harold and Horace Warner, identical twins from Walkertown, have been having their own private feud since returning from service. It seems that the brothers occupy a double decker—Harold in the top bunk and Horace on the bottom. About midnight each night Harold in the top bunk decides that it is too warm for his health and asks Horace in the bottom bunk to open the window.

Uses Padlock

In order to get enough air to suit Harold the window has to be thrown wide open from the bottom right in Horace's face since the curvature of the roof just lets a small amount of air in at the top. Horace's latest thought is to put a padlock on the window to keep out the stormy blasts.

BAND REHEARSAL

The first rehearsal for the quarter of the UNC concert band, will be held this afternoon in Hill Music hall at 4:30 o'clock.

President Graham Returns to Work

President Frank Graham returned to his office yesterday morning for the first time since November 5, when he entered Johns Hopkins hospital, Baltimore, for treatment of an eye ailment. He returned to Chapel Hill Saturday after a month's convalescence at the Florida home of Kemp Battle, Jr.

Dr. Graham is still limited to part-time work, but members of his staff report he is "looking very fine." Most of the first day's work was spent in conference with Controller W. D. Carmichael, Jr.

WOMEN'S GLEE CLUB

The Women's Glee club will have its first rehearsal of the winter quarter this evening at 7 o'clock in Hill hall.

Piano Recital Will be Given By Livingston

Herbert Livingston, graduate assistant and instructor in piano in the University Music department, will give a piano recital Friday evening at 8:30 o'clock in Hill Music hall. His program will feature Serge Prokofieff's "Sonata No. 7," and compositions by Mozart, Schubert, Chopin and Iiszt.

This is Mr. Livingston's first solo appearance since his return to Chapel Hill following four years in the Navy. During the war he saw service in both the European and the Pacific theatres.

Before the war he played many recitals in Chapel Hill and other North Carolina communities. He has appeared as soloist with the Syracuse Symphony Orchestra and with the University orchestra and has played on the major radio networks. He has received degrees from both Syracuse university and the University.

New Orleans Paper Praises UNC Band

Among the many comments stemming from the performance of the UNC marching band at the Sugar Bowl game in New Orleans, an editorial in the January 3 issue of the "New Orleans Item" presents the viewpoint of many who saw the band perform.

The editorial said in part, "The circus-day presentation of North Carolina's band at half-time was not merely a stopgap to while away the interval between periods of concentrated football. It was a delightful performance, worth coming to see and to hear for itself alone. In short, as the editors of weekly papers love to put it, one and all voted it a good time."

Bureau of Visual Education Added to Swain Hall Center

The newly-developed University Communication Center, located at Swain hall, was recently augmented by the addition of the Bureau of Visual Education of the Extension Division, which incorporated itself with the center to expand its services to include the distribution of all materials produced, and to assist in the promotion of better utilization of these sensory aids to learning.

Starting on a shoe-string nine years ago, the bureau now has on hand $50,000 worth of films and equipment. At present a library of over 800 16mm educational motion picture subjects, totaling over 1,200 prints, lantern slides, filmstrip and classroom recordings is available to schools, colleges, churches and adult study groups in this area.

Under the supervision of R. M. Grumman, director of the Extension Division, and Charles F. Milner, newly-appointed head of Visual Education, the library also owns 16mm sound motion picture projectors, sound and silent filmstrip projectors, lantern slide equipment, turntables, opaque projectors and a wire recorder, which are used locally and for demonstration purposes.

The goal of the Bureau of Visual Education is to have all North Carolina school units own a library of basic visual aid materials, and to see the teacher-training facilities of this state greatly expanded. Bureau personnel are: Charles F. Milner, head; Mrs. Louise Pendergraft, film library head; Mrs. Nancie Field, film librarian; and Dave Whittier, shipping clerk.

Virginia Troupe to Present Famed Shakespearean Comedy

'Much Ado About Nothing' Stars DeWeese As Lead in Performance Tomorrow Night

By Brooksie Popkins

Joan DeWeese of Philadelphia, Miss., will play the leading role of Beatrice in Shakespeare's comedy, "Much Ado About Nothing," which will be presented in a one-night performance by the Barter theatre of Virginia in Memorial hall tomorrow night at 8:30 o'clock under the sponsorship of the Carolina Playmakers.

Introduced by Broadway Actor

Joan DeWeese was introduced to the State theatre of Virginia by Louis Calhern, Broadway actor, noted for his performance in "The Magnificent Yankee." The young actress, graduate of the American Academy of Dramatic Arts, has studied with Maude Adams, worked with the Cleveland Playhouse and the Mt. Gretna Players, and has also attended Yale university in the school of the drama.

With a cast of 27 and seventy costumes, "Much Ado About Nothing" is the most elaborate production in the repertory schedule of the Barter theatre, founded and directed by Robert Porterfield.

Tickets at $1.23

Tickets, priced at $1.23, are now on sale at Ledbetter-Pickard's and the Playmakers business office in Swain hall. All seats are reserved.

NSO Delegates Return to Campus

Delegates to the National Student organization which met in Chicago December 28 and 30 have returned to the campus to present the subject of affiliation to the next session of the Student Legislature.

Delegates to the conference were Bill Miller, Jim Chesnutt and Tom Eller. Also present at the meeting was Jimmy Wallace, the Prague conference delegate, acting as host.

The NSO is attempting to form a national organization to more effectively campaign for higher living standards on campuses, better inter-national relationships and other subjects deemed beneficial to all college students.

Students Must Record DTH Address Changes

All students who have changed their address in town since the beginning of the fall quarter should file their new address with the Daily Tar Heel circulation department in Graham Memorial as soon as possible.

Due to the shortage of newsprint it is impossible to leave a paper at each door of Victory Village. Circulation Manager Burt Myers has arranged for 100 copies of the Daily Tar Heel to be left at the junction of the highway and the Victory Village road each morning.

North State Gets $336,501 to Aid In Fighting Polio

Since January 1939 the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis has sent into North Carolina $336,501.50 from contributions of other states for epidemic aid, aid to chapters and to research endowments, according to a report released by State Headquarters here.

During this period North Carolina itself has raised $1,312,739 to combat infantile paralysis. Of this total amount, 50 per cent, or $656,369, was sent to national headquarters in New York where the money is used for epidemic aid and research endowments, the report showed.

The National Foundation has sent back to North Carolina since 1939 almost a third again as much as was sent to New York, or $992,871. This amount was used for epidemic aid in 1944, for aid to the various county chapters, and for research endowments of which Duke University is one recipient.

"The $336,501.50 sent into this State above the amount which North Carolina sent to the National Foundation represents the dimes and dollars contributed to the annual infantile paralysis campaigns by people in other states," the report said.

"North Carolina has needed this outside help because polio has been on the increase. The total number of cases reported to the State Health Department from 1918 through October 1946 is 3,414. Of this number, 2,506 have been reported since 1935 and 1,107 since 1944.

"The average cost per hospital patient day is $7, and there were last month 90 patients in North Carolina hospitals: 36 at Gastonia, 37 at Charlotte, and 17 at Asheville.

"The approximate cost of infantile paralysis cases to North Carolina Chapters each year is $229,000. This is exclusive of appliances, professional services, transportation, equipment, and other unforeseen costs."

Med-School Applicants To Take Aptitude Tests

The professional aptitude test, which is being given instead of the medical aptitude test, will be held on Saturday.

Students should contact the Graduate Office in South Building to reserve a test and to find out its time and place. This test is required of all students applying for entrance to any medical college in 1947.

Layout Staff Members Requested to Convene

Old members of the layout staff of the Daily Tar Heel are requested to meet in the circulation department at 3 o'clock this afternoon. It is necessary for all who plan to work on the publication this quarter to be present.

Two famous authors and a well-known book illustrator are holding an autographing party in the Bull's Head Book Shop here. Left to right they are Marion Fitz-Simmons, illustrator of Josephina Niggli's popular novel "Mexican Village;" Miss Niggli; and Betty Smith, who wrote the recent best-seller, "A Tree Grows in Brooklyn."

For Both Present and Future

The University of North Carolina at present boasts more full professors than any other college or university in the Association of American Universities. But the University cannot boast about the salaries being paid these men.

Carolina professors receive about $4500 yearly, while the average professor's salary as revealed in a survey conducted throughout the association last summer is $5000.

The teaching profession is underpaid the nation over. Local faculty members are paid even less than average. The situation cannot continue to exist. Teaching salaries must be increased.

As matters now stand, the state fathers are cheating their children of their future education. Good men will not continue to teach here when they can get more money elsewhere. The University has lost, and will continue to lose, many of its top-notch professors to institutions capable of paying higher salaries.

The matter of increased salaries for members of the teaching profession will be one of the most important facing the state assembly in Raleigh when it meets this month. A 20 per cent wage increase has been proposed, and must be forthcoming if education in the state of North Carolina, and at the University of North Carolina, is to continue to progress.

Even a 20 per cent increase will not succeed in keeping all of the best professors at Chapel Hill, for a 20 per cent increase will fall short of meeting their increased living expenses. But the men who educate the future leaders of the state and nation are in one of the most neglected of our present-day professions as far as the salary is concerned. They play vital roles in preparing our modern students for their future careers. The value of their work is worth paying for. As the situation stands now, they are widely neglected. The cry of "more pay" for teachers can be heard around the country from the few remaining little red schoolhouses to the silent, dignified sanctums of the nation's leading educational institutions.

And North Carolina is below a very poor average. The situation cannot grow much worse. If the University is to continue its rapid expansion and growth in size and importance throughout the country it cannot afford to lose its most brilliant and creative faculty members.

The legislature will have to act quickly and reassuringly. It will have to act to keep the University on the pedestal of higher learning towards which it has steadily climbed. Only an excellent faculty can keep it there. Only a goodly increase in pay can keep and maintain an excellent faculty here.

Vitamin Content of Tradition

Tradition is a wonderful institution.

But no one has, to our knowledge, ever lived on tradition alone. The vitamin content of tradition is questionable.

Yet, for many, many months, before and during the war years, a small group of Carolina's foremost educators has attempted to do just that.

These men, outstanding in their respective fields—expert professors and teachers—vastly underpaid and subject to better offers from other schools, have remained in Chapel Hill because of an intense loyalty and a sincere love for the University, the town, and everything connected with the place—except their salary.

Even so, it has come to the point where even some of the most loyal members of the faculty can no longer live on their meager salaries and have been forced to go on to greener fields elsewhere.

The few who remain to play important roles in educating the young people of North Carolina have tried to squeeze vitamins and living expenses from tradition for a long time now.

But it just won't work. Tradition remains a fine thing to talk about. But tradition pills are bitter ones to swallow. Their vitamin content is nil.

Even college professors, teaching in a college town steeped in tradition, cannot live on tradition. Money is still a vital necessity. Those who have lived on tradition in the past must get money in the future or stop educating the men who will some day run this state.

Magazine Review

December Carolina Magazine Called Best Issue to Date

By R. Haskell Hamilton

Those students who were lucky enough to be through with exams last quarter, before the December Carolina Magazine hit the campus didn't have all the gravy. Those of us who were still here and who relaxed with the Mag between cram sessions were rewarded by the best issue of the current year from a standpoint of make-up, readability, and all around balance, in fiction, features, humor and art. As a matter of fact, the December issue was conservatively 50% better than the November issue.

John Sink's "Clean Slate" was a particularly hard-hitting story. Sink handled a difficult theme with realism and with enough restraint so as to keep it from getting vulgar. Incidentally, Sink's art work in this issue is certainly up to par.

Martha Linney's "Blue Vase," and Stuart Harris' "More Kind Than Home" do much to raise the level of the Carolina Mag's fiction to a respectable level, instead of the mediocre category into which it could previously be placed. Dick Stern's "In A Dry Month" is the only fiction feature that doesn't measure up to the pace of the rest of the writing.

AVC World Peace Essay winner David Andrews has written a poignant searching and interesting essay. It was good and smart editing to place it in the December issue during the "Peace on Earth Good Will to Men" season. Jud Kinberg's Carolina Parade, continues to be the outstanding feature of the magazine. The Vet Village feature, combining the talent of Bill Woestendiek and Bob Reams is timely, factual and presents the straight dope on Mudville.

The other contributors to the Mag—Jerry Hurwitz, John Davis, and Eddie Allen—are all to be congratulated for helping to make the odd-hour Exam week reading a lot better than previous Mags have been. I hope they can keep it up.

I'd Rather Be Right . . .

Stolid South in Dire Need Of Good Two-Party System

By Earl Heffner

What this country needs is a good five-cent cigar. For that matter smokers might be willing to settle for a pack of cigarettes that cost only fifteen cents. And I'm not thinking of Home Runs. Those can be saved for Ted Williams in case the Bosox slugger wants to catch up on his quota. But more than anything else, what this state needs—what every state in the Southland is in dire necessity of developing—is a good old-fashioned two-party system. When our forefathers formed the government they had but one party, that of Washington and Hamilton. The divergence of opinion by leading statesmen rapidly led to a loyal opposition, thence to a second party. Throughout the nation's history parties have bloomed and faded. Yet, with the end of the Civil War came the death knell of political life in the South.

The deplorability of this situation has been manifested in national politics wherein Democrats have failed to share the spoils because the Solid South is always solid. Or maybe the better word is Stolid. Webster's dictionary seems to think so. And since Republicans cannot win in the South, they see no sense in sharing political fruits with their foes.

Lately the situation has become more acute. Perhaps it is the maturation of the mind that makes this seem so. Whether this be true or no, evidence is mounting that the South, potentially the rich frontier of the nation, is yet suffering postwar effects of not World War II, but the Civil War.

Perhaps the hand of Providence has intervened; mayhap it is only the Fates. And yet again pure coincidence can gain the credit—or blame if the reader shares the opposing view. No matter the factors involved, the state of Georgia seems to have been granted a reprieve from return to Dark Ages totalitarianism by the death of its governor-elect. A proponent of the race superiority theory, Eugene Talmadge and his fellow politico Senator Bilbo of Mississippi have expounded principles that read like a chapter out of Hitler's Epithet written in an Austrian jail.

Only a necessary operation on Bilbo for cancer of the mouth has saved the Republican-controlled Senate from a tiresome, sensationalistic filibuster led by Southern Democrats who seem more anxious to retain a race-unhappy demagogue among their midst than to deal with legislation necessary to the welfare of the nation.

Mental stagnation eventually may lead to national decadence. Fortunately there are signs of a political awakening in the South. Maybe the two-party system will come to pass here again. Then we can get the five-cent cigar.

Something new in the way of lines popped up yesterday morning when a group of eager students queued up in front of Caldwell hall.

The building, which has a narrow front door as its chief exit, was packed with students leaving classes. Those coming in for the next hour were lined up down the steps and out along the walk. If the line continues throughout the quarter an alert student will probably pick up some loose change by selling hot coffee these chilly mornings.

Shows how great is the desire for knowledge on the part of our political science and philosophy students, however. They were fighting their way to get into class—and out of the cold.

And speaking of doors, swinging ones this time, it's a wonder someone isn't maimed for life in Murphey or Saunders these days with doors opening suddenly throughout the building. It's particularly necessary to keep a sharp eye peeled at the various exits where about six doors seem to be swinging in six different directions at the same time. And not everybody is too careful about looking before they let go of a swinging door.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Drew Pearson

FORRESTAL ANGLES FOR JIMMIE BYRNES' JOB; SEN. MORSE TRIPS REPUBLICAN KINGMAKERS; PACIFIC COAST IGNORED ON FOREIGN RELATIONS COMMITTEE

Washington.—A lot of jockeying is still going on backstage to take Jimmie Byrnes' place if he resigns as Secretary of State—even though it now looks as if Byrnes had regained his health. Up until recently there were three chief possibilities for the job—General George Marshall, General Eisenhower and Secretary of the Navy Forrestal. Neither Marshall nor Eisenhower have pushed themselves for the job. On the contrary. However, Marshall was Truman's candidate, while Eisenhower was the candidate of George Allen.

Around Christmas time, however, Marshall's friends made it clear that he was fed up with being a diplomat, did not relish becoming Secretary of State and wanted to retire to Virginia as soon as his job in China was finished.

In regard to General Eisenhower, it was George Allen's idea to put him in the key job of Secretary of State as a build-up for the Presidency—if Truman does not run again. Eisenhower grew up as a Kansas Democrat, made his first public speech at a Jackson Day dinner and was picked by a Democratic Administration to be Supreme Commander.

Third—and most active—candidate for the State Department is Jimmie Forrestal, who, a bit bored with running the Navy, has been itching to get his hands on foreign policy for many months. Those who follow State Department affairs figure he would be the least qualified of the three—despite the general public sentiment against having a military man at the helm of foreign policy.

Note—President Truman is very much hoping that Byrnes will remain on as Secretary of State indefinitely. Despite some personal misunderstandings one year ago, Byrnes and Truman have now become warm friends, and the President gives him full rein over foreign policy.

THE SENATE KINGMAKERS

It was probably Senator Wayne Morse, Oregon Republican who first inspired the name "kingmakers" as applied to his GOP colleagues, Taft, Vandenberg, and White and their now successful efforts to crown their own men as chairmen of Senate committees.

Though Senators Reed (Kans.), Tobey (N.H.), and Wilson (Ia.) got most of the publicity for battling the kingmakers, it was legalminded Morse of Oregon, former Dean of the Oregon University Law School, who embarrassed them most.

His tripping-up tactics came during the secret debate of the GOP Committee on Committees after young Senator Cabot Lodge of Massachusetts, grandson of the Senator who defeated the League of Nations, had been proposed as a member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

The kingmakers had selected two Easterners, Lodge and Smith of New Jersey, together with one Midwesterner, Hickenlooper of Iowa, as new members of this vital Committee. This brought an immediate protest from Morse.

"I consider it strange," he said, "that you have given seats to three men from the relative East and not one seat to the Pacific Coast. Apparently you ignore the fact that we on the Pacific face great problems with the Japanese and Chinese, and that one important phase of the war was fought from our shores.

"If you think that is the way to bring harmony to the Republican party," continued the gentleman from Oregon, "by ignoring one great segment of the party, then I serve notice right now that I intend to stand up and fight for the Pacific Coast."

TAFT PROTESTS

As this point, Senator Taft argued that Lodge was entitled to a post on the Foreign Relations Committee since he had resigned from the Senate to go to war, thus losing his seniority rights.

"I want to make it clear," replied Morse, "that I have no objection to Mr. Lodge. I think he is eminently qualified to serve. But the time to have settled this was in the meeting of the Steering Committee when Senator Tobey proposed restoring Mr. Lodge's seniority rights. I was in complete agreement with Senator Tobey, but it was Mr. Lodge himself who withdrew his seniority claims and you gentlemen applauded his withdrawal. That decision should stand.

"I'm not asking for the vacancy myself," Morse concluded. "If any other Western Republican has more seniority, the post should go to him. But the West is entitled to representation."

However, the well-oiled kingmakers' machine was functioning perfectly. On a vote, the Oregon Senator was overwhelmingly turned down.

After the vote, forthright kingmaker Vandenberg, who is Chairman of the new Foreign Relations Committee, rose half-apologetically to say:

"I want to explain my vote. It was influenced by the fact that the Committee's report is already printed and has been circulated for some time. We can't change it now. However, I agree completely with the Senator from Oregon that a West Coast man should be on the Foreign Relations Committee. And I want to go on record that the next vacancy on the Committee should go to the Pacific Coast."

BACKSTAGE DEAL

This brought smiles to the faces of several anti-kingmakers. They figured that this put Ohio's Taft and his Presidential ambitions in a hole. Obviously he didn't want to antagonize the West. Perhaps this was why he sought out Morse as soon as the secret meeting was over, and in doing so inadvertently let the cat out of the bag.

"Wayne, I just feel awful about this," Taft said. "There should be a West Coast man on the Committee. But I think Lodge did one of the most patriotic things I know when he left the Senate to go into the Army, and we just had to give him a place on the Foreign Relations Committee."

The anti-kingmakers have now heard that this was the pay-off. If Lodge had been given his full seniority as proposed by New Hampshire's Tobey, he would have ranked right up with the Kingmakers. In fact he would have been Chairman of the Finance Committee instead of Millikin of Colorado, a strong Taft man and a deputy kingmaker.

JUST SPORTS. They were working off the affects of the Christmas holidays at Woollen gym yesterday, from early afternoon until way past dark. Meaning of course all the winter sports participants who are at this time accelerating activities in view of a season that is due to be in full dress in another two weeks.

From the basketballers, who have been back at it since a week ago Sunday, to the swimmers, they were all hard at the task of whipping into shape for a tough schedule directly ahead. And for the first Monday since August the gridders could take things easy without having to worry about staying in top shape for another football game . . . The latest information is that they will lay off practice until next quarter. The reason? The hard workouts in the warm Mississippi sunshine plus the game with a top-notch team like Georgia did more than four to six weeks of winter drills could have done . . . While we have strayed into what is not the subject of the day, it is more than worthy of mention that Tom Gorman, the passing ace of the Tar Heels during the 1945 season is back on the campus and in school. Gorman, you will recall, tossed four straight complete passes for Carolina's lone touchdown against the Blue Devils that year. He will play football next season, and his 197 passing pounds can be used unless we miss our guess. The other passing Tom of the Tar Heel 1945 crew, Tom Colfer, is attending St. Johns in Brooklyn.

Before we go further, we want to express our sincere sympathy to Ralph Strayhorn, the 1946 Tar Heel football co-captain, whose father passed away after a long illness day before yesterday. The funeral is to be held today. We speak for the entire campus and all the football fans who knew Ralph and who followed his gridiron fortunes.

Along the basketball court yesterday there were two new men working out, and another is anticipated tomorrow. The two out yesterday were Joking Joe Romano, the hard-charging Tar Heel end, and Mike Rubish, another rugged football flankman. Jack Fitch, who played a good game on the hardwood when he was here in the Navy program, is the third footballer whose presence is expected shortly . . . The basketball team is taking a whole week's rest before tackling LaSalle Saturday night in Philadelphia's Convention hall, and their play should be much improved from games to date. A somewhat new system has been introduced, and Coach Tom Scott has found it considerably more successful in operations . . . Jim "Daddy of them all" Hamilton, is the current big little man, having found his shooting eye in the fast break combine. Dillon, the Hook of course, is still having a hard time shaking off the "tacklers," but his form is improving as he completely recovers from early season injuries . . . Coach Scott will see Duke play NYU in Madison Square Garden Thursday, and then on Saturday night Duke will play Temple on the same card with Carolina and LaSalle. LIU and St. Louis will play with the Tar Heels in the Garden . . . They will be at the Hotel New Yorker . . . And there are a limited number of tickets for the NYU game on sale at Woollen gym.

A quick review of the intramural winners for the fall quarter shows DKE and Lewis the tag football champions, Phi Gam and Town the wrestling winners, Phi Gam and Grads the volleyball champs, ATO and Aycock the table tennis winners, and Sigma Chi and Med School the boxing champions . . . The past quarter saw mural competition reach unexpected heights, and the entire department, headed by Walter Rabb, deserves a lot of credit for the good showing.

Winding up with what we started, the winter sports were operating at full strength, with something like 35 out for wrestling drills for instance. The same was true, however, for boxing, swimming and indoor track alike, and competition is reaching a high level with so many men out for positions.

Dorm Division Cops Fall Mural Crown

Few Gridders To Quit Team

Jarrell, Spellman Finish Careers

Although all except two members of North Carolina's gifted Sugar Bowl squad have at least one more year of eligibility, there likely will be several faces missing when the 1947 season opens.

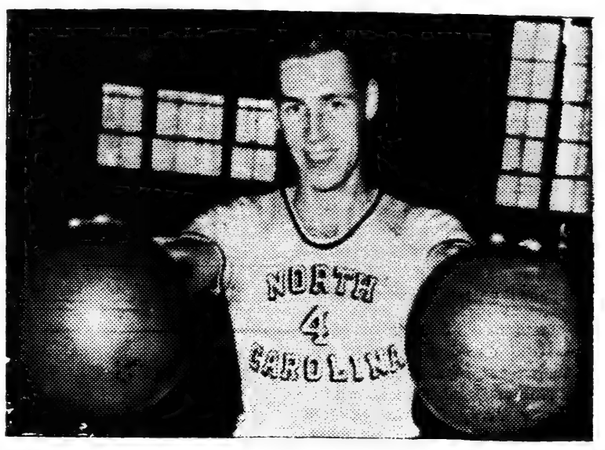
"We know some of the boys will drop out," said Head Coach Carl Snavely, prior to his departure with other athletic officials for the NCAA sessions in New York. "That's always to be expected. Several of our players are expectant fathers and some of them may find it inconvenient to continue their studies next fall. At least, however, we will return most of the players from the 1946 squad."

The two seniors who definitely have played their last football for Carolina are Baxter Jarrell, the big tackle from Asheboro, and Max Spellman, reserve tailback from Savannah, Ga., who saw little action the past season but who was such a faithful squadman that he was voted one of the Sugar Bowl watches.

Co-Captain Ralph Strayhorn of Durham has indicated that he will enter the law school and will have to forego football next fall although he has not definitely informed Coach Snavely of his plans.

Coach Snavely expressed pleasure over the team's record through the season and its play at New Orleans. "It was a much better team than I expected it to be," he said, "and I have never coached a better bunch of boys. If we had to go back over the Sugar Bowl game, I do not believe we would have done anything differently in the way of preparations."

Coach Snavely expected some "fireworks" at the NCAA meeting. An exponent of the shift which has drawn fire in some quarters, Snavely said that he hoped it would not be outlawed because it aids the offense.



AAU Diving Star Enrolls at Carolina

Norman L. Sper, Jr., of Hollywood, Calif., a national AAU diving champion, has matriculated at the University of North Carolina and will be a candidate for the Blue Dolphin swimming team, coached by Dick Jamerson, the coming season.

Sper won the national 10-foot board and tower (33-foot board) titles in 1944 and 1945. Previously to that he was a national AAU junior champion.

At Andover preparatory school, from which he graduated, he established three diving records and also played on the football and tennis teams.

Sper, who is six-foot-one and weighs 160, will major in dramatics. His mother, the late Winona Winter, a native of Huntsville, Ala., was a musical comedy star for many years.

Junior letterman Bob Paxton, (above) is one of the big guns in the White Phantom scoring attack. Rated an expert on backboard shots, Paxton is one of the holdovers from the Phantom squad of last season, along with John (Hook) Dillon and Jim White. He is a rangy forward, six feet-three inches tall, hailing from Spokane, Washington.

Phantoms Start Practice For Encounters in North

Cagers Map Attack Against Zone Defense; Three Changes Announced in Court Slate

Coach Tom Scott sent his Carolina cagers through a lengthy drill yesterday afternoon as the White Phantoms began pointing for their northern jaunt next weekend that carries them to Philadelphia and New York.

Much of the session was devoted to developing an attack to be used against the zone defense. Coach Scott worked with the starting quintet of Johnny Dillon, Bob Paxton, Jim Hamilton, Jim White and Norm Kohler at one end of the court while Assistant Coach Pete Mullis drilled the remaining players at the other basket. Two former gridmen, Joe Romano and Mike Rubish, reported to Coach Scott during the practice and worked out briefly. Another, Jack Fitch, is scheduled to come out later this week.

Present plans for the journey call for 12 players to make the trip, with the squad leaving from Greensboro Friday evening. Carolina will meet LaSalle in the first game of a double-header in Convention Hall Saturday night, with Duke opposing Temple in thethe second contest. At New York's Madison Square Garden the Phantoms face NYU and LIU plays St. Louis in a Tuesday twin-bill. The team will return to Chapel Hill January 15.

Three schedule changes in the Carolina cage slate were announced yesterday by the Athletic Association. On February 17, the Phantoms engage South Carolina at Columbia, an addition to the card. The game with Davidson at Charlotte, originally slated for February 17, has been shifted back one day and the encounter at Wake Forest has been changed from February 19 to February 20.

Phi Gams Lead Frat Loop Play

Aycock Takes Lead In League Battle

The dormitory division dominated the all-campus championships for the Fall quarter in intramural competition, according to statistics released by intramural Director Walter Rabb.

Dormitory teams copped championships in three sports, tag football, table tennis, and wrestling. The Phi Gams won the lone fraternity flag in volleyball. No tabulation has been made for the boxing tournament, according to Rabb.

The Phi Gams took first place in the fraternity division, scoring a total of 518.3 points. The Sigma Chi's copped second place with 493.4 points.

Aycock dormitory rolled up 415 points to lead the dormitory division. The Grad School tallied 317 points to take the runner-up slot.

Total figures for the intramural program during the fall quarter show that 48 different organizations entered 235 teams containing 2,376 players. These teams played 142 contests involving the use of 72 officials. 1329 different individuals are competing for the Grail awards presented each year to the outstanding intramural athlete of the year.

The intramural department is looking forward to an even greater rivalry in mural contests this quarter. Competition during the previous quarter was rated close in all activities with the traditionally keen interfraternity and interdormitory rivalry reaching its peak during the wrestling and boxing tournaments.

Competition during the winter quarter is expected to be centered in the mural basketball race, traditionally a hotly contested sport. Play is scheduled to begin on January 8.

There will be a meeting of all intramural basketball officials this afternoon at 4 p. m. in the intramural office. Walter Rabb announced yesterday. The mural managers will meet tonight at 7:30 p. m.

All Southern Loop Teams To Hit Courts This Week

By United Press

Basketball really goes big-time in the Carolinas this week. All of the Southern Conference teams are going to hit the courts. And altogether the next six nights will see something like 34 cage games offered the basketball loving public by college and semi-pro teams.

The defending champions from Duke University—who until Saturday were undefeated this season—see only one opponent. They'll meet the Davidson Wildcats in Winston-Salem tomorrow night. The Blue Devils had seven wins to their credit when the Tennesseans toppled them on Saturday night by a score of 53 to 47.

Their first conference opponent is rated as the underdog. But the Wildcats will be hoping for help from Mike Williams — sophomore forward who injured his ankle in practice last week.

The White Phantoms from the University of North Carolina—runners-up to the Blue Devils as conference favorites at the season's opening—won't see action in the circuit this week. They opened their regular season last week with the 58 to 42 win over the University of Maryland.

But the dark horse State College squad that swept through early games with some impressive floor work and smooth scoring ability—has climbed into a position about even with the pre-season favorites. They finished a vacation period tour of the Midwest and a few eastern spots with a total record of nine wins and two losses. And the State College Wolfpack also boasts of having the conference scoring leaders as of the present standings. Richard "Red" Dickey was runner-up in the scoring when the pre-season rounds were over. He had 91 points to 101 for Wake Forest's Jack Gentry.

But in that holiday season invasion circuit Dickey brought his scoring total up to 166 points, while Gentry had fewer opportunities and pushed his score up to only 118.

DR. W. C. GEORGE

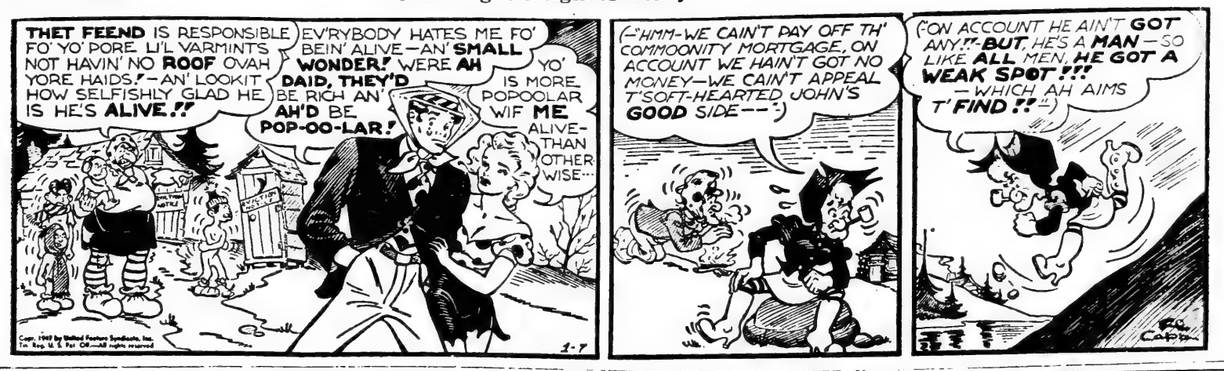
Dr. George Will Speak At New York Institute

Dr. W. C. George, head of the Department of Anatomy of the University Medical School, has accepted an invitation to address the American Institute of New York City Thursday. He will speak on origin and development of fraternal and identical twins, a subject in which he has done much research.

The institute has regular programs through the winter of lectures and demonstrations in all branches of science. Its audiences are composed of professional people as well as laymen interested in scientific developments.

Last month the institute gave a Science Fair for high school and grammar school students at Madison Square garden, at which several hundred exhibits were presented, all made by the children themselves.

The institute is the sponsor and promoter for some of the great inventions and practical developments of the 19th century, having been established in 1828.



Training Program For Law Officers Gets Under Way

The first statewide comprehensive police training program, planned to acquaint over a thousand North Carolina law enforcement officers with present-day traffic control and accident prevention, opened Sunday evening here under Institute staff members, local traffic experts, FBI agents, and members of the State Highway patrol, opened the session with an address by Col. H. J. Hatcher, commanding officer of the highway patrol. Classes opened yesterday morning.

Upon completion of their training at Chapel Hill the 33 officers will return to their local departments to organize 22 similar traffic schools, Assistant Director Terry Sanford of the Institute announced. He said that five F.B.I. agents had been assigned to eight weeks special duty in North Carolina to assist with the instruction program.

The 22 local schools will be instructed not only by the officers now in training and the federal agents but also by local judges and solicitors, who are to attend a special school at the Institute January 17 and 18. The judges and solicitors will teach traffic law as their part in the statewide program.

Campus-Wide Debates Now Being Planned By Forensics Group

The Debate Council will soon announce a campus-wide, non-decisional debate to which all interested students are invited. Tentative plans include extension of an invitation to Duke students to attend the debate and match Carolina students man for man. Dates proposed are Saturday, January 18 or 25.

The Debate Council will meet Thursday evening at 7 o'clock to discuss plans for the remainder of the year. Included on the agenda is a proposal by Betty Ann Green for financial aid to the International Relations club for a speaker and funds for the renovation of the Di Senate.

Classes Will Resume For Bridge Beginners

Bridge classes for beginners will be resumed today at 5 o'clock in the Grail Room of Graham Memorial with Howell Peacock and Jim Jackson instructing. Regular classes will be held each Tuesday, Thursday and Friday afternoon at the same time.

If the demand proves great enough, according to Instructor Peacock, an advanced class will be offered at an early date.

Ben Hogan Captures Los Angeles Tourney

Los Angeles, Jan. 6—(UP)—The Hershey, Pennsylvania hotshot—Ben Hogan—walked off with the $10,000 Los Angeles Open golf tournament today and broke the course record for 72 holes with a 72-hole total of 280.

Little Toney Penna, of Cincinnati, Ohio, who chased Hogan most of the way, wound up in the number two spot, three strokes behind.

Babe Ruth Undergoes Successful Operation

New York, Jan. 6—(UP)—Baseball's famed Babe Ruth seems to have batted another home run tonight.

The King of Swat underwent a major neck operation in a New York hospital today. And he came out of it so satisfactorily that hospital attendants predict he'll be home again within two weeks.

Before Ruth went under the knife, his physician said, "the outlook is considered serious." But after two hours and 10 minutes under the ether, his condition was reported as "satisfactory." And doctors believe he'll be back on his feet in a day or so.

Bilbo Heads for South In Famous '46 Cadillac To Be Hospitalized

By United Press

Jackson, Miss., Jan. 6—Mississippi Senator Theodore Bilbo is on the road to New Orleans in his now-famous 1946 Cadillac today.

The fiery little man is on his way to another mouth operation. Behind him in Jackson and Washington he leaves a rash of political speculation. All sides in the fight to oust the man they call "The Man" from the Senate are taking advantage of a two-month breathing spell to check their positions and make plans.

With Forrest Jackson, his attorney, Bilbo left Washington yesterday. They are expected to reach New Orleans tomorrow. Dr. Alton Oschner, dean of the Tulane School of Surgery, will prepare Bilbo for a second operation to remove another piece of his lower jaw and new cancerous tissue.

Called Time Out

With Republicans determined to keep him from taking his seat in the Senate, Bilbo agreed Saturday to call time out while he undergoes the operation.

In Jackson, meanwhile, political leaders are looking ahead to the possibility that Bilbo will be denied a seat. . . .Former Mississippi Governor Hugh White and State House Speaker Walter Sillers are spoken of as top candidates for the post. White who now is serving in the State Legislature, is considered the leading prospect.

The newest development within Mississippi is a report that veterans' circles in the State have a prospect of their own to succeed Bilbo if he should retire, or be thrown out of the Senate.

The new prospect is Bilbo's son—Theodore G. Bilbo, Junior. Young Bilbo is a West Point graduate, now serving with the Army of Occupation in Germany.

All delivery complaints will be handled at the circulation office, telephone 8641, every morning from 10-11 o'clock, and each afternoon from 4 to 5 o'clock.

Truman Names Marshall State Secretary To Succeed Byrnes

Resignation Is Due to Health, CarolinianSays

First Time Officer Named to That Post

From United Press Reports

In one of the most unexpected changes during the Truman administration James S. Byrnes stepped down tonight from his post of Secretary of State, and George Catlett Marshall, former chief of staff of the U. S. Army, became top man in the cabinet.

Byrnes has wanted to resign for some time because of his health. Last April he wrote to President Truman that he wanted to step out of the picture because his doctors had told him he had to slow down. He said then that it was impossible to slow down and still carry the heavy responsibilities of Secretary of State.

"Carry On," Says Truman

But the President persuaded him to stay on through the summer. Russia was split with the western powers over the serious question of what kind of treaties to write for the five Axis satellites. Byrnes was in the midst of the battle, and the President wanted him to carry on until it had been settled.

But in New York last month, the Big Four foreign ministers put the finishing touches on the treaties for the five countries. Part of the job of drawing the post-war map of Europe was over. So Byrnes submitted another letter of resignation on Decem-

U N Council Welcomes Three New Members

Lake Success, N. Y., Jan. 7—(UP)—The UN Security Council today welcomed its three new members—Belgium, Syria and Colombia. Then the council, as its first task of 1947, turned to consideration of the Big Four's plan for a free territory of Trieste.

Election Probes Sent To Senate Rules Group

Washington, Jan. 7—(UP)—Republican members of the new Senate Rules committee pulled a fast one on the Democrats today. They called a rump session and decided that the committee would handle all election investigations filed with the upper House. All contests filed so far are against Democrats.

Curran Accuses Bridges Of Undermining NMU

Charlotte Man Founds Memorial Scholarship

A Charlotte man has established a scholarship at the University in honor of his son, Harry Winkler jr., who was killed in the crash of a fighter plane in Florida in 1942.

Doctor Harry Winkler has specified that the award go to a student of Central High School in Charlotte. He has asked Principal John Ott to have the winner picked by the High School Scholarship Committee.

Doctor Winkler says he hopes the scholarship can be given annually. His son was a graduate of Central High, and received his degree from the University of North Carolina before entering the Air Corps.

FW A Sends 25 Buildings For Classrooms

Shakespearean Play Will Open Tonight

Barter Theatre To Give Comedy In Memorial Hall

Tonight in Memorial hall at 8:30 o'clock the famous Barter theatre of Virginia, founded and directed by Robert Porterfield, will present Shakespear's comedy, "Much Ado About Nothing," under the sponsorship of the Carolina Playmakers.

The Barter theatre started back in 1933 when depression blanketed the land. Instead of going on relief, young Actor Porterfield corralled 22 unemployed and hungry actors on Broadway, led them down to the Virgina Highlands, where hardly anyone had money, and opened his now famous Barter theatre. "You feed us," he told farmers and merchants, "and we'll give you Broadway plays."

Ham Salaries

Porterfield had no money with which to pay royalties to authors. So he sent them Virginia hams. Today playwrights still prefer the hams to cash and beg Porterfield to produce their plays at Abingdon, and to send a ham by return mail.

A tornado nearly wrecked the Barter theatre during the war. Mr. Porterfield returned from the USAAF to find things in ruins. He appealed to Abingdon civic leaders for help. They turned to the Commonwealth of Virginia. The Conservation Commission responded with a grant of $10,000 and designated Barter the first state theatre of America.

Touring South

At present the Barter theatre is planning to tour 12 southern states. Returning to Virginia on February 17, Barter will resume its course in the home state until the middle of May. Then Porterfield contemplates a two-week run in New York, where he will reorganize for the return to Abingdon in June.

English Girl Puzzled: At First Fiance, Then New Suitor Both Wed

Anniston, Ala., Jan. 7—(UP)—A pretty 18-year-old British war bride is wondering if wedded bliss is possible in this country. And her doubts may be justified. She has already been jilted once and victimized by a bigamous husband.

During her brief stay in the United States, Julia Doris Clark has found the path of romance anything but smooth. She left London last December 16 with the intention of marrying Howard McGouirk of East Point, Ga. She had seen McGouirk only once—in London in 1944—but she says they got engaged by mail.

Her plane trip to Georgia led to her first disillusionment. Her Howard had already married someone else. This, she says, made her realize that McGouirk no longer cared.

However, Miss Clark obviously did not grieve too long. During her brief stay in East Point she met another man, a 24-year-old cab driver named Austin M. Owens.

Miss Clark says Owens proposed that they get married so she could remain in America. But trouble developed again after the wedding at Anniston, Ala. As Miss Clark puts it—"The cad didn't tell me he already had a wife."

Owens is under a $2,400 bond on charges of bigamy. And the pretty London girl is trying to get an annullment.

NROTC to Enter Rifle Team Score In National Test

The rifle team of the NROTC Unit here will fire targets to be entered in the 1947 William Randolph Hearst rifle competition during the week of February 3-10, Capt. Lawrence W. Smith, Jr., officer in charge of the team announced today. All NROTC units throughout the nation will enter team scores in competition for the Hearst trophy.

The University's team won their last match, a dual affair with Rice university on December 7, by the score of 907 to 855. An outstanding feature of this match was the performance of Royal G. Shannonhouse, who shot 50 out of a possible 50 from the prone position for the Carolina unit. Other University students firing in this match were: Harvey D. Harrison, Thomas R. Wilkinson, Donald E. Adams, and Fred Dale.

Under the direction of Gunnery Sgt. Hershel L. Baker, USMC, the rifle team has tentatively scheduled the following matches for the winter quarter: Miami university—January 18; University of Rochester—February 8, University of Pennsylvania—February 15, and University of Southern California—May 9. All these matches will be conducted through the mails.

Free Tickets Now Available For Union Hop

Free invitations for Graham Memorial's formal Friday night dance in the main lounge will be available at the office of the student union from today until the supply is exhausted. Since the main lounge is so small, it will be necessary to limit the number of invitations, according to Director Martha Rice, who added a warning, "First come, first served."

Friday night's dance will formally introduce the newly-organized Graham Memorial Dance Band, the "Dream Serenaders," under Ned Reap's direction. The affair will last from 9 until midnight.

Following the Friday night formal will be a semi-formal dance in Woollen Gym on Saturday night with the "Dream Serenaders" again supplying the music. This dance will honor the Carolina football team and will be open to the entire campus.

Illinois U. Plays Host To Student Assembly

The University of Illinois played host to the National Assembly of the Student Christian Association Movement in Urbana, Ill., from Dec. 27 until Jan. 3.

Representatives from more than 600 college campuses across the nation met to determine the policies of the association for the next four years. Many foreign nations were represented by students now studying in the United States. The delegates from UNC were Don Broad, Earle Page, Coy Rogers, Tommie Holden and Ethel Perry.

Some of the outstanding speakers present were Charles Bolte, chairman of the American Veterans committee; Howard Thurman, dean of the Harvard university chapel; Albert Outler, professor in the Yale Divinity School, and John Oliver Nelson, editor of "The Intercollegian."

One of the highlights of the assembly was a panel on "Students and One World," by eight foreign students. The climax of the conference was a communion service of prayer, music and dedication.

Buildings to Be Brought From Camp Forrest, Tenn.

Government Is Helping to Solve Problem Of Space Shortages for Educational Use

By Earl Heffner

Classrooms by motor express will begin to roll to the University soon in this Jules Vernes' age when 25 temporary frame buildings from Camp Forrest, Tennessee commence to arrive on campus.

Donated by the Federal Works Agency, the buildings are a continuation of the federal government's policy of aiding all potential college students in the attainment of their higher educations. Contract specifications call for University administration of the new classrooms for a period of two years subject to extension should the present emergency continue for a longer time interval.

Heating, Maintenance by University

Sole expense to be borne by the University will be that of the installations and maintenance of utilities. Supervisor J. S. Bennett revealed yesterday that the buildings will be furnished with hot air heating plants installed in concrete rooms constructed outside each establishment.

Present estimates are that the classroom expedients will be available for use by the start of the summer quarter, thus relieving the congested situation that is now the dogma of harried professors nursing strained tonsils as a result of lecturing to over-crowded halls.

When complete the new plants will make available an additional 80,000 square feet of floor space. With the exception of one building to be used as a warehouse, the constructions will be used for classes, libraries, and laboratories.

Tentative plans call for A. R. Hollett to leave this morning for Camp Forrest to aid in the selection of buildings more sutiable to University requirements. The actual movement of the buildings will be done by the J. A. Jones Construction company of Charlotte which will dismantle the plants into sections, express the sections separately by truck, and reassemble them upon arrival.

A breakdown of departments scheduled to benefit by the project show the public health department acquiring the greater floor space with four buildings. The music department is to receive three, the commerce department, dramatic art, mathematics and physics, library, and zoology two each. Romance languages and English department will get one building for classroom and offices and another for an auditorium. Departments of law, physical education, history and social science, naval science, and geology will receive one each.

Whitner Made New Grail Head

George Whitner, senior from Jacksonville, Florida, was elected Delegata of the Order of the Grail at last evening's regular meeting of campus honorary group.

Whitner, breaststroke on Blue Dolphin teams before he left for the navy, succeeded Phi Gam Charlie Fulton, who graduated in December. The new Delegata is member of Delta Kappa Epsilon fraternity.

Heads Scholarship Fund

Ascending to the chairmanship during one of the Grail's biggest years, Whitner will guide the organization's activities which consist largely of giving campus dances the proceeds of which are turned over to the Grail scholarship fund for deserving students.

Plans for this quarter were also discussed at the meeting last evening. A Grail spokesman stated that arrangements were underway to hold at least one dance but that no definite date had been set.

Special Vote Proposed As Solution to Tangle Over Georgia Executive

Atlanta, Jan. 7—(UP)—A group of Georgia lawmakers have called for a special election as a way out of the tangled claims over the governorship.

Herman Talmadge, son of the late Governor-elect Eugene Talmadge, claims the Legislature has the power to elect him when it meets next week. But Lieutenant-Governor-Elect M. E. Thompson says he must succeed to the post. Each claims more than enough support among lawmakers to win.

Backs White Supremacy

Whichever candidate becomes governor, however, Eugene Talmadge's white supremacy program—his promise to again drive Negroes out of the Georgia primary—will be the final winner.

Herman has steadily maintained that he is the man to carry out his father's program, but he wrote most of it. Now Thompson has strongly declared that he is not only for carrying out the Talmadge program, but that he will fire any state official who is even luke-warm about it.

Meanwhile, less than a week remains before the Legislature meets on January 13th to settle the question of who is to be Governor of Georgia.

Eller Reports on National Student Groups

Tom Eller, one of four UNC delegates to the National Student Organization which met in Chicago on December 29-30, stated yesterday that "the conference presented causes for extreme opitmism and extreme pessimism alike. It must have been very much similar to what our constitution fathers faced in 1789."

Besides representatives from 285 colleges, delegates from 19 other student organizations, including the American Youth for Democracy, YM GA, YWCA, Young Peoples Socialist League, and numerous Catholic groups, were in attendance, Eller said. Over 600 of all races and ages were present at the meeting.

Wallace Presides

Jimmy Wallace, UNC delegate to the Prague World Student conference this summer, presided over the closing session of the Chicago conference, while Douglas Cater of Harvard was chairman of the plenary session.

Wallace also served as parliamentarian at all sessions, and was nominated for the presidency of the NSO, but declined. He was defeated in the election for executive secretary.

TOM ELLER

Bill Miller, another UNC delegate, was named co-chairman of the North and South Carolina region. Serving with Miller was Mr. Wallace, Negro delegate from Bennett's College, Greensboro.

Other officials named were Jim Smith of Texas University as president of the newly formed NSO, with Russell Austin, executive secretary, and Cliff Wharton of Harvard, secretary.

Eller, Miller, and Jim Chesnutt who were selected last quarter by the student legislature to attend the conference will report at the next meeting of that body.

"An Embryonic Stage"

Eller further declared, "The NSO, as I see it, is in a highly embryonic stage, and will require a great deal of time and effort as well as money to see it through to its intended purpose."

The aims of the national student group are to form an organization to more effectively campaign for higher living standards on campuses, better international relationships, and other objectives deemed beneficial to all college students.

"It will require, particularly in the South, a great deal of organized work, since the delegations from the South, by number, were not representative of that section of the nation," Eller continued.

"As it is now set up NSO seems to have many parallels with UNESCO on the national level."

Students Must Record DTH Address Changes

All students who have changed their address in town since the starting of the fall quarter please leave your new address with the Daily Tar Heel circulation department in Graham Memorial as soon as possible.

Due to the shortage of newsprint it is impossible to leave a paper at each door of Victory Village. Circulation Manager Burt Myers has arranged for 100 copies of the Daily Tar Heel to be left at the junction of the highway and the Victory Village road each morning.

A Noble Effort

Ivory Tower ladling of praise from the bowl of human kindness often can become a display of emotion-provoking words, the context of which may commend without any true depth of sincerity. Such cannot be the case in commending the visionary display of courage demonstrated by University educators in their decision to sacrifice traditional campus beauty in the interest of potential students by accepting the donation of 25 surplus Army buildings from the Federal Works Agency.

Surely, it must have been with mainfold trepidations that Old South officials accepted the frame constructions in a noble effort to alleviate classroom congestion and thus make education available to additional students. For with this acquisition certainly will come scating denunciations by old grads and present students anxious to assail such a policy that will—and we anticipate their phraseology—"clutter our beautiful campus with ugly eyesores". From other quarters will come the complaint that the University faces such a teacher shortage that it cannot adequately instruct the present student body. Hence, how will it be able to provide education for a larger group?

The fortitude of the men exposing themselves for such condemnation will be sorely tried. With the exception of a few small voices such as this, they may well find their only solace in the realization that their decision will provide training for a few more men and women, some from high schools, others from the global theatres of operations.

Perhaps, too, the legarthic N. C. legislature will view the temporary constructions and realize that the cry for more classroomspace is legitimate. Mayhap these solons will realize the nature of the frame constructions, will receive enough pressure from angry voters. If so, we may then hope for legislation providing the appropriations necessary for construction of new and permanent buildings more in harmony with the traditional campus scene.

In the meantime, veterans wh lived in tents will welcome the opportunity to study in any place that is warm, dry, and comfortable although it may not be a kingly palace.

Dogmatic tradition often has hampered the world. It is comforting to note that it will not be used here to deprive men of justly earned educations.

Welcome Back

One of the most heartening news items of the very young New Year is the fact that President Frank P. Graham has returned to Chapel Hill to resume his work here. It is a very good and very reassuring sight to see Dr. Frank back at his desk.

Much has been written about this little man who occupies such a big place in the state and nation and in the hearts of the Carolina students, past and present. Much more will undoubtedly be written in the future. We can't take the time and space to enumerate his tireless work for a greater University, state, and nation, but we recognize and appreciate all he has done.

A feeling that all is not well automatically arises when President Graham is not performing his many duties here at Chapel Hill. His presence erases all those feelings and substitutes instead one that has always prevailed as long as Frank Graham is at the head of this University—a feeling that Carolina will continue to be a wonderful place as it continues to grow and prosper.

Those of us who know and respect him are happy to know he has recovered from his recent ill-health and is back among us. Those of you who have not been fortunate enough to meet the man at the head of this institution will get a chance to do so when he resumes his traditional Sunday evening open house this week.

On behalf of the entire student body, Welcome Back, Dr. Frank.

What is your ambition? To get on in the world, or to help the world get on?

One Man's Opinion....

Hodgson Attacks Magazine, DTH Critic in Bitter Blast

(Ed. note—The following article is a sweeping denunciation of DTH drama critic and the Carolina Magazine by humor columnist Tookie Hodgson. We believe reviewer Hamilton to be one of the most capable, widely-read critics on this page in a long time and find difficulty in understanding much of Hodgson's criticism. It is very seldom everyone is in complete accord with any critic.)

By Tookie Hodgson

While glancing through Tuesday's Daily Tar Heel it came to my attention that R. Haskell Hamilton, the Pagliacci of the Paste Pots, has tempted fate once more by again reviewing the Carolina Magazine.

His first two attempts at literary criticism were laughable; this last article was outrageous, particularly in its idiotic references to the fiction appearing in the current Magazine. I hold no rancour that Mr. Hamilton insists on reviewing supposedly serious plays as if they were burlesque shows, nor do I object to his adventures among the soap and grapefruit juice purveyors of Chapel Hill, but it offends my sensibilities when he praises what is obviously negligible and neglects what is truly praiseworthy.

John Sink's story, which threw Mr. Hamilton into utter rapture, is one of the weaker productions I have so far seen. I have no doubt that Sink can write well—eventually. However, he was a bit premature in releasing such a hectic melange of pungent prose at this time.

Mr. Stern's story is another thing. It is a polished, worked-out, and really admirable piece of fiction. Without doubt Stern is the best story writer who has appeared lately on this campus. The only stumbling block in the story is its psychological subtlety. This is what probably dismayed brother Hamilton.

Now a general word about the Carolina Magazine. R. Haskell Hamilton praises the Mag's editors, and the editors, in a charming display of reciprocity, praise R. Haskell. Now this Alphonse and Gaston farce is all well and good. Everybody slaps everyone else on the back, compliments each other on his writing ability, and goes to bed happy. An illusion is therefore conjured up to the effect that all is tranquil and quiet on the campus literary front.

The student body, which is more concerned with the readable material in the Magazine than with the goodfellowship prevailing among its editors, is naturally hoodwinked. Having R. Haskell Hamilton as the local literary critic increases the density of misinformation which precludes effective appraisals of the Magazine's present actual worth to the student body.

I am the last man on earth who would say the editors of the Carolina Magazine are not sincere and hard-working fellows.

They may, however, be accused justifiably of (1) Nepotism, (in this case, fraternity brothers) (2) an inability to get out on the campus and ferret out literary talent, and (3) technical minds—the ability to get out 30 pages of printed matter, without too much emphasis on whether or not the printed matter will make interesting reading.

Another item which seemed somewhat futile to me, is the Magazine's editorial for this month. This editorial, for those who don't already know, is directed against this writer. As chief protagonist for the revival of a campus humor mag, I have run into some difficulty with the personnel of the Carolina Magazine.

They have expressed the opinion that (1) a humor mag would overshadow the Magazine in the matter of campus popularity, (2) Since the editors of the Carolina Magazine cannot get writers, it is a cinch that no one else can, and (3) the shortage of newsprint, etc. dooms a new humor mag before it even gets started.

The last argument is the only legitimate one, and as such, it was the first to be successfully refuted. The other two arguments display only uneasiness and a sense of inferiority on the part of the Carolina Magazine's editors. They seemed laughable to me and to everyone else familiar with the twin quantities of logic and illogic.

However, the matter of a new humor mag is unimportant at the present time. What is importent is the immediate reorganization down the line for existing publications. Students may effect such a reorganization by (1) calling up the publications and raising hell, (2) writing fiction, articles, etc., themselves and (3) sending critical letters (favorable and otherwise) for publication in the Daily Tar Heel.

ber 19, and once again asked to be relieved of his heavy responsibility.

Second Request Granted

Mr. Truman made the two letters of resignation public tonight and announced that he felt this time, he could accept them. Byrnes urged him to make the resignation effective as soon as possible, so that his successor would have plenty of time to get ready for the all-important Big Four talks on the German peace treaty, which are scheduled to begin on March 10.

Previous to tonight's announcement from the White House, Gen. Marshall had been recalled from China. He is expected to arrive in the U. S. within ten days. Byrnes' resignation is effective December 10, and Marshall is to take over his post the moment Byrnes leaves.

Not West Point Graduate

Marshall is the first high army officer ever to be appointed to the state department post. He is one of a very few secretaries of state who have stood next in line to the presidency of the United States.

He is the second non-West Pointer to hold the position of chief of staff of the army. The 67-year-old career soldier is an alumnus of Virginia Military Institute.

DTH Music Review....

Don Cossack Chorus Thrilled Audience with Artistic Show

By R. Haskell Hamilton

To put it very briefly, the reception given the Don Cossack Chorus in jam-packed Memorial Hall on Monday night was undoubtedly the most overwhelming accorded to any event in the Student Entertainment Series for at least three years. In response to the artistic and thoroughly enjoyable performance by the 25 man, 25 years-old Chorus, the audience at various times broke into cheers, whistling, and frequent cries of "bravo" and "encore."

The Don Cossacks seemed full of love of singing and as they ranged the choral scale from solemn Russian hymns to wild Cossack drinking songs they displayed a mastery of their particular branch of music which is certainly unique in the world. Eminent student of choral music, Roberta Sterling told me that "the Don Cossacks certainly meet with few peers in their field, throughout the world." Indeed it was most interesting to realize that an audience of 1800 persons, none of whom are conversant with Russian, were enthralled by a group singing in an alien language. Here was proof positive that music is the International tongue.

Singing D. Bortiansky's "Who Can Equal Thee," the Don Cossacks opened the program on a solemn note. Secondly the Lord's Prayer of the Ouspensky Cathedral was sung. Here the group displayed a robust dignity and the Prayer invoked an enthusiastic appreciative response. Continuing with the religious motif which characterized the initial portion of the program, the Cossacks presented an alliterative prayer "Lord Have Mercy Upon Us" by A. Lvovsky. The slow, almost dirge-like "Let All Mortal Flesh," arranged by Archbishop, the Very Reverend A. Turtchaninoff, was next. The audience was almost hypnotized by the plaintiff rendition. An Augmented Litany arranged by Director Serge Jaroff completed the first section of the program, as the Cossacks concluded their deeply solemn selections.

The second portion of the program opened with a spirited tribute to the 25th Anniversary of the Jaroff Don Cossack Chorus by C. Shvedoff. This was the only number in the entire performance which featured words in English, and the smoothness with which the singers shifted into four of the United States Army songs (in tribute to their comrade brothers-in-arms) amazed all. C. Shvedoff's sly international boy-meets-girl song "Berry Picking" was a fine subtle song, sung with deep humor and understanding. Indeed, except for the famous Meadowlards (or "Song of the Plains") this selection was the most popular of the evening. The delicate undertoning of "Night Parade" and a Russian love-song "In The Forest They Say," concluded the second section.

As a special treat two Russian dancers, S. Karavaeff and T. Orlik, whose perfection demands recognition; performed a traditional, formalized, famous Russian "Cozatshek." The pair re-appeared after the third section of singing and performed another Cossack Dance which left the audience wondering at the dexterity, balance and artistry of the dancers. A roaring approval was given to both performers.

Six songs comprised the final portion of the program. A joyful melodious, song called "Street Organ" followed by a mournful, tender and compassionate lullaby "Prayer for a Soldier," opened the final session of singing. A novelty number full of the wild abandon, traditional with the Cossacks, called "Cossacks at Drill" was next with the Chorus' most famous song, of the day when youthful Cossacks are called to the colors bringing sadness to lovers, the aforementioned "Meadowlard" following. Two Cossack songs arranged by Serge Jaroff concluded the performance.

As encores a Cossack drinking song full of the shouts, whistles and whoops of Vodka-filled soldiers; and an interestingly intricate harmony exercise, were presented.

To the Editor:

Several members of the Physical Education Dep't. were asked to take care of the distribution of student tickets in New Orleans. We would like to commend the students who were in New Orleans for their fine conduct and assistance in getting their tickets. We took time to check the lists carefully in order to assure no error. That naturally required some delay but all students were very cooperative and most gracious in the proceedings. We thank you and hope you had as much fun as we did.

Blue Dolphins Open Campaign Against Bainbridge Saturday

SPORT SPINS - -

IRWIN SMALLWOOD

WHEN THE WHITE Phantoms go up against LaSalle in Philadelphia Saturday night and then against NYU in Madison Square Garden the following Tuesday night, they will have a chance to jump back into the national cage spotlight, and although they have had a little hard luck in operations thus far, their chances for emerging with victories is good indeed.

Probably the weakest spot on the team as shown so far is the lack of height, which was a winning factor last season. The loss of a six, six center and a six, three All-American guard is no light touch, and the task of replacing them has been hard indeed. However, Norm Kohler's addition at guard has helped considerably and Dick Hartley and Jim Hamilton at the forwards has bolstered the roster with the moving of Johnny Dillon to center.

The record to date, showing five victories and two defeats, is not too impressive, but the Phant club seems to be gaining momentum as the season progresses. A good hot streak by one of the guards on shooting would make all the diference in the world in the performance of the team. At present a good tight defense will stop the Dillon, Hamilton-Paxton attack, and it is going to take a constant scoring threat from the outside to bring the club back into the high scoring figures.

For the Tar Heel five it will be the role of underdog, but that's when they play their best ball, and we believe they are going to jump on a good long victory string. They have shown improvement constantly, and before this year is out they may be right back up into the running for national honors.

Daa. . .dit-dit. . .daa:

Current jabber in the football world in Tar Heelia concerns the Carolina schedule for 1947, and although it won't be ready for release for some time yet, it is taking shap according to reports from here and there. . .Sure bets for next fall are Duke, Wake Forest, Tennessee, Florida, and William and Mary, Maryland, and Virginia. And the speculation is sharp on who will fill the other three dates. Georgia Tech and Texas are good choices we believe, and the third could come from anywhere. Some say Notre Dame and Penn are possibilities, but there is nothing to put your hands on. However, by the time Coach Bob Fetzer, Assistant Chuck Ericson and Coach Carl Snavely get back from New York and the NCAA meeting, things should begin developing fast on the 1947 card. . .We are in hearty agreement with Norman Sper, of Hollywood, Calif., who said day before yesterday that he was of the opinion that players should be able to complain to the captain of his team and the captain in turn to the referee on questionable decisions in a football gome. . . And that if a serious mistake is made the said official should be fined and reprimanded. . .AND if a second such mistake is made, the official should be barred from officiating college games in the United States. . . He also says that the NCAA should vote to recognize only four or five bowls and their teams play in just those. . . There's a lot of talk in metropolitan sports circles that Coach Jim Tatum, formerly of Carolina and now head coach at Oklahoma, will move to the University of Maryland as head man next season. Could he be wishing for the eastern seaboard and crack at his old team come next fall? We believe there's a good chance that he will make the switch.

We are corrected in our statement that the boxing team wasn't in the best of shape in their bouts with Syracuse in the Sugar Bowl. . .We are told on medical authority that four of the boxers had upset stomachs. That could well be the case, what with them breaking eating habits and menus with the switch to New Orleans for workouts. . . It was certainly not a lack of fighting and boxing ability, though, for the Tar Heel mittmen are as good an aggregate of pugilists as we have seen in college in some time. . . They should give a good account of themselves this year. . .Don't overlook the initial swimming meet to be held here Saturday afternoon with Bainbridge Naval training station. Coach Dick Jamerson is none too optimistic about his chances for the 1947 season, but if previous teams are any indication, it should be one well representative of the school.

Track Squad Starts Conditioning Workouts In Preparation for Coming Indoor Season

Taking advantage of the indoor track in the Tin Can, the 1947 Carolina track squad started their conditioning workouts this week in preparation for the coming indoor season.

The first meet with Duke is less than three weeks away and Coach Dale Ranson urges all track men to come down and start their practice. The workouts can be taken any time between 2:30 and 5:30 any afternoon and either Coach Ranson or Hilton will be down to supervise the sessions.

Among the runners working out are Jack Milne, Sam Magill, Walt Francis, Mark Burnham, Leroy Ward, Bob Seligman, Don Nelson, Jim Stringfield, Dick Preyer, Charlie Murphy and Alvin Smith.

Coach Ranson would also like to see any men in school who are interested in the job of assistant manager for indoor track.

This year brings track enthusiasts all over the country the first year of full scale big-time operations. Last Saturday night in the indoor meet of the season over 500 contestants vied for honors in the Grover Cleveland AC Meet in New York City. Top flight performances were turned in by such stellar runners as Bill Hulse, Leslie MacMitchell, Frank Dixon, Eddie Walsh and many more indoor stars.

The Tar Heel runners will get an opportunity to face top-flight competition in either a two-mile relay or a one-mile team race on February 1 at Madison Square Garden in the Milrose Games.

Cagers Hold Scrimmage Against Junior Varsity

Phantoms on Defense for Most of Drill; Two More Gridmen Report to Coach Scott

Continuing their heavy drills before the time comes to depart on their invasion of Philadelphia and New York, Carolina's cagers held a lengthy scrimmage against the junior varsity team yesterday afternoon with both offense and defense being stressed.

The major share of the session saw the Phantoms in the defending role against the attacking jayvees. Coach Tom Scott had Bob Paxton, Jim Hamilton, Johnny Dillon, Norm Kohler, Taylor Thorne, Jim Hayworth and Dick Hartley alternating against one junior varsity quintet while Freddy Ryan, Vic Seixas, Sherman Nearman, Roger Scholbe, Coy Carson and King Cole opposed another unit.

Two additional gridmen reported to Coach Scott yesterday and took part in the practice, being used as replacements for jayvee players. The two, Jack Fitch and Ken Powell, brings the number of footballers now out for basketball to four, Joe Romano and Mike Rubish having reported yesterday. Fitch was a starter on the 1944 Carolina cage quintet and may figure highly in this year's plans.

With 1943 Yearlings

Another former Carolina cager, Leon Mitchell, also reported to the coaching staff this week and is working out with Lew Hayworth's junior varsity. Mitchell played with the 1943 freshman outfit and has returned to Carolina after a three-year absence in the Army.

Although the team is not due to depart until Friday evening, Coach Scott will leave for New York tonight in order to scout both NYU and Duke, primarily the former, when those two teams clash tomorrow evening in Madison Square Garden. The Blue Devils participate on the same card with Carolina Saturday evening in a twinbill in Philadelphia's Convention Hall.

Filchock and Hapes Put Finger on Paris

New York, Jan. 7—(UP)—The much-publicized National Football League "fix" case finally got underway today and all the star witnesses were present to make it a lively session.

Frankie Filchock, quarterback of the New York Giants who played in the title game against the Chicago Bears and threw two touchdown passes, and halfback Merle Hapes, who was barred from the contest, admitted they had been contacted by the playboy, Alvin Paris.

"Paris offered me $2500 and asked me what I thought of the proposition," testified Filchock. Flinging' Frankie then swore under oath that he told Paris, "Hot Damn, Alvin, I just ain't gonna do it. The boys got too much confidence in me."

The testimony of halfback Hapes went along in the same vein, putting the finger on the suave Paris and taking it off the idea that either player was tempted by the proposition. So far, there's not much line on the direction the trial may take when Paris is cross-examined and when a few of the other witnesses testify.

Wrestlers Work Hard For Opener with VPI

The Carolina wrestling candidates continued hard workouts yesterday as the season approached ever nearer. The Tar Heel grapplers are scheduled to open with VPI in Blacksburg, Va., January 18, just a week from Saturday.

Assistant Coach Hobie McKeever remained in that capacity and sent the Tar Heel matmen through conditioning sessions. With some 35 recruits out for the eight team position, competition is keen and it is a wide open race.

Mural Activities In Winter Quarter To Start Thursday

The intramural sports program for the winter quarter will get underway tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock when basketball competition begins, mural director Walter Rabb announced last night following a meeting of fraternity and dormitory mural managers.

Between 45 and 50 men attended the meeting, which also elected a new protest committee for the winter quarter. Named to the group that will decide all intramural protests were DeWitt Butler of Stacy, Joe Kumpe of Aycock, and Jack Folger of Kappa Sigma.

Dormitories or fraternities not represented at last night's meeting may still enter teams in the basketball competition up to 1 o'clock this afternoon. This is definitely the last chance to enter a cage quintet.

Competition in two other sports will also take place this quarter. Handball is tentatively slated to begin about January 20 while swimming competition will be held in the latter part of the session.

A clinic for basketball officials was held yesterday afternoon, the second that the intramural department has sponsored in order to assure better officiating for the mural sport.

Assisting Coach Rabb at both meetings were Taylor Dodson and P. A. Lee, the other members of the intramural department.

PICTURED ABOVE is Coach Dick Jamerson who is spending his afternoons whipping Carolina's 1947 swimming squad into shape. It will be Jamerson's first coaching venture since 1943, since he has recently returned from a three-year hitch in the Navy.

JV and Frosh Cagers Work in Preparation For Weekend Clashes

Coach Lew Hayworth's Jayvee cagers went back to work yesterday after the holiday layoff and began preparations for Saturday night's contest with Presbyterian College.

The jayvees spent the day scrimmaging against the varsity in a heavy two-hour drill. Hayworth alternated two combinations throughout the afternoon, sporting one club of Fred Swartzberg, Ed Wagner, Sim Nathan, John Wilson and Bill von Bramer, and another of Cam Rodman, Buster Stevenson, Harvey Weinstein, Junie Bailey and Dan Nyimicz.

Meanwhile over in the Tin Can Frank Murray put the freshman basketeers through their paces as the Tar Babies worked to smooth out the rough edges left by three weeks of vacation. Peters, Walker, Huff, and Childress paced the drills.

Sports Staff Meeting

There will be a meeting of all members of the Daily Tar Heel sports staff in the second floor office in Graham Memorial building this afternoon at 3 o'clock. At that time all additional students who are interested in working in the sports department are asked to be present.

Mermen Seek To Preserve Home Streak

Four Dolphins Named To All College Team

Seeking to preserve their home winning streak of twenty four straight meets, Coach Dick Jamerson's Blue Dolphins will open their ninth season here Saturday at 3:30 p.m. against an unknown aggregation from the Naval Training station of Bainbridge, Md.

Carolina's last loss at home was to Florida in 1940. In the previous eight seasons before 1947, the Dolphins have won 50 out of 60 meets, the most recent loss being in a triangular meet with Army and Ohio State last year.

Although the team has been strengthened considerably this term by new enrollments, Coach Jamerson still insists that all places on the team are open for willing swimmers. Tom Schienman of New York, who worked out in the pre-season meets last year, is back after a tour of duty in the Army. Norman Sper, Men's All America AAU diving selection, has also enrolled in school and will compete along with Buddy Crone, former National Junior AAU diving champion thus giving the Dolphins the two best divers in the South.

The 1947 NCAA Swimming Guide, which has just been published, placed four Dolphins on the All-American College team for 1946. Dick Twinning received his award in the 100 and 220 yard free style while the 400-yard relay gave Morrow, Zimmerman, Twinning, and Ward their places. Twinning and Ward are missing from the squad this season. However Morrow, who is co-captain of this year's edition, and Zimmerman are back in the fold.

The 1947 schedule follows:

January 11—Bainbridge Training Station, here.
January 18—Georgia Tech, here.
January 30—V.P.I., here.
February 5—Navy, Annapolis.
February 8—Carolina A.A.U. Raleigh.
February 15—V.M.I. Lexington.
February 22—N. C. State, here.
February 26—Virginia, here.
March 5—Duke, Durham.
March 7-8—Southern Conference, here.

Carolina Leather-Punchers Headed by Young and McGee

By Jim Pharr

When boxing coach Mike Ronman throws his one-two punch of Dick Young, 165 pounder, and Ed McGee, heavyweight, against the University of Virginia ringmen here on January 18, those Cavaliers will be looking at some expert leather punchers in action.

And that's not all, either. Mike can follow through with some smooth leather-flingers in the persons of Pug Green, 155 lbs.; Charlie Craven, 175 lbs.; Conway Rose; Paul Gordy, 120 lbs.; Dan Davis, 135 lbs.; and Charlie Kimsey, 145 lbs.

But with a couple of men like Young and McGee around, any mentor can look ahead to the future with a grin. What's more both boxers are juniors this year, so Mike will be loaded with talent for two more seasons.

In the Sugar Bowl battle against Syracuse, Young and McGee were the only two ringmen to capture wins for Carolina. Young decisioned Prussin in the 165 pound class while McGee topped McArdle in the heavyweight division.

Dick Young, hailing from "Choo-Choo" Justice's home town of Asheville, has the best record of any member of the squad. He climaxed a brilliant preparatory record while competing in the Chicago Golden Gloves for the Twelfth Army Division. The Chicago Tribune said of Young following the tournament. "Dick Young, of the 12th Army Division, fighting from Texas, is classed as the outstanding fighter of the tournament."

Dick also threw some leather at Asheville high, Tennessee Military Academy, Belmont Abbey junior college, and completed an undefeated season as a freshman at Carolina.

Ed McGee, from Hamlet, N. C., is rated by Coach Ronman as one of the flashiest boxers on the club. Last year Ed was undefeated as a light heavyweight. This year, with added poundage, he has moved into the heavyweight class.

McGee is rated as a powerful puncher, with clever footwork, and has been called by Ronman a "finished all-around college ringman."

Boxers Open Slate Against Cavaliers

Carolina's boxing team will open its 1947 schedule on January 18, mixing blows with the University of Virginia ringmen in Woollen gymnasium.

The card includes four matches slated to be run off at home with the team away for the final two matches.

The ringmen opened their season by dropping a 5 1-2 to 2 1-2 decision to the Syracuse boxing team in a Sugar Bowl battle a New Orleans.

The schedule follows: January 18—University of Virginia at Chapel Hill; January 25—South Carolina at Chapel Hill; February 8—Maryland at Chapel Hill; February 14—The Citadel at Charleston, S. C.; February 22—Army at West Point.

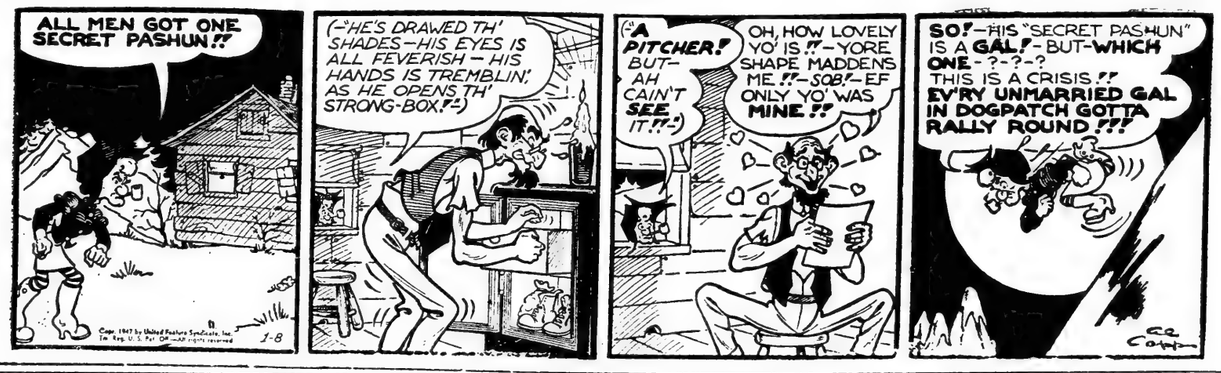
Language Association To Study Literature

Dr. W. P. Friederich, associate professor of German and comparative literature at the University, is the founder and first chairman of a national Comparative Literature organization which was formed at a recent meeting of the Modern Language association of America in Washington.



The new organization already has a membership of 210 scholars, 70 of whom attended the Washington meeting, and is to apply for affiliation with the Modern Language association. The members represent many institutions in this country and Canada.

Emphasize Dropping Barriers

"This organization was formed to cut across the narrow departmental borders that have hitherto tended to separate the English, French, Spanish, and German departments in our universities," Dr. Friederich said. "It wishes to emphasize the values which the humanities have in common, regardless of differences of language, and by giving special attention to comparative literature it plans to stress what the various national literatures owe to each other and how the entire western world in spite of its nefarious political nationalism, is deeply indebted to the spiritual values produced, that is, during the Italian Renaissance, the age of French Classicism or of German Romanticism."

More than half of the 12 sponsors of the new movement come from Southern universities, from Johns Hopkins, Maryland, Virginia, North Carolina, Duke and Texas. Dr. Friederich spent 15 months building up this organization.

At another meeting of the Modern Language association attended by 140 scholars Dr. Friederich was also appointed chairman of the Comparative Literature discussion group in charge of the literary relations between Germany and France.

Di Senate Will Hold Confidential Meeting

The Senate of the Dialectic Literary Society will meet for the first time this term in Gerrard hall tonight at 9 o'clock.

The organization will convene in executive session with confidential business of the body heading the agenda.

The change of the meeting place and the postponement of inaugural ceremonies are due to alterations being made on Senate Hall. Attendance of all members is compulsory.

DORMITORIES MANAGER OFFICE HOURS

Office hours for Bill Smith, manager of University dormitories, are as follows: 2-5 o'clock, Monday, Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday afternoons; 2-3 o'clock Tuesday afternoons; 9-12 o'clock Saturday mornings.

Dormitory key transactions may be made at Smith's office in 02 South building during these hours.

Mississippi's Bilbo Reaches Home...

Bilbo Promises Return And Fight to Keep His Place

Poplarville, Miss. Jan. 7 (UP)—Sen. Theodore Bilbo, denied his seat in Congress, made a homecoming statement today that "If I've got to surrender my views on white supremacy and sell my race down the river, then I don't want to be Senator."

"The Republicans want to throw me out now," Bilbo said. "But when they read by book that's coming out this month, they'll want to hang me."

The Mississippi Senator referred to his book "Take Your Choice—Separation or Mongrelization."

Bilbo is scheduled to undergo a cancer operation in New Orleans this week.

"If I live and the Lord lets me," Bilbo said, "I'm going back and fight until hell freezes over. I'm going to whip them, too."

Bilbo praised Senators who defended him in his two-day effort to reach his seat in the 80th Congress. He accused Republicans of "playing for the Negro vote."

As for Sen. Glen H. Taylor, (D-Idaho), who led the revolt against seating him, Bilbo said:

"He ain't got no sense, he's just a nut. He goes around playing a fiddle with a hill-billy band just like Ross Collins did."

Collins was Bilbo's opponent in the Senatorial race.

Bilbo praised Senators John Overton and Allen Ellender of Louisiana, who sparked the Southern Democratic rally in Bilbo's behalf.

"They did a good job in helping me out in my fight," he said. "As fine a team as I ever saw. Senator Hatch (D-NM), also made a wonderful speech in my behalf, as did Sen. James O. Eastland, my colleague from Mississippi."

The Republicans, Bilbo said, "will be after" Overton, and Sen. Richard Russell, (D-Ga.) next.

"And Ellender knows damn well they'll be after him."

Asked if he thought he would lose his patronage by being absent from the Senate, Bilbo said:

"The Democrats ain't got no patronage. I led the fight against the anti-lynch law, the anti-poll tax and the FEPC."

Posse Continues Hunt For Youthful Bandits

Athens, Ala., Dec. 7 — (UP) — Through wet and muddy fields and the woods hereabouts, a posse is hunting down two boy bandits.

Earlier today the boys exchanged shots with police in a running gun battle before abandoning a stolen automobile belonging to J. Edward Sprouse of Springfield, Tenn., who has been missing since Sunday.

The dense undergrowth and a steady rain has hampered the city, county and state officers in their search for the young gunmen, who are believed to be boys of 19 or 20. The running battle earlier today came after the boys robbed the cash register of a filling station at Pulaski, Tenn.

Police took up the chase after the holdup, but the boys raced away southward in Sprouse's green sedan. Sprouse disappeared last Sunday.

No Answer to Mystery Of Flash Seen Offshore

Los Angeles, Jan. 7—(UP)—The strange and eerie flash of fire seen plunging seaward off the California coast last night has been identified by various experts as a meteor, a rocket, or a plane.

Some eyewitnesses insist the flaming cylinder was an exploding aircraft but the Los Angeles airport says no planes are missing. Crews of two planes aloft described the celestial fireball as a meteor. Santa Monica lifeguards, who chased the streaming flare that apparently went into the sea, frankly say they found nothing.

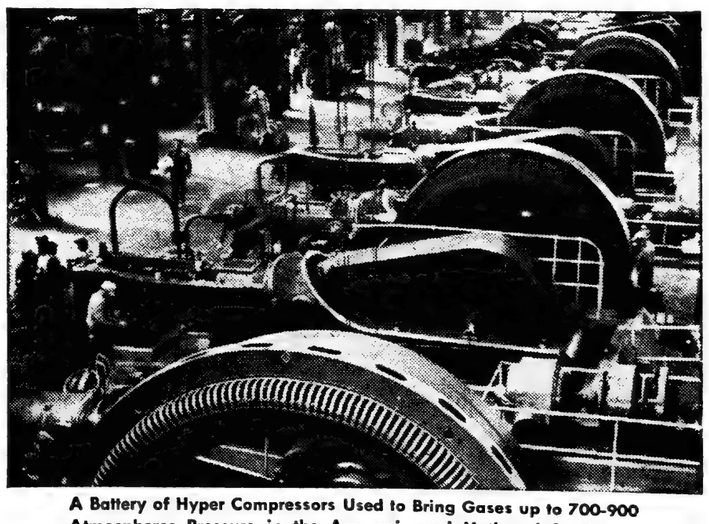
High-Pressure Synthesis Opens New Chemical Fields

A Challenge to Research Men and Engineers

The use of techniques involving pressures up to and above 1,000 atmospheres (15,000 lbs. per sq. in.) has had a tremendous influence on chemical manufacture in the past twenty-five years.

The availability of unlimited quantities of nitrates via ammonia from nitrogen of the air by high pressure synthesis has greatly affected chemical economics as well as agriculture.



The plastics industry, too, has benefited greatly by the reduction in price of urea from about 80¢ lb. to less than 4¢, and methanol (to give formaldehyde) from $1.25 gal. to less than 25¢.

High pressure syntheses have also participated in a major way in the development of entirely new products such as nylon and polythene. In fact, starting from coal, air and water, Du Pont now makes over 120 widely used products.

In addition to improving the existing processes of manufacturing ammonia, methanol, higher alcohols, urea and other important chemicals, Du Pont organic and physical chemists, chemical, mechanical and metallurgical engineers have discovered and developed high pressure syntheses for the following: ethylene glycol; hexamethylene diamine; acetic, propionic and hydroxyacetic acids; methyl formate; C_8-, C_{10}- and C_{12}- alcohols; and numerous others.

Advantages and Problems

The use of high pressures offers numerous advantages familiar to technical students, such as: (1) forcing an equilibrium in the direction of a volume decrease, (2) overcoming the reversing effect of high temperatures in exothermic reactions, (3) increasing reaction and through-put rates and (4) providing, in some cases, a liquid phase which

A Battery of Hyper Compressors Used to Bring Gases up to 700-900 Atmospheres Pressure in the Ammonia and Methanol Syntheses.

At the same time, the gaseous reactants are forced into the liquid phase to give higher concentrations and again better conversion. The reaction rate and therefore the rate of passage through the reaction chamber are both increased by increasing the temperature under high pressure conditions. There are other equilibrium considerations that affect the industrial production of urea, but they are too lengthy to discuss here.

Along with its advantages, the use of high pressure gives rise to problems that often severely tax the abilities of engineers and chemists. For example, (1) difficulties of design of packing glands, valves, connecting rods, closures, etc., increase rapidly with increased pressure, (2) extraordinary corrosion problems arise in which even stainless steels are attacked and cannot be used, (3)

Questions College Men ask about working with Du Pont

What kind of a technical organization does Du Pont have?

There are ten manufacturing departments in Du Pont, each operating as a separate organization and each with its own research and engineering staff. In addition, there is a central chemical department and a central engineering department. Consequently there is a wide variety of research and engineering work available to chemists, engineers and other technical specialists. For further information write for the new booklet "The Du Pont Company and the College Graduate," 2521 Nemours Bldg., Wilmington, Delaware.

Marshall Gets Mass Approval From Senators

Republican Leader Promises Support

Washington, Jan. 8—(UP)—General George C. Marshall officially became secretary of state today. The Senate acted fast—and even broke the rule of waiting one day before approving a nomination—to confirm unanimously the appointment of the General to succeed James Byrnes. Earlier, the Foreign Relations committee approved the nomination in 15 minutes. Committee Chairman Vandenberg, president pro tem of the Senate, promised that the Republicans would continue to support a bi-partisan foreign policy under Marshall.

Had Understanding

The White House reveals that there had been an understanding between President Truman and General Marshall for some months that Marshall would take over should Byrnes leave the State Department.

Democratic Senator Edwin Johnson of Colorado says Marshall is a "natural" for the 1948 Democratic presidential nomination if President Truman declines to run.

Joe Ball Introduces Anti-Closed Shop Bill

Washington, Jan. 8—(UP)—Republican Senator Joe Ball of Minnesota has introduced a labor bill which calls for outlawing the closed shop. His measure would nullify all contracts making union membership or non-membership a condition of employment.

Ex-Iranian Official Hanged by Government

Tehran, Jan. 8—(UP)—The Iranian government has put to death the former communications minister of the semi-autonomous province of Azerbaijan. The minister, General Kabiri, was hanged at the city of Maragheh after he confessed that he ordered the execution of at least 40 so-called "anti-Democrats."

Rent Control Proposal Endorsed by Congress

Capitol Hill, Jan. 8—(UP)—President Truman's proposal to continue rent controls beyond June 30 has received general congressional endorsement. The President's recommendation was contained in his economic report to Congress in which he said that the outlook for Americans in 1947 had never been so strong or so prosperous.

Hatch Attempts to Aid Senate Colleague Bilbo

Washington, Jan. 8—(UP)—Senator Carl Hatch of New Mexico wants the rules committee to prepare a bill of particulars against the unseated Senator Bilbo so the Mississippian could return to Washington with a prepared defense. But the Hatch suggestion received little support from his Democratic colleagues.

Outlaw Germ Warfare, Ask British Circles

Lake Success, Jan. 8 — (UP) — Great Britain reportedly wants the United Nations to take action to outlaw a weapon which might cause greater destruction even than the atom bomb—germ warfare. British circles at United Nations headquarters suggest tonight that the security council should keep the dangers of bacteriological warfare in mind when discussions begin tomorrow on general disarmament.

Germans Experimented With Poison Bullets

Nuernberg, Jan. 8—(UP)—Evidence introduced at the trial of 23 German doctors and scientists shows that the Nazis experimented with poison bullets in September of 1944. Victims died from minor bullet wounds.

WEATHER TODAY
Occasional light rain.

Woman Communist Head To Speak At University

Greetings are exchanged by early arriving members of the General Assembly. Bruce Elmore, left, representative to the assembly from Swain county, is shown being greeted by Thomas J. Pearsall. Elmore was elected without opposition and is, at the present time, the youngest member of the House of Representatives. He is in law school here and will commute between Raleigh and Chapel Hill each day.

CPU Will Open Series of Discussions With Elizabeth Flynn First Speaker

By Sam Whitehall

Elizabeth Gurley Flynn, chairman of the women's committee of the Communist party will speak under the sponsorship of the Carolina Political union in the main lounge of Graham Memorial next Wednesday evening, Jerry Davidoff, CPU chairman, announced today. Miss Flynn, the first guest in this year's Carolina Political union speaker presentation series, is a regular columnist in the Daily Worker, Communist Party newspaper.

It is the policy of the CPU, through its speaker presentation series, to present outstanding political figures to the campus to serve as laboratory material in the understanding of the national political scene. The Union, a non-partisan organization, presents speakers of many varied political viewpoints.

"Rebel Girl"

Born in Concord, N. H., in 1890, Miss Flynn's advent into the radical cause came at the age of fifteen when she delivered an address to a New York Socialist club on "Women under Socialism." In 1906 she joined the Industrial Workers of the World, in which she served as national organizer until 1918. She was the subject of the martyred Joe Hill's song, "Rebel Girl."

Two of Miss Flynn's major interests are women's rights and the defense of labor prisoners. She has recently returned from the International Congress of Women in Paris, and has been active in such celebrated labor cases as the Sacco and Vanzetti, Tom Mooney, and the Paterson Silk Strike of 1913. She has been arrested frequently for her activities on behalf of the labor movement.

The CPU, which has presented the divergent viewpoints of such personalities as President Roosevelt, Senators Hill, Taft, Pepper and Wheeler, Governors Arnall and Bricker, William Green, the Imperial Wizard of the KKK, and Norman Thomas, among others, holds weekly round-table meetings Sunday evenings at 8 in the Grail room, Graham Memorial. This week the discussion will be on President Truman's State of the Union message to Congress and the national labor outlook.

The report will be by E. B. Jeffress, the CPU's vice-chairman. Visitors are cordially invited to attend and take part in the discussion, Davidoff stated.

Jerry Davidoff, chairman of the CPU, yesterday announced that Elizabeth Flynn would speak here under sponsorship of the Union next week, in line with its policy of presenting speakers holding varied political viewpoints.

UVA Club Opening Planned Tomorrow

The recently completed University Veterans association club house will reopen its doors for this quarter tomorrow night with a party featuring music and a local talent floor show.

Located at the west end of Emerson field behind Lenoir hall the club has been closed during the first week of the quarter for painting and interior decorating.

The opening party will be a closed affair for members of the Veterans association, but membership cards will be on sale at the door for new veterans and for old members who have not yet bought their new cards.

The doors will be opened at 6:30 o'clock Friday night and the party will continue until coed hours.

Following the opening, the club will be open to veterans and their guests every night from 6:30 o'clock until coed hours.

UNC Student Bruce Elmore Sits in General Assembly

By A. A. Wilkinson
Durham Herald Staff Writer

Bruce Elmore, a student at the University, is in the state capital for the opening of the General Assembly and, indeed, is a man of many distinctions.

He was elected without opposition by the Democratic voters of Swain county, and even with the endorsement of the Republicans (and there are a lot of them in Swain). Elmore was a student here at the time of his election.

Youngest Member

Upon his arrival in Raleigh Tuesday, he was singled out immediately as the youngest member of the House of Representatives and was given a hearty round of greetings from all sides. Modest and retiring, but not at all reluctant to express his views when the occasion demands, Elmore gives every indication of being the kind of new legislator who will bide his time, quickly learn his way around, and then stand up and make himself heard on any issue close to his heart.

The tall, good-looking law student will have to curtail his academic work to one course daily while the present legislative session lasts; he will commute each day between school and Raleigh. His fellow students in Grimes will have the distinction of being able to get each day an authoritative, first-hand report of the doings in the legislature from him.

"I am interested just now," Elmore said, "in state-wide issues: good roads, education and health — but isn't everyone? I am particularly interested, however, in highway safety and am strong for compulsory examination of all drivers. We ought to eliminate all drivers who are physically or mentally incapable of operating a car along our highways."

Ten-Day Extension Reported Sought by Dorsey Attorneys

Attorneys for the State Amusement corporation are reported to have requested a ten-day extension of the deadline on their reply to the $11,000 breach of contract suit filed by the Order of the Grail November 23. The company had been ordered by Orange county superior court clerk Edwin Lynch to answer the Grail's charges on or before January 12.

The unofficial report of the delay action on behalf of the Tommy Dorsey operating company came as Dewey Dorsett, president of the Student Body, was included as a co-plaintiff in the damage action. Previously only six members of the Grail were listed in the complaint.

Talks with Hooker

Lee V. Eastman of the New York law firm of Spring and Eastman is representing the State Amusement corporation, Grail Attorney John Manning said yesterday. He reported that he had also conversed with Lester Hooker of Richmond, Va., who told him he was a personal representative of Bandleader Dorsey.

Sound and Fury Group Plan Meeting Tonight

Sound and Fury have scheduled a meeting at 8 o'clock this evening to discuss plans for a new production to open sometime in mid-March, Bill Carmichael, president of the organization, announced yesterday.

Work on the show is to begin immediately, said Carmichael. All persons interested in writing, acting, stage-designing, and make-up are urged to attend.

Moose Keeps Busier Than Circus Ringmaster

By Ed Joyner

Trying to talk to Roy Moose, president of the University Veterans association, these days is like trying to talk to a human jack-in-the-box with a built-in perpetual motion spring.

Cornered in his office in the new veterans club building back of Lenoir hall, the hard-working president of one of the largest campus organizations was busier than the ringmaster of a three-ring circus with a different act going full tilt in each ring.

Painters at Work

Painters were brushing on the last coat of paint to the interior of the club; veterans committee heads were coming in and out for advice; members of the club house board of governors were demanding consultations on interior decorations; the club manager had a stack of checks for expenses to be signed; and veterans were wandering in to find out when the club would be opened.

Back from Christmas vacation and a trip to the New Orleans Sugar Bowl Moose expected to find the painting and decorating completed, but discovered instead that the building hadn't been touched.

"Going to Open"

"We promised the veterans we'd have the club open for them by the end of this week," Moose said. "I don't know how we're going to manage it, but we're going to get it open," he declared.

Slim, blonde headed and alert looking, 24- year-old Moose is a native of Mooresville. A former combat intelligence officer in the Mediterranean Theater, he received his discharge as a Christmas present December 24, 1945, and entered the University in January 1946.

Wants to Be Writer

Now a sophomore, he hopes to get a masters in English—but not to teach English, he adds emphatically. "I have a budding ambition to write short stories," he admits.

Previous to his election to the UVA presidency last November Roy was a first string Daily Tar Heel reporter and covered most of the campus beats at one time or another.

Moose considers the UVA one of the most important organizations at the University since more than two-thirds of the students are veterans. For the veterans who entered this quarter he had a message:

"The University Veterans association is a non-political organization and is not affiliated with an national organization. I would like to urge all new veterans to become members and actively join with us to promote the general welfare of the college veterans."

Students to Contact UNC Housing Office

All men students who were enrolled in both the summer and fall terms and have applications for dormitory rooms are requested to contact the housing office, 107 South building. This applies only to those who are not in dormitories now.

New Orchestra To Make Debut

Band Will Feature Star Entertainers

Two well-known campus entertainers, Moffitt Sherard and Riqui Casino, will be featured with the "Dream Serenaders" tomorrow night when Graham Memorial introduces the new student union band at a formal dance in the main lounge from 9 o'clock until midnight. Free invitations are still available at the Graham Memorial office.

Sherard and Casino will appear as featured vocalists with Ned Reap's orchestra. Sherard, an ATO, was featured with Freddy Johnson while a student at the University under the Navy Pre-Flight program. A junior from Abbeville, S. C., Moffitt is a journalism major.

Riqui Casino is well-known on the campus for his singing of Latin American songs. Last quarter he was featured nightly at Danziger's. Casino has sung on the Arthur Godfrey program in New York and once had his own show over an NBC station.

Tomorrow night's dance is the first formal dance in several years to be featured by Graham Memorial. It will be followed Saturday night with an open semi-formal dance in Woollen gym honoring the Carolina football team and athletic officials.

Morrison Delivers Inaugural Address

Speaker Robert Morrison in his inaugural address before the Phi assembly Tuesday night viewed the opening of the Phi winter session with optimism, and called upon the members to put forth "their best efforts as did Vice-President Rufus King and Writer Thomas Wolfe during their years in the assembly."

Other officers who were installed in the ceremonies were: speaker protem, John Giles; reading secretary, Margaret Jean Taylor; corresponding secretary, O. W. Hyman; sergeant-at-arms, Lester Sneed; parliamentarian, Peter Gerns; representative to the debate council, Charlie Borton; and treasurer, Charlie Britt.

The Phi will hold a supper meeting in the Carolina Inn from 5:30 to 7 o'clock tonight.

AAUW MEETS TONIGHT

The American Association of University Women will hold their annual fellowship meeting in the faculty room of the Carolina Inn this evening at 8 o'clock. Mrs. Howard K. Beale will speak on her experiences as a former holder of an AAUW European fellowship.

To Save Our Souls

(The following editorial on why we write editorials was written by journalism major Jesse Mock.)

We were holding forth at a costume party the past New Year's Eve as editorial writers occasionally will. Somebody had asked what improvements the city needed during the coming year. We started listing the things. There were the waterworks that had to be expanded, the slums that had to be tidied up a bit, the civic auditorium that had to be built . . .

Then a fellow with a long white beard dressed in something like a sheet sidled up to us. He looked like Father Time, but he carried no scythe. He asked a rather disarming and impertinent question, "Why do you fellows keep writing editorials?"

We sputtered a little. This was cutting pretty close to the bone. Surely the old fellow couldn't be joking. His face was too stern. Yet there was a twinkle in his eye.

"Why, man," we answered, "haven't you heard of the great newspaper crusades? Haven't you heard about the towns we writers have cleaned up, and the dirty politicians we've run down?"

"Are you sure you don't just fill the page with dull stuff so the cartoon will gain a little more force?" The man with the long whiskers seemed earnest.

We kept asking questions: "Haven't you heard about the Pulitzer prizes that editors have won for exposing rackets and hate organizations? Surely you've heard of Horace Greeley and William Allen White? They gained fame just writing editorials."

The old man cleared his throat, and prepared for a long speech: "You are just pointing out the exceptions," he said as he stroked his whiskers. "You forget fellows like Captain Joe Patterson. He had the biggest paper in America, and whom did he ever influence?"

"Maybe he didn't influence any of his readers," we replied, "but he did win the German Iron Cross from the President."

"That's one for me," he said. "Joe just brought derision down on his head, and became a laughing-stock. If he helped anybody, it was for being a clown—not for being an editor."

The old man continued: "Now take that Raleigh newspaper editor. He's always hollering for prohibition. I haven't noticed that the liquor stores in Raleigh have any trouble in getting rid of their goods."

The old fellow was gaining speed and conviction. We couldn't very well stop him when he was going along so smoothly. We interrupted briefly though just to say that maybe editors didn't have much reason for writing editorials after all.

"That's where you're wrong," and the twinkle in his eyes grew brighter. "I'll tell you the reason you fellows keep writing. You have a streak of reformer's blood running in your veins. You want to change things. You aren't satisfied. You're missionaries without a Bible."

Now he was supplying the things we couldn't think of. Unfortunately he didn't stop there. "How many souls do you think missionaries have ever saved? They go to tropical regions and clothe people who were getting along very well without clothes. They get people to learn English when their native tongue is more expressive. When they go away the people go back to their old ways. About the only souls the missionaries ever save are their own. That's the way it is with you editors. You preach and you rave. You don't help anybody else much. But occasionally, I suppose you do save your own souls.

By that time it was nearly midnight and the horns had already started blowing, welcoming in the New Year. We went in to join the revelers, but the old man picked up his lantern and headed for the front door. He was looking for a man, he said—an honest man.

Campus Tragedy--Little Men Intent Upon Their Reputation

By Bill Woestendiek

The trouble with the world today is simply—'millions of me'—multiplied. One of the tragedies on this campus is that too many people are too willing to tell everyone how talented they are and how things should be done. Lest anyone make the same mistake about this column, we are willing to admit our limitations before we start. Therefore, we'll try to keep within them.

"Sour grapes" has come to be an expression with a lot of meaning. It can certainly be applied to the childish complaining done by Tookie Hodgson in yesterday's column on the so-called plight of campus publications. We are stoutly opposed to foolish word battles between columnists on these pages, but someone must take Hodgson to task for his asinine reasoning and vicious attack on the Carolina Magazine and DTH drama critic, R. Haskell Hamilton.

We don't want to get involved in a personal dispute, but Hodgson's distorted reasoning (like that of so many others) is the real reason campus publications may be limited in scope. If all those with talent would put it to use constructively and cooperatively, for the good of the campus as a whole, much could be accomplished.

Admittedly one of the best humor writers on the Carolina campus, Hodgson got way off base in his latest work, easily recognizable as nothing more than a personal attack against people with whom he disagrees—on no concrete basis.

Personally, John Sink's story in the Carolina Magazine didn't appeal to us, either. But our opinion cannot be considered any criterion. We also disliked Stern's story. In fact, if everyone had the same tastes about everything, a lot of the conflict and competition which makes life so interesting and worth living would be missing.

It is inconceivable to us that anyone could resort to such a bitter denunciation of someone because he disagreed with his cultural taste—especially when he uses personal grounds on which to argue his point. Even New York's outstanding critics find themselves in disagreement on occasion. Life's like that. And Hamilton has done a creditable job in reporting on campus cultural highlights. His writing is good and doesn't get too artistic, which is a bad habit to many student writers have.

But even worse than the attack on the reviewer was Hodgson's poison penning against the Magazine. If there is one man working on a publication on this campus who is 100 per cent sincere and devotes all of his time and energy towards making his publication a good one, it is Fred Jacobson, editor of the Magazine.

Jacobson and his managing editor are fraternity brothers. So what? Apparently this is supposed to be some kind of crime. Certainly this has nothing to do with the inherent ability of both Jacobson and Jud Kinberg, managing editor. Kinberg, a former managing editor of the DTH, is worldwise in the ins and outs of the writing and publications field. The two of them have worked and are working hard to build up a good staff and a better magazine. Anyone who has delved even briefly into campus publications knows the job is a sequence of headaches.

We can assure everyone interested that the Magazine editors are much more concerned with putting out a good issue which the campus will like than they are in bickering over petty politics and personal differences.

And the payoff is Hodgson's frank admission to an eager public that the editorial in the last issue of the Magazine was directed solely at him. The editor wrote an intelligent, factual discussion of the possibilities and potentialities of a humor mag for the benefit of interested readers. It was a well-written informative analysis. It was not written especially for one man, and he is flattering himself by so thinking.

Hodgson made one good point. If students like or lislike any features of campus publications they can let the editors know by writing or telling them their criticism. Intelligent criticism will always be appreciated. Personal vindicitiveness has no value whatsoever.

It's time some of the "great" men—by their own admission—on this campus stopped telling us poor illiterates how we should be doing things and pitched in and helped without keeping both wary eyes peeled for personal gain and glory. There is plenty of room for whatever writing talent exists on this campus. Why waste it trying to ridicule those who are in there pitching?

The great man is intent upon his work; the little man upon his reputation.

Campus Leaders Responsible For Lack of Student Interest

By Jimmy Wallace

This column might be appropriately titled "The trouble with you is—," because, really, that's exactly what it is about: The trouble with Student Government, the Trouble with the Daily Tar Heel, the trouble with everything is the same. What is it? The answer: no one cares enough. No one has enough interest. No one cares to take on a bit of responsibility. No one is willing to lead. Everyone wants to be led. In varying degrees, of course. I will give an example. In the last issue of the DTH before the Christmas vacation, the editor of that paper published an editorial in which he deplored the lack of interest shown in the recent election. I agree. It was deplorable, BUT, in the light of the present situation in student government, I think that the lack of interest was perfectly understandable.

The average of the post-war student is at least three years greater than that of the pre-war student. One would think that we would get more mature, more creative people in student government, in the publications. However, I maintain that the current crop of "student leaders" is, in general, mediocre. I maintain that when they take some step, some stand, do some good, benefit the average student, in short, bring themselves and their existence to the attention of the student body at large, they will get recognition, and student activities will be participated in by more than a small group of people who have to do everything.

It's a vicious circle. Student interest will not magically appear. It depends upon the present leaders. They must produce, or there will not be enough interest to get qualified leaders, etc. Thus, it falls upon the shoulders of the present crop of leaders, whatever the nature of that crop might be, to start the ball rolling. Impetus must be given to student activities at some point in the structure, or else the entire structure grows stagnant (as it is today) and decays (as it is doing).

In my opinion, that job of prodding, of acting as a watchdog, falls upon the shoulders of the Editor of the DTH to a large extent. It falls also upon the president of the student body, the vice president. They must lead, not be pushed out in front by the students they are supposed to be leading.

There are certainly plenty of problems within and without the student government framework which "leaders" could work on. There is the matter of the fee structure in the constitution which must be approved by the board of Trustees. Action is needed upon it at once. South Building is awaiting the students' decision. Student leaders have been sluggish in this matter, to say the least.

There is the matter of getting student interest aroused in the question of appropriations by the North Carolina General Assembly. The whole problem should be given more space and more publicity. Students should be encouraged to write to their representatives. Thus far, it has remained for the Di senate to take on this task. There is the matter of the prices on Franklin street, the cost of cleaning and pressing here as compared with the plant at State College, the procuring of telephone boothes in dormitories. Mr. Bennett has announced ever since he got out of the service that he cannot get phones. 3,000,000 telephones have been installed in the United States since the end of the war. I am sure, however, that Mr. Bennett is right, because there is a priority system which we can't beat. BUT, I am sure that if anyone were really, truly interested in getting some sort of booth around the single phones in dormitories (phones which have to serve at least 160 men) and thereby helping to shut out the noise of the efficient waterworks in the nearby gleaming, expansive, Navy-installed heads, which operate frequently while you are talking to your best girl or to the folks (and which noise is faithfully transmitted to the party you are talking to) it could be done. It is disconcerting, to say the least, to have some reveler shout four-letter words down the hall while you are attempting to carry on a conversation. I submit that if "the leaders" gave "the lead" some concrete examples of their leadership, they would get more cooperation and participation.

These are just a few things. There are many others. Many times the student publications have not said what they thought, because they were afraid they would lose some of the advertising of Franklin Street merchants. Many times they have said what they thought and they have temporarily lost the advertising. I submit that the community of Chapel Hill is not the old question of the chicken and the egg. There is no doubt here as to who came first. The University arrived first. Everyone in this town is largely indebted to the University for his livelihood. Students as well as faculty and administration are integral parts of the same thing. They must be treated as such.

You can please everybody (except possibly me) all the time in only one way. That is, by doing absolutely nothing. There are too many people currently holding positions of "responsibility and trust" who are attempting to please everybody. I don't advocate alienating everybody by doing everything, but I do feel that student leaders should lay down some course of action and then follow it.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Drew Pearson

GEN. CLAY FORCED CHANGE OF U. S. COMMAND IN GERMANY; U. S. DEMANDS LEND-LEASE REPAYMENT FROM RUSSIA; GOOD NEIGHBOR RELATIONS COOL IN LATIN AMERICA.

Washington.—Inside fact about the shift of U. S. commanders in Germany is that the stage was set for the change shortly after Lieut. Gen. Lucius D. Clay visited the National Association of Manufacturers in New York six weeks ago. Shortly before that, the Senate War Investigating Committee (the old Truman Committee) had sent its chief counsel, George Meader, to Germany and he had come back with a preliminary report highly critical of what went on in the U. S. occupation zone.

General Clay, then in the United States, was much upset by this report and talked to Secretary of State Byrnes about resigning. He felt that Gen. Joseph McNarney, top commander of U. S. troops in Germany, was the man really responsible, though he, Clay, as head of the Military Government for Germany, got the blame.

On top of the unfavorable Meader report, Gen. Clay addressed a meeting of the National Association of Manufacturers and afterwards sat down at an off-the-record meeting of NAM leaders including some of the top moguls of American industry. Their solution for the future of Germany was simple. They told Clay that they should be permitted to get in touch with their opposite numbers in German industry—the I. G. Farbens, the Opels and the other big industrialists who helped build up Hitler's war machine.

If allowed to do business with the German cartels, the U. S. industrialists told Clay, they would have Germany back on its feet in no time.

This shocked General Clay. Later he told Secretary Byrnes and his superiors in the War Department that he would retire from the Army immediately and go back to his old home in Atlanta if any such deal was carried out.

Furthermore Clay told the NAM members at their off-the-record meeting that the German people did not believe in or understand free enterprise and that Germany could only continue under strong government controls.

In the end, Secretary Byrnes strongly supported Clay and urged the War Department to relieve Gen. McNarney. The War Department agreed. It is significant, however, that before the change was finally agreed on, the State Department sounded out some of the GOP leaders on Capitol Hill. They agreed, too.

RUSSIAN LEND-LEASE

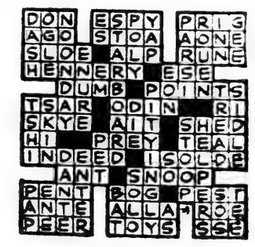
Secretary of State Byrnes has sent a third note to Russia demanding immediate settlement of Russia's eleven billion dollar lend-lease debt. And since the first two notes were completely ignored, this time Byrnes instructed Ambassador Bedell Smith to deliver the note personally either to Stalin or Molotov.

In the end, Smith saw Molotov, informed him he had received orders to hand the note personally to the Russian Foreign Minister because the first two notes were still unanswered.

Molotov replied that he was not aware of the previous failures to answer. This caused Ambassador Smith to state in rather blunt language that the lend-lease settlement had dragged on for six months and Secretary Byrnes wanted it given immediate attention.

Molotov said he would take it up with Premier Stalin, and that ended the interview. It is still too early to expect a reply.

REORGANIZATION STAND PAT



It didn't leak out of the secret GOP caucus, but Speaker Joe Martin took a firm and decisive stand against any change in the LaFollette-Monroney reorganization of Congress.

Republicans cannot afford to hack away at the reorganization setup," Martin warned when Representative W. Sterling Cole of New York and George Bates of Massachusetts, ranking Republicans on the Naval Affairs Committee, wanted to hold out against amalgamation with the Military Affairs Committee.

"Even though you think there might be changes for the better," the Speaker continued, "you must remember that the bill was passed by Congress and has become law. If we go in there and try to tear away the consolidation of committees, the people of the country are going to think we wanted reorganization only in order to get ourselves bigger salaries and are ready to junk the rest of the bill."

A REALLY CLOSE race in the Southern conference for basketball honors is currently shaping up, what with the Wildcats of Davidson making such a good showing against Duke's champion Blue Devils in Winston-Salem Tuesday night. That makes five strong teams in the loop now, any one of which might hit a winning streak and sweep right on through the SC tournament out onto the streets of Raleigh with the title.

Duke is the defending team, North Carolina is a strong contender to say the least, and State is the big dark horse. Wake Forest and Davidson fall about in the same category, that of being a little weaker than the other three but still able and likely to slip up from behind and plaster the favored quints on the walls of their respective gymnasiums.

In the Big Five anything can happen, and usually does, so with the completion of eastern jaunts by Duke and Carolina this weekend things will begin popping within the friendly family circles around Tar Heelia.

Information department, concerning Carolina-NYU:

Latest dope straight from those who know in New York has the Tar Heel quint 14 to 16 point underdogs against the strong Violet club next Tuesday night. Seems to us that we were something like nine points below the NYU lads when we played them during Christmas of 1945, and Carolina won by two points . . . The Tar Heels have shown time and again that they play their best ball as underdogs—i.e. Georgia in the Sugar Bowl in addition to all the Phantom games in the East last season—and we are firm believers that Coach Tom Scott's Phants will run true to form this trip . . . Incidentally, the Gotham's famed house of basketball has seen nothing but good fortune for Carolina's All-American Johnny Dillon. The Hook's 16-point average in four games last season in the Garden is one of the best on record for the famous arena . . . Let's be behind Johnny and the rest of the gang when they hit the road again this weekend . . . They'll be at LaSalle in Philadelphia Saturday, and against NYU next Tuesday.

Today's joke. (Please laugh.)

After viewing the heart-breaking Sugar Bowl game January 1 and seeing the mistake made by the field judge, we thought it only fitting to introduce a new yell for Tar Heel fans. Let's say "Gabe Hill, blow your horn." You can see the disputed play for yourself in the newsreel shorts currently being shown at the Carolina theater.

Same to you:

The several members of the Carolina athletic department who handled the ticket situation at the Sugar Bowl game in New Orleans personally thanked the student body for the way it conducted itself under the circumstances . . . We say you did a good job yourself, all of you, and we're sure the students are with us in commending Dick Jamerson, Marvin Allen, Pete Mullis, Walter Rabb, Bill Peacock, Henry House. and Floyd Durham.

While we're at it, it seems only fitting to congratulate Athletic Director Bob Fetzer, his assistant, Chuck Erickson, and all the rest who labored so diligently at the task of getting things set for the Sugar Bowl trip. And congrats, also, to Vernon Crooks and Ham Strayhorn for their part in the ticket sale.

Daa . . dit dit . . . daa: (translated, dots and dashes.)

Ray Morris, who was No. 1 and captained the 1944 Carolina tennis team, is back on the campus and will bolster the already bulging tennis roster come spring . . . There's tough doings on in the wrestling room these days, and this dope comes first hand. The blood and sweat is flowing as the grapplers strain to get into condition for the first match . . . Dillon's hook was hitting quite effectively in practice yesterday. Let's hope it follows the right path Saturday night . . . Jack Fitch's was working a lot against the varsity yesterday. "It still feels awkward," said Jack yesterday. But the chunky little former starting guard may work into the lineup before too many more weeks . . . The story on Bob Gantt, the basketball star at Duke before the war, is that he is planning to graduate in about a month and didn't consider it worthwhile to get in shape to play just that little bit of basketball. He's been refereeing high school ball among other things . . . Gordon Carver and Buck Cheek, two former Duke starters, are playing semi-pro ball in Durham this winter. Cheek isn't even in school so the story goes.

White Phantoms Engage in Practice Game; Team to Leave for Philadelphia Tomorrow

A regular practice encounter against the junior varsity outfit was the feature of yesterday's hardwood practice as the Carolina courtmen continued their hard drills before embarking on their second invasion this season of the big-time cage circuit.

All 14 players took part in the scrimmage with Johnny Dillon, Bob Paxton, Jim Hamilton, Norm Kohler and Jim White starting the fray and Taylor Thorne seeing the most frequent service of the substitutes. Dillon, in particular, showed signs of improvement over early-season form, hooking a good number of goals and registering several set and crip shots. No score was kept of the contest.

The Phantoms have two more practice sessions before leaving for Philadelphia tomorrow night. The players that will make the journey have not yet been announced by the coaching staff but it is expected that 12 men will be picked for the two-city invasion.

Matmen Begin Eliminations Next Tuesday

Slate Revealed; VPI First Foe

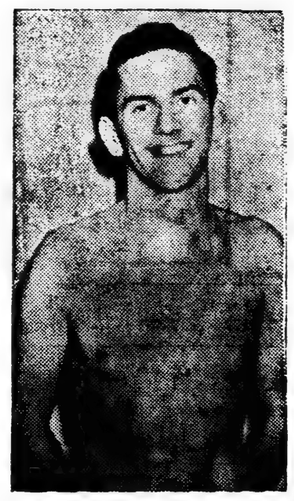
Elimination matches for the first meet of the season with VPI will begin next Tuesday afternoon, it was revealed yesterday by head Coach Chuck Quinlan as he and Assistant Coach Hobie McKeever began to accelerate practice sessions in view of the opening match.

At the same time, an eight-meet slate was announced, which lasts all the way through February and ends with a match March 1 with the University of Virginia. It is also anticipated that the Tar Heels will participate in the Southern conference tournament, which has been allotted to Lexington, Va., with VMI as sponsor and host school.

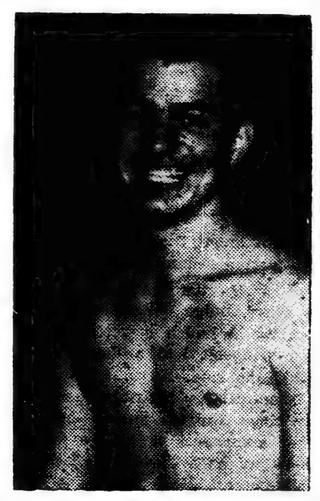
McKeever has been working with the grapplers since early fall, and Quinlan returns to his duties as head coach after completing his fall task as head trainer of the football team. Something like 20 candidates, including several lettermen from last year and pre-war years, drilled before Christmas, and the number has jumped to near 35 with the opening of winter practice.

Star 136-pounder Tommy Hearn and 145-pounder Dick Seaver will co-captain the Tar Heel mat team this season, and they will be counted on heavily along with such wrestlers as Art Bluethenthal, Bill Kemp, Archie Thompson, Demont Rosemann, Guppy Gupton, ...Zirpel and Laurie Hooper, a past captain and heavyweight.

Newcomers who are slated to give the lettermen a run for positions are Doug Thompson, a 121-pounder, Mal Boren, a 128-pounder, and many others. Competition is keen for all positions, which are expected to change from week to week as the season progresses.



This season marks the first full-fledged slate since about 1943, the war having caused the abandonment of the sport at many schools. State, Davidson, VPI, VMI, Washington and Lee and many others have revived wrestling this year, and all are included on the Carolina schedule, which is the toughest in many seasons. At the conclusion of the regular season and the conference tourney, several of the Tar Heels will likely journey to the Nationals as did Hearn, Bluethenthal and Al Crawford last year. Crawford, incidentally, is head coach at State this year, taking over the reins as head mentor for the first time since his graduation from Carolina with a masters degree in physical education.



Opening match for the Tar Heels will be with Virginia Tech in Blacksburg, Va., January 18, a week from Saturday, and this will be followed by meets with Davidson, State, Washington and Lee, Duke, VMI, Navy and Virginia. Home meets of these are W. and L., VMI, Virginia, and possibly Davidson.

The complete schedule:

January 18—VPI at Blacksburg.
January 25—Davidson, site unchosen.
January 31—State at Raleigh.
February 8—Wash. and Lee, here.
February 12—Duke at Durham.
February 15—VMI, here.
February 22—Navy at Annapolis.
March 1—Virginia, here.

Mural Cage Play Begins Today

Tank Team Lacks Stars But Show Much Promise

Jamerson to Depend on Well-Rounded Team; Dolphins Polish up for Saturday's Meet

Carolina's 1947 swimming team will put their home winning streak of 25 consecutive meets on the line come Saturday afternoon and as yet they haven't got a star-studded team like that of past years to defend it.

The present edition of the Blue Dolphins lacks any outstanding stars in the swimming events for the first time in several years. Men like Hammond, Kelley, Twining, Barclay, Ausley, and Ben Ward do not come along every year. Consequently the team will have to depend upon condition, hustle, and morale in trying to uphold the high standard of previous Blue Dolphin squads.

In the sprints, Jesse Greenbaum, captain of the 1945 club, Warren Ficklen and Mike Morrow, co-captains for this year, are the only veteran performers. Bieltman and Norwood are the newcomers most likely to make the grade this year.

The distance events are almost entirely in the hands of freshmen. Sam McCauley, Garret McCoy, Bob Hutton seem to have the lead for regular berths at present.

The breaststroke finds Pete Hexner, letterman from 1944-45, Jerry Cook, freshman star of '42, and Dan Breedon, a newcomer, leading the field. Co-Captain Morrow may have to be shifted to this event to try and strengthen the medley relay.

Bo Jenkins, Larry Johnson, and Bob McKenzie lead the backstrokers, but Norman Sper may have to double to help the medley situation.

Diving is the Dolphins' strong point. Sper, national AAU star, Buddy Crone, AAU diver of pre-war years, Mac Erle, letterman, Dick Surgot, Knox, and Wilhard give the Dolphins quality and quantity.

The swimmers went through lengthy workouts yesterday in preparation for the initial meet Saturday with Bainbridge. Emphasis was on leg conditioning as the Dolphins kicked their way across the pool many times under the watchful eye of mentor Dick Jamerson. Time trials are on schedule for tomorrow's session and these should put the finishing touches on the squad for the event Saturday.

Jayvees Face Varsity In Heavy Scrimmage

Coach Lew Hayworth's Jayvee cagers yesterday held their second practice session after the holidays by again scrimmaging against the varsity in a long, fast-moving drill. The team appeared in good shape for its game Saturday night with Presbyterian Junior College in Maxton.

The Jayvees started slowly against the Phantoms, but settled down after a few minutes of play, and played an improved game both on offense and defense.

Meanwhile Coach Frank Murray ran his freshman team through a long workout in the Tin Can in preparation for its game with George Washington high school next Tuesday night in Danville. The Tar Babies seemed in good shape, considering their three-week holiday layoff.

Sports Highlights . . .

Eleven more members of the Boston Braves have signed 1947 contracts, leaving only JOHN SAIN and PHIL MASI as holdouts. Sain, it will be remembered, pitched for North Carolina Pre-Flight back in 1943 . . . Featherweight champ of the world, WILLIE PEP, suffered a broken leg in a plane crash last Sunday and will be out of the ring for at least six months . . . Sports fans are a little puzzled by an announcement from West Point that Army will play Stanford in New York in 1947. This is a sudden switch from the Cadet policy of "no more big-time football games" that caused the removal of next year's Notre Dame contest from Yankee Stadium . . . Heavyweight JOE LOUIS is getting ready for a seven-week tour to show the boys down South America way how they swing it in this country.

Field of 76 Teams Enters Competion

SAE and Steele Defending Champs

Intramural cage play is slated to get underway this afternoon as 76 teams, the largest field ever to enter the competition, began the fight for the campus championship.

Last year's champs, SAE in the fraternity league and Steele in the Dormitory loop, both have strong quintets entered and will make a serious bid to regain their respective crowns.

According to Mural Director Walter Rabb, a schedule of twelve games will be run off each day during the course of the season. At the conclusion of regular league play, the winners in each circuit will advance into a post-season tournament and a campus champion will be reached.

All competing teams have been sent schedules and copies of rules governing play and everything is set to begin play. All managers of teams are requested to abide by regulations set up and to have their teams on hand at the proper times. All irregularities or postponements should be reported to the mural office immediately.

New York Jury Convicts Paris

New York, Jan. 8—(UP)—A New York jury has found Broadway playboy Alvin J. Paris guilty of trying to "fix" the National Football league's championship playoff game.

Now, the smooth-talking, smooth-dressing Paris faces a maximum penalty of five years in jail and $5,000 in fines for each of the two counts. However, the prison sentences could be made to run concurrently and Presiding Judge Saul Streit, who set January 28 as the date for sentencing, hinted that might be the case if Paris consents to do a little more talking.

NCAA Adopts Plan To Clean Up Athletics

New York, Jan. 8—(UP)—Delegates to the National Collegiate Athletic Association have voted to adopt a five-point program which—if enforced—will revolutionize amateur sports from this moment on.

When the college officials—representing schools in every section of the country—convened here in New York, the convention air was buzzing with talk of gambling in amateur circles. Also, the always-heard criticism that college teams were deteriorating into professional clubs cavorting in school colors.

Today, the NCAA met this criticism with a five-point program which will end all such talk if—and this is a big if—if the schools carry it through. Specifically, the NCAA has called for strict institutional control over and responsibility for all collegiate sport programs—sound academic standards, even for athletes—a strict governing and accounting of all financial aid to athletes—and what amounts to a ban on the recruiting of players. In other words, the NCAA says its schools will put amateur sports back on amateur basis.

And, to put teeth in the resolution, the NCAA has voted to boycott all schools who fail to live up to the rules. Thus, if some school goes out recruiting athletes, paying them big salaries, lets its players slir through courses without the proper grades—well, then, that school will be put on a black list. And the others will refuse to compete with it, freezing them out of the sports world.

Four of the sections of the five-point program received unanimous support on the convention floor. However, on the fifth point—the one governing the rules of recruiting players—ran into strong criticism by Gayle Scott of Texas Christian and Bill Alexander of Georgia Tech. Finally, though, this policy was given support by a substantial majority.

Officials at West Point picked this afternoon as the day to admit that from now on the Army football team is in for a period of deemphasis.

"We are going back to a pre-war status," says General Maxwell Taylor, Superintendent of the Point. "How far we'll slip back I don't know. But don't bet your shirt that Army will have an undefeated team next year. We just won't be able to play big-time football."

'On Wagon 19 Months,' Is Plea...

Negro 'Drops in' to Answer Year-Old Drinking Charge

By Bill Sexton

Willy Burnett — who's been up for drunkenness in Chapel Hill Recorder's court more times than the last three judges can recall—"jes dropped in" today to answer a drinking charge dating back to October 7, 1945. Willy told Judge Henry Whitfield that he had been "out in the country farming" since that binge in 1945. So far out, in fact, he didn't even know the Chapel Hill police wanted him. So far that neither the Orange county sheriff's force nor other law enforcement officers could find him.

Money Short

"But I couldn't make any money out of my crops," the negro said, "so I've come back to town to get a job."

On his return to Chapel Hill today he dropped in to say hello to the boys at the police station—where he used to spend so many weekends—and found out about the little matter he hadn't gotten around to settling.

On the Wagon

In court Judge Whitfield asked Willy how he had been getting along lately. "Haven't had a drink in 19 months," he said. At first Whitfield was skeptical—he'd sentenced Willy many times for his sprees—but on further assurances the judge finally agreed that Willy "looks mighty fine for a change."

"Congratulations, Willy," said Whitfield, "how do you plead?"

"Thanks, Judge," replied Willy, "Guilty."

"Pay the costs, Willy," said Whitfield. "Happy New Year."

Sketch Class Set Will Meet Tuesday

John V. Alcott, head of the Art department, has announced the first meeting of a new series of figure sketch classes on next Tuesday, January 14.

The class was first organized during the fall quarter to meet the desires of interested persons who wanted to draw but were unable to enroll in one of the regular studio classes.

The class is open to everyone and will meet on Tuesday and Thursday evenings from 7 to 10 o'clock for ten weeks. A studio fee of $10 covers the cost of materials, instruction, and models' fees. Further information is obtainable from Miss Lynette Warren in her office at Person Hall Art Gallery.

Eleanor Roosevelt May Lose Driver's License

White Plains, N. Y., Jan. 8—(UP)—Witnesses gave conflicting testimony at a hearing to determine whether Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt's driving license should be revoked as the result of a highway accident last August. A patrolman said Mrs. Roosevelt had told him that she was dozing at the wheel. But one of the injured persons denies such a statement was made.

Elmore, however, promises that he isn't going to rush in and start championing a variety of favorite causes.

Now 26 years old and unmarried, Elmore is an Air Corps veteran of 42 months service, 31 of which were spent overseas as an armorer.

Ex-Sergeant Bruce Elmore, upon taking his seat as the youngest member of the General Assembly, began a new career and they are saying in Raleigh that he'll make good in a big way.

General Assembly Round-Up

Teacher's Salary Bill Goes Before Assembly

Raleigh, Jan. 8—(UP)—The second bill introduced as the General Assembly opened in Raleigh today would provide pay raises for school teachers and state employees. Representative R. M. Kermon of New Hanover county introduced the bill just before the House adjourned at 1:40 p.m. The proposal would give a 25 per cent pay raise to employees making less than $3,600.00 dollars annually. Those earning between $3,600 and $4,200 would get a 20 per cent increase. Employees making from $4,200 to $5,000 a year would get a 15 per cent boost. And those paid more than $5,000 would receive a 10 per cent increase. The bill would not include constitutional officers. Kermon fed the bill into the hopper after House members fought a sharp engagement over retaining the so-called gag rule.

Representatives Elect Pearsall New Speaker

Raleigh, Jan. 8—(UP)—The General Assembly followed expectations today by electing Representative Thomas J. Pearsall of Nash county as Speaker of the House, and State Senator Joe L. Blythe of Charlotte as President Pro-tem of the Senate. Both were unanimously nominated at last night's Democratic caucuses.

Cherry Plans to Talk To Both Houses Today

Raleigh, Jan. 8—(UP)—Governor Cherry will address both houses of the General Assembly in a joint session at noon tomorrow. The House of Representatives will meet an hour before the joint session to hear committee assignments and adopt rules for the 1947 session. The report of the rules committee may bring forth a repetition of the sharp debate on the so-called gag rule which sparked the opening session today.

Negro Veteran Brings Law Suit Against USC For Not Admitting Him

Columbia, S. C., Jan. 8—(UP)—A Negro war veteran is bringing a 15-thousand dollar suit against the University of South Carolina for its alleged refusal to admit him as a student in the University's Law school.

John H. Wrighten of Edisto Beach, S. C., charges that he applied to the University Board of Trustees for admission last August and was told the board would act at its next meeting. But Wrighten says the board has met since then and not acted.

And this, says Wrighten, constitutes a violation of his civil rights.

Wrighten is now a student at the South Carolina State Negro College at Orangeburg, an agricultural and mechanical school. In his complaint he says that the University Law school is the only state-subsidized college in South Carolina where he can study law on an equal level of scholarship as other students.

Tests Will Be Given Pre-Medical Students

Professional aptitude tests for men planning to enter medical school will be held at 8:45 o'clock Saturday morning in 103 Bingham.

All men planning to enter the University medical school for the September term must take this test which is given only once a year. The majority of other medical schools require the professional aptitude test.

Men who have Saturday classes will be excused from them. Students must register for the test sometime before Saturday in the graduate school office, 202 South building.

Each person taking the examination is requested to bring an eraser, a fountain pen and a check or money order for $5.00 made out to the Graduate Record office in New York city.

Student Party To Hold Meeting Sunday Afternoon

Initial mass meeting for the quarter of the Student Party will be held this Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock in the Graham Memorial Candlelight room.

The session will be in the form of an SP legislators caucus, to be held along with the business meeting. At this time legislators will choose Student Party candidates for speaker protem, and other officers of the student legislature to be elected next week.

A student speaker will be voted upon to present the recently drawn up SP petition to the General Assembly during the current session. This petition, which specifically requests state legislature action for several UNC improvements, will likely be placed in the YMCA court for another day in the near future to receive additional student signatures.

An official report on the December student body elections will be made by party chairman Chuck Heath, who announced that the floor would be open at that time to consider further Student Party policies.

Weekly Bridge Tourney Scheduled for Tonight

The regular weekly bridge tournament will be held tonight at 7 o'clock in the main lounge of Graham Memorial, according to Howell Peacock, tournament director.

The bridge class for beginners will be held at 5 o'clock today in the Grail room of Graham Memorial. They will be held each Tuesday, Thursday and Friday afternoon at that time. Advanced classes will be inaugurated if there is sufficient demand, stated Peacock.

Campus Event Calendar Appears in DTH Daily

Beginning with last Tuesday's issue the Daily Tar Heel began running a daily campus events calendar on page two, entitled, "It Happens Here. . ." All meetings and other events, regular or special, may be included in this service daily, if a telephone message is left at the Daily Tar Heel office, (F-3146) by 5 o'clock on the afternoon preceding the day of desired publication; or, written message may be handed in to the news office.

No Disarming Until Council Settles Atom

U.S. Member Opposes Demands by Russian

Washington, Jan. 9—(UP)— The United States has refused to alter its timetable on world disarmament, again demanding that first things, (meaning the atomic bomb), be considered first. The U. S. delegate to the UN Security Council, Herschel Johnson, today served notice to the council that until Russia accepts the Baruch atom plan, this country will not agree to begin general reduction of armaments and national armies.

Johnson's renewed demand collided with the also-renewed request by Soviet Delegate Andrei Gromyko that the council begin negotiations on general disarmament at once. Gromyko urged that atomic talks run concurrently with talks on scrapping arms.

Following Assembly Decision

The new tangle between Russia and the U. S. came as the Security council began its momentous consideration of the broad disarmament question. Without objection, the council agreed to carry out the general disarmament principles accepted by the UN General Assembly in December. But when the time came to get down to details, the old deadlock remained.

Bilbo Reseating Seen On Only One Condition

Jackson, Miss., Jan. 9—(UP)— Fielding Wright, governor of Mississippi, says he will reappoint Senator Bilbo only if the race-hating senator is denied his seat without a hearing or is kept out of the senate purely for his views on negro rights.

Previously it was reported that Wright would reappoint The Man if for any reason Bilbo's election was challenged. His statement today revoked that view. If the senator is given a hearing and denied a seat for his war contract dealings, the governor "won't reappoint" him.

Russian Motives Hit By Mexican Statesmen

Mexico City, Jan. 9 — (UP) — A new warning against Russian motives was sounded today by a prominent Mexican diplomat, Dr. Ezequiel Padilla. The former Mexican foreign minister, who gained an international reputation for his efforts against Fascism at the start of World War II spoke today before the Cleveland council on world affairs:

Padilla charged that Communists are using all their power to create hatred in Latin America against the U. S.—"To face the challenge of Communism, which promises economic security at the price of freedom," he said, "democracy must answer with freedom and security."

A Communist newspaper in Buenos Aires says that the appointment of Gen. Marshall as American Secretary of State has "sounded the hour of diplomacy run by the sword."

Taft Seconds Cuts In Federal Budget

Washington, Jan. 9—(UP)— One of the principal architects of the Republican legislative wants Congress to squeeze three or four billion dollars out of President Truman's budget for the next fiscal year. The GOP leader, Ohio's Robert Taft, bases his recommendation on the report that Mr. Truman's budget message tomorrow will call for the expenditure of more than $37,000,000,000 in the fiscal year beginning next July first.

Taft also rejects Mr. Truman's recommendation that income taxes be held at present levels. The Ohioan is in favor of the 20 per cent cut in personal income taxes, as called for by Chairman Knutson of the House Ways and Means committee. However Taft, chairman of the Republican Senate policy committee, doesn't go along with Knutson's demand that excise taxes be cut from their war-time levels.

Student Union Hop Tonight Presents 'Dream Serenaders'

By Dave Owens

Tonight is the night for Graham Memorial's formal dance in the main lounge of the student union. As are all GM activities, the dance is free and open to the campus. Dancing will begin at 9 o'clock and stop at midnight.

Ned Reap, above, is leader of Graham Memorial's new dance band, the Dream Serenaders. Reap and his musicians will play tonight at the Student Union formal.

The feature of tonight's dance will be the presentation of the newly-organized Graham Memorial dance band under Ned Reap's leadership. Organized primarily for campus use, the "Dream Serenaders" boast of 15 members, plus leader Reap and three featured vocalists. Two of them, Moffitt Sherard and Riqui Casino, will be heard at the formal dance tonight.

Sherard, Casino Sing

Sherard sang with Freddy Johnson's band while in Pre-Flight School at the University. Casino was featured last quarter at Danziger's and has been heard often on campus singing Latin American songs.

Special Floor Show

During intermission, which will last from 10 until 10:30, Johnny Jones will present a floor show in the Candlelight Room. Refreshments will be available there at that time. The show will feature Buddy "Twinkletoes" Robinson, Phylis Isenhour and Tommy Thomas.

"The main lounge of Graham Memorial will serve as an excellent hall in which to have a formal dance," said Martha Rice, student union director. "It will also provide an intimate setting for the formal introduction of the new band organized by your student union for student benefit."

Tomorrow night Graham Memorial will follow up the formal dance with a semi-formal New Year's hop in Woollen Gym. Open to the entire student body, the dance will honor the Carolina football team with athletic officials as special guests.

Musical Show Is Scheduled In Mid-March

Sound and Fury Group Readies to Rehearse

By Chuck Hauser

Sound and Fury met last night to discuss plans for a new show to be produced sometime in mid-March. Bill Carmichael, president of the organization, presided over the meeting, which developed into a discussion of the type of show to be presented—a musical comedy or a review.

"Change for a Penny," an original musical comedy, is almost ready for rehearsal, said Carmichael. Dissention in the ranks, however, seems to indicate that many of the club members would prefer an original review, not pertaining to the Carolina campus, as was last year's "State of the Campus."

Many Vacancies

Carmichael wished to stress that students can be used in many more capacities than just acting. Musicians are badly needed, and those not occupied with present campus bands are particularly urged to apply. Vacancies are open in all capacities, however: writing, music, acting, make-up, designing, and secretarial work.

Bill Carmichael will be in the Daily Tar Heel sports office on the second floor of Graham Memorial from 2 until 5 o'clock in the afternoon next Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday to interview anyone interested in par-

University Glee Clubs Have Some Vacancies

Paul Young, director of the University Glee club, has anounced that there are a few vacancies in the men's and women's glee clubs. Try-outs for these positions will be held Monday through Thursday afternoon from 4 to 5 o'clock in 207 Hill hall.

HERBERT LIVINGSTON

Music Recital Will Be Given By Livingston

Pianist Will Play Prokofieff Tonight

Herbert Livingston, graduate assistant and instructor in piano in the University Music Department will play Serge Prokofieff's "Seventh Sonata," Op. 83 as the featured composition of his recital this evening at 8:30 o'clock in Hill Music hall. This Sonata, completed in 1942, is the work that won for Prokofieff the Stalin prize, the highest award that can be conferred on a Soviet composer. Since Vladamir Horowitz introduced the Sonata in America in 1944, it has received widespread critical acclaim. The sonata is not programatic but the shattering events of the war years are reflected in the tempestuous rhythms and thundering might of the music.

In addition to the Prokofieff Sonata, Mr. Livingston will play Mozart's "Sonata" (K. 330); Schubert's "Allegretto in C Minor," and "Impromptu Op. 142 No. 3"; Chopin's "Three Ecossaises," and "Berceuse;" and Paganini-Liszt's "La Chasse," and "Etude" in A Minor.

Hutson Quits UN Post As Secretary-General

New York, Jan. 9 — (UP) — The assistant secretary—general of the United Nations resigned tonight. He is John Hutson of the United States. Hutson has been criticized for his handling of the UN's administrative and financial affairs.

Soprano Dorothy Maynor Will Give Concert Here

Council for Religion in Life to Sponsor Performance of Negro Singer January 19

Dorothy Maynor, noted negro soprano, will appear in a concert sponsored by the Council for Religion in Life Sunday evening, January 19, at 8:30 o'clock in Memorial hall.

Members of both races are invited to hear her in this concert. Except as to the price of tickets, varying with location of seats, there will be no segregation in line with the practice of interracial assemblies long observed here and in many other communities in the South.

Koussevitzky Discovery

Since her sensational "discovery" by Serge Koussevitzky at the Berkshire music festival in 1939, Miss Maynor has streaked to the top rank of singing stars on America's music artists. On that occasion Dorothy Maynor sang a group of songs that made Koussevitzky to exclaim: "The world must hear this voice!" A few weeks later, the young singer made her debut in New York's town hall.

Dorothy Maynor began to appreciate music early. As a child in the home of a Methodist vicarage in Norfolk, she absorbed the haunting music of negro spirituals. Together with her brother, a tenor, and a sister who played the organ, Dorothy helped her father with his church by singing in the choir. At 14 she entertained Hampton institute to prepare for a career in home economics, but music gradually assumed the important part of her curriculum.

Many Engagements

Following her debut performance at the town hall in New York, came subsequent engagements with the New York Philharmonic, Chicago, Philadelphia and Cleveland orchestras.

SWB Probes Local Problems

Enrollment, Autos Are Investigated

The University's enrollment policy and the automobile problem on the Carolina campus were the chief topics of discussion at a meeting of the Student Welfare board held yesterday afternoon.

Director of Admissions Roy Armstrong reported that the University is continuing to exercise its policy of letting any qualified student who has a place to live attend the University. However, he expressed concern over admissions for the coming year when the continued influx of returning veterans will be added to a huge number of graduates from North Carolina high schools.

High School Problem

Over 30,000 high school students will graduate throughout the state this year and many of that number will undoubtedly be seeking admission to the University. The group discussed possible means of deciding who and how many can be accepted, but no conclusion was reached.

C. E. Teague, assistant controller, stated that work on the new dormitories is progressing slowly, but one is expected to be ready for occupation this fall. All of the quonset huts on the campus are in use, he reported.

All members of the group were in accord that the student automobile problem is growing out of hand. Parking space for those who need it is very difficult to find. The board went on record to appeal to the students not to use their car unnecessarily.

Debate Council Head Resigns

Braswell Elected To Succeed Miller As Forensic Head

Maurice Braswell, clerk of the Dialectic Senate and House Reading clerk at the Student Legislature assembly last month, was elected last night to succeed Bill Miller as president of the Debate council. The vote was unanimous.

Because of a "heavy academic load," Miller told the council members, he would be forced to resign or delegate much of his responsibilities to other members. The members voted to accept the resignation.

As an alternative to the resignation Miller proposed that two "chairmen" be appointed to take charge of forensic activities on campus and inter-school competition. The president, said Miller, could act as a coordinator with most detail on the chairmen's shoulders.

Rather than reorganize the president's office the members voted without dissent to allow Miller to step down as head forensic activity on the Carolina campus. He will continue, however, as a member of the council.

Miller was named last September to succeed David Pittman, who left the University to enter the Air Corps.

ATO Elects Jim Lilly President of Chapter

Alpha Tau Omega fraternity elected Jim Lilly president of the chapter at a meeting Wednesday night. Other officers chosen to serve for the next six months are: Charlie Heinmiller, vice-president; Bill McClure, treasurer; Ken Gammage, secretary; Johnny Burns, keeper of the animals; Sam Clark, usher; Allen Gant, sentinel; George Stenhouse, representative to IFC; Bob Ettenger, German club representative; Charlie Revelle, house manager; and Jim Arnall, "Palm" reporter (national ATO magazine).

Orange County Family Sees Brighter Future

One of Orange county's most tragic welfare cases—the problem of a woman and ten children whose home burned to the ground Monday afternoon—is looking brighter.

Mrs. Luther Waggoner, her husband now in jail awaiting trial for assaulting both her and one of his sons with a deadly weapon in June, was ill in bed Monday when her home caught fire. Her children, seven of whom are under 16 years of age, carried her to safety, then watched their home and all belongings being swallowed up by flames. All they managed to save was the clothing they were wearing—and a tricycle.

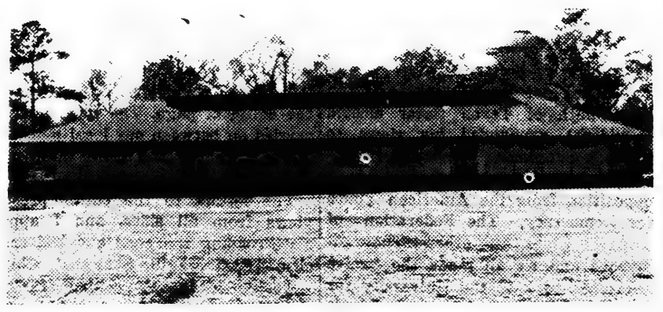
Today Mrs. Waggoner, still ill, is staying with a sister. Neighbors have taken in the children. And churches, the county's two weeklies, and local organizations are carrying on a campaign to give the family another home.

The Orange county Red Cross chapter has begun converting a storage building near the burned-out house into a new home, and is gathering furnishings to outfit the family. The Hillsboro post of the American Legion has donated money. And people from miles around are sending clothes and sheets and furniture and food to help out the beleaguered family of eleven.

UVA to Open Veterans' Club with Party Tonight

Party to Include Music, Floorshow

By Ed Joyner



Music and entertainment will be the order of the evening at the veterans' party tonight when the University Veterans association formally opens its new club house for the winter quarter.

Contrary to the announcement in yesterday's Daily Tar Heel, the opening will commence at 8 o'clock instead of 6:30 and will last until 1 a.m. Following the opening, however, the club will be open every night from 6:30 until co-ed curfew hour.

"Jukebox Recordings"

Music for the party will be presented by the well known "Jukebox Recordiers" since conflicting engagements prevented other campus orchestras from appearing. Prominent student talent will furnish the entertainment in the form of a half-hour floorshow.

With painting and decorating still going on yesterday afternoon, club manager Jim Farlow announced that the decorative color scheme will include burgundy drapes with a floral pattern against light green walls of a shade approximating that in the Carolina Inn dining room.

A new and improved University Veterans Association club house will be opened for the quarter this evening, at the Association's gala opening party. Located in the rebuilt Navy wrestling pavilion at the south end of Lenoir hall, the club will be open nightly from now on.

New Opening Time Set for 8 O'clock

Candle-lit tables will be arranged around the dance floor in cabaret style, and well-shaded wall lamps will cast a soft lighting effect over the room.

Cold drinks, sandwiches, ice cream, candies, etc., will be available at the modernly equipped bar.

Memberships on Sale

Although the party will be closed to UVA members in good standing, and their guests, membership tickets will be on sale at the door for the benefit of newly enrolled veterans.

After tonight's opening the club will serve as a lounge and as a dating and dancing center for veterans in the evenings. It will also be the site of a new series of weekly entertainments similar to the open house dances held by the UVA last quarter in the Naval armory.

Wheels in Motion

The first step towards increasing teaching salaries in this state was taken yesterday with the introduction of a bill in the state assembly providing for a graduated scale of pay increases.

The bill starts with increases of 25 per cent for those receiving salaries up to $3,700 yearly and is graded down to a 10 per cent increase for those making over $5,000 yearly.

Certainly this is not too much to ask for with our teachers so widely underpaid today. We hope the legislature will waste little time arguing the already-accepted merits and the crying need for such an increase.

Morally, the state assembly has no real choice to make on the matter. The teaching profession, from the kindergarten teacher to the university professor, is criminally underpaid. By increasing teaching salaries, the legislature will be safeguarding the education of their children and future generations.

The pay increase bill was the first major one to be introduced at the new session. It does not provide for too great an increase. Divided as the legislature may be on some of the bills they will receive this session, there should be no valid objection to giving our state's educators a salary resembling that which they should receive.

No Smoking, Please

The recent epidemic of tragic fires that struck all sections of the nation apparently made no impression on some of the confirmed smokers on this campus who find it necessary to smoke even in Memorial hall when it is packed to capacity.

Smoking and careless handling of matches in the crowded auditorium presents a distinct fire hazard. If fire were to break out in some section of the building, many students would undoubtedly be either burned or injured in the scramble for safety.

Fire is too dangerous a thing to be treated lightly. No smoking should be allowed in the building during any program which is held in the hall. Warnings should be posted and violators should be punished. A second's carelessness could result in irreparable damage.

And, while not as serious in possible consequence, the smoke that fills the hall and the lungs and eyes of those within makes everyone uncomfortable and makes breathing next to impossible. It makes it doubly hard for one to enjoy any performance.

Parking Problem

The automobile problem continues to exist on the campus. This editorial is directed against one particularly offensive phase of the problem, that of parking.

With so much congestion existing, we find it difficult to understand why so many students find it necessary to drive to and from classes—classes which are within easy walking distance of their rooms.

Regardless of whether they live in the upper quad or fraternity court, many of the present-day students go to all their classes in their cars. In the time it takes to drive close to the classroom and find a place to park, they could almost walk the distance.

As a result it becomes practically impossible for those who have a legitimate need for their car on the campus to find a place to park. Visitors at the University find their parking area packed with autos of every size and shape. And students are leaving their cars on walks and in driveways where they become public obstacles.

A little consideration on the part of some of those who can walk to classes easily would help alleviate the problem of where to put all the cars parking up on the campus. Some students live a considerable distance from the main campus. They have a good reason to bring a car to school with them. The rest of us could use the exercise obtained walking to class each morning. And the cars would probably benefit too.

Conference Diary

Though your reasons for being interested in the results of the Chicago Conference are as varied as the results themselves, it seems agreed that most of you have one common interest—the natural one which evidences itselm in the financial sponsors of any endeavor. With that in mind, I have agreed to write this and the articles that may follow it before making my own report with the other delegate before the Legislature.

Bill Miller and I flew to Chicago. We arrived in Chicago on the night of the twenty-seventh. Jim Chesnutt came in from Washington the same night. Most of the male delegates were quartered in Woodlawn Hall, a University of Chicago Dormitory which was formerly operated by the Red Cross and which looked like something from "Rebecca."

We were the first ones to arrive in our "ward" and were on hand as other delegates entered. By four o'clock that morning we had met the delegate from the University of Washington, the delegate for the State of Kentucky, the one from DePaul, and Williams and Thornton from N. C. State. We found them as much confused as we regarding the actual purpose of the meeting, but settled all the world problems before retiring, or rather after retiring.

The next day Bill and I went down to the Reynolds Club (Chicago University's Student Union building) for purposes of registering. From then on it was like fighting a cesspool to keep your head above water.

We were subjected to all sorts of propaganda—"the Communists are at your elbow; the National Student Organizations are going to try to dominate the Conference; the Prague delegation has to be watched!" I still can neither prove nor disprove any of these typical remarks.

The Texas delegation had come with a plan. They felt no National Student Organizations as such should have a vote in the Policy of the National Students Organization except by the natural vote they would get from having an ordinary student elected by the Student Governments from which they come.

There was a rousing, "smoke and verb" filled caucus in the Stephens Hotel (I was tangled up on the elevated and got there late) in which Jim Smith of Texas (later elected President) expounded his views to the accompaniment of the other delegates from Texas. They got strong opposition from the American Youth for Democracy, The Federation of Newman Clubs, and others. They adjourned and we all made the twelve mile dash back to the University for another Caucus by the same people (The Texas delegates had leased the Hall from the Stephens' Hotel and I assume the money was running low).

The opening plenary session was to be at eight o'clock P. M., but we argued in the caucus until about seven thirty, meaning that we missed supper. I shall stop here for this writing. The next "diary" will begin with the first plenary session and the talks made there.

Letters To The Editor

All letters must be typewritten, double-spaced, under 300 words in length, and signed by the writer. Writer's name will be withheld on request, but letters must be signed. The Daily Tar Heel reserves the right to present the letters as it wishes and to delete all matter it considers libelous.

No Sugar

Dear Sir:

Once again the students of the University have been handed the short end of the stick by one of the grasping entrepreneurs of Franklin Street. We refer to the hyper-diluted solution of the Sugar Bowl, wherein a friend of ours blinked his eyes, looked back at the screen and found himself in the midst of the UCLA-Illinois game, unable to discern the whereabouts of "PICTURES OF THE SUGAR BOWL GAME—THE ENTIRE GAME WITH SOUND", as advertised in the Program for week of January 5 of the Carolina Theatre.

We feel the criticism is especially warranted due to the false advertising which lured masses of unsuspecting students to fill what otherwise would have been a yawning chasm of space.

The main "feature" was of such poor caliber that added enticements obviously were necessary if the coffers were to overflow for the ever-grasping Chapel Hill merchants.

Today's Question

What feature in the Daily Tar Heel do you like best and why?

The Answers

Sound Track. Bob Finehout seems to know his facts and presents a humorous and interesting column. —Venitah Sanders, Chapel Hill.

The very good sports section, because it is all pro-Carolina.—Edgar Edwards, Snow Hill.

I like all the columns appearing on the editorial page. The mud slinging carried on between our local maestros is always of humorous interest.—Bert Brannan, Smithfield.

The letters to the editor present views from all sides, and I appreciate reading the good and bad criticism.—Sam Magill, Shanghai, China.

Tookie Hodgson's column for its excellent humor.—Ben Cavin, Statesville.

The sports page because of the well written work. All events are well covered by the writers.—Doris Newburn, Sarasota, Florida.

I go for the feature articles. They help me keep up with important campus happenings.—Jane Frye, Little Rock, Ark.

Entertainment lightning struck Memorial Hall for the second time in two days, Wednesday night, when The Barter Theater of Abingdon, Virginia, presented a thoroughly competent and well-paced interpretation of Mr. W. Shakespeare's "Much Ado About Nothing." Adult campus and village theater-goers were thus treated to a wonderful evening's divertisement as they watched and heard the performance which sought to bring "metropolitan drama to non-urban areas."

On the whole, Robert Porterfield's Barter Theater group managed to give a well-balanced, articulate and adequate performance. Far and away the best job was done by Herbert Nelson who portrayed a witty, robust, and sometimes high-flown "Benedict." Mr. Nelson's interpretation left little to be desired. Robert Pastene as Don Pedro and Gordon Sommers shared whatever honors were left, among the comedy's leads.

Most enjoyable from the audience's point of view was the lighter comic relief supplied during the frequent set charges which are coincidental in a Shakespearean play; by Larry Gates as "Dogberry," and Frederic Warriner as "Verges." Both players portrayed their roles with a genuineness and restraint that evoked the only spontaneous exit applause from the 1,000 persons in Memorial Hall. Gates as 'Dogberry," at times showed a flair and feeling for malprop and pathetic comedy which was almost reminiscent of the late William Claude Dunkenfield (W. C. Fields).

Remaining acting honors should be accorded to Woodrow Romoff for his sinister, but not quite diabolical enough, interpretation of "Don John," and to John Vivyan as "Balthasar," as well as Chaucy Horsley for her "Hero." I thought Tom McDermott's portrayal of Claudio was most ineffectual and trifle to gentle for my tastes. Joan DeWeese as the shrewish and witty Beatrice initially was refreshing, but as the show wore on and her standard body movements became familiar, she reminded me of nothing so much as a very, very tired and un-original Tallulah Bankhead.

I particularly enjoyed the dances staged by John Edward Friend. Both of them were interesting, graceful, and directed with a knowing hand. Patricia Havens' costumes were colorful, but seemed ill-fitting and certainly not all of them were genuinely reflective of the period of the play.

THIS BOWL BUSINESS could easily get out of hand! If you don't believe that, you should have heard the broadcast of the latest one night before last—it was called the "Moon Bowl" and instead of playing football they played records, at the request of football players who took over the studio of WPTF in Raleigh en force.

Commentator for the game (?) was Sam Beard, who regularly makes no small effort at putting across a nightly program entitled "Moon Glow." And he had as his spotter Jim Reid, the WPTF sportscaster, who, incidentally, shared a room with yours truly while on the holiday jaunt to New Orleans and the Sugar Bowl classic.

There were eight of the state's leading football players from last season on hand, as well as one former Duke and Wake Forest lineman who is currently playing guard for the Chicago Bears. And rightly enough there were three Carolina grid stars included, Charlie Justice, Jack Fitch and Walt Pupa, along with Taylor Moser, Al Phillips and Footsy Palmer of State, Red Cochran of Wake Forest, and Leo Long of Duke. Each player was interviewed individually by cross-examining Reid and Beard, and each man was allowed a request number for the program.

With all that aggregate of football personnel in one room, it didn't take long for the wise cracks to start flying—and fly they did in between the stories of Beard on his playing days at fullback . . . There was Jack Fitch, the Carolina wingback, giving a station break, and turning down a job as an announcer . . . Choo Choo Justice playing (?) the piano in the background . . . And Taylor Moser suggesting that Carolina send over eight more men and play a group he would throw together in a hurry out on Fayetteville street there in Raleigh. "It looks like the only way we'll get to play," said Moser . . . When Beard had a bright idea to let Justice loose in the studio and let the others try to catch him, Moser said "if you close the door we might be able to do it."

How did we ever get off on a subject like this? That's no excuse, so we had better stop it at once. It was a good program, however, that "Moon Bowl"—despite Mr. Beard, as his enemies would say.

* * * *

Jim Tatum, the former Carolina head football coach, has received a substantial pay increase along with all the members of his staff . . . The raises were voted hurriedly when the rumor leaked out Tatum was being sought as head coach at Maryland . . . It is worthy of note that an Army football player has received the coveted James E. Sullivan award, amateur athletes' highest honor. This is something of which the Military Academy can well be proud, having the nation's No. 1 amateur athlete for two consecutive years . . . Last year's winner got his start at Carolina you know. Some fellow by the name of Doc Blanchard . . . Coach Ben Carnevale of Navy, who piloted the White Phantoms last year and the year before, lost his first ball game of the season at the Naval Academy Wednesday night.

Memorandum to The Wataugan:

An article signed by Lonnie Weathers in the recent Frosh issue of State College's magazine—The Wataugan—on the subject of the State-Carolina football rivalry has been brought to our attention. And it seems that its quality demands some note.

In the well-written dissertation on the touchy subject, author Weathers goes on to point out the reasons for the cancelation of the game in 1943, which are true and straight-forward as far as our knowledge serves us . . . We have only one issue to take up, however, before quoting a paragraph Weathers used in conclusion. That issue concerns the matter of a Daily Tar Heel article headed "It takes moola to play with Carolina now," to which he made a reference.

The answer: No member of the present staff had anything to do with that article, and we can speak for the student body in assuring State that that feeling is not currently evident here in Chapel Hill. Also, the Carolina administration is not quite as stubborn to work with as he implies.

We at Carolina are as in favor of a game as the State students, and although the chances for the game look slim at this time, we agree with Weathers in saying that: "Should the State athletic council succeed in restoring Carolina to its schedule (and vice-versa), may the students of both State and Carolina continue their spirited enthusiasm on a basis deemed respectable by the people of North Carolina."

Movies Show 'Lateral' Play

By The United Press

Football fans of the University of North Carolina now can brag about having a photographic eye. But it still isn't going to change the outcome of the Tar Heel's first Bowl game.

Whether the Tar Heel fans will be glad or further frustrated by the announcement, it still is a fact that slow motion movies confirm their opinion about a vital play. Some felt that Joe Tereshinski's flip to Dick McPhee following interception of a Carolina pass was a forward, not a lateral. That play set up Georgia's first touchdown and tied up the game in the third period. Carolinians immediately labeled it the turning point of the game. The camera shows that if the play had been correctly called, such a turning point would not have occurred.

The North Carolina players made their protests at the time but referee Alvin Bell waved them away and maintained that the Georgia end flipped a lateral.

Mural Cagers Start Basketball Campaign

Play Featured By Close Tilts

Teams Idle Today, Continue Monday

Intramural basketball play got under way yesterday afternoon with numerous close contests featuring the day's play.

The Phi Kappa Sigs nosed out Delta Sig No. 1, 25-24, in a ball game that was undecided until the final whistle, while Phi Gam No. 1, was edging by Zeta No. 2, 25-23, in another tight duel.

Other games saw Lamba Chi nip ZBT No. 2, 16-14; Phi Delt No. 1 tripped Sigma Nu No. 3, 18-16; Kap Sig No. 3 rolled over ATO No. 2, 31-13; and SAE No. 1 stomped ZBT No. 1, 37-13.

In still other games, Alexander No. 1 stopped Old East. 23-15; Local rode roughshod over Town, 38-22; Phi Delt No. 3 trounced Phi Kap No. 3, 30-14; KA No. 2 was dropped by Chi Phi No. 2, 40-13; and DKE No. 1 won over Sigma Nu No. 1, 28-17. Sigma Chi No. 2 won by forfeit from Beta No. 3.

A total of twelve games were run off during the afternoon, and Mural Director Walter Rabb seemed well satisfied with the manner in which the schedule was conducted.

There are no games listed for today but play in both dormitory and fraternity leagues will continue Monday afternoon.

Jamerson Pleased With Time Trials

Time trials were the order of the day for the Tar Heel tankmen yesterday as Coach Dick Jamerson whipped his chargers through heavy preparations for the coming Bainbridge tilt tomorrow. The swimming mentor expressed pleasure over the results of the trials, declaring that the mermen were coming around in gool form.

Coach Ratner and his 12 squad members from Bainbridge are due to arrive in Chapel Hill today. Although little is known concerning the Navy swimmers, reports have it that the sailors will offer the Blue Dolphins keen competition. Concerning the coming meet, Coach Jamerson commented, "I hope we are extended in all events, because we need a lot of work to be ready for the powerful Georgia Tech team next week."

Leaders for the Navy tanksters are Emile Estoclet, Herbert Pfuhl, and Roger Slater in the freestyle events; Pete Kopcha and Henry Zych in the breastroke; and Rodney Waters and Donald Kilmer, former Duke star of 1944, in the backstroke. Slater and Zych will offer their diving talents in competition to the expert staff of Tar Heel divers.

The contest, which starts at 3:30 p.m., should prove to be interesting to Tar Heel fans since it will test the strength of the Blue Dolphins for the first time this year.

Sports Highlights . . . .

Attendants at New York's French Hospital reported yesterday that home-run king Babe Ruth's condition following a neck operation was "good" and that the Sultan of Swat would be up and around within a few weeks. . . Davis Cup stars Jack Kramer and Ted Schroeder received a heroes' welcome yesterday from the city of Los Angeles, where they first learned what the game of tennis was all about. Mayor Fletcher Bowron, gave the boys the keys to the city after which the $5,000, 250-pound Davis Cup—symbol of international tennis supremacy—was unveiled to the delight of the cheering crowd. . . On the baseball front, shortstop Billy Cox of the Pittsburgh Pirates became the first major holdout of the year as he stood fast on his demands of an increase over last year's meager five thousand dollar salary. . .Connie Mack gave the hot-stove league boys something to talk about yesterday when he gave unconditional releases to Catcher Gene Desautels, outfielder Tuck Stainback, and first baseman George McQuinn.

Tar Heels To Be Strong In Pole Vault Event With Three Returning Lettermen This Season

Pole vault prospects on this year's track team seem to be on the upswing with Coach Dale Ranson counting three lettermen back in school in this event.

Norm McLeod, A. E. Collins and Leroy Ward all have made their monograms and McLeod and Ward are now working out in preparation for the forthcoming meet with Duke.

McLeod, a senior from Sanford, is the standout of the field, having hit a height of 13 feet. He is Southern conference champion and has finished among the leaders in both the indoor and outdoor IC4A meets. "Grandpa Mac," the name his teammates have given him, won his first letter here in 1940 and returned last year after a hitch in the service. He is now beginning to hit his stride and is being counted on to give the Tar Heels a first place in all their meets.

Also competing for places in the vaulting event are Eugene Russell, Barrington Hill, Bob Kirk, Henry Pittman, Charlie Donnell, Bill Patterson, Ben Berry and Bob Erwin.

Coaches Ranson and Hilton stress the fact that any boys in school that are interested in vaulting are welcome to come down to the Tin Can any afternoon.

Carolinians Predominate On Tar Heel Ring Squad

Team's Lightest Boxer Is Lone Member To Hail from Outside Old North State

By Jim Pharr

"One thing I especially like about my boxing team," Coach Mike Ronman said, "is that, with the exception of one man, they are all home-grown products—native North Carolinians."

And Mike is right, too. Paul Gordy, from Gainesville, Fla., is the lone out-of-state member of the 1947 Carolina ring squad. Not that Gordy isn't more than welcome. Fighting in the 120-pound class, he is fast and has plenty of endurance. On top of that, he was a member of the 1945-46 team and his style has improved with experience.

However, from the 130-pound class right on down the list, all the hard-working Tar Heel mittmen call the Old North State home. Conway Rose, 130 lbs., from Goldsboro, boxed in the Navy and is a typical Nacy ringman. He employs a whirlwind style that makes it extremely hard for his opponent.

Dan Davis, hailing from Manteo, fights in the 135-pound class. Dan was a member of the 1944 Carolina team as a V-12 Naval student. He is one of those rugged Eastern North Carolinians who never knows when he is beaten.

Charles Kimsey, from High Point, was another member of the 1944 team, when he was a V-12 Marine here. Charles is a combination boxer-puncher and Coach Ronman labels him one of the team's most dependable men. He fights at 145 pounds.

Leonard "Pug" Green, from Charlotte, fought on the strong Central High School squad and built up a long winning streak while in the Navy. Green is a smooth boxer, and with a little more college experience, he should be one of the leading mittmen in the 155-pound class.

Dick Young, from Asheville, is a terrific puncher who made one of the most outstanlng records in amateur boxing while in the service. Dick is the man to watch in the 165-pound class.

Charlie Craven, at 175-pounds, is the second member of the team hailing from Asheville and boxed with Young in high school. A returned GI, Charlie did considerable boxing while in the service. A sharp hitter, he will provide some fireworks for the campus boxing fans before the season is over.

Ed McGee, from Hamlet, is the heavyweight member of the team and is another man returning from last year's squad. A powerful puncher and a clever boxer, McGee has a fighting heart and is considered one of the most colorful leather-flingers on the team.

That makes seven state boys who are expected to give a good account of themselves during the rugged season just ahead.

Twelve Cagers To Make Jaunt

Carolina, Duke Play On Same Twin Bill

Twelve White Phantom cagers depart from Chapel Hill this evening en route to Philadelphia where they will play the first of two contests against top-flight northern opposition tomorrow night.

Selected by Coaches Tom Scott and Pete Mullis to make the journey are Johnny Dillon, Bob Paxton, Jim Hamilton, Jim White and Norm Kohler, the probable starters, and substitutes Taylor Thorne, Jim Hayworth, Dick Hartley, Roger Scholbe, Sherman Nearman, Coy Carson and Vic Seixas. Coach Mullis, trainer R. A. White and manager Mike Loftis will round out the group that leaves Greensboro tonight at 11:10 o'clock. Coach Scott left Wednesday evening in order to scout NYU last night when the Violets opposed Duke in New York.

Carolina is slated to play the first game in tomorrow's Convention Hall double-header, opposing LaSalle college, annual producers of one of the East's top cage teams. Also on the same twin bill is Duke, who meets another quintet from the City of Brotherly Love, Temple. The Phantoms will head for New York Sunday and will work out in Madison Square Garden that afternoon and again on Monday. Then Tuesday evening they run up against an old cage rival, NYU, while LIU opposes St. Louis in the other feature.

Lack of height is likely to prove a handicap to the Phants in both encounters. LaSalle is sparked by its six-foot, nine-inch center, "Slim" Foust, while the Violets, with almost the same lineup that lost twice to Carolina last year, have six-foot, five-inch Dolf Schayes in the pivot position.

Two Graduate Students To Assist Coed Dean

Two outstanding members of the class of '46 are returning to the University where they will work in the Dean of Women's office. Miss Ruth Duncan is replacing Mrs. James H. McDuffie Jr. as personnel advisor to women and Mrs. Robert Swain, the former Berlette Capt, is taking the place vacated by Mrs. Terry Sanford who was a personnel intern.

Miss Duncan was president of women's government during the 1945-46 term. Since leaving Chapel Hill she has been secretary of the Philadelphia Orchestra association pension foundation. A member of Delta Delta Delta sorority, Miss Duncan belonged to the Student Welfare board, Valkyries, Graham Memorial board of directors, the Carolina Magazine staff, Women's Honor council, the Glee club, the Yackety Yack staff and the House Privileges board.

Mrs. Swain, a member of Chi Omega sorority, was YWCA president during the 1945-46 term and was a member of Interdormitory council.

General Assembly Round-Up

Cherry For Raise...

Governor Cherry is getting quick action on his program for 20 per cent raise for teachers and state employees. He recommended the raise in his biennial speech to the joint meeting of the House and Senate this afternoon, and a few minutes after he finished speaking, a bill embodying his program was introduced in both the Senate and the House.

The proposed bill, prepared by the Advisory Budget Commission, calls for an emergency appropriation to make the raises effective for the period from January 1st to June 30th, 1947—until the next two-year fiscal period begins. House and Senate Appropriation Committees have already approved it.

18-Year Voting Bill...

Senator Roper of Lincolnton introduced a proposal to amend the state constitution to allow 18-year-olds to vote. Georgia has already given the ballot to persons as young as 18.

Both Houses of the General Assembly will meet again in the morning—the Senate at 10 o'clock and the House at 11.

Hogan and Stranahan Favored in Tourney

Del Monte, Cal., Jan. 9—(UP)—Hard-hitting Ben Hogan, the top money-winning professional golfer of last year, and amateur Frank Stranahan have been made the favorite team in the $10,000 Bing Crosby pro-amateur golf tourney which gets under way tomorow.

PI PHI DANCE TONIGHT

Thirty-three pledges of Pi Beta Phi will be guests at the sorority's annual pledge dance from 9 till 12 this evening. The Carolinians, campus orchestra, will play, and Women's gym will be decorated in a Mardi Gras theme.

NEWS BRIEFS

GOP to Slash Annual Budget

Want to Carry Out Campaign Promises

Washington, Jan. 10—(UP)—Republican leaders made it clear tonight that President Truman's 37-billion dollar budget will be cut sharply. Most of them believe it will have to be trimmed by about three or four billions—despite the President's warning that federal expenses now have been cut to the bone.

"The responsibilities of the government cannot be fully met at a lower cost than here indicated," the president said. According to his figures, Mr. Truman expects to have a surplus of some $200,000,000. Thus, if the president's estimates are correct, the budget will be balanced in the coming fiscal year—for the first time since 1930.

No Tax Reductions

The big quarrel that the Republicans have with the budget is that it doesn't call for any tax reductions. They want to knock some three to four billion dollars off the budget so that they can live up to their November election promises for less spending and lower taxes.

However, President Truman is very forceful on the tax issue. He says:—"There is no justification now for tax reduction. At the present time, in my judgment, high taxes contribute to the welfare and security of the country."

Ball Introduces Bill Against Union Policy

Washington, Jan. 10—(UP)—A labor bill which would hit hard at the keystone policy of the CIO and United Mine Workers has been introduced by Republican Senator Ball of Minnesota. The message is aimed at breaking up industry-wide collective bargaining and would limit a union contract to a single labor market area, not over 100-miles in area.

New Legislation Calls For Control of Rents

Washington, Jan. 10—(UP)—A bill to extend rent controls for a year beyond the "present June 30th expiration date has been introduced by Democratic Representative Price of Florida.

Price of Butter Drops On Chicago Exchange

Chicago, Jan. 10—(UP)—Wholesale butter prices dropped as much as five and one half cents a pound on the Chicago exchange today. Food dealers predict that retail butter prices will drop next week to the lowest point in two months.

Fire Destroys Depot In City of Charleston

Charleston, S. C., Jan. 10—(UP)—The three-story union railroad station in the heart of Charleston has been completely destroyed by fire. No one was injured.

Selection of Marshall Praised by Inverchapel

Philadelphia, Jan. 10—(UP)—The British ambassador, Lord Inverchapel, has praised the appointment of General George Marshall to be secretary of state. Inverchapel says Marshall "commands the deepest respect" of the British.

Kilgore Would Change Vice President's Work

Washington, Jan 10—(UP)—Senator Harley Kilgore of West Virginia has proposed a constitutional amendment under which the Vice President of the United States would take on the duties of an assistant President. In turn, the Senate would elect its president to be presiding officer, a task now alloted to the Vice President.

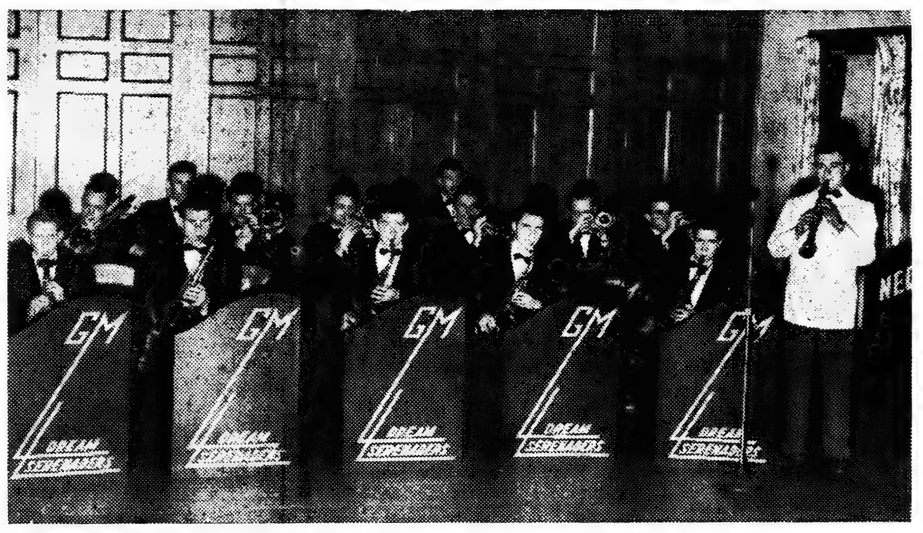
New Year's Dance Tonight To Honor Football Team

Graham Memorial To Hold Affair In Woollen Gym

By Dave Owens



The student body will pay tribute to the Carolina Sugar Bowl football team tonight at a New Year's dance lasting from 9 until midnight in Woollen gym. Graham Memorial, the student union, is sponsoring the free dance, which is open to the entire campus. Special guests will be athletic officials of the University.

Ned Reap and his newly-formed Graham Memorial dance band will make their second appearance in as many nights to play for the ball. Featured vocalist will be Moffitt Sherard, ATO who sang with Freddy Johnson's band while a student at the University in the Navy Pre-Flight program.

The GM dance band, the "Dream Serenaders," is composed of 15 members, plus leader Ned Reap, who also plays clarinet. All the boys in the band hail from North Carolina except one. First on the list of Tar Heels is James Levan, assistant director of the band and electric guitarist. Mahon "Junebug" Baker is music librarian when not busy on tenor sax. Levan is from Mooresville and Baker from Ahoskie.

Stuart Morton, trumpet man, is the lone out-of-stater in the band, calling New Haven, Connecticut, his home. Clarence Hayes comes from High Point, Carl Bell, Jr., from Gastonia and Howard Whitehead from Charlotte. All three play saxaphones.

Wescott Moser, on trumpet and John Bunch, on trombone, represent Asheboro while trumpeter Gene Johnston and trombonist Howard Myers take Asheville for home. Pianist Moss Salley comes from Hickory, drummer Bob Arrington from Oxford and Bass player Harry Hinson from Durham. Mack Hagaman, trombone player, from the Twin-City, Winston-Salem.

No Tickets for Public

Because Carolina's nearly 7,000 students overtax the seating capacity of Woollen gymnasium, no tickets will be available for the general public to Carolina's home basketball games this season, the athletic association has regretfully announced.

IRC to Sponsor Foremost Woman Arabian Scholar

Dr. Nejla Izzedin, one of the world's greatest authorities on Arab civilization will speak to the students of the University next Wednesday evening in Hill hall, under the sponsorship of the International Relations club. One of the foremost women scholars in Arabia, Dr. Izzedin will share the speaking spotlight with Elizabeth Gurley Flynn chairman of the women's committee of the Communist party, who will speak under CPU sponsorship in another hall.

Dr. Izzedin is at present associated with the American Arab office in Washington. As an alumna of the American school in Beirut and the Lycee Racine in Paris, she attended and received degrees in Arab history from Vassar college and the University of Chicago, after which she studied abroad on an Oriental Institute Travelling fellowship.

Published Text

Between 1935-39, Dr. Izzedin continued her research at the American University of Beirut while she was teaching political science and Arab history at the American Junior collegt, Beirut. In collaboration with a colleague, she published two volumes of unpublished text of Medieval historians of the Malmuk period in Egypt. In 1939 she became the first woman to lecture to men's classes as a teacher in the Higher Training College, Iraq.

Dr. Izzedin comes from a distinguished family of Arab scholars and statesmen who have resided in Lebanon for five hundred years. The Druze family to which she belongs has had a reputation for learning and high integrity for several generations.

Betty Anne Green, president of the IRC on the campus, commented on Dr. Izzedin's perfect handling of the English language and her ability to put over her subject to the student mind in international relations. "Her native approach and abounding knowledge of her subject should make Dr. Izzedin among the best of campus speakers this year, and I hope that a large number of students and professors will be able to hear her. Everyone is cordially invited to take advantage of this opportunity."

Telephone Company Will Add Circuits

New Installments Will Be Ready for Use By March; 10 Dormitories to Get Booths

By Johnny Clampitt

The addition of three new circuits has started the move to relieve the long distance telephone congestion in Chapel Hill. The installation of a new cable will bring ten more circuits into use by March 1, making a total number of 33 lines available to the public.

Another bright note from South building is a story of 10 new telephone booths that have been sent to the University. They will be placed in the most important dormitories on campus to help speed up phone service.

Add 10 New Lines

The torrents of criticizing letters sent by faculty, businessmen and students is accredited with the Southern Bell Telephone company action. They began recently laying a second cable between Durham and Chapel Hill which will add the 10 new lines to the system.

About two weeks will be required to install the new booths in the dormitories.

New equipment for the exchange will be received and installed by August 1 and it will then be possible for another operator to aid the present two in speeding calls.

With the addition of this new equipment and cable, Southern Bell hopes to relieve the long distance congestion.

Carolina Writers Re-Elect Ramsey

At a meeting held Thursday evening in the YMCA Paul Ramsey, a senior from Chattanooga, Tenn., was re-elected chairman of the Carolina Writers club to serve throughout the winter quarter.

In addition, the group voted to submit a short story and poem to the arts forum which will be conducted at WC next month, and to encourage students who are interested in creative writing to become members. In line with this Ramsey announced that prospective members may reach him at St. Anthony hall.

The remainder of the meeting was devoted to a reading and discussion of a new short story by Don Justice and poetry by Paul Ramsey.

Bertram C. Cooper To Assume Duties As Chaplain Here

Rev. Bertram C. Cooper, of Savannah, Ga., arrived here this week to become chaplain for Episcopal students of the University. He will also serve as associate rector of the Chapel of the Cross.

Mr. Cooper succeeds the Rev. R. Emmett Gribbin, Jr., who was student chaplain for five years before going to Kenyon College, Ohio, as chaplain.

After studying at the University of the South, Sewanee, Tenn., Mr. Cooper graduated from Virginia Seminary in 1942. Later he served for one year as assistant to the rector of the Church of the Advent, Birmingham, Ala. He comes here following three years in service as a Navy chaplain.

Mr. Cooper will be joined by his wife in two or three weeks and they will live in the Episcopal rectory at 501 E. Rosemary St.

Church to Observe 'Feast of Lights'

The Feast of Lights, an annual service commemorating the coming of the wise men and the manifestation of Christ to the Gentiles, will be observed in the Episcopal Church this evening at 8 o'clock.

"The Feast of Lights is a symbolic service throughout," said Rev. David L. Yates, rector of the Episcopal Chapel of The Cross. "In it is enacted the coming of Christ, the light of the world, and the sending of the light over the earth and through the centuries."

All students of the University, as well as townspeople are invited to come and take part.

Likes Women, Good Books. . .

Red-Headed Dotson Palmer Has Variety of Interests

By Tommie Cates

From Clyde, (near Asheville) comes Dotson Palmer, the dynamic, red-head president of the Sigma Chi fraternity who was recently elected president of the senior class.

The ex-Marine who was in Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities in 1944, now a Commerce major planning to go into the study of law after graduation, has a great variety of interests.

Now the intramural soft-ball pitcher, he was particularly active in sports during his freshman year when he was on the boxing and football teams.

Turned To Politics

In his sophomore year he turned his attention more to politics becoming president of the sophomore class, and a member of the board of directors of Graham Memorial. In his junior year, he was on the Student council, Student Legislature, a candidate for the president of the student body and a member of the Grail.

Just when he became interested in women is not known, however.

A quick blush spread across his face, his eyebrows lifted slightly and a twinkle came in his grey-blue eyes when he was asked whether he preferred blonde, brunette, or red-headed women. "I like women, period," he said as he gave forth a slow sound of approval.

DOTSON PALMER

Palmer is also a lover of good books, as anyone can tell from the way he hastily writes down the names of the "colorful" colonial diaries which Dr. Hugh T. Lefler describes in class.

Norfolk Beer Lovers Prefer Pink Elephant To Galloping Horses

Norfolk, Va., Jan. 10—(UP)—Several Norfolk, Virginia, beer lovers are on the wagon—and for keeps. They say what happened in a tavern last night is too much.

It sounds like a very sudsy story but here is the way they describe it: While the men were having a beer a horse came through the plate glass window of the tavern, whirled around, and sat down on their table.

Old Dobbin had been pulling a wagon—and not a water wagon—down the street. The reins broke and freedom was too much for the horse. He galloped straight into the nearest beer parlor, and didn't even bother to use the door.

So Norfolk has a few less beer drinkers today. Says one of the former customers—and we qnote—"Pink elephants, okay. But, Horses—never."

SQUARE DANCE TONIGHT

The Chapel Hill post of the American Legion will hold a square dance tonight at 8 o'clock in the Legion hut.

Umstead to Introduce Teachers' Bonus Bill

John Umstead, chairman of the state legislature committee on University trustees, plans to introduce a bill to the Raleigh legislature for an emergency high-cost-of-living bonus for teachers.

The bonus would be about $15 a month in addition to the 20 per cent increase the teachers are expected to receive, Umstead said just before he left to attend the legislature opening.

Twelfth Night Celebration Planned for this Evening

Tonight in the Playmakers theatre at 7:30 the Carolina Playmakers will present their nineteenth annual Twelfth Night Revels, a program composed of the revel scene from Shakespeare's "Twelfth Night," parodies, songs and skits. Friends of the Playmakers are cordially invited to attend.

Coston to Sing

Opening the program will be a song, "The Twelve Days of Christmas," sung by Rex Coston, after which the audience will elect the Lord of Misrule and his Queen to preside over the entertainment. Climaxing the first part of the program will be the revel scene from "Twelfth Night," directed by Samuel Selden. In the cast are: Jim Geiger as Sir Toby Belch, Lynn Gault as Sir Andrew Aguecheek, Foster Fitz-Simons as Feste, Jean Schenkkan as Maria and Kai Jurgensen as Malvolio.

The second part of the entertainment consists of parodies, songs and skits written and directed under the supervision of David Hooks and Lois Warnshuis. Following the program refreshments will be served in the Green room.

Good Health Is Precious

The state legislature is moving rapidly towards lifting our educational standard out of the low rut into which it has fallen because of low teaching salaries. It is hoped that a salary increase will soon be an actuality instead of a proposal.

But something that goes hand in hand with good education and something that is as vital to the state's progress may not come through the assembly as smoothly, if Governor Cherry's address to the assembly can be taken as any indication.

This item is the state's medical care program. Although the governor approved the recommendations of the majority group of the Medical Care Commission and recommended that steps be taken to improve the current health program in North Carolina, he later in the same speech asked that the assembly consider the program carefully, saying "no timing" is necessary —inferring it need not all be accomplished this year.

Better health is not something we can afford to wait for any longer than is necessary. If it is necessary to sacrifice some of the conservatism evidenced by the governor's address and apparent among many members of the legislature, we say let it be sacrificed.

The facts are staring the assembly in the face. Thirty-four counties have no hospital beds, 31 counties have less than two beds per thousand people. Twenty-five per cent of the rural babies in this state have NO doctor attending them at birth!

It's common knowledge that North Carolina led the nation in the percentage of draft rejections during the recent war. Almost 50 per cent of the white population and 71 per cent of the Negro population was found unfit for duty.

Steps must be taken to correct the reason for such undesirable health reports. And they must be taken now. National cartoonists have depicted the present deplorable situation of North Carolina's health. Noted radio stars have plugged for the Better Health program on their broadcasts.

Too much cannot be done to bring about a healthier state. Good health is the primary requisite for any young boy or girl starting their life in this nation. A person's health is his most precious possession.

So we say, the legislature must act on improving the health conditions of the state at this assembly. It must not postpone any action.

The Medical Care Commission subscribed to a state-wide service which includes a four-year medical school here at the University, together with a teaching hospital. It also called for hospitals and medical centers in many counties which are in dire need of them.

More and better doctors, more and better hospitals—both of these are vitally needed in North Carolina. By heeding the commission's report by providing the facilities needed to bring about better health in the future, the state legislature will be taking care of many future North Carolina citizens who may otherwise suffer unnecessarily.

Conservatism is all right in its place. But when the future health of a state is at stake, we can afford to be a wee bit liberal. The assembly cannot afford to overlook the present state of unhealthy affairs.

Shortage of Newsprint

Due to a shortage on newsprint, which prevents us from printing any extra copies of each issue of the Daily Tar Heel, we regret that it is impossible for us at the present time to deliver an individual copy for each student in the University.

Therefore, the number of papers left in each dormitory and other section of the town and campus is less than last quarter. We could easily deliver 2000 more papers than we can get at present.

However, delivery to the dormitories, fraternities, sororities, town students, victory village, the trailer camps, the quonset huts, and via mail are still being carried on and if papers are not delivered to the above places every morning, we request you inform the circulation office immediately so the error can be remedied.

It is so hoped that the print shop will be able to get additional newsprint in the near future. As soon as it is possible for us to get more papers printed they will be at your disposal.

The Daily Tar Heel

The official newspaper of the Publications Board of the University of North Carolina Chapel Hill, where it is published daily, except Mondays, examination and vacation periods; during the official summer terms, it is published semi-weekly on Wednesdays and Saturdays. Entered as second-class matter at the post office at Chapel Hill, N. C., under the act of March 3, 1879. Subscription price: $5.00 per college year.

Situation at Other Schools Proves UNC Is Not So Bad

By Jud Kinberg

My holiday return to New York City furnished me with the anticipated old fashioned's in the way of whiskey and the new fashioned's in the way of women. More important, though, as far as columning is concerned, it provided me for the first time with a basis of comparison for the University of North Carolina. Since New York is a Christmas mecca, students from just about every section of the country crowded the nightclubs. At a three-dollar per cover, we discussed conditions at various schools. The result of that expensive verbosity is a realization of the many successes the South Building sages won in their battle against a bulging campus.

The standard opener in any comparison must be the classes that the University of California conducts out on the West Coast. I believe it was in Eddie Condon's that I ran into a New Yorker who had trekked to the land of sunshine. He was taking a course together with approximately 450 other students. It seems they tried to get the Hollywood Bowl for it, but couldn't.

At the Savoy, a conclave of upper New York state collegians gathered and their reports dwelled on housing. Although our Tin Can episode is a rather gray page, it doesn't compare to the botch that these boys described.

We wound up the evening at Hamburger Heaven and, of course, found a fellow college student. By this time my journalistic senses were dulled and I forgot to get the name of his school. But it seems that they went through an entire semester without textbooks. The result was copious and stultifying note-taking in classes and a resultant absence of professional comment on the subject.

Those are only the few most vivid stories that became fixed in my memory. There were others that filled me with a certain awe at the efficiency of UNC beauracracy. Certainly, such things as Mr. Ritchie's "Bookateria" for vets is an innovation well worth praising.

In the midst of this warm glow over the alma mater, a thought kept forcing itself through from my subconscious. It is that an administration which can perform many arduous tasks so well should see to it that such things as the antiquated registration system are revised. This adviser-to line-to desk-to line-to door setup should certainly be streamlined. If inventive thought such as that which has solved tougher problems of the over-expanded University is applied, we should be able to do away with the last needless inconveniences.

I'm definitely asking for Utopia, because from what I've read about it, it's a pretty fine state of being.

CICA Needs New Life, Second Wind in Struggle to Survive

By Bettie Washburn

An all-too-little-heard-of organization called the Carolina Independent Coed Association is still holding its regular monthly meetings in the Roland Parker Lounge of Graham Memorial. A young organization, now only in its sixth year, CICA is having its troubles in its struggle for survival and recognition on the campus.

It was widely apparent back in 1941 that coeds who did not belong to the four social sororities here needed some sort of organization which would take the place of a sorority and furnish them the social activities and the political backing which only sorority sisters had at that time.

With this in mind, a nucleus of 34 independent coeds got together and talked things over and on November 6, 1941, the Carolina Independent Coed Association was founded. A constitution was drawn up which stated the purposes of the group to be "to sponsor a social program which will create friendship among the independents on this campus, and to offer support to independents running in coed elections."

Membership in the organization was not confined merely to girls who were not members of a national Panhellenic social sorority but included also those members of a national social sorority which did not have a chapter located on this campus. Elsie Lyons was elected president of CICA at the first meeting, and the new group entered whole-heartedly into campus activities and sought to give independents what they had lacked.

Since 1941, however, more coeds have been admitted to the University, a fifth sorority has been established, and CICA has tried valiantly to keep up with the changes. At the present, the organization, headed by Betsy Ann Barbee, is composed of under 50 coeds, of which only about 30 come to the Wednesday evening meetings. A membership drive was sponsored this fall in an effort to bring more of the seven hundred independent coeds into CICA, but many paid their $2 membership fee and "forgot" to come to meetings. It is virtually impossible, with such little cooperation, to make CICA the closely-knit organization it should be to be successful, and it is lamentable that such a potentially powerful group as the independent coeds are seemingly content with the "status quo."

In spite of what seems to be overwhelming odds, however, CICA has not been idle. It cooperated with the Panhellenic Association this fall in giving a tea for new coeds during orientation week and sponsored the parade on Sadie Hawkins' Day, an event which was brought back to the campus in 1945 through the sponsorship of CICA and the Veteran's Association. The organization is now making plans to present to the coeds a preview of spring fashions in conjunction with Montaldo's of Greensboro. The event of the year on the social calendar will be the annual dance sometime in the spring, but the organization is also planning participation in the debate contest sponsored annually by the Debate Council, the Valkyrie Sing contest and other campus activities.

Although CICA has never taken a definite stand in campus-wide political battles, it has been active in coed elections. Until this fall the group has made a practice of sponsoring an independent slate in opposition to the Panhellenic slate. Election parties were held in each of the coed dormitories so that voters could meet and talk with the independent candidates. Prior to the fall elections, however, the executive council of CICA decided to accept the invitation from Panhellenic representatives to combine forces in an effort to stop the bickering and so-called "dirty politicking."

Because of this, independents on campus are not represented as they should be in either the Coed Senate or the Student Legislature. In effect, over seven hundred independent coeds are being governed almost completely by the rulings of a numerical minority, and the efforts to stop political bickering merely succeeded in knocking independents out of the running. Springs elections are in the offing, however, and the campus leaders are anxious to see whether CICA will again hand over the reins to Panhell or whether the group will, with opened eyes, stick to their purposes and run an independent slate.

Potentially the Carolina Independent Coed Association is the strongest organization on the campus. It is now struggling to keep its head above the rising tide of problems, and from the looks of things, the group is going to go under for the third time unless something is done and done fast. CICA needs a second wind, new blood, new life. It is up to the seven hundred independent coeds, for whose benefit the organization was founded, to throw the life preserver.

Library Portraits of Famous Alumni Add Nostalgic Touch

By Harry Snowden

Hanging in the lobby of the University library are portraits of six famous Carolina graduates. These paintings are on indefinite loan from the Philanthropic and Dialectic Societies. This is the first time these great works have been put on display for the benefit of the general public. As such it is a rare opportunity for Carolina students to see what these famous men look like, how they dressed and what they did.

Each of these six men achieved some measure of distinction during his lifetime. Their careers of public service are a credit to themselves and to their school. Looking through the paint and canvas, back over more than a century of time, it is difficult to imagine these dignified men as young, carefree boys romping over the Carolina campus of the early 19th century. Time, and the painters brush, have given them stateliness and grace.

Turning to your left as you enter the library, you will see on the left-hand wall the portraits of Rev. Francis L. Hawks, William A. Graham, and Thomas Ruffin. The first two were painted by Henry Inman and William Carl Browne, distinguished American artists of that period. It is not known who painted Ruffin's portrait.

Hawk was the Rector of Christ Church in Baltimore and the author of a history of North Carolina. Graham served as Secretary of the Navy, governor of North Carolina, and was once a nominee for the Vice-Presidency. Ruffin was a Chief Justice of the Supreme Court for 19 years.

Walking across to the other wing of the building you will see paintings of George E. Badger, Elisha Mitchell and Bartholomew F. Moore. Badger's artist, like Ruffin's, is unknown. Nathaniel Jocelyn and William Gar Browne, painted the other two.

Badger was a U. S. Senator and Secretary of the Navy. Mitchell, a professor of Mathematics, Chemistry and Mineralogy, lost his life in the scientific exploration of Black Mountain in 1857. Moore, a member of the class of 1820, served in the House of Commons and as Attorney-General.

It is especially appropriate that these art works should be loaned to the library by the Phi and Di, as it was these two societies which first formed, jointly, a library here at the University.

Tax Exemption

Dear Editor:

With the thought that quite a few of your customers might benefit from a tax ruling obtained from North Carolina Commisisoner of Revenue Edwin Gill by AMVETS Raleigh Post No. 3, there is quoted below the entire ruling. The ruling is applicable to North Carolina State Income Tax.

As you may know, the exemptions are $2,000 for male spouse as head-of-family plus $200 for each dependent, and if the female spouse works, an additional $1,000 is allowed the working wife. Normally, the only conditions under which the female spouse is allowed to claim the $2,000 exemption as head-of-family is in the case where the male spouse is mentally or physically incapable of supporting the family.

The complete ruling follows:

"In the case of a veteran who is going to school under the GI Bill of Rights and whose only income is the benefits that he receives under said Bill, and who has a wife whose income is more than the benefits received by her husband, we have held that such wife may claim exemptions as head of the family, provided they have a home in which they are supporting dependent children or relatives.

"If you have any other cases that do not come within these facts, we suggest that you apply to us for a ruling. Such application should be made in writing, stating the particular facts involved.

"For instance, the above ruling might not apply if the veteran had other income than his benefits under the GI Bill, and there might be other facts that would make a difference."

Incidentally, if any of your readers would like to form an AMVETS post at the school, we'd be mighty glad to hear from them.

Very truly yours,
GORDON KING,
State Adjutant and Finance Officer

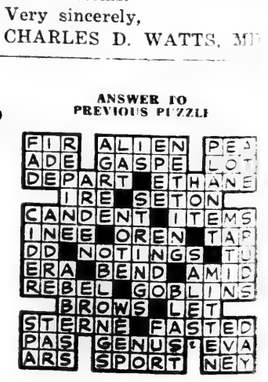
Capital Letter

Durham, N. C

Dear Sir:



It was my good fortune to read your editorial of December 11, 1946 regarding the progress made in race relations at Raleigh during the meeting of the Student Legislative Assembly. I think your thoughts and discussion of the matter are sane and worth while.

There was however, a breach of good racial etiquette in the article that I would like to call to your attention. We note that it is the custom as far south as Atlanta, Ga., to spell Negro with a capital "N." This is a custom in the Durham daily papers. I am sure that you are not attempting to show any disrespect in this matter. Rather it is an adherence to previous customs.

Very sincerely,
CHARLES D. WATTS, MD

Blue Dolphins To Meet Bainbridge Here Today

Carolina Cagers Encounter LaSalle Tonight In Philadelphia

SPORT SPINS - -

with

IRWIN SMALLWOOD

QUIET DICK JAMERSON, subtle director of Chapel Hill Waterways, inc, will be sending Tar Heel men of the deep into competition for the first time in nearly three years this afternoon. Not since the winter season of 1944 has Coach Jamerson of the Blue Dolphins sent a team into competition the hard-working swimming mentor having spent two years as a Naval lieutenant.

And the veteran tank master is none too sure of the results that will come out of the meet: "It's hard to tell how good we will be," said Jamerson yesterday. "I don't think we will have any outstanding stars this season, that is, with the exception of divers. Our team could be good, however, if the numerous freshmen we have come through as they well could. We have at least a half-dozen frosh that will be competing today when we meet Bainbridge."

During his stay as head coach here at Carolina, Jamerson has amassed a record of 40 wins and only seven defeats, and that's over a seven-season stretch. At one time his Blue Dolphs came out victorious in 21 consecutive meets.

Even topping that, the Tar Heel tankmen have not been defeated in Southern competition in 35 contests, having dropped a match to Florida back in 1940 for the last Southern setback. And after the meet with the sailors this afternoon, this record will be put on the block—where it might well be smashed before the current year is out.

"Georgia Tech has an exceptionally strong team this year," opined Jamerson as he continued his conversation on the prospects for his mermen this year. "We have run up a good record in Southern competition, and this Tech team looks like the toughest we will face this season outside of the Naval academy crew.

"VPI is also good this season," said Jamerson, "and so is State, with Willis Casey coaching. If he gets Billy Kelly back to use this season, it will make a lot of difference, too."

Getting back to the meet this afternoon with Bainbridge, Jamerson reiterated that "I think these boys of mine will come along fine. We miss boys like Dick Twinning and Jack Zimmerman, but we have others back who are going to help a lot." Twinning, who was a freshman sensation here, is now in the Army and Zimmerman did not return to school after the fall quarter. Twinning, incidentally, may go to Ohio State when he completes his Army services, according to reports that have the Buckeye university hot on his trail. . .Zimmerman is said to have enrolled at MIT for the winter quarter.

Water will begin to churn at 3:30 this afternoon in the spacious Bowman Gray pool. If you want to spend a thrilling afternoon, go see Carolina conquer via the water routes.

You will notice that a United Press story on this page confirms not only the "illegal" lateral play in the Sugar Bowl game, but says that the movies of the tilt conclusively prove that Kenny Powell did not push Rabbit Smith when he caught a touchdown pass, thus nullifying it. . .This, more than ever before, gives evidence that the Carolina Tar Heels played a sensational game against the Georgians, and more than likely deserved to win the encounter. At least, had the "bogus" decisions been called correctly, it would have been a decidedly different story. . .All sports authorities in the nation are in agreement over the situation, and although the score will always read 20-10, Georgia, Carolina has won a lot of respect and prestige through their great performance. . .If you've been wondering about the reason the movies of the Carolina-Georgia game weren't shown at the Carolina theater as advertised, here's the dope we get, straight from E. Carrington Smith, the theater manager. The movies were contracted for and the program printed, but at the last minute, Smith, along with a lot of other managers, was notified that the films would not be available. So, according to Smith, a notice was placed on the box office window Tuesday, saying that they would not have them. . .We personally didn't see the sign, but it must have been there. "I'm as sorry as anyone that they didn't get here," said Mr. Smith yesterday, "and we tried to make it known when we found out." That's the story, and we're sorry too. Let's hope we can get the athletic department movies when they arrive.

Phantoms Seek Sixth Triumph

Duke Plays Temple On Same Twin Bill

By Bob Goldwater

Philadelphia, Jan. 10—Seeking their sixth victory in eight starts, Carolina's White Phantoms take on LaSalle university here tomorrow night in the first game of a Convention Hall doubleheader that pits another team from North Carolina, Duke, against Temple in the other attraction.

The encounter will be the first of a five-day jaunt that also takes the Carolina cagers to New York where they meet NYU next Tuesday. The 12-man squad returns early Thursday morning.

Starting Lineup

The probable starting lineup for Carolina is expected to be the same combination that has opened all but the first game of the season. This quintet consist of Bob Paxton and Jim Hamilton at the forward positions, Johnny Dillon at center, and Jim White and Norm Kohler in the guard slots. Dillon, in particular, will be the Tar Heel to watch, having shown signs of snapping an early-season scoring slump that has held him to a meager 68 points in seven tilts, far below his average of last year. Paxton, with his ball-handling abilities and general floor leadership, is the other Carolina ace who will bear watching, although any one of the starting five is a possible high scorer for the evening.

The Daily Tar Heel sports staff requests that all basketball fans refrain from calling the night office for information about the LaSalle-Carolina cage battle tonight till after 10 p. m. This will allow the long distance call from Philadelphia concerning the game to be cleared through the night office.

Coach Tom Scott, who reached here today after having viewed NYU's overtime victory over Duke last night, will also be able to call on forwards Dick Hartley, Roger Scholbe, and Coy Carson, center Sherman Nearman, and guards Taylor Thorne, Jim Hayworth and Vic Seixas. Seixas, performing tomorrow in his home city, is well known in local tennis circles, having been ranked number one for the Philadelphia area.

Probable Underdog

Carolina looms as the probable underdog in tomorrow's contest, with a definite height advantage going to the home team. LaSalle has a six-foot, nine-inch giant, "Slim" Foust, at center but the Phantoms hope to offset this advantage with clever ball-handling and accurate shooting by their set-shot artists.

Sports Highlights . . .

There are still 10 undefeated major basketball teams in the nation. The honor roll team are Seton Hall, Rhode Island State, Duquesne, Washington, West Virginia, De Pauw, Lafayette, Marshall, Eastern Kentucky, and Army. . . . New York is still booming with news of the recent professional football scandal. Frank Filchock, New York Giant back, is the center of all the activity as the pros begin a little investigation of their own to find out what really happened before the playoff game last December. . . . . Speaking of pros, some college officials don't like the NCAA's recent action to clean up collegiate football. Southeastern Conference secretary W. D. Funkhouser went on record yesterday as saying, "it will put college football back twenty years." . . . . A rematch between Manuel Ortiz, former bantamweight champion of the world and Harold Dade, the man who dethroned him, have been rematched for some time next month.

Bowl Pictures Reveal Two Official Mistakes

New Orleans, Jan. 10—(UP)—A review of the official Sugar Bowl movies has furnished observers with film proof of a second glaring error by the officials. The whistle tooters are being accused by Tar Heel fans of virtually legislating Georgia into a 20 to 10 victory over North Carolina.

A special preview shows that North Carolina end Ken Powell did not push Georgia's Rabbit Smith in an end zone play. North Carolina would have had a touchdown had the pushing not been called against Powell, bringing the final score to at least 20 to 16. The newsreel shots also show that Georgia's critical third period touchdown was set up by an illegal forward pass from Joe Tereshinski to Dick McPhee.

Tar Heel players protested bitterly over that one on the field, but officials ruled that it was a lateral.

Shultz, Haigler Return to Bolster Sprint Prospects

In counting noses of sprinters this season, Coach Dale Ranson finds two lettermen returning in the dash events plus some fine prospects.

The returning letter winners are Ted Shultz and Ted Haigler. Both of these boys were consistent point-getters in their previous seasons.

Shultz is the standout, winning the Southern conference 100-yard title in 1943. He then went into the ROTC program and turned in fine performances as a Navy student here. He is counted on for the 60-yard dash, medley relay and low hurdles for the indoor games.

Haigler is a hurdler by choice, but last spring when Coach Ranson was in dire need of sprinters, he switched to that event and was a consistent scorer. He feels more at home topping the timbers and is hoping that some of the prospects on the squad can beat him out in the sprints.

Dick Preyer and Bucky Horton, both freshmen, made outstanding records in the sprints at Woodberry Forest Prep School and are being counted on to bolster the sprint events. These boys have been working hard to get in shape and they are now coming along in fine shape. Preyer did a hitch in the service that included no running, but now he is ready to go.

Al Lynn is another promising sprinter and he has been working hard to build up his endurance to match his dynamic starts. If he can find the distance to his liking, he may well turn up as one of the better sprinters in the conference.

Others concentrating on the dashes are Tom Boney, Carraway and Max Edney.

Swimmers Seek To Preserve Streak of 26 Straight Wins

Contest Scheduled to Start at 3:30 p.m.; Tar Heels to Use Many Untried Tankmen

By Mac Katzin

The Blue Dolphins will be seeking their 26th consecutive win in Bowman Gray pool this afternoon at 3:30, when they open the swimming season against the Bainbridge Navy mermen.

Losses by graduation and withdrawals from school competition will result in the appearance of many new, untried men for Carolina. Little is known of the strength of the Navy team from Bainbridge, but in all probability they will give the Dolphins an interesting afternoon.

Looking forward to the meet next week with the strong Georgia Tech club, Coach Jamerson hopes he can use several men about whom little is known under competitive conditions. The Tar Heel mentor said, "We need a lot of good competitive experience. Our boys are inexperienced, and only competition in meets will help correct their faults."

The Blue Dolphins polished off their prepping for the contest yesterday with more time trials and exercises. The tankmen showed up well in the tests and are rated definite favorites this afternoon.

The Navy team arrived in Chapel Hill yesterday in time to take a workout, and they seemed to be able to take care of themselves in any situation. Heading the Bainbridge roster will be Donald Kilmer, a former Duke star of 1944, and Rodney Waters, Pete Kopcha, and Henry Zych. The Navy coach, Chief Pharmacist Mate E. S. Ratner, was a former CCNY swimming mentor.

The Blue Dolphins will probably use the following line-up:

300 Medley Relay—Jenkins, Breedon, and Morrow.

220 Freestyle—McCauley, and McCoy.

50 Freestyle—Bultman, Cannon, or Wichard.

Diving—Erle, and Knox or Swigart.

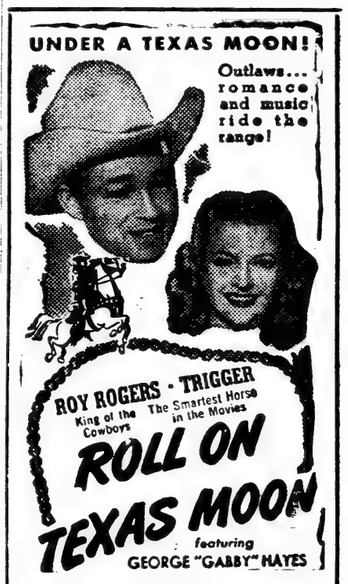
100 Freestyle—Ficklen and Greenbaum.

150 Backstroke — Johnson, and MacKenzie or Perry.

200 Breaststroke — Hexner, and Cook or Breedon.

440 Freestyle—Norwood, and Hutton.

Jayvee Team To Meet PJC Cagemen Tonight



The Jayvee basketball team made final preparations yesterday afternoon for its game with Presbyterian Junior College tonight in Maxton.

Coach Lew Hayworth plans to start Fred Swartsburg and either Ed Wagner or Cam Rodman at the forward posts, Junie Bailey at center, and Harvey Weinstein and Buster Stevenson at the guard positions.

Other players making the trip to Maxton are, Mackie, Henson, Bill von Bramer, Sim Nathan, John Wilson, and Jack Fitch. Fitch, who joined the jayvee cagers week after having finished his football duties, is slated to see plenty of action against the Presbyterians.

The jayvees go into tonight's game with a record of two wins against no losses, having won over the Durham Lucky Strike team and the High Point College Jayvees before the holidays.

The team engaged the White Phantoms in several heavy scrimmages this week, and appeared in top shape for tonight's encounter. Sparking the practice sessions were Swartsburg, Bailey, Weinstein, and Wagner.

House Approves 30 Per Cent Raise for School Teachers

Raleigh, Jan. 10—(UP)—The main fight in the General Assembly is not whether to raise the pay of teachers and other state employees 20 per cent as requested by Governor Cherry, but whether to pay them more than that.

The Senate quickly passed the governor's bill for a 20 per cent increase this morning, but the proposal struck a snag in the House.

Representative Barker of Durham county stuck in an amendment to boost salaries 25 to 30 per cent in the lower brackets. The House—after sharp debate—approved the amendment by a vote of 54 to 39, and bounced the bill back to the Senate.

The Senate is not expected to consider the new salary scale until Monday. It will meet tomorrow, but is scheduled to consider only local legislation.

Barker's proposal delayed quick passage of the salary raise, which Governor Cherry gave top priority in his message to the General Assembly.

The amendment would give raises of 25 to 30 per cent to persons in the pay brackets below $1740 a year. Those making from $1741 to $2700 would get a 20 per cent boost. From $2700 to $6600 the raise would be a flat $45 a month.

The governor's bill—which he hoped to have passed by this time—now goes back to the Senate for concurrence. And there's a good chance the Senate will not accept the amendment—and that would mean further delay. Cherry said he had wanted the bill passed in time for the raises to show up in the January 20th checks. But the Senate won't get the amended bill until Monday because tomorrow's session is only for local bills.

Bernard Baruch Wants To Spend Rest of Life Sitting on Park Bench

Washington, Jan. 10—(UP)—Bernard Baruch has decided to spend the rest of his life sitting on his favorite park bench and let time pass him by. The man who advised Presidents for more than three decades has decided to retire from public life.

The tall, white haired elder statesman says his plans for the future are "to sit by and let time pass me—I'm not going to pass time."

Baruch resigned last week as the American representative on the United Nations Atomic Energy Commission. Baruch's work in getting the American plan for atomic energy approved by the commission was hailed by President Truman and other high American government officials.

Today Baruch stopped at the White House for a visit with President Truman. He is en route from his estate at Georgetown, South Carolina, to New York.

When asked why he had resigned his commission post, Baruch replied: "I had come to the end of my furrow."

NEWS BRIEFS

Cherry Aides Are Working For Pay Bill

Solons Fighting Baker Amendment

Raleigh, Jan. 11—(UP)—Governor Cherry's administration is working to hold House members in line on the emergency pay bill to raise the salaries of teachers and other state employees.

The House voted yesterday—54 to 39—to abandon the governor's plan for a 20 per cent increase. Instead it approved an amendment for even greater raises for the lower pay brackets. The administration is surprised at the rebellion, but it still determined to hold the raise to 20 per cent rather than give a larger increase now and risk cutting paychecks when the next fiscal period begins July first.

Fighting Amendment

The governor's supporters are therefore fighting Representative Barker's amendment. They say it will throw other pay brackets out of line, and set a precedent which will be hard to stop if revenues fall off.

Vandenberg Suggests Department Shakeup

Cleveland, Jan. 11—(UP)— The chief Republican spokesman on international affairs—Senator Arthur Vandenberg—has made a series of recommendations regarding United States foreign policy. The Michigan senator—who heads the Senate Foreign Affairs committee—suggests to incoming Secretary of State George Marshall that he shake up his department. . . . Vandenberg spoke before the Cleveland conucil on foreign affairs today.

UN Calls on Members To Help in Building

Lake Success, N. Y., Jan. 11—(UP) —The United Nations has called on all member nations, as well as the United States, to take part in the design for the organization's new skyscraper headquarters in midtown New York. They have been asked to nominate professional men for 10 seats on the Board of Design.

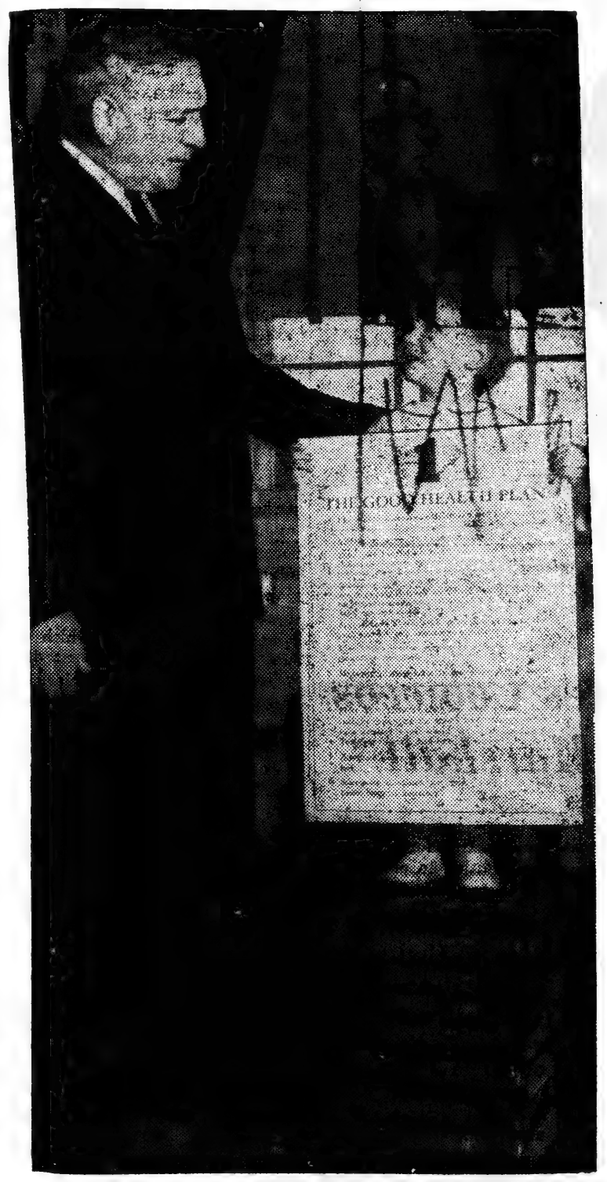
Rescue Workers Trying To Save Crash Victims

London, Jan. 11—(UP)—Rescue workers using blow torches have been trying to cut through the wreckage of a British Overseas Airways Transport where five persons are reported trapped. The plane, with 16 aboard, crashed into a chalk pit near the white cliffs of Dover. At least five of the 16 persons aboard are known to be dead.

Hughes, Grant Expected To Land in Mexico City

New York, Jan. 11—(UP)—Howard Hughes and movie star Cary Grant are expected to land in Mexico City tonight to end a cross-country flight during which they were feared missing. An hour-long search revealed that the two notables merely had neglected to keep in radio contact with airports along the way.

Stassen Joins Attack Against Truman Budget



Washington, Jan. 11—(UP)—Former Minnesota Governor Harold Stassen has joined the GOP attack against President Truman's $37,000,000,000 budget. Stassen, the only declared candidate for the 1948 Republican nomination, recommends that the budget be trimmed by $5,000,000,000.

Bilbo May Be Admitted To Hospital Tomorrow

New Orleans, Jan. 11—(UP)—The superintendent at Touri Infirmary, in New Orleans, says Senator Bilbo probably will be admitted to the hospital tomorrow. The Mississippi Democrat will undergo a mouth operation.

WEATHER TODAY

Cloudy, with occasional rains

Supported by state statute books, little Miss Mary Cannon holds the Good Health Plan of the North Carolina Medical Care commission for Governor Gregg Cherry's inspection. Three-year-old Mary is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Cannon. Her father is executive secretary of the N. C. Bar association. Picture was made in Governor Cherry's office prior to his appearance Thursday before a joint session of the new Legislature, where he reaffirmed his support of the Good Health program. In his biennial message, the Governor said, "Good Health is a problem which concerns every person in North Carolina, and I am sure the General Assembly will give it careful consideration. I pass on to you (the members of the General Assembly) for your respectful consideration the recommendation of the majority group of the Medical Care commission, with my approval."

Administration Will Check For Hot Plates in Rooms

The University administration warned yesterday that it will soon conduct an investigation of all dormitory rooms to see that hotplates and other prohibited electrical appliances are not being used.

All hot-plates, electric coffee pots and appliances other than radios and lamps found in rooms will be taken up, tagged with the owner's name and kept by the University until the end of the quarter or sent home at the owner's request.

Wiring Too Light

Reason for the action is that the wiring in the dormitories is not heavy enough to carry the extra current demanded by the extra electrical devices. In addition to the fire hazard created, this situation has in the past caused the blowing out of a large number of fuses, throwing the entire dormitory into darkness and interrupting the work of all students attempting to study in the dorm.

Another reason given by the officials directing the investigation is that the food cooked on the hotplates draws ants and other insects. Several of the dormitories are already infested with these pests as a result of food kept in rooms in direct disregard of University rules.

Hickenlooper to Head Atomic Energy Group

Washington, Jan. 11—(UP)—Republican Senator Bourke Hickenlooper of Iowa has been named to head the joint congressional atomic energy committee. His appointment was agreed on by GOP senators determined to keep this country's A-bomb secrets until effective international safeguards are established.

UVA Sends Solons Letters Asking Hike in School Funds

All General Assembly Members Petitioned To Increase Educational Appropriations

By Earl Heffner

To aid North Carolina in the attainment of a superior educational system, the University Veterans' association has dispatched letters to members of the General Assembly advocating increased outlay of funds for educational purposes. In a move designed to inform legislators of their demand for increased teacher wages, more classroom space in the high school, grammar school, and college division of state-supported institutions, the veterans compared the state's ranking on current expenditure for a medium classroom unit with the national average.

Described by Moose

The move is described by President Roy C. Moose as an "effort to continue with the pen and ballot the battle for human rights won twice in the two World Wars with the sword and bomb." He explained that as the letter

UNC Engineers Draw Up Plans For New Classroom Locations

War Surplus Buildings to Alleviate Overtaxed Existing Facilities Here

By Ed Joyner

University engineers have already drawn up plans for location of the 25 war surplus buildings to be brought here from Camp Forrest, Tullahoma, Tenn., the University business office disclosed today. Erection of the first buildings is expected to start by February 1. Planned as a temporary expedient to alleviate the crowded class rooms and faculty offices, the new buildings will add 80,000 square feet of floor space to existing facilities.

In planning the location of the new buildings the engineering staff took care to pick spots which would necessitate the removal of as few trees as possible. As a result almost none of the renowned campus landmarks will be sacrificed in the interest of expansion.

Lent to the University by the Federal Works Agency for a period of two years, with the privilege of continuing the loan, the temporary structures are presently planned to serve only until more permanent buildings can be secured.

A. R. Hollett, University engineer, is now in Tullahoma selecting buildings suitable to fill University needs. The buildings are ready to be moved here as soon as Hollett finishes his selections.

Largest Behind Caldwell

Largest of the 25 buildings will be one 238 feet long by 48 feet wide to be located behind Caldwell hall in the area where trailers are now parked. It will house classes and offices of the English and Romance languages departments.

All but two of the buildings will be one-story structures. Of the two-story structures one will be placed adjacent to New East between the Alumni and Pharmacy buildings and will serve the geology department.

The other two-story structure is to be a dramatic arts building located close to the Forest theatre to be used for a scenery shop and storage of stage properties.

Greatest number of buildings to be allocated to any one department is the four which are earmarked for the new public health school. Two of the units are to be erected on either side of the medical school.

Next in number are three planned to house music classes and practice rooms. These will be situated next to Hill hall on the side toward Smith dormitory.

Two to Math, Zoology, Commerce

Three departments are to get two buildings each. Math classes will be held in the two to be constructed behind Phillips, adjacent to the reservoir. Two more will go to the zoology department and will be located behind the present zoology building, while the commerce school gets the two behind Bingham hall.

The library also will be expanded by two of the new units, which will be set up on the west side of the library to house the book section and reading rooms for certain classes.

Of the six remaining buildings, one is an auditorium designed to seat between 150 and 200 people. To be constructed in front of the chemistry building, it will belong to the English and classics departments and is planned for special lectures to combined classes or other large groups.

For History, NROTC

Another of the units is allotted for history and social science classes. This one will be behind the parking lot between Memorial hall and Venable. Still another is planned for the area in back of the NROTC building and will serve the naval science classes.

The physical education department gets the unit to be erected behind the Tin Can, and the law library will occupy the one which is to go up behind the law school.

Last of the buildings is one to be used as a warehouse, located on the old tennis courts.

Truman's Talk To Be Debated By CPU Panel

Speech, Discussion Are Set Wednesday

Officially opening its promised heavy schedule for the winter quarter, the Carolina Political union will hold its first roundtable discussion of the year at 8 o'clock tonight in the Grail Room, Graham Memorial. Later in the week the CPU's program includes the presentation of Elizabeth Gurley Flynn, leader of the Women's committee of the U. S. Communist Party in the union's speaker presentation series.

The subject of tonight's roundtable is President Truman's annual State of the Union message to Congress especially in regard to the labor situation in the nation today. E. B. Jeffress, vice chairman of the CPU, will open the discussion with a short report. The regular "CPU Roundtable" column on the editorial page of today's paper outlines the discussion.

Interest in Flynn

Wednesday's address by the Communist leader, which has aroused much interest on the campus, will concern itself with the position of the Communist party in the United States today, Jerry Davidoff, CPU chairman announced. Miss Flynn has promised a relatively short talk to be followed by an open question and discussion period from the floor.

The roundtable discussion tonight is open to the entire campus, and visitors are encouraged to come and participate in the discussion.

SP Will Convene This Afternoon

The initial Student party mass meeting of the quarter will be held this afternoon at 4 o'clock in the Graham Memorial Candlelight room, stated Chuck Heath, chairman of the party.

To be held along with the business meeting, the session will be in the form of an SP legislators' caucus. At this time legislators will choose party candidates for speaker pro-tem and other offices of the Student Legislature to be elected next week.

A student speaker will be voted upon to present the recently drafted SP petition to the current session of the General Assembly. The petition which specifically requests state legislature action for several UNC improvements will likely be in the YMCA court for another day in the near future to receive additional student signatures.

An official report on the December student body elections will be made by Chuck Heath who announced that the floor would be open at that time to consider further party policies.

IRC Will Discuss Izzedin Address

The International Relations Club will meet on tomorrow night in Roland Parker lounge, Graham Memorial. Plans for the winter quarter will be discussed, and all members are urged to attend. On the business agenda will be a discussion of the visit of Nejla Izzedin of the Arab office in Washington, D. C., who will address the club and the campus next Wednesday. Dr. Izzedin's subject will be "The Arab and the West: The Arabic Nation and It's Significance in the New World Order."

In preparation for Dr. Izzedin's visit, Betty Anne Green, president of the club will talk this week on "Human Values in the Arab Heritage."

PLAYMAKERS TRYOUTS

Open tryouts for the laboratory production of Edna St. Vincent Millay's anti-war drama, "Aria aa da capo," will be held tomorrow afternoon in the Playmakers theatre.

Treatment of Vets May Be Requested In Durham Office

Authority for treatment of veterans in the Durham area who have service connected disabilities or illnesses can be requested by physicians through the sub-regional office in Durham, Winston-Salem Veterans administration officials explained.

Requests for authorization to treat eligible veterans can be made through the chief medical officer of the Durham office. The VA believes this system will expedite service in the 13 county area as it will be no longer necessary for doctors to have to work through the Winston-Salem board.

Under the new set-up emergency hospitalization of veterans requires a collect telephone call or telegram to the Durham office of the Veterans administration. In great emergency cases the veteran can be hospitalized with notice to be given the chief medical officer within 48 hours.

Coppridge to Address Pre-medical Fraternity

Dr. W. M. Copperidge, president of the North Carolina Medical association, will address the AED premedical fraternity Tuesday night at 7:30 o'clock in the Roland Parker lounge of Graham Memorial.

Dr. Copperidge, a prominent Durham urologist, will speak on the University's proposed four-year medical school, and fields of medical study promising to young doctors. All interested pre-medical students not in AED are cordially invited to attend the meeting.

YWCA JUNIOR COUNCIL

The Junior Council of the YWCA will meet Thursday evening at 7 o'clock in the Grail Room of Graham Memorial.

Phi Assembly Will Discuss Question of Humor Magazine

Tuesday night at 7:30 in the Phi hall, New East, the Phi assembly will debate the question: "Should a Carolina humor magazine be established in the near future?"

Campus humor writer Tookie Hodgson who has taken a vigorous part in the drive for a humor magazine will argue affirmatively. He will be assisted by Phi member Peter Gerns who will introduce the resolution.

Carolina Magazine editor, Fred Jacobson will present the difficulties in establishing a humor magazine and the objections to establishing one at the present time. Magazine managing editor Kinberg will take the negative. Daily Tar Heel columnist, Al Lowenstein is also expected to give his view on the issue. The debate is expected to develop into one of the more colorful campus arguments of all time.

Difficult to Survive

Since the extinction of the ill-fated Carolina "Buccaneer," which enjoyed the longest survival of any of the several campus humor magazines that have been published, humor magazines have found it difficult to survive.

Tar and Feathers, the last campus humor publication, enjoyed a brief life from 1940-43. In 1943 it was decided, due to the decreasing size of the student body, to combine both the humor magazine and the Carolina Magazine into one publication whose task would be to combine humor with literary and feature articles.

Trouble on Wheels

Students must realize quickly that the way they cope with the automobile problem on this campus might decide whether or not they will have automobiles on the campus in the future.

Friday night five students were involved in a two-car accident. Two of them were seriously hurt. Before the end of last quarter several accidents occurred.

Steps will soon be taken to bring about and enforce strict safety regulations on this campus. The problem created by the sheer numbers of cars is big and bad enough. To add accidents and injuries is too much.

If students do not drive more carefully and show less selfishness in the way they use their cars on this campus, they will find themselves in a position where their use of automobiles may be limited, or even stopped.

Open House

Students tonight have their first chance in too long a time to take advantage of one of the most famous and traditional customs on the Carolina campus.

President Graham is resuming his weekly Sunday night "Open House" tonight. Dr. Frank will be at home to all students from eight until ten.

Because of ill health and his many pressing duties which often kept him away from the University, he has not been able to hold open house for some time. It is good to see its resumption tonight, however.

Dr. Graham welcomes all students and both his old and new friends alike are urged to visit him. It is a pleasant and memorable experience to hold a friendly chat with the likeable president of the University. He is most willing to talk to you. We urge those interested to take advantage of this chance. You will probably spend a most pleasant and profitable evening.

Make Mine Music

By Bill Fuess

Music-makers: Stan Kenton and Duke Ellington copped top honors in popularity contests conducted by Down Beat and Mertonome, two leading mags of the music business. Ellington was chosen by Down Beat readers as the leading sweet band and swing band. Running a very close second in the swing department came Kenton, while for sweet stuff in female vocals June Christy, thrush with Kenton band, ran to the top with over 3,000 votes. June has just signed a contract to record singley with Capitol, and will leave Kenton before February . . . Kenton scored as Metronome's Band of 1946, and beautiful but not dumb Peggy Lee acquired the title of "Singer of the Year."

Jerry Wald is back in action with a twelve-piece orchestra, and is heading East . . . In Los Angeles serious charges have been filed with the local musicians union against Tommy Dorsey by Bob Dawes, former TD saxman who says he was fired from Charlie Barnet's band on Dorsey's order when Barnet opened at the Casino Gardens, beach dancery owned by Dorsey. Dawes is asking union to award him four weeks wages (around $500) and to penalize Dorsey for assertedly defaming a fellow union member. Union can hang a heavy fine on Dorsey if he is found guilty . . . The Andrews Sisters and Bing Crosby, who have been teamed together on many a platter, make their first appearance together in the latest Hope-Crosby "Road" epic, titled "Road to Rio" . . . Woody Herman has given his entire band two weeks notice—and no reason given, except that his concerts have not come off very well . . . Nick Kenny, NY Mirror columnist and song-writer, and Bob Hope are forming their own music publishing house, which will be called Gold Mine Music . . . The Lea "Anti-Petrillo" Act was declared unconstitutional . . .

In the Groove: Jimmy Dorsey left Decca where he had been recording since 1935 . . . Count Basie has signed with RCA-Victor for three years, leaving a serious gap in Columbia's stable as Benny Goodman, Woody Herman, Les Brown, and Harry James are now without regular bands . . . In the last six months more than a score of music indies have folded up. The largest was ARA, now being sold piecemeal instead of as a unit . . . Johnny Long recording now for Signature . . . Stan Kenton's new album, "Artistry in Rhythm," contains superlative performances by Vido Musso, Shelley Manne, Eddie Safranski, and Pete Rugulo, composer and arranger . . . Betty Hutton returns to Capitol after a year with Victor and no best-sellers . . . MGM Records with their newly erected giant pressing-plant in Bloomfield, N. J., ready to operate, are still signing top talent. They are working on Frank Sinatra, who is dickering with Columbia, who should be chewing their nails . . . Mostly run-of-the-mill ballads being sold now, good to dance to and listen to.

Maze of Paradoxes Cobwebs Appointment of Marshall

By Manny Margolis

What had formerly been fear and suspicion has now become fact and reality. The brass and braid are in the diplomatic saddle. Our foreign policy has shrunk to the size of an atom bomb. The latest addition to our galaxy of generals-turned-statesmen is our new Secretary of State, George Marshall. His appointment, moreover, is cobwebbed in a maze of paradoxes and enigmas.

First, he marks our fourth secretary of state in a period of a little over 26 months! Second, he is the first and only of these to have gained almost unanimous approval throughout the nation. Third, he comes to us directly from the most difficult diplomatic school in the world, namely China, where he admittedly has flunked several freshman courses. And finally, (and some might underline this in red pencil!) he is reputedly very well-liked by Premier Stalin.

The general concensus of opinion is that the Marshall mission to China, in spite of its failure, should recommend the General for this highest diplomatic post in the land. This task, it is said, has acquainted him with the magnitude of reconciling communism with capitalist democracy. His report on the China situation, which appeared just one day before the Byrnes resignation, is pointed to as a masterpiece of diplomatic insight and candor.

With all due respect to a brilliant general and, no doubt, a sincere American citizen, this writer finds it difficult to swallow all of the sugared he's-a-grand - old - soldier folderol, which have been served up to the American political consumer public. True, Roosevelt liked him. As do our present Congress and President. Even Marshal Stalin likes him!

But what of Bevin and Molotov? Can reconversion to statesmanship take place so rapidly? What of the Moscow Conference on Germany just two short months off?

General Marshall's Pacific intentions were not carried into successful fruition. And whereas his report on China is not blindly biased or shallow, neither is it refreshingly revealing or profound. He lays the failure of his mission at the doorstep of "extremists" of both the Kuomintang and the Communists.

Yet, actually, the General is not doing justice to himself or to his tedious efforts. He should have told the American public that HE DID NOT FAIL IN CHINA. U. S. failure in China was a fait-accompli as long as American military and economic "interests" in China continued to support the Nationalist Government.

But General Marshall was "speaking as a soldier." If he were a statesman, he might have said: "I came to China to see to the formation of a united government representative of all the Chinese people. But with my own government actively supporting one of the contestants in the civil war in China, my position as an arbitrator was made impossible!"

Or he might very simply have quoted this small item, buried in President Truman's speech of Dec. 18, 1946:

"Lend-lease assistance to China (read Chinese Nationalist Gov't) up to V-J Day totaled approximately $870,000,000. From V-J Day to the end of February, shortly after General Marshall's arrival, the total was approximately $600,000,000."

That indeed would have evidenced diplomatic insight. That would have been diplomatic candor.

Now, this same General Marshall holds the reins of our entire diplomatic system. Our key foreign posts in every diplomatic sore-spot in the world are now occupied by the military—General MacArthur in Japan, Generals McNarney and Clay in Germany, General Beedle Smith in Moscow, Admiral Leahy in Washington, and Admiral "Bull" Halsey going anywhere he "damn" pleases in the Mediterranean.

J. Frank Dobie, writing in the December issue of Harper's Magazine, remarks that "not even during the Reconstruction Period in the South following the Civil War has the American Army in time of peace ever before so had its own way."

The "martial cloak" about American diplomacy has now become both a literal as well as a figurative truism. . .

Restaurants in Chicago Reported Unsanitary

By United Press

A survey by the United States Public Health Service has led to the conclusion that the kitchens of most Chicago restaurants and taverns are unsanitary.

The federal agency has made a survey of some 200 of the 17,000 eating places in the Windy City and it says that on the basis of its sampling, a majority of them are chaotic with filth. The report says that the restaurants recognize the need for what it calls window dressing. For most places maintain elaborate and costly dining rooms—which makes the contrast with the filth and vermin in the kitchens even more obvious. And the report says that hospitals, on the basis of the few visited, maintain even dirtier kitchens than the restaurants.

Buyer's Market Is On Way, Survey Shows

By United Press

A United Press survey shows that the post war dream of a buyer's market is on the way. But it will be six months to a year before it comes true. The United Press asked experts on autos, furniture, clothing and food about their views on the future. And they all said that the peak has been reached in shortages of most items and from now on, things are going to be better. The consensus seems to be that by next fall you will be able to walk into a store, get exactly what you want and not feel you are being over-charged.

Just to give you an idea of how things are changed, fur experts in St. Louis say that the price of sable is hitting rock bottom. A luxurious soft sable coat now costs only $16,000—and that includes tax.

THE CPU ROUNDTABLE

Discusses "State of the Union"

By E. . Jeffress

When President Truman delivered his "State of the Union" message to Congress last Tuesday he was, as The Charlotte Observer, anti-New Deal newspaper remarked, entirely on his own. He had reached the point where he is faced by a Republican Congress, elected as a result of an "If you have had enough, vote Republican" campaign, with encouragement on the part of Southern Democrats, who acted as if they had had enough.

The President was conciliatory in tone; he showed none of that inspired guidance and leadership that has characterized previous democratic leadership in the presidency. The tone of his report was such that Republicans were generally happy except as to his resistance to tax cuts. If any "New Dealism" was left, it was so well watered down as to be undiscernable.

The 6,000 word message dealt chiefly with 1) foreign affairs, 2) fiscal, and 3) labor-management. He was disturbed about the outbreak of strikes and disruption of production, laying the blame on both sides' stubbornness in disputes involving public interest directly, such as coal and transportation and communication. In these disputes he would prescribe compulsory arbitration which neither side desires. In his present dilemma he would appoint a commission composed of representatives from the house and senate to report by March 15 on labor-management affairs and suggest a remedy. He wanted no hasty legislation aimed at one leader; he wanted jurisdictional disputes outlawed as well as secondary boycotts.

He noted a lack of sufficient labor machinery in present laws, and with war powers expiring, he wanted a strengthening of labor legislation. But Republicans and the NAM still believe in the Case bill, which Senator Taft is trying to rewrite. In Wednesday's New York Times, Frank J. Sprague refers to this commission on labor relations as being reminiscent of the McKinley days of 1896.

He suggested the creation of a new department of public welfare on a cabinet-rank basis, to which would be assigned the remains of New Dealism.

Under the topic of "general domestic economy," he strikes out on his philosophy: "Now nearly all wartime controls have been removed. The operation of our industrial system depends to a great extent on the decisions of business, farmers, and workers. These decisions must be wisely made, with general and genuine concern for public welfare. The welfare of business men, farmers, and workers depends upon the economic well being of those who buy their products. An important present source of danger to our economy is the possibility prices may be raised to such an extent that the consuming public could not purchase the tremendous volume of goods and services, which will be produced in 1947."

In a second report sent to Congress Wednesday this new philosophy was further accentuated. He wanted to obtain maximum production at lower prices, wanted management to reduce prices and labor to withhold wage increase demands. In other words, he is subscribing to a deflation policy.

In the meantime commodity prices are falling, beginning with after-Christmas sales in the price of fur coats, and drastic reductions in clearance sales. Farmers may well be aware of severe drop in butter and tobacco prices. The New York stock market is stagnating, and cotton prices are descending. The withdrawal of large sums of government money from banks is showing a decline in banks' deposits. It indicates that by mid-July, well-known "Normalcy" will have arrived. Meanwhile the sacred budget must be balanced and we are demanding settlement of lend-lease by Russia. Our Latin-American relations have deteriorated recently. And the price of silver is declining, complicating our trade relationships.

In the meantime, good men are leaving the government. Men such as Baruch, Secretary of State Byrnes, John G. Winant of the Economic council, Eugene Myer of the World Bank and RFC's George Allen have all resigned.

The year 1947 has its problems.

Youthful Baby Sitter Saves Brother's Life

South Bend, Ind, Jan. 11—(UP)—A South Bend woman, Mrs. Mary Owens, says her five-year-old son Johnny is the best baby-sitter she ever had.

Mrs. Owens put Johnny in charge of the house yesterday, and told him to watch his two-year-old brother Joe. Then she went shopping.

Suddenly Johnny heard the heating stove pop. It was fiery red, and gave off a scorching smell.

Johnny ran to the telephone and dialed zero. He told the emergency operator: "Our stove is red hot. It's gonna bust any minute."

Police dashed to the house, and found Johnny standing on the sidewalk—holding Joe in his arms. They ran inside and cooled down a roaring hot stove.

It was so hot, said Patrolman Irving Grams, that it might have set the house afire any minute.

Incidentals gathered here and there:

According to the State's leading sports writers, Carolina's Choo Choo Charlie Justice is the leading candidate for the coveted Teague Award . . . The award, sponsored by Carolina AAU, is given each year to the outstanding male and female athlete in the Carolinas . . . Incidentally, the leading parade for female honors is another local, Mrs. Estelle Lawson Page, who has copped the award thrice previously . . . Three more Tar Heel athletes have taken the fatal step of nuptial bliss: Bob Mitten, who set up Carolina's only Sugar Bowl touchdown with a pass interception; Emmett Cheek, another of Coach Snavely's leading linemen, and Mark Burnham, outstanding track and cross country performer . . . Orchids to the boys . . . and gals too . . .

George Radman, ex-all-conference halfback at Carolina in years gone by, and now assistant to Coach Jim Tatum at Oklahoma, has returned to his old stamping grounds to complete work on his master's degree in physical education . . . George Glamack, "the daddy of the hook shot," is at present pacing the Rochester Pro basketball team of the American League . . . Another ex-Tar Heel performing well in the pro circuits is Horace "Bones" McKinney, who was one of the main reasons why the Washington Capitols recently amassed a streak of 17 consecutive wins . . .

Carolina's White Phantoms will enter in New York next Tuesday with a record of three wins and a like number of losses in their appearances in Madison Square Garden . . . All three triumphs came last year . . . The Tar Heels have a slight edge in their series thus far with NYU, having beaten the Violets thrice while losing two encounters . . . Carolina has the distinct honor of being the only team to beat the New Yorkers twice in a single year in the past decade . . . They turned the trick last year—once in regular season play and again in the opening round of the NCAA tournament . . . The Violets will play a return engagement with the Phants in Chapel Hill in early February . . .

Carolina's announcement yesterday that no basketball tickets will be placed on public sale came as a shock to some alumni . . . However, there seems to be no remedy to the situation as there are about 7,000 students to fill some 6,000 seats . . . Plans are being readied for the Fifth Annual Invitational Games to be held in Woollen Gym on March 1st . . . All indications point to the event being the largest and best indoor meet ever held in the South . . . Entries are being received in three divisions: College, Freshman and Scholastic . . . Speaking of track, former hurdles coach Johnny Morriss visited the Hill last week . . .

Clark Shaughnessy's resignation as head coach at Maryland has again raised rumors to the fact that Jim Tatum will succeed the former Stanford mentor at College Park . . . Tatum has denied all reports of such during the past week and there comes word from Oklahoma that the Sooners have gotten worried and upped the former Tar Heel's salary . . . Still speculation is speculation . . .

Navy Swimmer Paces Scorers

Mermen Take 26th Straight Home Win

The Blue Dolphins of Carolina, opening their season against Bainbridge Navy swimmers yesterday, swam to a 49-26 victory to extend their home winning streak to 26 meets. Although there were no individual stars for the Tar Heels, the Navy mermen were led by Emile Estoclet, a former Yale swimmer who went to Cuba to compete in 1946, and Roger Slater, a superb diver and swimmer.

Taking first places for the Dolphins were McCauley, Hexner, Greenbaum, Johnson, and Norwood, while Slater captured high-scoring honors for the contest, taking two first places. He won the Dive and 50-meter Freestyle.

Norwood, the distance man for the Tar Heels, did a good job in taking the 400 meter freestyle in the slow time of 5:44.

The Blue Dolphins now turn their attention to next week's meet with the powerful Georgia Tech squad. Jamerson stated that the Engineer team is packed with stars and record-holders. The meet yesterday brought out many faults of the boys, and also put many men into competition for the first time.

The results for the meet are as follows:

300 Meter Medley Relay—won by UNC, Jenkins, Breedon, and Morrow. Time—3:48.6.

200 Meter Freestyle—McCauley (C), Estoclet (B), and McCoy(C). Time 2:34.

50 Meter Freestyle—Slater (B), Bultman(C), and Baldwin(B). Time—0:29.4.

Diving—Slater (B) 88.8, Erle (C) 87.1, and Swigart (C) 79.8.

100 Meter Freestyle—Greenbaum (C), Ficklen (C), and Pfuhl (B). Time—1:04.9.

150 Meter Back Stroke—Johnson (C), Waters (B), and Mackenzie (C). Time—2:13.4.

200 Meter Breaststroke—Hexner (C), Kopcha (B), and Aurelius (B). Time—3:16.2.

400 Meter Freestyle — Norwood (C), Estoclet (B), and Hutton (C). Time—5:44.

400 Meter Medley Relay—Won by Bainbridge; Baldwin, Aurelius, Pfuhl, and Slater. Time—4:42.3.

The 1945 Wyoming moose kill of 130 represents the highest number taken in any year of which there is a record, with the exception of 1943, when 190 were taken.

Tar Heels Nosed Out In Thriller At Philadelphia

Paxton Paces Scorers With 19 Points Before Capacity Crowd of 6,000 Fans

BOB GOLDWATER

Convention Hall, Philadelphia, Jan. 11—Drama had its height here tonight as the White Phantoms of the University of North Carolina dropped a heart-breaking double-overtime game to a LaSalle University quintet that twice refused to accept evident defeat.

It was a thrilling ball game all the way with the score tied up on seventeen different occasions. Twice the boys from down South had the ball game put away, but each time the Philadelphia boys came back to knot up the game.

Lanky Bob Paxton was the big gun for the Tar Heels with nineteen points and it was he that put the Scottmen out in front by a 49-48 count with a minute and a half remaining in the regular game. Seconds later the Phantoms regained the ball, then lost it again, and a La Salle foul shot knotted up the count.

At the start of the first overtime the home team assumed a quick two point lead, but the Carolina boys roared to the front on a free toss by Paxton and a field goal by White. Then with 35 seconds to go the Tar Heels took the ball out after a La Salle foul. Seconds dragged by as the Phants put the freeze on until with five seconds to play Walters of La Salle stole the ball and drove under the Carolina boards where he missed the shot but was fouled by Paxton.

There was not a sound in the mammoth arena as Walters stepped to the foul line and dropped the first toss to tie up the ball game. Then with victory within his grasp, his second try rolled from the rim and the Tar Heels had a new lease on life.

The second overtime was all La Salle. They jumped to a fast five point lead and were never again headed. The Phantoms fought back on field goals by Dillon and Thorne but the La Salle boys tossed in another goal to put the game on ice.

The early part of the game was the same story, throughout the first half and the early part of the second there was never more than three points separating the two teams. With the score 41-38 in favor of the visitors at one point in the second stanza it looked like the boys from Chapel Hill might pull away, but La Salle again came back to tie up the contest.

On both offense and defense it was Bob Paxton who sparked the Tar Heels, but he received able support from Dillon, White, Thorne and Hamilton. The Carolinians looked much improved over their recent play, and only bad breaks caused their defeat.

The Scottmen will journey from here to New York where they will meet NYU Tuesday night.

Trackmen Invited To Participate In Millrose Meet

Carolina has been tendered an invitation to compete in a one mile team race in the 40th annual Millrose games at Madison Square Garden on the first of February.

This is the first time that this event has ever been included on the program of any meet in the Garden. Fred Schmertz, chairman of the Millrose Games committee, has not as yet announced the other three teams that will compete.

A race of this type replaces a two-mile relay and will provide the spectators with a race that will be very exciting to watch. All sixteen men representing the four schools leave the mark at the same time and the team that finishes their four men first wins. Scoring is on cross country basis with low score winning.

Coach Ranson said that the Carolina team would probably be made up from the following men: Jimmy Miller, Julian Mackenzie, Sam Magill, Jack Milne, Walt Francis, Alvin Smith, Mark Burnham. All of these boys have run the mile in less than 4:30 and should present any team with a rough evening.

Teams likely to compete in this event are NYU, which features Frank Dixon, 4:10 miler, Manhattan with Ed Walsh, 4:10, Penn State led by Gerry Carver and Curt Stone who have been clocked in around 4:15, Navy features Nick Smusyn, a 4:19 miler.

All in all, this event in its initial running in big-time should provide quite a punch to the already famous Millrose Meet which features such famous events as the Mel Shepard "600" and the Wanamaker Mile.

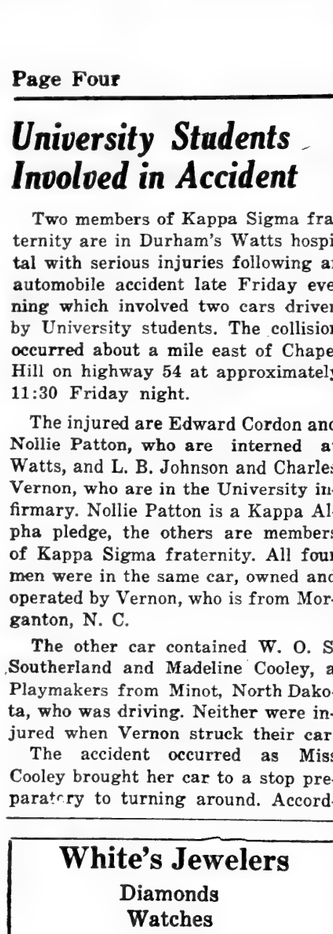
University Students Involved in Accident

Two members of Kappa Sigma fraternity are in Durham's Watts hospital with serious injuries following an automobile accident late Friday evening which involved two cars driven by University students. The collision occurred about a mile east of Chapel Hill on highway 54 at approximately 11:30 Friday night.

The injured are Edward Cordon and Nollie Patton, who are interned at Watts, and L. B. Johnson and Charles Vernon, who are in the University infirmary. Nollie Patton is a Kappa Alpha pledge, the others are members of Kappa Sigma fraternity. All four men were in the same car, owned and operated by Vernon, who is from Morganton, N. C.



The other car contained W. O. S. Southerland and Madeline Cooley, a Playmakers from Minot, North Dakota, who was driving. Neither were injured when Vernon struck their car.

The accident occurred as Miss Cooley brought her car to a stop preparatory to turning around. According to State Highway Patrolman R. R. Thomas, who was present at the scene of the accident, she asserted that she saw the lights of Vernon's car approaching from a good distance behind her, and pulled to a stop to let him pass before she cut left into a driveway to reverse her direction. Vernon apparently saw too late that there was a car in the road in front of him and swerved out only partially before he collided.

Vernon will be charged with reckless driving at a hearing set for January 21. It is supposed that his case may present the fact that Miss Cooley did not signal either for a stop or for a left turn, even though the other car was a considerable distance behind her. Moreover, there is a law which prohibits stopping an automobile on a highway except when it is disabled and will not operate.

AVC Will Meet Here Tuesday

To Hold Discussion Of Quorum Question

The Chapel Hill chapter of the American Veterans committee will meet for its first winter quarter session on Tuesday evening at 7:30 o'clock in the Presbyterian church.

Chairman Winston Broadfoot announced that the important question of what constitutes a quorum for a meeting will be decided when the amendment proposed at the last fall quarter meeting is introduced to the floor. It will be recalled that this question was of extreme importance in the close voting on the national committee's so-called fascist and communist resolutions.

Subsistence Hike Bill

Of equal importance on the evening's agenda is a resolution from national headquarters to increase GI subsistence to $90 per month for single men and $110 plus $10 per child for married men. In addition there will be a report on the new courts-martial bill introduced in Congress by Representative Carl Durham of this district, and further information on prevailing policies at the University Book Exchange.

Since this is the first meeting of the quarter Broadfoot urged particularly that all new student veterans attend whether they are members or not. He further stressed that non-members, male and female, are always welcome.

Officials Reject Quonset Requests

Requests from students living in Quonset huts for study tables to be placed in all huts were turned down today by the University business office.

After inspecting the huts, officials pointed out that placing tables in the huts between the double decker beds and the clothes lockers already installed would make living conditions in the huts entirely too crowded.

Inconvenience to students trying to sleep which would be caused by late studying hut-mates wanting to keep the lights on was another consideration that featured in refusal of the requests.

The present arrangement for studying is one study hut for every ten huts in the Quonset area. Officials in charge of the project feel that this is the most satisfactory arrangement for the convenience of the majority of the men living in the area.

Wesley Group to Hold WC Program Tonight

Members of Wesley Foundation at Woman's college will present a specially prepared program tonight to the local Wesley Foundation.

The program will begin with a supper at 6 o'clock in the dining hall of the church. The WC program will begin immediately after the meal.

A series of discussions and lectures on courtship and marriage will begin next Sunday and continue through the latter part of February.

Person Hall Offers Exhibit Of Artist Team's Paintings

By Dee Sweat

The Person hall art gallery announces the showing of an exhibit of paintings by Mary and Toward Thomas. It will run until January 29. Art lovers all over the Eastern United States praise the brilliant work of this husband and wife art team. In response to requests they have assembled an exhibition of their oils, gouaches, and watercolors to be shown in leading schools and cities in the East.

The freshness and vitality of their paintings makes them enjoyable to the general public as well as the advanced audience. The Thomas family is amused at the air of mystery with which most people regard artists and their paintings. "The reason most people do not enjoy art is because they try to discover some hidden meaning in it, when they should enjoy the color and pattern," Thomas said.

No Set of Rules

Their popularity is characterized by several factors. They have no set of rules which they follow; their paintings range from the most abstract to the most concrete. They are interested in people and the little things in life. Their subjects strike a familiar note in the mind of the onlooker.

Their most outstanding characteristic is, however, that they gather their own pigments. They have collected materials for their paintings from the mountains of North Carolina to the soot of chimneys, and express surprise at the curiosity of the general public over their doing this.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Thomas have won awards and distinctions for their work and are now on the art faculty of the University of Georgia.

states, "it is our intent to work for —and see that others support—the ideals for which many of our buddies have died."

Context of the letter contains a concrete statement of its purpose as "one, unselfish in that we shall receive no direct benefits from our program, and two, that it is selfish in the sense of the word whereby through working for our country and state, we, as logic will support, tend to increase our status in life and richly improve the chances of future generations being able to live, not exist, in a world wherein war is merely a historical subject. Since education alone can assure the world of lasting peace, it is our duty to make an EXCELLENT educational system available to men in all walks of life."

To support their argument, the veterans included in the letter an imposing list of figures compiled after tedious research by a committee appointed for such purpose.

Union Defends John L. Lewis

C. I. O. Enters Case As Friend of Court

Washington, Jan. 13—(UP)—The union John L. Lewis founded and later deserted came to his defense today.

On the eve of the final round in the legal battle between Lewis and the government, the CIO entered the case as "a friend of the court." The union filed a brief in Supreme Court this afternoon, supporting John L.'s contention that his conviction for contempt of court should be set aside.

Lewis Was Founder

The CIO which Lewis founded in 1935 and walked out on seven years later—is interested in the case because of the precedent that might be set, and later carried into other cases. The CIO holds that the government's entire case against Lewis rests on "a serious misinterpretation" of the Clayton anti-trust act and the Norris-LaGuardia Anti-injunction act. The misinterpretation, according to the CIO is that the federal government is exempt from the provisions of the two acts which protect labor's rights.

The CIO also contends—as does Lewis—that the convictions were made in "an atmosphere of strong feeling" against Lewis and his union, a feeling it says was shared by the trial judge, T. Alan Goldsborough.

The Supreme Court will begin hearings tomorrow on appeals of Lewis and the mine workers from their conviction and the three-and-a-half million dollar fine levied against them.

Truman and Marshall Confer by Telephone

Washington, Jan. 13—(UP)—President Truman has conferred by telephone with General George C. Marshall who is in Hawaii on his way home to become Secretary of State. It was the first talk between the president and Marshall, since the resignation of Secretary James Byrnes was announced last week.

Bilbo Being Prepared For Second Operation

New Orleans, Jan. 13—(UP)—Senator-Elect Bilbo of Mississippi is being given penicillin every three hours to prepare him for a mouth operation. He says he is expecting a visit to his bedside by Louisiana Senator Ellender who led the losing fight to have him seated as Congress convened last week.

British Meat Workers Ask Labor for Strike

Cherry Asks $11 Million For State Universities

Governor Recommends Use of Surplus Funds To Provide for Expansion of University

From UP Wire Reports

Raleigh, Jan. 13—Six per cent of Governor Gregg Cherry's biennium budget recommendation—compared to 67 per cent allotted public school operation—has been earmarked for the operation of North Carolina's state-owned colleges and universities.

Cherry's annual budget message, delivered before a joint session of the general assembly in Raleigh, called for total expenditures during 1947-48 of $183,869,356—the highest in North Carolina's history, if passed.

The Governor estimates revenues totalling $183,988,500. The $11,845,937 asked to support higher learning in state institutions was believed meant to cover only ordinary maintenance and operation of colleges and universities. Cherry advised use of the state's surplus funds for expanding and improving the state institutions of higher learning and financing the medical care program.

Among the amounts the governor recommends to be spent are these:

For public school education—$122,000,000.

For higher education—$11,000,000.

For mental and charitable institutions—$15,000,000.

For the health program and for aged and infirm—nearly $9,000,000.

Federal Funds Asked

The Medical Care program got the governor's approval on condition that federal funds are available to pay one-third of the cost. The budget provides for a $50,000 medical student loan fund.

The biggest bite out of the general fund will go to schools, for which the governor recommends 67 per cent of the state's revenue. Institutions of higher learning would get another six per cent of the general fund.

Weather Hampers Test Of Army Drone Plane

Washington, Jan. 13—(UP)—The army air forces carried out an interesting experiment today—and it almost went off perfectly.

Bad weather over the Carolinas ruined the performance—a scheduled non-stop round-trip flight from Florida to Washington by a remote-controlled Flying Fortress.

Another Fortress was the mother plane on the trip, but a flesh-and-blood pilot and co-pilot also were aboard the drone—just in case.

The drone was herded up to Washington from Elgin Field in Florida on schedule. It circled the capital city on schedule and it dropped a dummy bomb in the nearby Atlantic Ocean on schedule.

But then when the mother plane and her drone headed back for Florida they ran into weather trouble over the Carolinas. And that's when the emergency crew aboard the drone came in handy. They took over and brought the plane down at Washington's national airport—an emergency landing.

Women Asked to Make Room Reservations Now for Summer Term

The office of the Dean of Women is receiving applications from outside students for the summer session in such numbers that it becomes necessary to determine how much available space in the dormitories there will be in order that these letters of application may be answered. For this reason, students now in residence who expect to remain for either or both summer terms are asked to make their room reservations for the summer term as soon as possible.

Deadline March 1

No actual reservations will be made for outside students until March 1. If a student now in residence has not made a room reservation by that date it will be assumed that she does not expect to be here during the summer, her space will not be saved for her after March 1.

Reservations may be made at the cashier's window in the basement of South building. After the fee has been paid there, a further reservation should be registered at the Dean of Women's office.

Bader to Address Religious Group Tonight

Dr. Jesse M. Bader of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ will be the speaker tonight at the supper meeting of the Religion in Life Week protestant planning groups.

The supper, which will be held in the Methodist church dining rooms, will begin at 5:45 this afternoon. The group will be divided into special committees at the conclusion of Dr. Bader's address.

Outstanding Leader

Dr. Bader, one of America's outstanding church leaders, has come to the University from New York especially to help plan the Religion in Life Week which will bring 20 religious leaders here from February 23 through 28.

The Rev. J. Robert Nelson, chairman of the Protestant Church council, urges all students and faculty members who have accepted responsibility for the planning of this week to be present.

State Press Group to Meet In Chapel Hill Next Week

Two headliners from the nation's capital, Newspaper Correspondent Bascom N. Timmons and Attorney Sidney S. Alderman, will be the principal speakers at the annual sessions of the North Carolina Press institute next week. The Institute will open at Chapel Hill at 8 o'clock Thursday night, January 23, and the closing session will be held at Duke the following night, January 24.

Timmons, a veteran Washington correspondent, who now represents a string of some 30 leading newspapers from all sections of the country, including several of the larger North Carolina dailies, will speak at the Thursday night session, with Herbert Peele, Elizabeth City, president of the Association, presiding. Timmons has been a Washington correspondent for 33 years. During the war he was head of the Chicago Sun's bureau in Washington.

Native Tar Heel

Alderman will speak at the dinner session at which Duke will be host Friday night. A native Tar Heel and a prominent Washington lawyer, he occupied a prominent position on the prosecution staff at the Neurenburg trials. He is an alumnus and trustee of Duke.

Governor Cherry will present the annual press awards at the Duke dinner.

The University will be host at a luncheon session at 1 o'clock Friday when members of the Chapel Hill writers colony will be presented at a roundtable session. Prof. Walter Spearman of the University journalism department will preside.

Special Clinics

Special clinics will be held Friday morning under the direction of E. A. Resch, Siler City, and Edwin D. Stephens, Yanceyville, for the weeklies, and W. Randall Harris, Asheville, for the dailies. A short business session will be held Friday afternoon with President Peele presiding. Legislative matters will be discussed at this session.

March of Dimes Drive Begins Thursday with $5,000 Quota

Daily Tar Heel Sponsors Drive

Woestendiek Names Campaign Leaders

The largest and most ambitious March of Dimes campaign in history will begin on the Carolina campus Thursday as the drive gets underway across the nation. The Daily Tar Heel will sponsor the campus drive in conjunction with the local committee in charge of the community drive. A goal of $5,000 from students alone has been set up by the student March of Dimes committee, which is asking each student to contribute one dollar towards the mighty arsenal upon which the American people draw in combatting polio epidemics.

The campus committee, headed by Daily Tar Heel Editor Bill Woestendiek, includes Nonnie Morris, Fran Golden, Ed York and Whit Osgood. Individual dormitory, sorority, and fraternity solicitors have been appointed and plans will also be made to accept contributions in the Y.

Last 10 Days

The campus drive will last 10 days, starting Thursday and running to Saturday, January 25. "If each student will contribute one dollar to the drive," the committee reported, "we should have no trouble in meeting and exceeding our quota."

Standings of the drive will be published in the Daily Tar Heel from time to time, showing the amount contributed by each organization in the dormitory, sorority and fraternity leagues. Winners will be published Tuesday, January 28. Solicitors will also work the trailer camp and Vetville sections. Students living in town will be asked to make their contributions at the Y.

Needs Support

"The March of Dimes this year needs more generous support than ever before to replenish funds of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis which were depleted fighting last summer's polio epidemic—second greatest in the nation's history.

Funds provided by the March of Dimes have advanced knowledge of infantile paralysis at least one hundred years, according to medical experts. Besides providing huge sums for research, it has provided the best available care for any person stricken by polio until maximum recovery is assured.

March of Dollars

"By making the campus program a March of Dollars instead of dimes this year," Woestendiek stated, "we can help immeasurably in the drive to eliminate this dreaded disease once and for all. Anyone who has ever seen an infantile paralysis victim will have little qualms about giving at

SES Presents Jooss Ballet In Program Monday Evening

Program Is Part of Troupe's First Tour Before American Audiences in Six Years

By Darley Lochner

The internationally famous Jooss Ballet will make its first appearance here at 8:30 Monday evening in Memorial hall under the sponsorship of the Student Entertainment series committee.

Monday's performance will be part of the troupe's first American tour in six years. Although the company now consists of only 12 dancers each person is an accomplished ballet artist.

Great Creator

Kurt Jooss, founder and director of the troupe, is regarded as one of the world's outstanding creators of the dance. All of Monday's repertoire is a product of the Jooss brain. The Jooss troupe is outstanding in its presentation of ballets based on modern themes. For many years ballet was not considered artistic unless it had its beginnings in classical myths. However, under the leadership of the Jooss influence, modern American ballets are now being danced.

Considered the outstanding part of the Jooss repertoire is the dance called "The Green Table" in which the dancers satirize the efforts of the League of Nations. Presented first at the International Conference of the Dance in Paris in 1932 where it won first prize, the dance created a sensation in artistic and diplomatic circles. It will be given in their performance here.

Holders of season tickets for the Student Entertainment series will be admitted to the concert. Others may buy individual tickets at Swain hall or Ledbetter-Pickard's.

Phi Plans to Discuss Humor Mag Argument

Since the turn of the century when the University Magazine recommended that a humor publication be created to "relieve it of the function of trying to be funny," a controversy has flared up at various times over the establishment of a humor magazine.

Again tonight the controversy will rear its head in the Phi hall in New East at 7:30 o'clock when Peter Gerns introduces a resolution to establish a Carolina humor magazine in the near future.

Campus humor writer, Tookie Hodgson, an active leader in the fight to bring back a humor publication, will lead those in favor of the bill. On the other hand, Magazine Editor Fred Jacobson will voice the view of the Carolina Magazine toward the issue. Jacobson is expected to point out the difficulties involved in setting up the proposed publication and the objections to creating one at the present time. The negative forces will be led by Daily Tar Heel columnist Jud Kinberg.

The first humor magazine appeared on the campus in October 1919 under the title of the Tar Baby. It was superseded by the Carolina Boll Weevil three years later. The Boll Weevil survived until 1924 when the Buccaneer replaced it. The latter was the humor publication for 13 years when

Student Union Sponsors Band

Duke Ambassadors To Give Concert

The Duke Ambassadors will be presented by Graham Memorial in a concert at Memorial hall on Thursday night from 8:30 until 9:30 o'clock. Admission for the hour long program is, like other student union functions, free of charge to all students.

This concert will mark the second appearance of the Duke university dance band at Carolina under Graham Memorial sponsorship. The student union introduced the Ambassadors to the campus at an October dance in Woollen gymnasium and the band drew much favorable comment both for musical selection and appearance.

Sammy Fletcher leads the Duke Ambassadors, who concentrate on old Jimmy Lunceford stylings and newer ones of Duke Ellington and Stan Kenton. Fletcher plays drums and does a few "scat" vocals on the side.

MONOGRAM CLUB MEETING

The Monogram club will meet tonight at 7:30 o'clock. Pictures for the Yackety Yack are to be taken at that time.

Trip The Light Fantastic...

Townsend to Coach Dancers In New Eight-Week Series

Bill Townsend, journalism student at UNC and former top earning Arthur Murray dancing instructor and exhibition dancer, will conduct a second series of ballroom dancing classes in Woollen gymnasium this quarter, Dr. Oliver K. Cornwell announced today.

An eight-week series of beginners' and advanced classes on Tuesdays and Thursdays will start this week with the beginners meeting at 7 o'clock and the advanced students class following at 8. The Tuesday night course will consist mainly of waltz, foxtrot, and jitterbug with some rumba the latter half of the series.

Advanced Classes

In the Thursday night classes emphasis will be placed on rumba, samba, and tango, and the more advanced forms of waltz and foxtrot. The material taught will be steps and styles of dancing used by the winners of the Harvest Moon Ball contest held at Madison Square Garden last fall. The jitterbug style will combine steps taught by North Carolina dancing teachers as well as those given by principal studios in Washington, Miami Beach, and New York.

Due to the heavy winter sports schedule in Woollen gymnasium, some of the classes will meet in the "Tin Can," these dates to be announced later, and on nights when the varsity basketball team is having a home game, the dancing class will be eliminated.

Arrangements have been made for the use of a new Cobra record player to overcome the difficulties encountered with music during the last quarter series of lessons.

No Honor Among Thieves

A thief by any other name is still a thief.

And the students who continue to "permanently borrow" books from the University library are committing just as big a crime as though they were picking the pocket of someone sitting next to them.

Possibly various reasons exist for their taking books out of the library, but no reason can be considered valid. If they can't obtain the book anywhere else, they can study it in the library. but taking it out of the library is taking it away from everyone else who doesn't have a book—and it's taking something that doesn't belong to the person taking it.

In simple language, it's stealing. The library exists for the advantage of every student. Yet a few of the students continue to take advantage of the library in the wrong manner by stealing books that belong on the library shelves.

There is no honor among thieves. And we have too many library thieves.

Conference Diary Describes Opening Sessions in Chicago

By Tom Eller

If I were to describe the first plenary session of the Chicago Conference so as to make you feel as if you were there, I am afraid you'd go to sleep! For the most part it was a dull confusion of parliamentary miscarriages.

The guest speaker was Dr. Kerwan, Dean of the Division of Humanities at the University of Chicago, American Delegate to UNESCO, and recent conductor of the Chicago Roundtable in Paris. His enlightening talk on the parallels between UNESCO, (The United Nations Education, Scientific, and Cultural Organizations) and the proposed National Student Organization served two purposes for me. I learned (1) something of the functions of UNESCO, (2) that his idea of the real purpose of the meeting was about as vague as mine—and most of the others with the possible exception of the members from the Prague delegation. UNESCO is an organization which has received little publicity because it is one of the few international endeavors of the Post-War years which has achieved, and is achieving, its prescribed objectives. It cannot be discussed in detail here, but I hope you will make it a point to read something about it if you have not already done so.

Russell Austin, who was later elected Vice-President of the NSO, delivered the keynote address. He cited some of the problems in student housing, procurement of text books, payment of teachers, and Veterans pay in his discussion of the purposes for setting up the Student Organization. It seems the Prague delegation ran into well-organized Student groups from all over Europe last summer and the only counter-measure was considered to be that of a "non-partisan" student organization on the national level.

Mr. Austin called for more highly developed, more independently handled Student Governments all over the United States. He stated that the major purpose of the Chicago Conference would be to organize a National Continuations Committee for the proposed N. S. O. and charge it with the responsibility of drafting a Constitu- (which would not have included Nation. He ended his speech with a highly European "long live the unity of the students in The United States" and "long live the NSO to be conceived here!" With those words the Committee for the Chicago Conference ended, and the work was left to the Conference itself.

From the first plenary session we moved into one of four panels, according to the choices we had indicated and according to the Committee's assignments. The four panels were as follows: Panel I, the setting up of the National Continuations Committee; Panel II, the organization of the Prospective National Student Organization; Panel III, Student needs in International Student Affairs; and Panel IV, the aims and activities of the National Student Organization.

Bill Miller went to Panel 1 for the discussion of the National Continuations Committee. A big fight on representation between Student Governments and the National Student Organizations was expected. Our delegation agreed to the Texas proposal tional Student Organizations as such in the NCC) and Bill went prepared to take that approach. Jim Chesnutt and I were assigned to Panel IV for the discussion of Aims and Activities.

A serious point of dissension arose from the fact that the Delegates to Prague "chaired" all four of the Panels. They began the discussions and, in each case, were elected before we could caucus for strong, on the spot, choices. Walter Wallace, Negro from Columbia Universlty, was chairman for our Panel.

Actually, the time was so limited and the discussion so lackadaisically handled that we got through only a limited number of aims before we reached adjournment time for the second plenary session. We went on record as favoring the establishment of the NSO and for the fosterance of friendship among students. The Students began to quote and move promiscuously through the Constitution of the International Union of Students. Aims to secure equal rights for students, to encourage scholarships to provide textbooks, supplies, and other materials free of charge were adopted before the first adjournment of Panel IV.

Next time I hope to discuss the final plenary session and how it almost caused the disintegration of the whole Conference.

Veterans Protect with Pen What They Won with Bomb

By Earl Heffner

When the front-line firing of World War II ceased with the surrender of Nippon, a paramount question before the minds of philosophers, historians, statesmen, and laymen was whether the United States would retrun to its prewar Laissez Faire, whether the lethargy and selfishness of 1918-1939 would again embark nations onto the much-traveled road of self-destruction.

Hearts quaked with the "South American Revolution" in Athens, Tennessee, last summer as irate veterans sought to correct a situation foreign to their wishes through force of arms instead of resorting to legal methods as provided by the Constitution.

Veterans' organizations marshalled their forces in the battle for world peace. Among the coined slogans were such auditory-appealing phrases as "Citizens First, Veterans Second." With the exception of isolated instances these returning servicemen have shown active interest in the affairs of government. While national organizations have gained the headlines, one of the more encouraging and commendable programs has taken place here by the University Veterans' Association. Members of this organization have taken time from their studies in order to contribute in the fight to restore North Carolina to national prominence in the educational field.

In a letter sent to each member of the state legislature, the veterans have cited their intent to work with their ballots toward a program calling for increased outlay of funds into the state's educational system. Armed with imposing statistics garnered after tedious research, this organization is seeking legislation providing for additional classrooms in the grammar and high school as well as college division of the N. C. educational system. More dormitories for state-supported schools and a substantial pay raise for teachers round out the veterans' demands.

That this is not a group of men working for individual glory is emphasized by a paragraph in the letter which states that "it cannot be stressed too greatly that our aims are (1) unselfish in that we shall receive no direct benefits from our program, and (2) that it is selfish in the sense of the word whereby through working for our country and state we, as logic will support, tend to increase our status in life and richly improve the chances of future generations being able to live, not exist, in a world wherein war is merely a historical subject. Since education alone can assure the world of lasting peace, it is our duty to make an EXCELLENT educational system available to men in all walks of life."

It is encouraging indeed to note that men are seeking to protect with the pen and the ballot the costly ideals they won with the sword and bomb. Although the road to lasting peace and "One World" is long and arduous, the prospects of success are brighter as long as mature men continue to work and sacrifice themselves in an effort to attain the rich reward, a Utopian existence of Nirvana for mortals or an opportunity to enjoy the rights guaranteed in our constitution.

Low Teacher Pay Endangers Entire U. S. School System

With school teachers receiving less remuneration than the actual pay of an army buck private, there is grave danger of an increasing decline in the standards of our educational system and the embracing of communism by our teachers, according to leading educational authorities. Fifty-eight per cent of our children receive education graded "average to poor" and 25 per cent of them get a "grossly inadequate" education, according to Dr. John K. Norton of the American Council on Education.

Since Pearl Harbor at least 600,000 school teachers have left their profession to engage in more remunerative work, according to an article by Gretta Palmer in the January issue of Cosmopolitan magazine.

"Texas alone is 5,400 teachers short this year," the article states in part. "Minnesota opened its schools with 3,000 fewer teachers than it had six years ago and more children to be taught. Nationally, 2,000 schools have closed."

Surveys made by responsible educational organizations show that one teacher out of eight at work has been hired on an emergency certificate, which disregards the teacher's lack of qualifications for the job as compared with one out of 200 "emergencies" six years ago.

Those sub-standard teachers are "frequently unfit to teach even primary classes," according to Dr. Norton, who calls the lower 40 per cent of them "the marginal workers of society."

Inherent in the situation as it exists today is the real danger that the teachers who remain at their jobs may come to believe that communism will provide the solution to their troubles, according to the article which points out a definite trend in this direction.

"Many teachers admit that their co-workers, driven to bitterness by poverty and the injustices they suffer, are moving to the extreme political left," the article states. "Feeling that the American economic system is treating them badly, they are beginning to believe that communism is the solution of their problem. Spearhead of this movement in the CIO Teachers Union, which was organized in New York by Bella Dodd, a member of the National Committee of the Communist Party. The Teachers Union claims to have tripled its New York membership in the past year. Starting with only two local chapters a year and a half ago, it has expanded rapidly and now is organizing teachers in Massachusetts, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Virginia, West Virginia, Alabama, Illinois, California, Michigan, Minnesota, and the District of Columbia.

"School authorities say that only an immediate raise in pay for teachers everywhere will combat this rising communist influence in the classrooms. The present situation allows the leftist spokesman at the faculty luncheon table to ask too many questions that are too hard to answer. And it places the development of our children's minds in the guidance of persons who are becoming increasingly dissatisfied with the American way of life."

What Do YOU Say?

Today's Question

What is your opinion of the Carolina Magazine?

The Answers

The editors seem to be making an honest endeavor to produce something good. Much of the criticism has been premature.—Bill Leinbach, New Bern.

It is a fine piece of editorial achievement and contains all the things a good magazine should to keep the interest of its readers.—George Whitted, Durham, N. C.

I think the "Mag" would do well to return to the style of the old "Buccaneer." It would attract more attention and more readers.—James W. Currlee, Ansonville.

In my opinion it is one of the best college magazines in the country. My only criticism is that it needs a bit more humor.—Gerry Smith, Concord, Ga.

The Carolina Magazine has thus far been definitely mediocre. The stories lack originality and depth.—Ethel Perry, Hendersonville.

It is well illustrated, but could be improved with stories having a little more point to them.—Mary Lib Pell, Chapel Hill.

I think it should be much more similar to the "Tar 'n Feathers."—O. W. Gupton, Raleigh.

Of the few college magazines I have read, it is one of the best. It does need more pointed and interesting stories.—Jo Finch, Black Mountain.

I enjoy reading the Carolina Magazine, although I think it could use more of the humor that was in the Buccaneer.—H. M. Faulconer, Burlington.

If it is decided to have only one magazine on the campus then the Carolina Magazine could use a great deal more humor.—William E. Cooke, Yanceyville.

The Carolina Magazine is a most unsatisfactory attempt of a compromise of serious literature and humor at the moment. It should exclude one of these to be a magazine of above average quality.—Ed. Walker, Winston-Salem.

Although I think the layout of the magazine has been good this year, there must be more and better talent on a campus as large as this. I would also like more humor.—Frankie Vance, Plumtree.

GEN. MARSHALL FOUND CHEAPEST THING IN CHINA WAS HUMAN LIFE; NEW SECRETARY OF STATE SAYS WORST CIVILIAN RULE IS BETTER THAN BEST MILITARY RULE; HE BELIEVES MORAL MAN MUST CATCH UP WITH SCIENTIFIC MAN

Washington.—To get a full insight into the character of the new Secretary of State, it is necessary to know something of General Marshall's last experiences in China. Not many of his friends realize it, but Marshall for the most part enjoyed his tour of duty in China. He told visitors that it gave him time to think. On the porch of his house in Nanking overlooking a flowery, walled-in garden, Marshall sat and philosophized about the Orient. In the distance he could see teeming, centuries-old Nanking and the tomb of China's great modern reformer, Sun Yat-sen.

Last summer, Marshall spent an evening talking with Postmaster General Bob Hannegan and Assistant Secretary of War Stuart Symington, who had carried a highly confidential message to Marshall from President Truman telling him to prepare to succeed Jimmie Byrnes as Secretary of State. What Marshall said that night was significant.

Going back over his life, he described his first tour of duty in the Philippines, even before World War I.

"I learned a lot from serving in the Philippines," Marshall said. "I learned that the worst civilian rule is preferable to the best military rule.

"The tragedy of China," he continued, "is that its cheapest commodity is human life. Everything else, clothes, food, land, raw materials—all are worth more than human life."

MORAL MAN LAGS

Marshall expressed his unreserved contempt for the Kuomintang, the oligarchy which kept Chiang Kai-shek in power. A loose confederation of warlords, honest scholars, and large-scale financial manipulators—money lenders—who traded in human misery, was the way he described it. He was particularly bitter about the custom of "cumshaw" or "shakedown" prevalent all over China. Hannegan had already seen how five brides were necessary to permit a peasant to visit a relative in a Nanking jail.

Marshall outlined his own views on what China needed as, first, a complete restoration of civilian rule; second, a broad educational program so that more of the people of China could choose their path to a better world; third, a national health and welfare program combined with national sports.

"In the Philippines," he declared, "I saw how competitive sports developed fair-minded cooperation and team play. We taught the Filipinos tennis. They mastered it easily and proved that all races have great capabilities in physical development if given the opportunity. Health is the great wealth of a nation."

Finally, Marshall said, China needs moral emancipation. It is a tragedy, he said, that scientific man is years ahead of moral man, and that science is 150 years ahead of industrial man in many parts of the world—particularly China.

"Perhaps," said Marshall, "everybody who have been round the world hasn't realized how completely the world has shriveled. We've got to help the peoples of the world or save ourselves. It's a question of letting them have a portion of our own civilization."

MARSHALL AND WAC

It is easy to understand why General Marshall was shocked at the Chinese disregard for life, because as Chief of Staff, he had great respect for the dignity of man. He was always thoughtful for those who served under him.

One evening he invited Brig. Gen. Claude Adams to dinner at his home at Fort Myer, and afterwards Marshall suggested they go to the movies at the Fort Myer theater. The Chief of Staff was about to set out on foot when Gen. Adams said, "I've got a car here, with a WAC driver, and we might as well use it."

When they reached the theater Gen. Marshall said to the driver, Private Marcella Schaetz:

"After you park the car, come to the box office and there'll be a ticket for you."

WAC Marcella did as she was told. When she got to the box office, an usher said, "come this way, please," and led her to Gen. Marshall's box. She was only a private, but she saw the show from a place of honor between two generals, one being the Chief of Staff. She confesses she can't remember what the picture was about.

MARSHALL MERRY-GO-ROUND

Marshall has a "steel-trap mind." He can ask 20 newsmen what their questions are, then, without taking notes remember each question and answer it. . .Marshall told visitors biggest change he would make in State Department is in the foreign service. He left no doubt that he is down on wealthy bureaucrats. . .Two groups which feared Marshall's appointment most were the British Foreign Office and the reactionary wing of the American foreign service. The State Department now has some streamlined, up-to-date diplomats, but the actionary clique already has wheels in motion to snarl up Marshall. They plan to keep him so busy with details of the forthcoming Moscow conference that he won't get a chance to take a real look at his department before going abroad. When Marshall leaves for Moscow, he'll be embroiled for months, and the guard won't have to worry. . . State Department hand pleased with Marshall's appointment is Undersecretary Dean Acheson, who wants to resign but will stay on for six more or more if Marshall gives him a free hand at cleaning out deadwood.

Phants To Face Violets In Madison Square Garden Tonight

---Bobbing in Sports---

with

BOB GOLDWATER

New York, Jan. 12—It's taken a long time, but we've finally managed to calm down after viewing the most thrilling cage contest we can remember. Even in defeat the White Phantoms played a superior brand of basketball and certainly deserved a victory over LaSalle Saturday evening. But Fate and a diminutive guard named Bobby Walters thought otherwise.

It may be safely stated that Walters won the game for the Explorers. True, he only scored 16 of his team's total of 65 points, but twice he was personally responsible for sending the game into overtime by converting foul shots that tied the count with less than a minute remaining. His second such trial was certainly the most dramatic moment of the evening.

After Walters had deadlocked the score at 49-all at the end of the regulation 40 minutes, LaSalle jumped to a three-point margin at the start of the first extra session. The lead was reduced by a one-handed goal by Bob Paxton, termed in this morning's New York Times as "a tower of strength for Carolina all night," and another goal by Jim Hamilton put Carolina ahead by 53-52. The Explorers jumped to another three-point advantage but this time Jim White combined with Paxton to pull the Scottmen into a one-point deficit at 56-57. With a little over a minute left, the Philadelphians began a freeze act but Taylor Thorne stole the ball and passed off to White who dribbled in for a crip shot that put Carolina ahead. Two times in the remaining minute the Phants passed up free throws from the foul line, electing to retain possession. And possession they retained, until five seconds from the end when Walters broke up a freeze act and proceeded down court. Then came the drama!

Fouled while shooting, Walters had a chance to end the game one way or the other or to send it into another extra period. His first shot was good, tying the score at 58-58, and sending the partisan crowd of 6,151 into fits of joy. His second try bounced off the rim of the basket and this time the small band of Tar Heel followers demonstrated their happiness.

The second overtime started out even more one-sided than the first had done. Two quick field goals and a foul shot gave the Explorers a quick five-point advantage. Johnny Dillon, whose hook-shot was definite on the beam, thrilled the crowd with one of his specialty shots and Thorne sent a set shot swishing through the cords to pull the Phantoms within one point of LaSalle. Walters, adding insult to injury, tallied an unneeded two-pointer in the waning seconds and the ball game went into the pages of history.

Looking over our score-by-score account of the night's happenings, we find that the lead changed hands no less than 23 times and that the count was deadlocked 13 times . . . LaSalle's greatest margin was a four-point lead early in the contest while Carolina held a three-point advantage three times in the second half . . . the score was tied every two points from 26 up to 36 . . . LaSalle's six-foot-nine giant, Larry Foust, was held to seven points and even found himself outjumped by six-foot-three Bob Paxton on one jumpoff . . . on another occasion bouncing Bob received credit for a goal that looked as if it had been pushed in by Foust in a below-basket scramble.

Anyway, the White Phantoms played a wonderful game and should make things warm for NYU in Tuesday night's battle. The Violets are favored by 12 to 14 points but we have a feeling that they are in for a few surprises—and two of them are named Paxton and Dillon, especially the former since they already know a lot about the latter.

* * * *

Coach Tom Scott and his players expect to reach New York City today, having stayed overnight in Philadelphia's fashionable Warwick Hotel. Headquarters in the City will be at the New Yorker.

Incidentally, as rare as double-overtime cage contests must be (Life Magazine, with its recent article on the frequency of rarities, might know the exact figure), this was the second straight one that Coach Scott has witnessed, having scouted NYU last Thursday when the Violets edged out Duke in two extra sessions . . . We saw the first five points of the Blue Devil tilt last night, before taking off for New York, and all five went to Temple . . . Duke must have done some terrific sailing to down the Owls by the 59-56 count.

The trip north provided a homecoming for two of the players. Vic Seixas spent part of yesterday at home in Philadelphia and Norm Kohler will undoubtedly spend some of his New York stay at his Washington Heights home. Yours truly also found a few moments in which to drop in on the folks.

Mittmen Prep For Cavaliers

Boxers Participate In Several Sports

By Jim Pharr

The University of Virginia boxing team may not know it, but they're going to tangle with several fine all-around athletes when they come here to do battle with Coach Mike Ronman's ring squad January 18.

The Tar Heels can count several ex-football, basketball and tennis players among their number. What's more, the Carolina mittmen have plenty of experience in actual ring contests, which will count in their favor during the coming season. Most of the boxers fought on high school teams, as well as on service teams during the war.

Take, for instance, Charles Lambeth, who hails from Thomasville, N. C. Fighting in the 130-pound class, Lambeth is as fine an athlete as they come, having lettered in several sports in high school.

Sugar Bowler

Charles has already proved his definite ring ability to an enthusiastic audience at the Sugar Bowl battle in New Orleans. Fighting Syracuse's Walter Bowe in the feature bout of the evening, he staged a smooth attack and won a draw decision.

Football was probably Lambeth's main forte during his high school days. Besides being a letterman on the gridiron, he was selected as all-South Piedmont conference quarterback for two years. In 1942 he was seelcted on the high school All-State football team.

When basketball season came around, he proved his athletic ability again. Lettering in basketball, he made All-Conference in the cage sport for one year while in high school.

Tennis Star

During the spring, Charlie's interest is in tennis. He held his high school conference doubles tennis title for two years. Hoping to continue his prowess on the college courts, he expects to go out for Coach Kenfield's team this year.

Charlie built up quite a creditable record in sports while in the Navy. And now that he's back at Carolina to finish his education, he hopes to continue his winning ways.

And Charles Lambeth is but one example of the strong ring squad Coach Ronman is quietly preparing for its curtain-raiser with the Cavalier mittmen.

Jayvee Cagers Take 54-27 Win at Maxton

The Jayvee cagers of Lew Hayworth made it three in a row by taking a 54-27 victory over the Presbyterian Junior College five in a game played at Maxton Saturday night.

Junie Bailey paced the Tar Heel five, dropping in eleven points with Fred Swartsburg running a close second with a total of 10 points.

The first ten minutes of play were close but from then on in the Jayvees' powerhouse attack and tight knit defense took its toll and the Junior College five was never again in the game.

Only three of the Presbyterian boys were able to break into the scoring column with Kelly and Steed scoring ten points apiece.

The fine defensive work of Buster Stevenson, Fred Swartsburg and Jack Fitch in controlling the rebounds was commendable in what otherwise was a listless game.

The Jayvees will seek their fourth straight victory in a game with Sanford American Legion at Sanford Friday night.

Frosh Cagers Travel To Danville Tonight

Frank Murray's freshman basketball team travels to Danville, Va., tonight to take on the strong George Washington High School team.

The Tar Babies will be seeking their third consecutive win and their probable starting five will be the same as the one that took the floor against Durham High School: Pete Peters and Charlie Nichols at the forwards, Sandy Hoff at center with Bill Harrington and Bill Walker at the guards.

Other members of the team making the trip are Kenny Curtis, Gordon Sauls, Bill Childress, Junius Idol and Johnny Reagan.

The George Washington team is coached by Al Mathes, former Tar Heel basketball and baseball great.

"DADDY OF THEM ALL" Jim Hamilton, above, is one of the newcomers to the White Phantom basketball club this season. Hamilton, a former star at Kansas State Teachers college, is a starting forward and is one of the mainstays of the Scott-formation. His work as a fast-break scoring threat has been outstanding.

High Scoring Contests Spark Mural Cage Play

Pi Lam, KA, and Phi Delt Overwhelm Opposition in Impressive Victories

Wide-open and high scoring contests featured the afternoon's activity yesterday as the mural cage season rolled into its second day.

Pi Lam No. 2 amassed the top total of the day as they dropped some twenty-odd field goals to snow Delt Sig No. 2, 50-26. Other big scores of the afternoon were made by KA No. 3, in topping St. Anthony, 44-13, and by Phi Delt No. 2, in shellacking Beta No. 2, 46-8.

In other games, Beta No. 1 edged Kappa Sig, 26-22; Pi Kappa Sig downed Chi Phi, 31-13; Zeta Psi dropped Phi Gam No. 2, 38-15; and ATO No. 1 won easily over Kappa Sig No. 2, 44-26.

Elsewhere, BVP No. 1 defeated Whitehead, 33-18; Independent stopped Stacy, 37-26; Chi Psi trounced Zeta Psi, 42-7 and Kappa Sig No. 1 beat DKE No. 2, 30-16. Alexander No. 2 won by forfeit from PBC in the other game of the day.

Scottmen Seek Sixth Triumph

Cagers Face Tough Opponent in NYU

By Bob Goldwater

New York, Jan. 13 — More determined than ever after Saturday's overtime defeat in Philadelphia, Carolina's White Phantoms run up against the class of the East tomorrow evening when they meet an old court rival, New York University, in the feature attraction of a Madison Square double-header.

Seeking their sixth victory in nine starts, the Carolina cagers will be playing in what looms as their toughest tussle of the complete schedule since they will be up against a revenge-bent team considered to be among the top quintets in the country and having the advantage, however slight, of performing on a familiar court. The Violets, currently boasting a classy 8-1 record, will attempt to sooth the wounds caused by two drubbings at the hands of Carolina last season—the second one in the NCAA tournament.

Same Starting Five

For Carolina the starting lineup will consist of the same five players who have opened the last seven tilts. This puts Bob Paxton, high scorer Saturday night with 19 points, and Jim Hamilton at the forward posts, Johnny Dillon at center, and Jim White and Norm Kohler in the guard berths. Kohler, a local lad from Washington Heights, played freshman ball at LIU in 1941 along with his twin brother Stan. Dillon, who averaged 16 points in four games here last year, is a great favorite with Garden fans, who remember how his brilliant hook shot contributed 21 points in one of the Carolina triumphs over NYU last season. Also certain to see action are guard Taylor Thorne, forward Dick Hartley and center Sherman Nearman, the only subs who played against LaSalle.

For the Violets, whose last outing resulted in a 64-61, double-overtime victory over Duke last Thursday evening, the starting lineup will place Dan Forman and Joe DeBonis at forward, six-foot-five Dolph Schayes at center, and Sid Tannenbaum and Ray Lumpp at the guard positions. Lumpp has been the high man on the scoring pole throughout the campaign, registering most of his tallies on long set shots.

Congress Begins Work On Anti-Bribery Law

Washington, Jan. 13—(UP)—Congress turned its attention to the world of sports today with the introduction of a bill calling for heavy penalties against bribery in athletics.

The legislation was introduced by Representative Edward Hebert — a Louisiana Democrat. It provides for a maximum penalty of $10,000 fine and 10 years in jail for any person attempting to bribe either players of officials.

Under the Hebert Bill anyone who promises, offers or gives anything of value to any employee or official to influence the outcome of a game will be given the maximum penalty.

Top Nazi to Be Tried Before British Court

Venice, Jan. 13—(UP)—Another of the top commanders of the Nazi war machine soon will be tried as a war criminal.

The British High Command in Italy announced today that Marshal Albert Kesselring will go on trial before a British military court in Venice next month.

Veterans May Secure Credit Reports Now

Cherry Favors Highest Raise Of 20 Per Cent

Says Greater Hikes Threatens Budget

Raleigh, Jan. 14—(UP)—Governor Cherry has said that he would not favor more than 20 per cent pay raise for teachers and state employees—even if a joint House and Senate Conference Committee should iron out the so-called inequalities in the proposal for a greater increase.

The governor says more than a 20 per cent raise would throw the salary schedule and budget out of balance. He says he considered the amount of increase with the Budget Commissions, and 20 per cent seemed to be the fairest amount possible.

Reappointed Representatives

House Speaker Tom J. Pearsall says when the House receives formal notice tomorrow that the Senate has failed to concur in the House amendment for a higher pay raise, he will appoint five representatives to the conference committee.

The Senate has turned down the House salary increase plan by a vote of 31 to 19. The upper chamber originally passed the bill recommended by the governor—giving an average 20 per cent raise—but the House amended it to give 30 per cent in the lowest bracket, 25 per cent in the middle pay scales, and $45 a month to persons making between $2700 and $6600 a year.

Clark Accuses Lewis Of Insulting U. S.

The Supreme Court, Jan. 14—(UP)—Attorney General Tom Clark has accused John L. Lewis and his mine union of insulting the United States and inviting mob rule by refusing the call off of the coal strike last fall. Clark told the Supreme Court that the strike caused near-disaster. The Attorney General personally handled the government's contempt case before the high court. Attorneys for Lewis and his union denied they had defied the government. They charged the government's action was illegal.

Major Airlines Feel Air Travel Slump

New York, Jan. 14—(UP)—Most major airlines agree that air travel has slumped considerably in recent weeks, but they don't expect the decline to continue. They blame the slump primarily, on an overall recession in business, and only partly on recent crack-ups.

The President of the United Air Lines—W. A. Patterson—says that it will take at least three years to install all the devices necessary for flying safety.

Atlantic Shipping Disturbed by Storm

New York, Jan. 14—(UP)—An eight day North Atlantic storm which has reached hurricane proporations has thrown shipping far off schedule. Ships arriving in New York were 17 hours to five days late, and a disabled fishing trawler with 17 men aboard is missing for the fourth day about 200 miles off Boston.

United Steel Workers File Strike Notices

Flynn Talk Cancelled; IRC Presents Izzedin Tonight

IRC Introduces World Authority On Arab Nations

Conflicts of world interest in the Middle East will come into sharp debate this evening when Dr. Nejla Izzedin, prominent woman authority on the Arab countries, speaks at 8:30 o'clock in the Graham Memorial main lounge.

Dr. Izzedin's address will be sponsored by the International Relations club and refreshments will be served at a reception following the meeting. Now on a tour for the Carnegie Peace foundation, the speaker is associated with the Arab League's Washington office and was a delegate to the San Francisco world conference.

"We hope that everyone will take advantage of this opportunity to hear this outstanding Arab woman scholar," said IRC President Betty Anne Green. "Reports from other universities where Dr. Izzedin has spoken refer to her as one of the most successful speakers ever sponsored by the Carnegie foundation."

Dr. Nejla Izzedin is a member of the prominent Lebanon Druze family, Arab leaders and scholars for the past 500 years. She has studied at the American University of Beirut, the Lycee Racine in Paris, Vassar college and the University of Chicago and has taught political science and Arab history for many years at various near eastern universities.

The International Relations club has sponsored in past years such prominent leaders as Senator Joseph Ball and former ambassador to Japan, Joseph Grew. In addition to their speaker programs, the IRC conducts faculty forums and intercollegiate meetings on foreign affairs.

Dr. C. H. Pegg, professor of history, is faculty adviser to the student organization, which meets regularly every Monday evening in Graham Memorial for round table discussion.

'Will Want to Hang Me' Says Bilbo of New Book

(By United Press)

New Orleans, Louisiana—Senator Theodore Bilbo has laid bare some of the writings in his soon-to-be published book, "Take Your Choice—Segregation or Mongrelization." And "The Man" says some of it will make some persons in Washington want to hang him.

One thing that Bilbo will say in his book is this: "I entertain no hatred or prejudice against any human being on account of his race or color—God made them so."

But he will add: "It is indeed a sorry white man or white woman who, when put on notice of the inevitable result of mongretization of their race, are yet unwilling to put forth any effort to save themselves and their offspring from this great and certain calamity."

And he'll wind up: "You must take your choice."

Five chapters of the book already have been galley-proofed. It has an introduction written by Colonel Ernest Sevier Cox, of Richmond, Virginia, who is author of the book "White American." The preface written by Bilbo himself, reads:

"This. . . is not a condemnation or denunciation of any race, white, black or yellow."

UVA Invites McIver Coeds To Entertainment Tonight

The University Veterans association will inaugurate a new series of weekly entertainments tonight at 8 o'clock in the new veterans' club. Coeds of McIver dormitory will be the guests at the party.

The open houses will be on the same order as those given by the UVA in the NROTC armory last quarter and are planned to continue through the winter quarter, Jim Farlow, business manager of the club has announced.

Special Program

A special program of entertainment has been arranged for intermission of the dancing tonight. Starting at 9:30, Pinky Barnes, as master of ceremonies, and Gwen Hughes, well-known campus songstress, will lead off the bill on entertainment accompanied by Bob McDonald at the piano.

McDonald, a boogie-woogie artist, will also play some of his special arrangements.

Don Shields, who has made a name for himself at previous entertainments, will appear again with imitations. Rounding out the program will be the Gordon twins and their harmonica combination.

Campus Competition Begins In March of Dimes Tomorrow

Coeds to Keep Collections Table in Y; Solicitors Will Canvass All Dormitories

Tomorrow marks the inauguration of the local March of Dimes drive on the Carolina campus as a student committee begins the campaign to reach a $5,000 quota.

Working hand in hand with the committee in charge of the community drive, the campus campaign, sponsored by the Daily Tar Heel, will feature competition between the men's and women's dormitories, fraternities and sororities, and other campus groups. Coeds will be on duty in the Y to collect money from students living in town and all others desirous of donating additional money to the drive. Individual solicitors will cover the rest of the campus.

Students are requested to make the drive more successful than ever before in its history by contributing a dollar instead of a dime to the march against polio, the nation's most dreaded disease. If each student will contribute one dollar, the student committee expects little difficulty in going over the top in the drive.

The money collected in Chapel Hill will be used to help purchase an iron lung for infantile paralysis victims. It will also go towards caring for those now suffering from the disease and any future victims. Since latest figures reveal that it costs seven dollars daily to treat a polio victim, it is apparent that much money must be collected this year. Thousands of items are needed in hospitals throughout the country.

Has Spent $20,000,000

In the eight years of its existence the National Foundation has authorized nearly $20,000,000 for research, epidemic aid and education. Funds from the March of Dimes made this possible.

Half of the sum contributed to the March of Dimes is retained by the local chapter for care of infantile paralysis patients. The other half goes to national headquarters for research, training and education, and emergency aid in epidemics.

DTH Staff Pictures To Be Taken Today

All regular members of the business, editorial and news staffs of the Daily Tar Heel are asked to attend a staff meeting this afternoon at 3 o'clock in the office. Pictures for the Yackety Yack will be taken.

Dormitory Rooms Will Be Searched

Bill Smith, University manager of dormitories reiterated yesterday his warning to students that an investigation of all dormitory rooms for illegal electrical appliances will be made in the immediate future.

Keeping of hot plates, electric coffee pots, flat irons and all electrical devices other than lamps and radios in dormitory rooms is a violation of University rules, Smith pointed out. He advised that owners of such items send then home immediately.

All contraband electric items found in rooms will be confiscated by the investigators and will not be returned until the end of the quarter.

The first meeting of the new series of figure sketch classes met last night in Person hall under the instruction of Joe Rankin.

The class was first organized during the fall quarter to meet the desires of interested persons who wanted to draw but were unable to enroll in one of the regular studio classes.

Meetings will be every Tuesday and Thursday evening from 7 to 10 o'clock. Further information is obtainable from Miss Lynette Warren in her office at Person hall art gallery.

SCHW Meets Tonight In Graham Memorial

The Southern Conference for Human Welfare will hold its first meeting of the year tonight, at 7:30 in the Horace Williams lounge of Graham Memorial. Elections of new officers for the quarter will be held and members and friends are urged to attend.

Floridians to Form State Club Tomorrow

All University students from Florida are invited to attend the organizational meeting of the Florida club at 7:30 tomorrow evening in Roland Parker lounge of Graham Memorial.

Officers will be elected at this meeting an dplans for future activities will be made.

Duke Band Concert Postponed by Exams

The Duke Ambassadors will not appear here in concert tomorrow night as announced in the Daily Tar Heel yesterday. Due to exams at Duke University the Ambassadors will not come here, under Graham Memorial sponsorship until early next month.

Word was received at press time last night that Elizabeth Gurley Flynn (above) who was scheduled to speak this evening is seriously ill in Richmond, Va., and will not be able to fulfill her engagement. The CPU expects to present Miss Flynn at a later date.

Peace Group To Be Formed

World Federalists Will Convene Today

David Andrews, one of Carolina's many world federation advocates, announced today that student advocates for federal world government will get under way this afternoon with a meeting of all interested students at 4:15 in the Grail room of Graham Memorial.

The purpose of this open meeting of all who are interested in world government as a possible means for preserving peace, is to discuss ways to present world federation facts and ideas to the campus with a minimum of organizational red-tape.

Cooperate with Others

They hope to accomplish this end by making full use of the facilities for campus discussion and outside speakers offered by existing student organizations, such as the Dialectic senate and Philanthropic society, the Carolina Political union and International Relations club, and the American Veterans committee. Members of these and similar groups are especially urged to attend the meeting this afternoon.

FROM WAR TO PEACE

Boston (UP)—A rumpus-room target rifle has been developed by Melvin M. Johnson, Jr., whose semi-automatic rifle and light machine gun earned him the acclaim of the Allied military services in World War II.

Communist Leader Is Seriously Ill; To Appear Later

Word was received just prior to press time last night that Elizabeth Gurley Flynn, chairman of the woman's committee of the Communist party, would not be able to speak as scheduled this evening. The announcement was made by Jerry Davidoff, chairman of of the Carolina Political Union, which was to have sponsored Miss Flynn's talk.

Davidoff stated that he had just received word from Richmond that the Communist leader, a regular columnist on the Daily Worker, had been taken seriously ill in the city.

The address, which had aroused much interest on the campus, was due to have been delivered in Gerrard hall this evening to an expected capacity audience.

May Come Later

The last minute cancellation had been effected when Miss Flynn's southern tour manager called to report the illness and to state that Miss Flynn hoped to fulfill her engagement by speaking at the University upon her recovery, Davidoff told the Daily Tar Heel.

Miss Flynn's talk, the first in this year's CPU speaker presentation series, was expected to have been followed several weeks later by an address by Oregon's Republican Senator, Wayne Morse. No further details on that matter were available.

York Calls Meeting Of Dormitory Council

Men's Interdormitory Council will meet tomorrow night at 7:30 o'clock in section 1 of Roland Parker lourge in Graham Memorial. Ed York, president, has called the meeting to dispense with several important items on the agenda. Yackety Yack pictures will be taken at 8 o'clock. All dormitory counselors and presidents are requseted to be present.

British Increase Palestine Troops

Cairo, Jan. 14—(UP)—British troops in Palestine have been increased to almost 100-thousand by the arrival of a bridgade from Egypt. The transfer comes at a time when the British are reported to be preparing for a showdown with the Jewish underground.

UNC Alumnus Johnson To Address Convocation

UN Representative to Speak January 24; All 11 o'clock Classes Will Be Excused

First student convocation of the quarter will be held Friday morning, January 24. Herschel V. Johnson, University alumnus and at present United States representative at the meetings of the Security Council of the United Nations, will deliver the address.

Classes usually held at eleven o'clock will be omitted on that day.

Second in Series

Mr. Johnson's address will be the second in the series of University Convocation addresses inaugurated by Professor R. D. W. Connor on December 4, 1946, when he spoke on "A State Experiment in Higher Education."

A third convocation address is scheduled for February 26, which will be given by Dr. Paul Lehman, associate religious book editor of the Westminister press of Philadelphia. Two addresses are being planned for the spring quarter, but as yet the speakers and topics are not ready for announcement.

Long Career as Diplomat

Johnson, an alumnus of the University of the class of 1916, has attained a place of conspicuous distinction and responsibility in the diplomatic service of his country. From graduate work at Harvard he entered the diplomatic service in 1920. During his career in the foreign service he has held diplomatic posts in various countries of the world including Switzerland, Honduras, Mexico, England, Sweden and Bulgaria in addition to service in the Department of State in Washington where he was Chief of the Division of Mexican Affairs from 1930 to 1934.

From this post he was transferred to London serving sucessively as first secretary of embassy, counselor of embassy and counselor with the rank of minister.

In England, Sweden

At numerous important junctures in the fateful first years of World War II he was the responsible head of the United States embassy in London as charges d'affaires ad interim. In 1941 he was appointed United States minister to Sweden and remained there to the end of the war. Since the organization of the United Nations he has represented the United States at the meetings of the Security Council at Lake Success, New York.

Free Darkroom Instruction Offered by Graham Memorial

Free instruction in photography and lab work is the recent offer coming from C. B. Brasington, manager of Graham Memorial's student darkroom. The course is open to all students who wish to develop and print their own pictures.

Brasington will be in the Graham Memorial office every week day afternoon from 1 until 2 to arrange for the free lessons, give out darkroom membership cards and discuss any problems that might arise in student photographic work.

The darkrom has undergone repairs and improvements during the past month and is now open for the benefit of students interested in doing their photographic work," Brasington stated. "If anyone wants to learn, I'll be here to teach them."

Completely Stocked

The darkroom is completely stocked and chemicals, trays, tanks, enlarger, print dryer and other necessary equipment. A fee of 15 cents will be charged for the purpose of helping to offset the expense of chemicals and equipment.

Any student may get a darkroom card by calling during the hours listed above by Brasington. He expressed the hope that all students interested make a point of learning to develop and print their own pictures.

Absurd Conflicts

If any further evidence be necessary that we need a central agency on this campus through which all schedule programs would have to be cleared, one need only look at tonight's jumbled program.

The International Relations Club is sponsaring a speech by Dr. Nejla Izzedin, one of the foremost woman scholars in Arabia, in Hill hall tonight.

At the same time, the Carolina Political Union is presenting a speech in the Graham Memorial Lounge by Elizabeth G. Flynn, chairman of the women's committee of the communist party.

Both of these speakers should prove very interesting. Undoubtedly, many students are desirous of hearing both speeches, but it will not be possible because the organizations have crossed wires and are both presenting their speakers at the same time.

If a central agency were appointed to handle arrangement of all dates for the numerous campus programs in advance, such abusurd conflicts could be avoided. This newspaper has been campaigning for some time for the creation of such an organization, which would benefit everyone concerned, and prevent things like tonight's unfortunate occurence.

The UVA is also holding open house tonight, which offers a third major attraction for interested students. People on this campus do not have one-track minds. They like good speeches, good music, good entertainment. A central clearing house would see to it that various extra-curricular programs would not all be presented at the same time. It would avoid useless confusion. It should be created now.

Nothing Radical

As expected, a few intolerant reactionaries who hate to see Carolina holding forth as "stronghold of liberalism" are spreading an alarmist cry over the appearance of Elizabeth Gurley Flynn, women's committee chairman of the Communist party, as CPU sponsored speaker on the campus tonight. A larger group has voiced fear and a little anxiety over "what will the legislature think?"

We urge you ti discount the propaganda of both of these groups. We urge you to go to hear Miss Flynn this evening, take part in the discussion and question period afterward, and then draw your own conclusions.

We do not believe in Communism or any of the policies Communists stand for, or the methods in which they carry out their policies. But, we relish this opportunity to hear one of the highest officers in American communist circles and get a personal inside slant on the party. The question period after Miss Flynn's talk on the position of the Communist party in the United States today should be especially enlightening. This has always been one of the outstanding features of CPU programs.

In bringing Miss Flynn here to the union is doing nothing radical or out of the ordinary. They are merely continuing their longstanding policy of presenting speakers of all political viewpoints as laboratory material to aid students in understanding the national scene. Indeed, though the Carolina Political union is set up as a non-partisan political group, a check of its roll at present will clearly indicate they lean right of center in their political outlook as a whole.

The campus should receive Miss Flynn in the same constructive spirit as they received Norman Thomas and Klan wizard Hiram Evans several years ago.

To repeat: We don't like any of them, and we don't like communism, but we're going to hear Miss Flynn tonight with an open mind.

Let's give our government our best thinking, not just a a piece of our mind.

Keep your temper—nobody wants it.

Uncommon Sense....

Campus Political Parties Should Realign Their Ranks

By Eddie Allen

A wise man once said that it is difference of opinion that makes horse races.

Were that intelligent (i.e., nongambling) gentleman to turn his attention to politics, he might apply his axiom to political races—except for the fact that in an unfortunate number of instances he would be wrong.

A sure-fire cure for inflamed supporters of any aspiring party is to ask him the simple uestion:

"Just how is your party basically and distinctively different in its goals and ideologies from the rival party?"

At that point, unless he by chance is the possessor of a Mark Sullivan digest for the past decade—along with the clandestine memoirs of our nation's party chairmen—he more than likely will flounder into an abyss of futile fuming and generalities.

All too often ballot battles are waged over the mere question of the "Outs" wanting "In" and the "Ins" wanting to retain the official cushioned seats for their official cushioned posteriors. An example of such monumental mob psychology is evident in each of the past two national elections.

The fall of 1944 found the then-powerful Democrats appealing to the equestrian urge among its constituents, urging them not to change horses in the middle of the stream.

Last November the Republicans reverted to infantile three-cornered strategy, cooingly and suggestively inquired of the American public: "Want a change?"

All of which is nothing to anyone who has observed the political cycle over the years. The Republicans get "in," stay long enough for the Democrats to convince the populace that a grand mess is being made of things, then the see-saw swings back and forth, ad infinitum.

But at least national party leaders can point to a few slabs of whole-grain wood in their platforms, even if they are the type which miraculously disappear with the inaugural oaths.

On the Carolina campus the only evidence of party differentiation (party: an obscure being akin to the groundhog which appears for a few weeks previous to fall and spring elections, then hibernates again) would seem to be the wearing of a bauble which distinguishes the fraternity from the nonfraternity men. "Greek" elections have been the order of the day on this campus for a great number of years, although with the new cosmopolitan aspect of the student body there at last seems some hope of a renaissance.

At the risk of taking a cue from most other editorializers infesting these pages, and being blindly critical, it would seem that among all the admitted shortcomings of the present student government, lack of a distinctive and carefully-considered platform by either party is in most urgent need of reform.

As it is there are few who will gainsay the fact that elections at Carolina are run on a "personality" basis alone. Such is necessarily the case to a certain degree. Yet would it not be practical to require the rival parties to submit a well thought-out platform — in ample time previous to election day—to allow students to know WHY they are voting for Norm Dorm or Joe Greek and for what they stand?

In addition, outside of exterior legislation, the parties should take it on themselves to ask rhetorically a reason for their existence, should realign their ragged ranks by work and attempt to serve the purpose for which they were intended.

Strictly Detrimental....

Advantages of Tabloid DTH Would Be Numerous, Helpful

By Jud Kinberg

Criticism of the campus critics has rightfully centered on their pe... ability to suggest nothing constructive. It is a simple and soul-infl... practice to take sideswipes without having to be concerned with a subst... for what the columnist would tear down. All columnists fall into the ... at some time and in this and future columns, I hope to extricate myself f... it. Plan Number One: Much has been written about the Daily Tar Heel. T... much damning and too little praise for the job presently being done i... tone of the criticism. I believe that general student apathy towards the paper can best be dispelled by a radical change.

The best change in the "radical" category would include makeup, size and format. More and more universities have turned to tabloid form. A tabloid-size DTH would be a novel and arresting newspaper.

Instead of the four large pages, there would be eight of half the size. This tabloid format makes possible greater concentration of important stories, greater "play" for all stories. The DTH as it is now cannot give adequate prominence to the many stories it must print. For all practical purposes, the bottom half of the front-page is dead space. That this is true is shown by the high degree of listless feature stories which wind up down there.

An ad-full, L'il Abnered back page makes it impossible to give any adequate space to stories which are relegated to it by lack of front-page room.

No matter what the amount of stories, the third page is completely devoted to sports. Many days there is not enough good copy to justify use of the entire page for this one genre, but custom and usage bar the third page to any other style of reporting.

The answer to more complex campus newspaper needs, then, seems to be the tabloid. With eight pages, there is much larger opportunity ... highlighting newsworthy report... Every page can have its big headli... its "big" stories. Ads can be spa... out so that they don't dominate ... single page. The result will b... "punched-up" presentation of stra... news stories. Addition of the four pages will bring more intensive organization of news material. One page can be devoted to organizational activities making it possible for those interested to quickly find the pertinent articles. Specific item readers will no longer have to search through a welter of current news features and UP releases.

Reduction in size will also mea... that the sport page can prune its stories more closely. During seasons when there is a heavy volume of sports copy, this section can expa... onto two pages. But there will ... longer be the pressing necessity ... plug up holes in a large-sized fu... page.

In proposing this major change I realize that the problems confronting any tabloid pioneers are real, pressing and formidable. It will probably take until the summer or next fall before all the pre-changeover bugs could be eradicated. But it is a plan which presents so many tangible advantages that it demands serious consideration.

Carolina Merry-Go-Round

By Bob Jones and Bill Robertson

In Tuesday's issue of The Tar Heel there appeared an article by Earl Heffner advocating a "good old-fashioned two-party system for the South." The article begins with a brief historical review which gives no explanation of causes. It continues with a discussion of the present situation which I quote in part: Lately the situation has become more acute. Perhaps it is the maturation of the mind that makes this seem so. Whether this be true or no, evidence is mounting that the South, potentially the rich frontier of the nation, is yet suffering postwar effects of not World War II, but the Civil War.

The article ends on a note of hope for the future based on the possibilities of the development of a two-party system.

It is quite true that the present one-party system in the South does not satisfy the needs of the people. However, the explanation for this fact is not to be sought in the nature of the one-party system—but in the nature of the one party composing that system. The Southern Democrats of today are in large part serving the interests of The Southern Bourboss and Northern monopolists who are attempting to put a brake upon the economic development or, more precisely, the industrialization of the South.

Under the circumstances another party in the South is necessary—a party composed of all those groups suffering from political and economic domination. Principal among these groups are Southern small business, the workers, both agricultural and industrial, and the Negro people.

It is quite clear that the Republican Party—the party of Hoover, Morgan, et al., in no way expresses the interests of the people of the South. We shall therefore be forced to rely upon our own strength; but at the same time we should not hesitate to seek allies among those liberal political groups in the North who are organizing against our common enemy.

This article on a two-party system in the South has a realistic basis and it is possible that we shall hear more about the question in the future—not only in the columns of the Daily Tar Heel but in those of other liberal Southern newspapers.

We have already been informed by our colleague, Drew Pearson, that he has access to the friends of our new Secretary of State, General George Marshall. On Tuesday Pearson wrote the following:

Around Christmas time Marshall's friends made it clear that he was fed up with being a diplomat, did not relish becoming Secretary of State and wanted to retire to Virginia as soon as his job in China was finished.

Perhaps General Marshall's friends are sneering acquaintances of Mr. Pearson.—B.R.

ECHOES FROM THE football season still seem to linger at random, even as the basketball season reaches full steam on all courts. The latest come with the return of King Carl Snavely from his New York sojurn to the NCAA and coaches meeting. With Snavely came talk of practice, schedule, and bad official decisions.

Decision—now where have we heard that before? Oh yes, something about a Sugar Bowl game. . .And the latest on that still hot subject is a story from the pen of Fred Digby in the New Orleans Item. Digby quotes the infallible rule book to the extent that Headlinesman Gardner called the wrong penalty even if Powell had pushed Smith—which he didn't according to the Sugar Bowl movies. It's just another story to add to the already sad revelation of the Tar Heel defeat. . .And there's the story from New Orleans that the Sugar Bowl movies, entitled "The Great Sugar Bowl Robbery," are outdrawing Bing Crosby at the box office.

"I don't know what will be the story on practice, yet," said Snavely as he looked over his numerous speaking engagements before him. "I plan to have a meeting of the squad probably about next Monday, at which time we will formulate our plans."

The releasing of the schedule still is dependent upon the completion of negotiations on a couple of games, and these plans are expected to be wound up at an early date. . .It appears as though one of the three open dates has been filled, but with no announcement or confirmation. And it appears, too, that a game with State will have to wait another year now. Snavely, who takes no lead in arranging the schedules at all could only say "I think it will be a whale of a schedule if present plans materialize. . .Also added to the list of Tar Heels returning to play football again next year from the service are Joe Curtis, a fullback, and Bill Wardle, a guard. These are in addition to Al Bernot, a center, Paul Rizzo, a blocking back, Tom Gorman, a tailback, Bill Pritchard, an end, and Bill "Earthquake" Smith, a tackle. Frank Curran, a letterman in 1945 who started about half of the games at tackle, may also be back in grid togs by spring.

"Coach Bob" Fetzer, the Carolina athletic director who did such a commendable job in the Sugar Bowl preparations, said yesterday that he was working as fast as possible on the slate, but that there was nothing to announce still. . .It's one of the toughest things in collegiate athletic circles, this arranging a schedule, and this year schools all over the country are having trouble getting things ready—what with so many institutions dropping teams and adding others, everybody trying to get a good representative card.

The sports editor of the Duke Chronicle, H. E. Beaudouin, whose article we recently quoted, had something about our mutual friend the other day—Gabe Hill. Said Beaudouin, who very appropriately tags him "Gabe the Goof" opined that he was "just out of his league." And nothing more true could be said.

At least we agree on that, H. E.

CORRECTION PLEASE: Those were not the complete Sugar Bowl pictuces that were shown at Durham as Durham as reported by the Durham Herald yesterday. They were only parts of the game and some shots taken at Edgewater Park, Miss., where the team was working out. . .Carolina will get complete movies of the game from the Sugar Bowl committee and we will have them shown as soon as possible when they arrive. . .It is hoped that we can put them on in Memorial hall as we did the Miami and Navy movies, and latest information on progress on the project will be forthcoming. . .The boxing team received a jolt last week with the loss of Max Spellman through a broken hand. Spellman was expected to box heavyweight, with Ed McGee moving to 175. Spellman was a footballer, you know, and his work in getting the Tar Heel pass defense ready for Georgia was outstanding. He was beginning to look like Trippi passing before the practices were over. . . Ed James, who has just been named as head coach at Cornell, was assistant to Snavely here at Carolina in 1934 and 1935. . .The White Phantoms will return to Chapel Hill early Thursday morning from their northern swing to Philadelphia and New York.

Ranson To Be Set In Field

Seligman Expected To Break Records

When asked about prospects in the shot put and discus for this winter yesterday Coach Dale Ranson's eyes lit up and he said that the school record in both these events will be eclipsed in the first meet of the season by Big Bob Seligman.

Seligman, a sophomore from Brooklyn, N. Y., packs 220 pounds on his better than six-foot frame. In 1945 while in the V-12 Navy program at Georgia Tech he paid the University a visit for the Indoor Games and walked off with the Shot put title with a heave of 46 ft. 6 in. He also copped the Southeastern conference discuss crown that year.

The University record for the shot is 47 ft. 7 in. and the discuss mark is 141 ft. 7 in. Seligman has already surpassed these marks in practice this year. Coach Ranson said "Bob, is the ideal boy to coach, for even with his major in chemistry giving him labs four afternoons a week, he manages to get his daily practice in the morning trying to improve himself in his events."

Seligman's success has been due to plenty of hard work and determination. When he was a freshman here in 1943 he was tossing the 16-pound iron ball only 35 feet.

Other men falling behind Seligman in the shot put are footballers Ted Hazelwood, Jack Fitch, B. K. Grow, Dick McDonald, Jim Hendricks, and Ernie Williamson. These boys are all in about the 42-foot class.

Other possibilities in this event are Jack Ross, Norm Durham, Wayne Morgan, Malcolm Fleischman and Izzy Solomon.

With this array of talent Coach Ranson is going into the track campaign with assurance that competition will not pull away from the Tar Heels in the weight events this year.

Any boys in school that would like to work with the weights are invited by the coaches to come down to the tin can any afternoon and work out.

The UNC badminton club will hold its first meeting of the winter quarter at 7:00 tonight at Woollen Gym, intramural director Walter Rabb announced yesterday.

The mural department will furnish all the necessary equipment as well as instructors to assist novices in learning the rules and techniques of play. All players are required to wear tennis shoes.

Tournaments will be conducted in men and women's singles and doubles and in mixed doubles. All are cordially invited to come and bring a partner.

Drew Signs Contract To Coach Crimson Tide

Tuscaloosa, Ala. Jan. 14—(UP)—Acting President Raph E. Adams of the University of Alabama has formally announced that Harold "Red" Drew has been signed as head football coach of the Crimson Tide.

Adams says Coach Frank Thomas will remain at Alabama as athletic director. The announcement confirms Drew's statement from the University of Mississippi at Oxford yesterday.

Dolphins Prep For Georgians

Buddy Crone Lost For Saturday Meet

With the all important Georgia Tech meet only four days off, Coach Dick Jamerson stepped up practice yesterday with long swims and many sprints in order to prepare the Blue Dolphins for the strong invaders from the Peach state. The Tar Heel mermen, with one conquest over Bainbridge already behind them, will be gunning for 27th home victory, and their 36th southern win.

Tech Strong

The strong Georgians, Southeastern Conference champions in their last meet before the war, boast of many stars and record-holders. Tech mentor Fred Lanoue will bring with him such outstanding swimmers as Johnny Hiles and the well-known Flowers boy. Hines is the freshman performer who is rated as the best distance swimmer in the South. Aquatic fans will recall that it was Flowers who last year twice defeated Bo Jenkins, the star backstroker of the Blue Dolphins. Other stars include Eustis, a veteran letterman and expert breast stroke man, and Thomas and Wolanbech, two soph sprinters. Among the Engineer record holders are McCauley, who holds the Tech-Carolina dual meet record in the 220, and Barret, possessor of the dual meet breast stroke title. Georgia Tech will swim against N. C. State Friday, and will give Jamerson an idea of what to expect Saturday afternoon at 2:30 P.M. in Bowman Gray Pool.

With all the good news flowing about the opposition, a touch of bad hit the Dolphin camp in the form of an injury to a star diver Buddy Crone. Crone's foot was hurt in practice recently, and he will be out of action for at least two weeks.

Wrestling Team Shaping Up For Opening Bout With VPI

With only two days remaining before the opening match of the season, the Carolina wrestling team will hold final eliminations this afternoon in order to determine the lineup to go against VPI at Blacksburg, Va., Saturday night.

Head Coach Chuck Quinlan and Assistant Hobie McKeever, a former Southern conference champ for Quinlan, have decided on all but two of the positions, and these will be decided this afternoon.

Leading the Tar Heels into their first battle will be co-captains Tommy Hearn and Dick Seaver, both of whom were lettermen and outstanding performers last season. Hearn was undefeated in six fights last year and participated in the National intercollegiate tourney. Seaver will be fighting at 145 and Hearn at 136.

Others to participate include Doug Thompson at 121, either Tom Earqhart or Whitey Smith at 128, Irving Zirpel at 155, Art Bluethenthal at 165, Bill Kemp at 175, and either Simpson or Stoioff at heavyweight. Bluenthenthal was also undefeated in six bouts last year.

"The boys have been working hard and show promise of having a good team," said Quinlan yesterday. "We have only had two weeks since the Christmas holidays to get back into shape, but they have done a good job in preparing for the opening meet."

Campus Co-op Grocety Group To Hold Purchasing Meeting

By Ken Rothwell

Continuing its campaign to aid students and townspeople in overcoming the problem of high living costs the Chapel Hill Buying club will hold a meeting Friday evening at 7:45 o'clock in 103 Bingham hall.

Main object of Friday's meeting will be to accept orders from co-op members for group purchases. Since at present the organization does not have a warehouse to break down supplies it will be possible to accept only orders in case lots.

Consolidated Orders

Co-op officials emphasized, however, that individual families are not expected to buy by the case. Rather it is asked that purchasers determine the needs of their neighbors and then present a consolidated order for two or three families at the meeting.

In addition to accepting orders John Campbell, co-op stock sales manager, will be present to sell co-op stock to those persons who are interested in becoming members.

Only $1.00 Per Share

"All that is requested of an individual in order to place a co-op order is the purchase of one share of stock at $1.00 per share. This stock not only entitles a person to make purchases but also pays dividends up to 5 per cent. We urge those who can, however, to purchase 10 shares, 5 each for husband and wife," explained Campbell.

Following consolidation of orders taken Friday purchases will be made at wholesale prices and it is expected that distribution will take place through neighborhood chairmen on Saturday, January 25.

McDade Heads Group

With Tom McDade as chairman and Dr. Frank Kottke as treasurer the plan was launched last November by a group of veterans alarmed by the problem of "making ends meet" in the face of high living costs. The organization has progressed rapidly to the point where it is today fully incorporated as the Chapel Hill Mutual distributors with some 181 stockholders and ambitious plans for the future. Included among these plans is the hope of owning their own store.

Like all co-ops the organization is open to all who purchase stock and no distinction is made between veteran and non-veteran. To date the co-op has filled two orders for students and hopes in the near future to expand this service greatly.

"We welcome all who have found the cost of living an increasing problem and sincerely hope that many new people will be on hand Friday night to help us and at the same time to help themselves," said McDade.

Arnall Fires Legal Action At Talmadge

Controversy Grows Between 'Governors'

Atlanta, Ga., Jan. 15 — (UP) — Georgia's Governor Ellis Arnall says that the state's attorney general at his request has filed a legal action to prevent rival Governor Herman Talmadge from maintaining an executive office in the state capitol.

Governor Arnall has refused to reveal the exact nature of the legal action. It will have to be filed in Henry county, Georgia, Herman Talmadge's legal residence.

Don't Obey Orders

Governor Arnall's adjutant general, Colonel R. W. Collins, also has issued an order of the day instructing state and national troops not to obey orders from Governor Herman Talmadge.

In turn, Talmadge appointed his own man head of the National Guard, a re-appointment of Marvin Griffin as adjutant general. Both Collins and Griffin clamped on military security with respect to the strength of their organizations. But it is reported that the National Guard—mostly armed with GI weapons—is lined u_ solidly behind Talmadge and the State Guard—outfitted by state purchases—is behind Arnall.

Standing Ground

Meanwhile, Arnall is standing his ground—staying in office. He says his resignation is effective when the duly elected lieutenant governor, M. E. Thompson, is qualified to succeed him. Thompson is to be formally qualified tomorrow. And there is the possibility that Arnall might immediately surrender his office to him and tell Thompson it's his fight from there on in.

Harris Named to Head Pay Raise Committee

Raleigh, Jan. 15—(UP)—House Speaker Tom Pearsall has named an evenly divided house committee of five to confer with the state senate delegates on the disputed emergency pay bill. Representative R. L. Harris of Person county, who did not vote on the house amendment which the senate rejected, will head the house conferees. The others are Representatives Arch Allen of Wake county and Taylor of Wayne, who opposed the amendment in the house, and Representatives Barker of Durham and Wallace of Lenoir, who supported it. Barker was the author of the controversial amendment.

Truman 'Much Alarmed' Over 'Burned Crosses'

Washington Jan. 15—(UP)—President Truman welcomed his committee on civil rights at its first White House meeting with a warning against a revival of "burned crosses" in some parts of the country. He said he is "much alarmed" by recent threats to civil liberties.

March of Dimes Canvass Opens Today Under Sponsorship of Daily Tar Heel

Student Committee Urges Every Student To Give One Dollar Toward Annual Drive

By Sam Whitehall

The 1947 infantile paralysis campaign begins on the Carolina campus today as student solicitors start the Daily Tar Heel-sponsored "March of Dollars"—campus counterpart of the nationwide March of Dimes campaign.

Seeking a contribution of one dollar from every student enrolled at the University, the student committee has set a quota of $5,000 to be reached by January 25. Spokesmen for the group have urged that each student give a dollar to the annual campaign.

Begin Canvassing

To collect the money, half of which will go to the national foundation, and half of which will remain in this county to go towards the purchase of an iron lung, student solicitors will start work in all dormitories, fraternities, and sororities today. Coeds will be on duty in the Y from 9-4 today and tomorrow and the first part of next week.

Solicitors will also canvass the trailer camp and Vetville areas for contributions. Donations from campus organizations will be welcomed and a list of such donations will be printed.

Biggest Campaign Ever

Plans to make this year's campaign, coming on the heels of the second worst epidemic of polio in the nation's history last fall, the biggest ever, have been completed and more announcements will be forthcoming next week, the campus committee announced yesterday.

"It's up to the members of the student body now," said Bill Woestendiek, DTH editor and student chairman of the drive. "We are confident the Carolina students will contribute generously to give those less fortunate a chance to walk and enjoy life once again.

"Still incomplete figures indicate the 1946 polio toll will exceed 20,000 victims, the vast majority of whom will have to depend on your contributions as the only means of restoration to health and future usefulness in their community. The money is vitally needed."

Run-Off Date To Be Selected By Legislators

Heading the agenda for tonight's Student Legislature meeting to be held at 7:30 in Gerrard hall, is the problem of setting a date for the run-off election between Bobby Broughton (UP) and Ed York (SP) for the post of representative-at-large to the Honor Council.

Neither Broughton nor York obtained a majority in last quarter's election, but the polling eliminated Al Lowenstein, an independent. It will be the job of the legislature to establish an early date for the run-off.

Warren to Address

Speaker Warren will open the session with a "State of the Campus" address in which he will report to the student solons concerning University affairs in general.

Following the speech, the oath of office will be administered to all members, and notebooks containing the by-laws issued to the newly-elected legislators. In this connection, Warren has sent a letter to all members explaining to them the primary purposes and procedures of the Student Legislature.

Scheduled to come up for settlement is the question of whether or not women lawmakers who failed to turn in financial statements of their campaign expenditures should be seated. Said Speaker Warren of this matter, "This is just a technicality and they should be seated."

Baby Sitting Aid Will Begin Today

A service of baby sitters for the families of University veterans, to begin today, is announced by the social service committee of the YWCA. The baby sitters may be contacted by going to the YWCA office on the second floor of the Y building where their names and telephone numbers are listed under the nights they are available.

The services of the baby sitters are without charge although taxi fare must be paid if the distance of the veteran's home from campus necessitates it.

Dorothy Maynor Acclaimed As 'Great Voice' in 1940

By Helen Highwater

Dorothy Maynor, noted American Negro soprano, who will appear in concert here Sunday night at 8:30 o'clock in Memorial hall, was first acclaimed as a great new singing voice by the nation in 1940. Discovered by Serge Koussevitzky in 1939, she soon proved herself to be worth many times more than the 20 dollars a week she was earning singing in church a mere half-year before her "discovery." In 1944, with her reputation well-established, she again sang in church—Washington, D. C.'s National Cathedral invited her to sing there on the fiftieth anniversary of the YWCA.

PM Praises

New York newspaper PM says of Soprano Maynor, "It is not merely the sure, stainless voice produced without any apparent effort, it is also one of the most likeable personalities on the recital platform."

Mother Craft Classes Will Be Started Here

The District Health Department announces the beginning of a series of classes in mother craft, to be held in their building on Fraternity row every Tuesday from next Tuesday, January 21, through March 25. The following program has been scheduled:

Jan. 21—Introduction to the course and instructions in knitting and crocheting soakers.

Jan. 28—Hygiene of pregnancy.

Feb. 4—Nutrition in relation to pregnancy.

Feb. 11—Supplies, equipment and layette.

Feb. 18—How the baby grows.

Feb. 25—Labor: explanation of hospital procedures.

March 4—Care of the baby. Bathing procedures.

March 11—Care of the baby. Methods of feeding.

March 18—Habit training.

March 25—The new family set-up.

Sound and Fury Group Starts Work Tonight

Sound and Fury will meet tonight at 8 o'clock in room 111, Murphey hall, to start work on a new musical comedy, as yet untitled, to be produced tentatively March 3, 4, and 5. All interested persons are urged to attend this meeting.

Tomorrow Is Deadline For Yack Photographs

Tomorrow is the last day that pictures are being made for the 1947 Yackety-Yack. Freshmen and sophomores may have their pictures made through Friday afternoon. All proofs must be returned to Wootten-Moulton's within five days after they are received.

FLORIDIANS MEET TONIGHT

The Florida club will be organized tonight in Section 1 of Roland Parker lounge in Graham Memorial. All University students from Florida are eligible for membership and are asked to be present for the election of officers and the planning of future club activities.

Ann Cutts Glad to Return After 'Ribbing' in Georgia

By Tomie Cates

Ann Cutts, 20-year-old senior from Cordele, Ga., says it is good to be back at Carolina after enduring the "ribbing" from all those University of Georgia students during the holidays. "I still wish I hadn't taken pity on them and refused those bets they offered giving me Carolina and 50 points," she said as she told how tired she got of hearing them say Carolina would be yelling for Mercy instead of Justice.

Ann, president of the Pi Beta Phi sorority, formerly from Raleigh, is a transfer from St. Mary's Junior college where she was president of the day students and president of the EAP Literary society. She was particularly outstanding for writing of short stories which appeared in the Bulletin, a student publication.

Pledge Class President

Entering Carolina in 1945, she became president of the Pi Beta Phi pledge class, was on the Women's Honor council and Student Orientation committee. Her junior year was climaxed when she was taken into the Valkyries, honorary women's organization, of which she is now vice-president.

Known by her sorority sisters as Foo-Foo, named after the president of the Mu Cow Mu sorority, created by Tookie Hodgson, the 5'5½" coed

Dim Prospects Seen For Flight Program

Plans For Flight Training Courses Take Back Seat to Expansion Program

By Ed Joyner

The University flight training program originally planned to start operation at the outset of the fall quarter and later postponed until the winter session, has been relegated to the comparative limbo of "improvements contemplated," an inquiry at the University business office revealed yesterday.

More pressing necessities of acquiring additional classrooms and more living space for students have pushed the flight program into the background of administrative attention for the time being, J. A. Williams, assistant business manager said in reply to questions concerning the project.

Slight Possibility

"There is still a slight possibility of getting things lined up so as to complete one class by June 10," Williams said. "In order to do this the program would have to start March 21, and it is very indefinite whether this can be arranged," he added.

Williams pointed out that putting the program into operation would entail the purchase of from four to six airplanes by the University. Qualified instructors for both ground school and actual flying training would also have to be found.

As originally planned the flight instruction program was to include courses in primary, multi-engine, commercial, instructing and instrument flying. Training would be given at University-owned Horace Williams airport and five to ten quarter hours credit would be allowed for the different courses.

GI Bill Ok'd

If the flight program is instituted here, student veterans will be qualified to include the courses in their curriculum under the G. I. bill. However, since the $500 yearly academic allowance provided by the government would not cover the complete costs of the courses, the veterans' educational eligibility period would be shortened in proportion to the additional expense beyond $500.

Morrison Calls Meeting Of Publications Board

The Publications Board will meet Wednesday afternoon at 3 o'clock in the Grail room of Graham Memorial. Students wishing to bring matters before the board at this time should submit their resolutions in writing to Robert Morrison, board president, in care of Graham Memorial.

Coed Senate Asks Editor For Handbook

Women's Visiting Is Also Discussed

The Coed Senate announced in its tenth session Tuesday night that letters of application for the editorship of the Woman's Handbook will be received until January 29.

Any coed interested in editing the pamphlet, which is published and distributed annually to prospective coeds in order to familiarize them with Carolina, is requested to include in her letter of application her experience in publications, her reasons in applying for the job and any ideas which she may have on methods of improving the present form of the booklet.

The letters, which may be addressed to Bettie Washburn, 204 Carr Dormitory, will be read to the Senate on January 29. The new editor will then be elected by the entire membership of the Senate.

No Coeds in Trailers

The Coed Senate was notified by Nonnie Morris, president of the Women's Interdormitory council, that all coeds should be advised that the trailers of single men are considered living quarters and hence fall under the social rule which prevents coeds from entering men's dormitories. Any coed who enters a trailer will be subject to a hearing by the Women's Honor council.

The Senate also was informed by Whit Osgood, president of the Interfraternity Council, that much unnecessary confusion has been brought about by various cases of graduate students remaining in fraternity houses after coed dormitory closing hours.

Rankin Named to Board

Peggy Rankin was elected Senate representative to the newly-organized Graham Memorial Board of Directors. Miss Rankin will serve with represen-

Broadfoot Resigns Head Of Chapel Hill AVC Group

Founder Appoints Junius Scales Chairman; Chapter to Elect New Leader Next Tuesday

Winston Broadfoot, chairman of the Chapel Hill AVC chapter since its founding here, announced Tuesday evening his resignation as chairman.

Junius Scales of Chapel Hill, appointed by Broadfoot to serve as temporary chairman, read a statement in which Broadfoot expressed his regret in having to take such action and in which he explained that the pressure of his law studies made it imperative that he take a less active part in AVC activities.

Will Remain Active

He emphasized his intention of remaining active and indicated that he would at every opportunity use his voice to aid the chapter. Scales explained that an election of a new chairman would take place at the next regular meeting on Tuesday evening, January 28.

Following this announcement Gerry Fullerton, national policy committee chairman, took the floor to report on his work in connection with the activities of the 80th Congress in Washington. At Fullerton's suggestion the chapter voted unanimously to send a letter of congratulations to Senator William B. Umstead of Durham on his appointment to office by Governor Cherry.

Bob Jones reported on current conditions at the University book exchange with regard to veterans' supplies.

Not Required

He pointed out that according to a veterans administration ruling the University is in no way required to establish book outlets other than its own.

Under new business the chapter voted to plan an extensive publicity campaign in line with AVC's national planning committee drive to increase GI subsistence benefits to $90 for single men and $125 plus $10 per child for married men.

Do Your Part

Starting today, every student on this campus will be given a chance to make a contribution to the great peacetime battle against infantile paralysis.

Anyone who has ever seen an infantile paralysis victim or had a friend or relative struck down by the dreaded disease needs no further incentive to join the drive against polio.

Coming in the wake of the second worst polio epidemic in our nation's history, the March of Dimes will unquestionably receive the greatest public support in history. Here on the Carolina campus, we honestly urge every student to make some contribution, however great or small.

The committee in charge of the campus drive has set up a $5,000 quota for the student drive. If every student will give but one dollar to this very worthwhile cause, the quota will be reached easily. It is not too much to ask.

By contributing a dollar, you are helping to provide adequate care for anyone stricken with the disease. The polio virus is one of the most dreaded foes of every American family. It strikes silently, swiftly, without warning, eating away nerve centers, wasting muscles, maiming limbs, taking lives. It is dangerous and unpredictable. North Carolina, for instance, reported 36 cases in 1943 and 861 in 1944. No one can say where or whom the disease will strike next.

It is not a disease that strikes children alone. Adults also fall victim to its ravages—which killed 10 per cent of the American public last year. Several years ago a local student felt ill on a Saturday afternoon. The next night he was dead—a victim of infantile paralysis.

You will spend no dollar this year more profitably and for better cause than the one you give to the "March of Dollars" on the campus this week. The value of the drive can not be overestimated.

Give generously, give proudly, give thankfully—to the 1947 infantile paralysis campaign.

Real Value

Last November a group of veterans launched a campaign to organize a campus grocery co-op.

Today their dream is becoming more and more a reality. Already incorporated as the Chapel Hill mutual distributors with some 181 stockholders, the organization has filled two orders for students and is planning further expansion.

Founded and based on a policy of combatting the high living costs in this area with no desire for personal gain, the co-op group is selling stock to all interested in becoming members. The group is open to both veterans and non-veterans alike. The organization is based on a policy of cooperation, and welcomes additional members and all suggestions.

The buyers club is meeting tomorrow night to discuss further plans in its struggle against the high living costs that make it so difficult for student buyers to make both ends meet.

The group will accept orders tomorrow night from co-op members. It will also sell stock to those interested in becoming members. One share of stock entitles a person to make purchases at lower prices and also pays dividends.

The grocery co-op is working hard to fill a decided need for such an organization on this campus. It offers an excellent solution to those many married students who are struggling against costs that threaten to exceed their incomes.

Battling against past tradition that has seen co-ops fail repeatedly, the grocery group is assuming an important role on the campus buying stage. Your support will help it grow. Its growth will help you.

The world's greatest thinkers have been amateurs; for high thinking is the outcome of fine and independent living, and for that a professorial chair offers no special opportunities.—Havelock Ellis.

Journalism on the Half-Shell....

Tabloid DTH Could Feature Cheesecake and Scandal

By Eddie Allen

That eminent and erudite carpetbagger, Jud Kinberg, who divides his trenchent literary style between the Carolina Mag and this paper, definitely has something in his proposal to present the DTH of the future in a studebakerized, tabloid format.

The grand-daddy of the modern generation of such mauve sheets, one recalls, was introduced to permit metropolitan subway travelers to get a touch-and-go look at the day's scandals—i.e., over the shoulder of some fellow commuter. Think of its corresponding possibilities at Carolina, a school with more lines than a gigolo's convention.

Aside from saving cross-word fiends from the necessity of creasing their copy several times in Polit. Sci. 42, it would be of untold value to those harrassed unfortunates who daily partake of their current events between egg and exit at Lenoir.

In all seriousness, Jud has aptly adjudged the probable value of a tabloid DTH, but the journalistic midwives attending its birth must proceed with caution worthy of a Caesarian. Otherwise it might go the way of ill-fated Bernarr McFadden's ill-fated Graphic, which died, oddly enough from an unbalanced diet specializing in viands femalis (cheesecake and scandal to you.)

Think of a Daily Tar Heel which, evolving into a tabloid, would also acquire the other attributes concurrent with journalism on the half-shell.

I can see it now. Instead of an impending meeting of the Phi assembly (that worthy organization characterized by the phrase: the Phi—why?) the Buck Rogerized DTH might record a heated dispute between President Dewey Dorsett and the student legislature. But not in everyday style would it be smeared across the pint-sized page one. With sensationalism as the keynote, it more likely would blare in gothic blackness:

"CHAMBER BREAKS WITH DORSETT!"

The editorial comment on the topics of the day might be a plea for the SCHW to drop its union suit again or—in light of the lead story—a demand for modernized plumbing in the legislative halls.

Continuing the style of the great New York News, the third inside page would be devoted to scandal. Aside for scouting reports from the bush league, the gee-whiz page probably would feature an account of a sensational poisoning in the chem lab. That would be headlined, natch:

"COED TAKES PILL AND PASSES."

But then a leading characteristic of tabloids is its resurrection of old and horrible crimes. Appropriate for the first eight-page issue would be such a story illustrated with the picture of a black-jowled criminal (in appropriate stripes) with the caption: "Gabe Hill, the fiend of New Orleans, in happier days."

There would be other pictures, a cut of the handkerchief that was not dropped on the scene of the crime and other relative state exhibits pertaining to the Great Louisiana Fraud. Headlining it all would be the banner:

"DID JUSTICE TRIUMPH?"

The answer to that being obvious, the reader would then turn to Li'l Abner, cut, of course, from four to two panels daily to stimulate reader interest. There would be several suggestive shots of Moonbeam McSwine and Daisy Mae and maybe even a glimpse of Mammy Yokum's knee for the graduate and law students.

With all space taken up by crime, sex and incest, (the latter an ad for Kings Row), there would be absolutely no room for the opinionated playboys now roaming page two. Instead of a debate between a conservative and a communist, there would be an article proclaiming (in crimson ink):

"THE OLD RED SCARE, IT AIN'T WHAT IT USED TO BE."

Which might not be bad. Buy a paper, mister?

SEC. BYRNES EMPLOYED UNIQUE STRATEGY IN WINNING RUSS TO FRIENDLIER TERMS; BYRNES' PATIENCE GRADUALLY BROKE DOWN MOLOTOV; HOW BYRNES OUTSMARTED YUGOSLAVS

Washington.—When the history of post-war peace is finally written, of the most important chapters will deal with the sudden improvement American-Russian relations in the late fall of 1946.

And with the resignation of the one man who sat all through those neg tiations, it is now possible to reveal some of the gripping, day-to-day dra by which Jimmie Byrnes, almost single-handed, accomplished this imp ment.

All during the sessions of the Paris Peace Conference, Molotov was nasty. He was deliberately, consistently, almost unbearably nasty. This writer, who watched part of the Paris Peace Conference, marveled at the way Jimmie Byrnes smiled back at the goading of the Soviet Foreign Minister.

Byrnes, however, surmised what probably was true; namely, that Molotov was acting under instructions from Moscow—instructions to make the peace negotiations as difficult as possible.

Despite Molotov's pin-pricking, however, he and Byrnes continued the social amenities, and once every week or so they dined together—a very small dinner attended only by their two interpreters, Pavlov and Chip Bohlen, and their two chief advisers, Ben Cohen and Vice Commissar Vishinsky.

Nasty as Molotov was during the early days of the Conference, his hastiness increased toward the end. Finally as Byrnes gave his last dinner to Molotov and it was the latter's turn to return the invitation, the usually punctilious Molotov did not do so. This Byrnes interpreted as a sign that things were getting even worse.

THE LAST DINNER

Finally, Molotov proposed that all negotiations be terminated by the next night, and simultaneously invited Byrnes to dinner on the closing night, and simultaneously invited Byrnes to dinner on the closing night—a clear indication that he didn't want to expose himself to Byrnes' contagious charm before staging his last burst of temperament at the wind-up of the Paris Conference.

The last session closed at 9:30 Byrnes and Molotov did not sit do to dinner until 10 PM. And as t two tired statesmen relaxed their brandy, Byrnes said to the who had so bitterly opposed him:

"Why didn't you tell me at th start there were certain things yo couldn't discuss? It's obvious tha you have instructions not to discus certain points. Why didn't you te me so? Instead, you have called us names, wasted a lot of time and got everybody mad. If you had told us that you couldn't discuss certain things, we wouldn't have bothered you."

"That's a good idea," replied Molotov, still unbending.

But later, as the Russian mellowed a bit more, Byrnes approached him again.

WHAT MOSCOW REALLY WANTS

"What is it that Russia wants?" he asked. "Behind all argument and conversation, what you really driving at?"

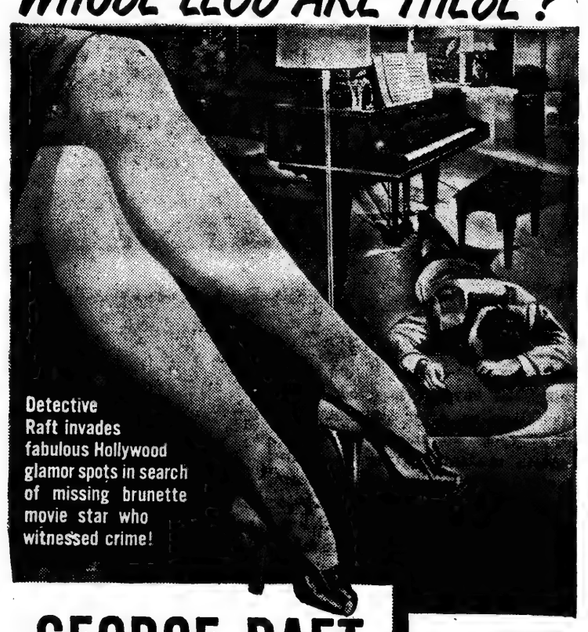
"Ten billion dollars reparat from Germany," Molotov shot b

"But you know you can't get it

"It was agreed to at Yalta," argue Molotov.

"No, it was agreed at Yalta t Russia's claim would be a point discussion," countered Byrnes. "P ident Roosevelt made that very cle And later, at Potsdam, we wasted lot of time debating that and T man and Stalin finally agreed t was to be only a point for dis sion."

The Secretary of State then as Molotov what other backstage mo lurked behind Russia's disagreeab tactics at the Paris Conference.



"What else do you want?" he in quired.

"The Ruhr," replied Molotov.

Again Byrnes said no.

It was on this very sour and negative note that the Paris Conference closed. Neither side had budged an inch and behind the So viet policy of studied insults, it was obvious they were aiming at im portant economic goals.

Phantoms Return Home After Thrilling Upset Win Over NYU

SPORT SPINS - -

with

IRWIN SMALLWOOD

Whereas White Phantoms Fade Violets . . .

THERE WERE NO "good mornings" around Chapel Hill yesterday morning. When two people met, nine times out of 10 they simply exclaimed, "how about the White Phantoms?" And rightly so, for Coach Tom Scott's Tar Heel basketball team had done what few people even gave them a chance to do—defeated once-beaten New York University in a Madison Square Garden contest.

Carolina's Tar Heel hardwood lads had lost three ball games going into the NYU clash—two of which had been in overtime, one in two overtimes—and most sources said that they would be lucky to keep the Violets from running up a big score. But the Phants evidently had other plans, and as a result they showed to the satisfaction of 18,465 spectators that they were a good ball team.

Not only did the Tar Heels beat NYU, but they came from underneath a seven-point halftime deficit to do it. And from reports of the game, it was a superb defense, i.e., top teamwork, that won the game in the end. Only six NYU field goals were scored in the entire second half, compared with 14 in the first half. And another teamwork factor that figured in the win considerably was the fact that the Phantoms made 12 out of 16 free shots good while NYU managed only eight for 16.

It was a great victory for Coach Scott and his Tar Heel basketballers, and we know that all Carolina is proud to welcome them back to Chapel Hill this morning. Their next performance in Woollen gym will be Tuesday night against Virginia.

Man of the hour was Norm Kohler, who played at LIU before coming to Carolina from the service. Kohler, who was in his best game of the year bofere a home crowd in New York, played an outstanding floor game and bucketed 15 points to lead the scoring parade. Kohler, as a scoring guard, can make a team out of the Tar Heels that will equal easily the best in the Southern conference.

Bob Paxton, the ham-handed Spokane, Wash., junior, and All-American Johnny Dillon were no small contributors to the Tar Heel cause either, for Paxton's rebound work and floor play far excelled that of any man on the floor. And Dillon, whose main game is ordinarily shooting, was said to have played a "terrific floor game" by the United Press story of the game.

We are aware, however, that it wasn't these three lads alone who beat NYU, for Jim Hamilton—whose 12 points were second only to Kohler for Carolina—and Jim White made the combine complete for the kill. Also "Tee" Thorne, Dick Hartley and all the rest played well in the triumph, which marked Carolina's third win in as many games over the Violet five. It shot Carolina ahead in the series, four games to three, and NYU will be trying to even things up when the two teams square off in Woollen gym February 3 . . . Good work, Phants, let's take the rest of them!

The Monogram club got its 1947 activities underway Tuesday night with an election meeting for the purpose of selecting new officers for the coming year.

Jim Camp, wingback on the grid team, was named president of the monogram organization, succeeding Mike Morrow. . .Len Szafryn, outstanding Tar Heel at one of the tackle posts, was elected vice-president, succeeding Camp. . .Charlie Tietjen, letterman on the Carolina Track squad, was elected secretary-treasurer of the organization. . .Jimmy Miller, star distance man on the track team, was named to the representative position on the athletic council, succeeding Dick Seaver.

Cagers Win Contest With Late Splurge

Carolina's White Phantoms returned here this morning after a successful Northern invasion in which the Scottmen split even in two games against rugged opposition. The cagemen topped NYU, 50-48, in Madison Square Garden Tuesday night, after dropping a 65-62 decision to La-Salle in Philadelphia last weekend.

The Phants will have a week's rest before their next scheduled contest. Virginia will invade Woollen Gymnasium January 21 opening a home series for the local cagers.

Madison Square Garden, New York, Jan. 14—Carolina's White Phantoms provided 18,465 basketball fans with the surprise of the season here tonight by overcoming a seven-point halftime advantage with a great second half drive to down NYU, rated one of the top teams in the country, by a 50-48 count.

Behind by a halftime score of 31-24, which became 33-24 in less than a minute, the Carolina cagers finally began to hit their mark with astounding accuracy in the second half. Holding their opponents to two foul shots while they added ten points to their own total to pull up within one point, the Phants took the lead momentarily after 12 minutes had elapsed, lost it a minute later, and finally at 14:30 moved into a permanent advantage that they nursed for the remaining five minutes. Beautiful pass work while waiting for time to run out played a great part in the triumph, with Carolina maintaining possession for the final 30 seconds.

Kohler Shines

Leading the Phantoms to their well-deserved victory was guard Norm Kohler, who put on a great show for the hometown folks. High scorer with 15 points, Kohler registered most of his points on long set shots, the final one of which gave his team a lead it never relinquished. But Kohler was not the only bright light for Carolina. Bob Paxton, with his usual sparkling floor game and control of the backboards, Johnny Dillon, guarded closely all night but nevertheless managing to drop in nine points while also performing well in his pivot position, Jim White, who held set shot artist Sid Tanenbaum to one layup shot, Jim Hamilton, having another hot night with 12 tallies and Taylor Thorne, whose brilliant ball-handling played an important role in the final freeze act—all deserve special commendation.

Carolina started the game like a ball of fire, jumping to a 5-0 lead while the spectators gazed in amazement. NYU finally drew even at 10-all and soon after went on a nine-point scoring spree for a 23-16 advantage, allowing the New York fans to sit back contentedly to watch their heroes run away with the tilt, as expected.

Scottmen Get Hot

This margin was maintained until one minute after halftime, when Coach Tom Scott's cagers finally got hot. After pulling up to a 35-34 deficit only to see NYU pull away to a 39-36 lead, Carolina suddenly found the spark when Kohler stole the ball and dribbled the entire length of the court to register a crip shot. A hook by Dillon gave Carolina a brief lead but after Ray Lumpp had returned his team to the fore by 41-40 Kohler swished his final set shot through the cords and the Phantoms were off.

Carolina stretched the lead to 47-42 before the Violets realized what was happening and then it was too late. With three minutes remaining and holding a 47-44 lead, the Phantoms began their freeze actions, exhibiting a wonderful display of passing and, surprisingly enough receiving rounds of applause for their sharp tactics.

Wrestlers, Boxers, Jayvees Face Tough Weekend Tilts

Three Carolina teams will swing into action over the weekend, as the Winter sports card moves into the spotlight. The wrestling squad will open its season Saturday away from home, with the ringmen battling in a home contest. The jayvee and frosh cage fives both have games scheduled as a part of the full athletic slate.

Wrestling . . .

The Carolina wrestling squad—35 strong—continued its heavy workouts yesterday afternoon in preparation for the coming northern invasion Saturday when the Tar Heels will encounter the VPI grapplers at Blacksburg.

Coach Hobie McKeever paired off his squadmen and began drilling them through six minute periods to build up endurance for the full length periods of the opening match just ahead.

Co-captains Tommy Hearn, 136-pounder, and Dick Seaver, 145-pounder have been leading the mat drills and are expected to be in top shape Saturday, along with such men as Art Bluethenthal, Bill Kemp, Archie Thompson, Demont Rosemann, Guppy Gupton, and Laurie Hooper.

Boxing . . .

Carolina's ring squad received a severe setback yesterday with the announcement that Ed McGee, outstanding heavyweight, would not participate in the match against Virginia's Cavaliers in Woollen Gymnasium Saturday.

The probable Tar Heel starter in the heavyweight division will be Joe Foster, with Norm Gallinkin or Bill Spiegel having good chances to receive the starting nod from Coach Mike Ronman.

Probable Carolina starters in the other weight classes include: William Sunas, John Orr, or William Buffaloe, 125 lbs.; Charles Lambeth, 130 lbs.; Conway Rose, 135 lbs.; Fred Winn or Charlie Norton, 145 lbs.; Leonard Green or Oscar Webster, 155 lbs.; Dick Young, 165 lbs.; Jim Amos.

The Cavalier leather-pushers will be led by the famous three Miragliotta brothers from Charleston, W. Va. Basil fights in the 130-pound class, Jimmy in the 135 class, and Joe in the 155 class.

Virginia has a record of two wins and no losses for the season. The Cavaliers opened the season with a 4½ to 3½ victory over Maryland. Coach York's men took the second match over the Coast Guard Academy by a 6½ to 1½ decision.

Jayvee Cagers . . .

Both the jayvee and frosh quintets held strenuous workouts yesterday afternoon in preparation for games Friday night. The jayvees meet the Sanford American Legion semi-pro team in Sanford, and the Tar Babies play Needham Broughton High School in Raleigh.

A smooth-working George Washington High School quint handed Frank Murray's freshman cagers their first loss of the season Tuesday night by downing the Tar Babies, 34-31, in a game played in Danville, Va.

The high school cagers led all the way, except for a few minutes of the third quarter, when the freshmen held a three-point advantage.

Bill Walker paced the Tar Babies, dropping in nine points while Bill Harrington ran a close second with eight. Johnny Reagan, Bill Childress, and Sandy Hoft were the defensive standouts for the local cagemen.

Weston Photos Being Shown In Person Hall Art Gallery

By Dee Sweat

A large retrospective exhibition of the work of Edward Weston is now being shown in Person hall art gallery and will continue through February 3. Comprising 259 photographs, the exhibition includes examples from all of Weston's periods starting with a landscape made in 1903 when he was sixteen years old and ending with photographs taken in 1942-45 when he was engaged in civilian defense activities and confined his photography chiefly to his backyard in Carmel, California, where he made camera satires, pictures of his vast family of cats, portraits, and nudes in landscape.

Approach, Technique Are Key

Weston's approcah and technique are the key to his success. His mature approach, basic in its simplicity and integrity and concentrated on creative vision, stands as a challenge and inspiration to younger photographers.

For nearly four decades, one-man shows of Weston's work have swept spontaneously from Berlin to Shanghai and from Mexico to Vancouver. Born of New England descent March 24, 1886, in Highland Park, Illinois, he has lived so long in California that he is often referred to as "the California photographer."

Won Guggenheim Award

Weston was the first photographer to be awarded a Guggenheim Fellowship—in 1937 and extended in 1938. During that two-year period he covered 35,000 miles and made 1,500 negatives—in effect, a cumulative and multifarious portrait of the American West.

On March 24, 1946, Weston will be sixty. For him, the long vista of growth focuses on today; in a recent letter he wrote, "I am a prolific, mass-production, omnivorous seeker." His latest work surges with new themes. All the signs point toward fresh horizons.

tatives from six other leading campus organizations until May 1.

Jerry Hobbs reported on the Senate's appeal to the Bell Telephone company to install telephones on separate lines for each floor of women's dormitories. The manager of the Chapel Hill exchange said that new lines had been ordered but that the telephones of townspeople must be attended to first. After that, coeds may have separate lines for each dormitory floor.

The Bell System aims to keep the opportunity for advancement open to all.

One of its traditions is that its executives come up from the ranks. That has been true of the business for many years and nowhere is it better illustrated than in the careers of the men who now serve as presidents of Bell Telephone Companies.

As a group, they have put in 611 years of telephone service, an average of 36 years each.

NEWS BRIEFS

Armed Forces Plan to Unite

Army, Navy Merger Approved in Future

Washington, Jan. 16—(UP)—The White House announced tonight that the Army and Navy have reached "full and complete agreement" on a plan for unification.

White House press secretary Charles Ross said the plan was fully endorsed by President Truman who called it an "admirable compromise which offers a thoroughly practical and workable plan of unification."

Details Tomorrow

Top Army and Navy officials will make public details of the plan at a press conference at the White House at 10:00 a.m., EST, tomorrow. The President will not be present.

Heretofore the Navy has bitterly opposed "marriage" of the armed forces. The Army has supported the plan.

The compromise calls for legislation to create a council of national defense, a national security resources board, and a central intelligence agency, which already exists).

The armed forces would be organized under a secretary of national defense so as to place Army, Navy, and the Air Force, each with a military chief, under the departments of the Army, the Navy, and the Air Force respectively.

Arnall Misses 'Bomb' By Mere Five Minutes

Atlanta, Ga., Jan. 16—(UP)—Five minutes after Governor Ellis Arnall left his portable rotunda office in the State Capitol this afternoon, a loud explosion echoed through the rotunda. The blast occurred at 4:30 p.m. (EST).

To most of the crowd of 100 persons who heard the blast, it sounded like a giant firecracker rather than a bomb or shell. And though the blast reverberated through the rotunda with the roar of an artillery round, it probably was a big firecracker—the work of pranksters.

Pranksters also are blamed about the release of a tear gas bomb earlier in the day. Several score spectators milling in the outer executive offices were forced from the area, but then too, no harm was done—except to already tense nerves.

New President Serves As Leader of France

Paris, Jan. 16—(UP)—France has a new president. The National Assembly has elected Socialist Leader Vincent Auriol to serve as president, and to select a premier for the fourth French Republic.

Threat of Explosion Received by British

Jerusalem, Jan. 16—(UP)— Police reinforcements have been thrown around a British government building in Jaffa, Palestine, after a telephoned warning that the underground plans to blow it up.

GOP Introduces Bill To Extend Excise Tax

Washington, Jan. 16—(UP)—Indiana Representative Robert Grant has introduced Republican-backed legislation to extend wartime excise taxes indefinitely. Under present law levies on furs, jewelry, liquor and some 20 other items would expire June 30th.

U. N. Representative Suffers Heart Attack

New York, Jan. 16—(UP)—The chief Brazilian delegate to the United Nations, Doctor Leao Velloso, died in his New York hotel today. It is believed he suffered a heart attack.

WNC to Sponsor Charity Ball For 'March of Dimes' Benefit

Dance to Raise Funds for Polio Campaign Will Be Presented in Woollen January 24

By Sam Whitehall

The campus infantile paralysis drive will reach its climax next Friday night, January 24, in Woollen gymnasium from 9-1 o'clock at a gala charity ball to be sponsored by the Western North Carolina club. In announcing the dance, Norman Pless, WNC club president, urged all students to make every possible effort to attend the dance, which will feature the music of Ned Reap and his GM Dream Serenaders, popular campus band. The dance will be semi-formal.

Tickets will go on sale Monday in the YMCA lobby and in Lenoir hall. Cost of the tickets will be $1.50 per couple. Members of the WNC club will also sell tickets throughout the week.

The dance will come as a fitting climax to a week-long all-out campus "March of Dollars" campaign aimed at reaching a $5,000 quota. Student solicitors started work yesterday canvassing the campus in an effort to obtain a one dollar contribution from each member of the student body.

Half of the funds collected during the week plus those taken in as a result of the charity ball will be sent to the National foundation for Infantile Paralysis. The other half will be used to purchase an iron lung for this county.

"By your dancing, you'll be giving someone who can't walk now an even chance of dancing some day," Pless said. His club will work in conjunction with the Daily Tar Heel, sponsors of the campus campaign, in making the drive a success.

Government Property Stolen by Students

A group of students living in the Quonset hut area jimmied a window of a University storage warehouse early this week and appropriated for use in the huts about twenty bureaus which were federal property, stored for later use in Veterans' village houses.

The utilities office has requested the return of the bureaus but contemplates no other action in the matter.

Correction!

Contrary to a radio announcement last night, Herschel Johnson will not speak at the University this morning. Mr. Johnson will address the convocation of all students as originally planned in Memorial hall next Friday morning.

New Sewage Plant Planned for City

University and town officials yesterday joined in an inspection of an area in the Mason farm district proposed as a site for a new sewage disposal plant. The new plant would supplement the old one on Durham road which is at present operating at almost twice its normal capacity.

The University budget bureau has already agreed to a $225,000 appropriation, subject to the action of the Legislature, and a like sum of $225,000 would be put up by the town to pay for the new disposal unit, which would serve both university and town.

Sugar Bowl Pictures May Be Shown Tonight

Complete movies of the Carolina-Georgia Sugar Bowl game are expected to arrive in Chapel Hill this morning, and if they arrive as scheduled, they will be shown to the student body tonight at Memorial hall beginning promptly at 7 o'clock.

The films are en route by air express, and bad weather may keep them from getting here, but definite word on whether they will or will not be shown can be obtained by calling the Daily Tar Heel, F-3146, 8641, or looking on the bulletin board in the Y after 3 o'clock.

Ligislature Committee Heads Seclected At Opening Meeting

Warren Delivers Opening Address To Legislature

Strongly emphasizing the need for "permanence" in student government, Charlie Warren, speaker of the student legislature, ambled through his "State of the Campus" report to the lawmaking body at last night's meeting.

Warren specifically cited the need for offices for all student leaders, and said, "President Dorsett and I believe that is an obligation of Graham Memorial to provide a permanent home for student government. We shall present this problem at the first meeting of the Board of Directors."

The tall vice-president pointed out advantages of the plan which will give officials a central place to keep important records. Said Warren, "Succeeding student leaders will thus be able to quickly obtain a working basis by which to carry out their jobs."

Touches Many Phases

He continued through the long speech touching many phases of student activity. With regard to the controversial election laws, he stated. "We need more impartial polling places . . . provided the change is a facility rather than a political preotive of the majority party."

Warren also reported concerning the fact-finding board which was set up last quarter to look into what the speaker called, "income saving devices" for students. He declared that "Financial gain has been reaped in and around the University . . . and there are indications that we live in the presence of shady matters which merit investigation."

Student body vice-president Charlie Warren, addressing the legislature last evening on the "State of the Campus," called for more "permanency" in student government.

Pianist to Play In Floor Show

Big Evening Planned By Candlelight Room

The second big night of the winter quarter is set for Graham Memorial's Candlelight room this evening. Dance music by the Stardusters will go on from 8 until 12 o'clock, the floor show being presented in the middle of the evening.

A new featured performer is on tonight's bill, Jimmy Weathers from Shelby, who will entertain the audience with piano solos. Weathers has been seen with several name bands of this vicinity.

Other Performers

Also on the program will be vocalists Phyllis Isenhour and Tommy Thomas; tapdancer Buddy Robinson, with a new routine; Rusty Collins, and the Gordon Twins.

"Students are again reminded," said manager Johnny Jones, "that there is no cover charge or minimum in the Candlelight room, but that coats and ties are required, and only couples are admitted during evening hours."

Jan. 28 Is Named As Run.Off Date For Council Post

By Bookie Jabine

After hearing the opening address of Speaker Charlie Warren, the Student Legislature, with cooperative swiftness skyrocketed through the first meeting of the winter quarter last night in Gerrard hall, by unanimously setting January 28 as the date for the run-off election between Bobby Broughton (UP) and Ed York (SP) for representative-at-large to the Honor council.

In the regular balloting last fall, Broughton received 577 votes to York's 465, but did not receive a majority since Al Lowenstien, an independent, polled 411 votes.

Having set the date, the lawmakers turned to the business of electing officers and committee chairman.

Tom Eller, speaker pro-tem during the session ending in December was re-elected, defeating Bobby Stockton by a 21-17 vote. Eller recently attended the Chicago conference and will deliver a report at next week's meeting along with the other delegates to that convention.

Another Chicago representative, Jimmy Wallace, was named parliamentarian by acclamation and Larry Berry was acclaimed clerk.

Committee chairman chosen were: Ways and Means, Bill Miller; Rules, Bob Collins; Finance, Bill Mackie; Elections, Johnny Clampitt.

Previous to the chosing of officers, Tag Montague, who will be the Legislature's representative to the Graham Memorial Board of Directors, read the report of Jabie Heyward, Elections Board head, concerning the voting last

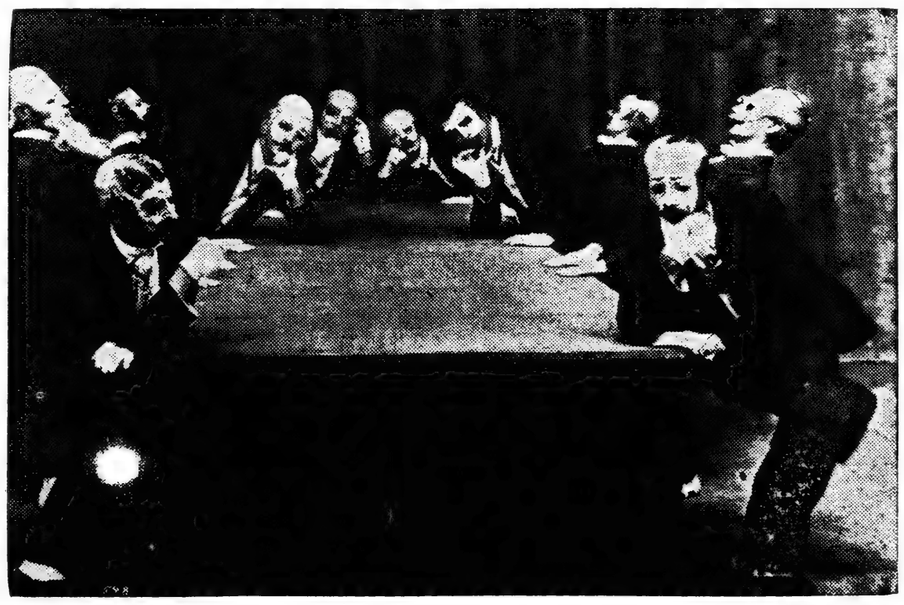
Co-op Grocery Club to Hold Food Buying Spree Tonight

By Ken Rothwell

Members of the Chapel Hill buying club and other persons interested in paring down household expenses will meet tonight at 7:45 o'clock in 103 Bingham hall for the co-op's first buying meeting of the year. Grocery orders will be accepted only in case lots.

Club officials explained that this action was necessary because of the impossibility of sorting orders for individual customers without proper warehouse facilities.



Ask Consolidation

"We are asking co-op patrons to consult with their neighbors as to their needs and then present consolidated orders for two or three families at tonight's meeting," explained chairman Tom McDade.

McDade further stated that those persons who wish to place an order will have an opportunity to become active co-op members by purchasing at least one share of stock at one dollar per share from co-op stock sales manager John Campbell.

"Not only does this stock entitle a person to make purchases at wholesale prices through the club but also it pays dividends up to 5 per cent per year. We urge those who are able, however, to purchase 10 shares, five each for husband and wife," explained Thompson.

Following consolidation of orders taken at the buying meeting purchases will be made at wholesale prices and it is expected that delivery will be made through neighborhood chairmen on Saturday, January 25.

The shadowy forms above are Jooss ballet artists, portraying the satirical ballet, "The Green Table," which will be presented here in the repertoire Monday night at 8:30 o'clock in Memorial hall. The ballet dramatically satirizes the League of Nations, showing the "gentlemen in black" sitting around the table arguing after the War.

The discussion leads to another war, after which they return to the table to repeat the process. The production won first prize at the International Congress of the Dance at Paris in 1932. It was the first time the medium of the dance had been used to convey such a message, described as a powerful political editorial.

This Is the Spirit

(The following letter was received in our office yesterday. Because its contents are so true and vitally important, we are printing it in this column. The spirit shown by the writer and the organization he represents is the spirit which will make our infantile paralysis drive a success.)

Dear Sir:

I invite your attention to a short story in regard to the "March of Dimes" Campaign.

Once upon a time there was a young man who was 19 years of age, and considered by his many friends as a top athlete in most every sport. He was as healthy as anyone could hope to be. He even ventured to say that he would be in perfect health at sixty. This young man was always playing football, tennis, baseball or picnicking, hiking, or swimming. In the evenings he could be seen with his best girl dancing or skating, or out with the "gang."

Never did our friend stop to think about the dreaded disease—Infantile Paralysis. Yet, just like a poised rattlesnake, it struck him. To him it seemed just as if a million tons of TNT had exploded in his face, for his precious possessions were gone forever—his legs. His big, beautiful world had been smashed, ruined, destroyed. He couldn't play ball, he couldn't go skating, he couldn't go dancing, he couldn't go to the movies, he couldn't meet the "gang"; he couldn't go anywhere without HELP. His legs were useless; just limp limbs to be carried around for a lifetime. It just couldn't happen to him—the healthiest fellow in the neighborhood—but it did!

Paralysis strikes like a bolt of lightning! You never know when or where it is going to strike, and who it will strike. STOP AND THINK JUST FOR A MOMENT! Today you are healthy and happy. You can play ball, go dancing, go to the movies, you can walk to and from classes, you can do all these things that you like to do without any assistance whatsoever. Do you realize how lucky you are? How do you think you would feel if you were to awake in the morning with paralysis? To be assisted in your every move? THINK IT OVER FRIENDS, IT'S PURE HELL!!

The Western North Carolina Club will sponsor a Charity Ball Friday, January 24, 1947. All proceeds will be contributed to the "March of Dimes." I would like to urge every student, faculty member, and anyone else to make arrangements to attend this Charity Ball in Woollen Gym Friday, January 24.

Let's all pitch in and help those who can't help themselves.

Sincerely yours,
Norman Pless, President,
Western North Carolina Club.

What About Other Groups

The Western North Carolina club, as may be deduced from the above letter from its president, is the first campus organization to rally in support of the local infantile paralysis campaign.

For which its members are due no end of credit. Without thought of personal gain, they are devoting their time and energy to sponsoring a successful benefit dance—all the proceeds of which will go into the March of Dimes.

We believe the other organizations on the campus could also contribute towards the drive. This is a suggestion that they do so. Any monetary contributions from campus organizations will be printed in this paper in a daily honor roll. It is for a most worthy cause.

If we don't stand for something, we will fall for anything.

Find a big enough idea to live for and you will never be unemployed.

Democracy does not depend on whom you elect to rule, but on how you elect to live.

To Be or Not To Be...

Talmadge, as Modern Hamlet, Usurps Georgia Throne Room

By Eddie Allen

One of our nation's solons, so goes a bearded but ever-applicable anecdote, was awakened in the dead of night by his wife's frantic whisper that there were burglars in the house.

"Not in the house, my dear—in the Senate," murmured the sleepy lawgiver, resuming his snoring.

Contrary to the nocturnal acuteness of that fabulous legislator, the usurper in Georgia's turbulent, unprecedented gubernatorial wrangle seems currently to be firmly barricaded in the house—State House that is. That's the latest communique in a dispute which has its bizarre side but which long since has passed the limits of a joke, son.

Pugnacious, persistent Herman Talmadge, playing a convincing Hamlet to the dingy-sheeted shade of his lately but not loudly-lamented father, yesterday took advantage of the absence of Governor Ellis Arnall, plumped himself into his official chair, and said in a "L' etat, c'est moi" vein:

"It would be ridiculous to have two governors sitting in the Capitol. There will be but one."

The catch to that, would the 33-year-old Hamlet but realize it, is that the long-languishing state he would control has in truth had but one governor in the past double-decade—and he is Arnall, the bulldog-chinned progressive who more than any man donned the harness to pull Georgia from its post-reconstruction, post-gallus-snapping mire.

It is Georgia's loss that Arnall has completed his reform-faceted four years. It is as well to its disadvantage that practically the only provision on which its dust-bespattered constitution is reasonably clear is that a governor cannot succeed himself. But while Arnall himself has finished his tenure, he steadfastly and justifiably refused to let one he considers as a pretender only to move into Georgia's throne room.

Only time and impending national intervention likely will tell the story of the Peach State's strife. Actually, however, whether Son-of-his-Father Talmadge or Lieut.-Governor M. E. Thompson assumes control, the policies may not likely be appreciably different. Herman no doubt will continue the Send-the-Nigger-to-the-back-door beliefs of his father with an iron hand of but slightly more diluted alloy. Thompson believes in many of old Gene's principles. Yet he, a clearer and an older head, who in the minds of most unquestionably has an equally clearer right to office even by virtue of the state's muddled laws, would be the more effective executive. But the will of the people—rather, of those who dictate it—will be supreme.

Talmadge's contention—on the surface a somewhat distorted one—argues that a constitutional provision calls for the legislative election of a governor if no person held a majority in the previous general election. Old Gene, whose wraith and wrath still hovers over the whole scene, received the majority, disobeyed his doctor's orders out of sheer orneriness, then died (under protest) 23 days before his inaugural. Herman declared his father's death voided the majority he received, and that the law thereby called for an election by the General Assembly of one of the two men receiving the most write-in votes. Herman won that battle and consequently attempted to move into office by a minor coup d'etat, employing the strong arm methods so reminiscent of his old man.

Arnall, on the other hand, argues that a governor shall hold office until his legal successor is named, regards Thompson as the only legal successor, and therefore has played a steady chill toward young Hamlet.

Despite Talmadge's undenied strength, it is probable that most of Georgia's thinking public (approximate your own percentages) still would back Arnall if given the chance, even after defeating his horse in the race of last November.

It is to be hoped that Herman will be seated—not in the State House, however, but upon his nether portions at a place he can do Georgia the least harm. One Talmadge is certainly sufficient to darken the political annals of any state.

Conference Diary

In the second period of discussion in Panel IV we ran headon into the problem which, even in modern times, is capable of disrupting almost all conferences at any point in the World and on almost any level—the "race" issue. In Europe "race" means the Jewish problem; in India it is associated with the Moslems; in California, the Orientals are the but of the controversy; in the East, South, and Middle West, it is the Negro.

The controversy as it began in Panel IV was pointed directly at the southern states. The first in a series of "railroad" measures by the Georgetown University delegation stated, "This organization (meaning the NSO) will do everything within its power to repeal state laws now in existence which prohibit the joint assemblage of whites and negroes."

One objector pointed out that discussion was out of order because the item had already been passed on the agenda and because, according to his idea, no such laws prohibiting assemblage of whites and Negroes (for purposes other than school attendance) were in existence. The chair ruled discussion in order and the parliamentarian protested that he had been indicted in Georgia for joint assemblage. Discussion continued. . . The delegate from the University of Georgia, showing strong feeling, stood up and asked if there were any suggestions from the floor as to how the problem would be helped by the repeal of State Laws. No suggestion was made. The measure passed with only a few dissenting votes.

The next proposal by the Georgetown delegation was to abolish "discrimination" in inter-collegiate athletics and to curb "commercialized" sports. (The term 'commercialized" was not defined). This received only delaying opposition from the floor and passed. The panel adjourned until the next morning.

The next meeting found the Georgia delegate on the floor stating that he believed the aim, despite the fact that he concurred with its sentiment, ill-advised and of such nature that the Southern schools would not accept it. We endeavored to have it reconsidered for the obvious reason that the Southern states were about to leave the panel in anger. Reconsideration failed and notice was filed that a minority report would be given. Wisconsin, The University of Washington, Boston university, and several other northern and western schools took the same attitude as the southern representatives.

Carolina Anniversaries Are More Than Talking-Points

By Al Lowenstein

I'm sorry my birthday missed being on a holiday by one day. Harry Tr man faced the same problem, but he was President of the United States the time so he simply delayed the holiday and historians ever after will gleefully record the happy coincidence that the end of the War in Europe came the very same day as the President's birthday.

Every birthday I celebrate hereafter I'm sure I'll think of the annual sesquicentennial celebration that will then be going on in Chapel Hill. Perhaps I'll even live long enough to see eight or nine years of bicentennial parties (and maybe at one of these "Look Homeward, Angel" will be premiered). But centennials or no, the frequent reminders of Carolina's anniversaries ought to be more than talking-points in debates about which is "the oldest State University."

Age itself is no sign of particular merit or virtue anyway. Some things, as they acquire years, lose their virtue. Wine gets better with age. Milk simply sours. Wendell Willkie grew up as he grew older. Tom Watson grew bitter. Simple priority-of-arrival on the planet, actually, need be no mark of distinction. More than a date must be known, to have a justifiable pride in the Past.

The beginnings and the subsequent history of this University are of a spirit and in a tradition of which the student body today knows sadly little. The State of North Carolina was the site of the first Declaration of Independence in the United States; it is the State whose founders, in the rugged, radical pioneer spirit of another century, resolutely resisted a Federal constitution until they obtained guarantees of Rights they considered inalienable; and it was this aggressive sense of fundamental republicanism, and the urging of dreamers like wild-eyed William R. Davie, that brought into being the first University of the People in the Western Hemisphere.

It is not some inexplicable happenstance that the University early became famous for its self-governing student body; that the oldest societies on any campus in the Nation in which free speech was encouraged sprang up in the Carolina Piedmont; that the Nationwide reputation, and consequent Nationwide acclaim, of "a foremost liberal institution of higher learning" centered on a small village in the heart of the Southland. Nor were devious subversive forces responsible for the fact that even before the Civil War half the student body came from all over the rest the United States, and that the finest sons of all Dixie came to the University of the South in Chapel H

Today we come dangerously near remembering the dates and forgetting the forward march, the progress, the challenge to the future that they represent. We love the label "liberal University" as we arch our necks backward; we tend to scorn out-of-State students as we glory in the National recognition their presence represents; we are too prone to snort at "crazy whims" even as we celebrate the 152nd anniversary of the opening of the doors of one of the craziest of whims. There were doubters in those days too; in half-a-century the University received $10,000 all told from the State legislature. But Time has established as prophets could only warn, how wrong the doubters were.

To the Nation and to the World the University of North Carolina ha long seemed a great institution of a great people, and it has been what it has seemed to be. There are problems and they are grave ones. They must be met in the spirit and tradition of broadmindedness, of courage, of wide vision.

What Do YOU Say?

Today's Question

What New Year's resolutions did you make and how many have you broken?

The Answers

I didn't make any, for if I had I would certainly have broken them on New Year's Day. —Walter Stuart, Parris Island, S. C.

I'm not going to commit myself as to what it was, but I will say I've broken it.—Rue Guthrie, Charlotte.

I didn't make any because I knew the more I made the more I would break. So I haven't had any to break this year.—Sanford H. Smith, Fuquay Springs.

What makes you think everyone needs to make resolutions? I didn't have such a bad year in '46.—J. "Buddy" Robinson, Rocky Mount.

I swore I would study German, but I didn't say when—so if I wait a few weeks it will still be o.k.—Harry McGirt, Wilmington.

I never got around to making any. —Jim Green, Thomasville.

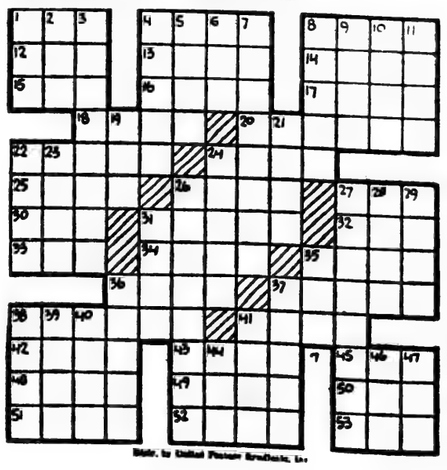
If I make them I will only break them; so why bother?—Charles Harless, Sanford.

Next Question



Whom do you think should be governor of Georgia?

Wrestlers To Leave Today For Matches With Virginia Tech

---Bobbing in Sports---

with
BOB GOLDWATER

Back in Chapel Hill after an extended weekend trip northward, we'd like to forward a few observations regarding this year's White Phantom outfit after viewing not one but two thrilling cage contests in which the outcome remained in doubt right down to the final buzzer.

In the first place, the 1947 Carolina cagers appear to have definitely found the right path leading to court success this season. They demonstrated that even in defeat Saturday evening. And they certified it Tuesday by coming from behind to down the pride of Gotham, New York University.

Secondly, despite all the talk about how strong Duke and N. C. State are this year, Carolina still remains as one of the top powers—if not at the very top—that must be considered in this year's Southern conference cage chase. We're certainly not trying to put the "whammy" on Coach Tom Scott and his charges but nevertheless we believe that the team has shown enough to stand up to any other quintet in the loop. Anyway, time will tell.

Conversing with Coach Scott yesterday as he ran his boys through a short drill, we learned, as could be expected, that he was very pleased with the showing up North. "With the slimmest of breaks we'd have taken both games on the trip," he declared. "Two of our three losses so far this season were in overtime games that could have gone either way. Otherwise we'd really have a sparkling record right now with only one defeat."

Looking back at the two tilts the court mentor opined that big Bob Paxton (or as colleague Smallwood would say, "ham-handed Bob") turned in the best performance of the campaign for any Phantom player at Philadelphia. "All the boys did well at New York," he stated. "Kohler was especially hot, playing with home-town pressure against him. And I liked the way Jim Hamilton came through with two good heads-up ball games."

Among the 18,465 spectators that viewed the 19th double header of the season at Madison Square Garden were two largely responsible for Tar Heel basketball success last year. We're referring, of course, to Coach Ben Carnevale and player-coach Bones McKinney. The former attended partly as a matter of business, admitting frankly that he was there to scout Carolina. Questioned about his own Navy quintet, which plays the Phantoms next week, Coach Ben informed us that the one team to down his Middies, George Washington, ought to show up pretty well in the Conference this year. Bones, along with the other members of the Washington pro cage team, sat directly in back of the press table, from which point he could easily shout encouragement and directions, the latter just as he used to do last year when he received the "player-coach" title.

Memo to Coach Bunn Hearn: Cage star Norm Kohler may be the boy to dispel your third-base problems this coming season. That advice comes from no less an authority than the top fielding shortstop in the major leagues in 1946, Buddy Kerr, whom we met in the Carolina dressing room amid all the jubilation following the Garden triumph Tuesday night. It turned out that Norm and Buddy, as well as NYU cager Marty Goldstein, spent much of their early youth together on various New York City ball fields. And, according to the New York Giant ace, Norm is "quite a baseball player." Coach Hearn, incidentally, made his first appearance in quite a long while at Woollen gym yesterday and set about making preparations for the coming season. It seems that a little matter of forming a schedule needs attention.

Short shots in sundry directions: the feature story in the 32-page Garden program concerned "Johnny Dillon returning to pluck his favorite flower, the Violet". . . . In addition to a good shot of the "Hook" the program also had pix of Coach Scott, Hamilton, Paxton, White and Thorne. . . .The attendance fell only 28 short of the Garden record of 18,493 for the 1946-47 season. . . .Hamilton pulled the neatest maneuver of both games when, while breaking in towards the basket, he dribbled the ball around his back and continued in for his shot. .both crowds voiced their approval of the play. . . .Viewing yesterday's short practice were brothers of two Phantoms. . .Stan Kohler and Ed Thorne both came around to see their brothers in action. . . .The Garden encounter was definitely "old buddy week" for Norm Kohler. . . .The Carolina guard performed on the same service quintet with Violet guard Ray Lumpp. . . .We were sorry to read that former Tar Heel diamond star Burgess Whitehead had been given his unconditional release by the Pittsburgh Pirates. . . .We can still remember Whitehead's sparkling keystone activities for the Giants in the pennant drives of 1936-37.

Leonard Green of Charlotte, above, slugging 155-pounder, will be one of North Carolina's hopes in the ring meet with Virginia here Saturday night. Green employs a smooth attack and his experience should be a big factor against the Cavaliers.

Punchers Drill For Cavaliers

Carolina's ring squad, riddled by sickness and scholastic difficulties, worked out yesterday afternoon in an attempt to put up the best possible lineup against the Virginia Cavaliers here Saturday.

Both Ed McGee, heavyweight, and Dick Young, 165-pounder, who turned in the Tar Heels' only victories in the Sugar Bowl battle with Syracuse, are expected to be out of the Virginia bouts.

Charles Lambeth, 130-pounder, and Leonard Green, 155-pounder, carry the best hopes of the squad in the approaching meet. Lambeth fought to a draw decision in the Sugar Bowl meet.

Coach Al York's visiting leather-pushers will be going after their 101st dual meet victory here this weekend. For 26 seasons the Old Dominion boxers have a ring record of 148 victories, against 37 losses, and 12 tie decisions.

Leading the well-rounded Virginia squad will be Jimmy Miragliotta, 135-pounder from Charleston, West Va., who was the Eastern intercollegiate champion in 1944. Two brothers of Jimmy are also fighting on the Cavalier team, Basil in the 130-pound class, and Joe in the 155-pound class.

Other hard-hitting Old Dominion punchers include Ed Poe, heavyweight; Ralph Shoaf, 175 pounder and football star; John Burch, 125 pounder; and Phil McNagny, 165 pounder.

KA's Pace Murals Taking 50-12 Win

Another cage powerhouse dropped into the mural basketball picture yesterday afternoon when KA No. 3 scored an impressive 50-12 victory over Chi Phi No. 1.

Numerous close clashes were reeled off during the day with the Phi Kap No. 1 edging Sigma Nu No. 2, 35-32; Phi Kap No. 2 nosing Beta No. 2, 34-31; Phi Gam No. 2 tripping TEP, 22-20; and ATO No. 1 stopping Zete No. 1, 26-18.

In other games Stacy downed Alexander No. 2, 42-25; Independent took the measure of BVP No. 1, 32-20; the Grads defeated Alexander No. 1, 40-24; Phi Delt No. 2 snowed St. Anthony, 47-6; and the Delancey Maulers beat Mangum, 28-8. BVP No. 2 and Nash won by forfeits.

TRIPPI ACCEPTS

Charlie Trippi, Georgia's All-America halfback, has turned down a New York Yankee football-baseball offer to accept an inductment from the Chicago Cardinals of the National football league.

Meet To Begin Tomorrow At 3

Bluethenthal to Miss First Bout of Year

Carolina's 1947 edition of the wrestling team will leave Chapel Hill just before noon today for Blacksburg, Va., where the matmen will meet Virginia Tech in the opening meet of the season. The bouts will begin tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock.

Final eliminations and practices were held yesterday afternoon, and John Stoioff and Tom Urqhart won out for first string berths in the heavyweight and 128-pound classes respectively. Others set to take part in the mat contest, which is the first meeting between the two teams in several years, are Doug Thomson at 121, Tommy Hearn at 136, Dick Seaver at 145, Irving Zirpel at 155, Oscar Gupton at 165 and Bill Kemp at 175.

Art Bluethenthal, a star grappler last season who was unbeaten in six matches, will not be in the lineup due to a last-minute injury. Hearn, one of the co-captains, will be trying to extend his undefeated record to seven straight bouts, the 136-pounder having gone undefeated last season.

Only one team will be taken on the trip for this match, but for most of other meets, it is expected that two teams will participate. The next schedule match is next week with Davidson, site undetermined.

This is the first full schedule that Coach Chuck Quinlan and the Tar Heels have had since before the war. The regular season will be concluded here March 1 with a match with Virginia, and the Southern conference tournament will follow.

There are no reports from the VPI team as to their strength, but the matches are rated a toss-up in most circles.

NROTC Riflemen Firing Match Against Miami

The Carolina NROTC rifle team, coached by Technical Sgt. Hershel Baker, is in the midst of a duel match with Miami University of Ohio this week, while the Navy men are getting set for the annual Randolph Hearst trophy matches.

Marine Capt. L. W. Smith, Jr., supervising officer of the team, announced yesterday that he needs more candidates for the team, but that only those students enrolled under the NR OTC program are eligible. Any interested students are asked to report to the armory between 1 and 4:30 p.m. any week day.

The only living creatures that are really blue-blooded are snails, oysters, and lobsters.

Jayvee and Frosh Cagers Face Tough Foes Tonight

"B" Team Faces Legion Stars in Sanford; Yearlings to Tackle Raleigh High School

Coach Lew Hayworth's jayvees will face tough competition tonight in Sanford when they take over the fast-breaking American Legion semi-pro cagers of that city.

The Sanford team is coached by Glenn Price, Duke Blue Devil cage star of a few years back, and the starting lineup contains an array of former college talent.

Starting the game for the jayvees will be Cam Rodman and Fred Swartzburg at the forward posts, Junie Bailey at center, and Harvey Weinstein and Marks Nathan or Jack Fitch as guards.

Other players slated to see action against Sanford are, Buster Stevenson, John Wilson, Bill von Bramer, Dave Mackie, and Bill Henson.

Coach Hayworth's proteges enter tonight's game with a perfect record of three wins.

Coach Frank Murray's freshmen cagers yesterday afternoon ironed out the mistakes made in their loss to Danville's George Washington High School last Tuesday, and seek to re-enter the win column tonight when they engage the Needham Broughton High School five in Raleigh.

It will seem like old times for Bill Childers and Gordon Sauls, the starting forwards for the Tar Babies, both of whom live in Raleigh and have seen plenty of action on the high school courts there.

Starting at center for the freshmen will be Sandy Hoft, and Kenny Curtis and Bill Harrington or Bill Walker will fill the guard positions. Others making the trip to Raleigh are Pete Peters, Charlie Nichols, Junius Idol, and Johnny Reagan.

Tankers Continue Work For Georgia Tech Meet

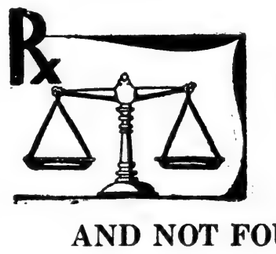
The Blue Dolphins of the Tar Heel waterways continued their preparations for the all-important engagement this Saturday with the powerful Engineer aquamen from Georgia Tech. Yesterday's drill consisted of long jaunts across the pool and much stress on the diving phase of the meet. Many of the squad members have been working hard and consistently to rate a starting berth on Coach Dick Jamerson's lineup.

The Dolphins diving will be greatly impeded by the loss of expert veteran Buddy Crone, who suffered a foot injury in practice. Norman Sper, the other outstanding performer on the club, will, however, be in go shape for the contest and hoist Carolina's chances for a win over the strength-packed Georgians.

PhantsTakeThings Easy After Jaunt

Rest and studies were the order of the day yesterday and most of the rest of this week for the Tar Heel basketball team, which just yesterday returned from an eastern jaunt which saw them knock off NYU and lose a double-overtime thriller to LaSalle.

A short practice session was held yesterday afternoon, with work on fast-break offense taking up most of the time. The drills lasted only about a half hour.



The Phants missed three days of work this week and will be hard at the books all this weekend while they have a breathing spell from a tough schedule. The next game for the Scottmen will be played here next Tuesday night with Virginia.

Carolina will make its second northern swing next weekend when the Phantoms travel to College Park, to take on Maryland Friday night and then move on to Annapolis Saturday afternoon.

Darien Is Off Limits Except for Officials

Washington, Jan. 16—(UP)— The Navy says that American ships calling at the Russian controlled port of Darien in Manchuria, will henceforth carry civilians on official business only. The order follows a recent diplomatic incident in which reporters tried to go ashore from an American ship, but were refused by Russian authorities.

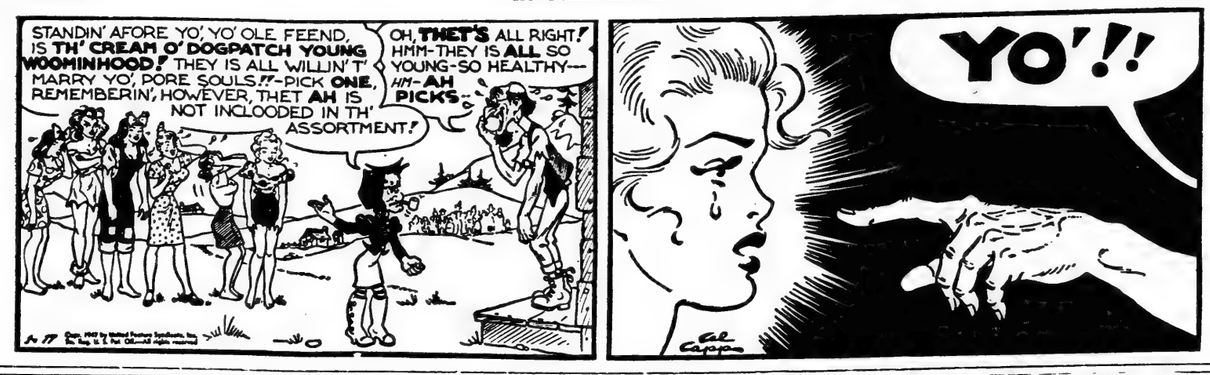
The report explained the much talked-about Dorsett veto of the amendment to the elections bill that would have created polling places in Aycock, Ruffin, McIver, and the Deke house. The veto was requested by Heyward, the report said, because "there was insufficient time to efficiently carry out the provisions of the bill."

Women Solons Seated



Also contained in Heyward's message was the question of whether or not women legislators who failed to turn in campaign reports should be seated. As requested by Heyward, the Legislature voted unanimously to seat the women in the new assembly.

Under old business, Speaker Warren asked the Finance committee to look into the feasibility of a humor magazine, and asked that a report be rendered at the next meeting.

Dreams of Suntanned Days...

Around Work, Walker Claims To Be World's Laziest Man

By Hannah Davis

Interested and active in many campus organizations, Ed Walker still claims to be the laziest man in the world when it comes to work. "But anything that deals with people isn't work, you understand," he said.

Ed returned to the University after three years in the Infantry to complete his degree in accounting. After graduation next fall, he plans to take the C.P.A. examination—"just for experience."

At present Ed is serving on the Men's council, the Interdormitory council and is a freshman adviser.

He talks enthusiastically about all sports, especially swimming, and dreams of suntanned days in a girls summer camp. Bridge ranks second to women for indoor entertainment.

People, Politics, Party

A native of Winston-Salem, Ed's interests are most varied. At the top of the list are people, politics, the Student party, and steaks. His dislikes? "I don't believe in cutting classes," he said in a deep drawl. "Better to learn in the class room than in the library."

Among his other abilities is that of cooking. "The one thing I picked up in the Army that still comes in handy," he laughed.

Tall and blonde, Ed has the assured

NEWS BRIEFS

Appropriations Cut By Truman

President Seeking To Balance Budget

Washington, Jan. 17—(UP)—President Truman has done more than a billion dollars worth of financial recouping in his drive for a balanced budget. The White House announces that the President has put his finger on one-billion, 400-million dollars in various appropriation for government agencies and lend-lease which were not spent.

Wants Bookkeeping

He wants Congress to approve a bookkeeping transaction that would put these funds back into the federal treasury and help him get a balanced budget for the next fiscal year. In fact, says the President, without these reclaimed funds, the budget-balancing job can't be done.

Satellite Peace Pacts Are Revealed to Public

Washington, Jan. 17—(UP)—The final texts of the first peace treaties of World War Two have been made public. These are the treaties for Italy, Romania, Bulgaria, Hungary and Finland.

Retiring Secretary of State James Byrnes will have the honor of being the first to sign the treaties next Monday. But Byrnes, who worked 15 months in the treaty negotiations, will sign only four of the treaties because the United States was not at War with Finland.

The formal signing ceremonies will take place in Paris on February 10th with Representatives of the five former enemy countries present. The texts contain no new material from that previously reported during the negotiations.

Enthusiasm Is Waning On Army-Navy Merger

Washington, Jan. 17—(UP)—Enthusiasm for the armed forces unification plan appears to be waning in Congress. Leaders in both Houses indicate that many months may be required to work out a satisfactory legislative program.

Person County Battle Raging Over Liquor

Roxboro, Jan. 17—(UP)—The argument over last Saturday's red-hot liquor referendum is still going on in Person county. The wets lost the election by a narrow margin but have contested the vote in four rural precincts. And now the Allied Church League has hired a lawyer to represent the drys before the county board of elections next week.

Army Radar Set Saves Three Plane Crashes

New York, Jan. 17—(UP)—The Army reveals that in its first emergency use of radar at Mitchel Field, New York, last night, three possible plane crashes were averted—possibly saving 46 lives. The radar ground control approach was put to work when dense fog and mist blanketed the field.

Patterson Advocates Powerful Air Forces

Chicago, Jan. 17—(UP)—Secretary of War Patterson says that push-button warfare still is not in sight. He told the council of state governments in Chicago that a strong air force still is the nation's most indispensible weapon.

New French President Names Blum Successor

Paris, Jan. 17—(UP)—The new President of France, Vincent Auriol, has named a new Premier who will form a new French government to succeed that of Premier Leon Blum. He is Socialist Paul Ramadier who was minister of justice in the Blum cabinet. Indications are that Ramadier will seek a coalition cabinet.

Diminutive Dorothy Maynor Knows Over 250 Selections

By Sam Whitehall

Sponsored by the Council for Religion in Life, Dorothy Maynor, widely-acclaimed negro soprano, will sing in Memorial hall tomorrow evening at 8:30 o'clock.

The diminutive concert singer—she stands only four feet, eight inches—has a repertoire of over 250 songs, and for the five years preceding the war gave a total of 300 concerts on five transcontinental tours.

During the war, her voice which critics have called "flute-like" was heard in camps and hospitals by men and women for the armed services.

Must Be Heard

Serge Koussevitsky, the venerable leader of the Boston Symphony, discovered Miss Maynor's rare voice, and proclaimed to the music loving world that it "must be heard."

In 1939 she made her New York debut at the famous Town hall before a packed and appreciative house. After her initial appearance Metropolitan papers praised her voice as "so magnificent that it must be ranked among the few truly great voices of the day."

Among other distinctions, Dorothy Maynor is the first woman ever to sing in the Washington cathedral appearing there in 1944. She also sang at an unusual recital in the Library of Con-

Battle Continues For Governorship

Atlanta, Jan. 17—(UP)— Things are as fuzzy as ever in the Peach State tonight, and the question of just who is governor of Georgia probably will remain unsettled until a court showdown.

Governor Ellis Arnall's next battleground in his fight to oust Herman Talmadge from the governor's office will be the Fulton County courthouse. His petition to bar Talmadge from office on constitutional grounds will be heard on February 14th.

Shouts Defiance

Meanwhile, Talmadge has succeeded in ousting Arnall from his temporary office in the state capitol. But Arnall shouting defiance to the men who barred him from the capitol, the men he called "storm troopers, thugs, and ruffians," opened up shop in his downtown law offices.

From these quarters he made a broadcast appeal to all Georgians to help him in his fight against those whom, he claimed, are stealing the governorship. He called on veterans to join him and to continue their fight to preserve democracy. Arnall said that he will continue to serve until the lieutenant governor is qualified and the executive powers are vested in him.

Talmadge Speaks

Talmadge in a speech prepared for broadcast tonight said that his election by the legislature on the basis of write in votes is perfectly legal under the state constitution. He also held two conferences today with newsmen.

Israelite Award Given to Graham By Carolina Poll

Given for "the furthering of interfaith amity," the Carolina Israelite gold medal award has been presented to President Frank P. Graham, it was announced by H. L. Golden, editor of the Carolina Israelite, and Allyn P. Robinson, state director of the National conference of Christians and Jews.

A voting committee of 106 men and women in 20 Carolina cities and towns participated in the selection which was handled by the Raleigh office of the national conference.

Graham, who has been on national boards and committees, has been active in interfaith welfare for many years having served as regional director of the National Conference of Christians and Jews for the past five years.

The national conference was founded in 1926 by Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes and the late Newton D. Baker. Its purpose is to have Americans of the three major religious faiths meet on a civic level in the interest of better understanding and community welfare.

Betty Moore Captures Sadie Hawkins Award

By Dave Owens

Betty Moore of Carr dormitory has been selected winner of Graham Memorial's Sadie Hawkins Day photo contest. Director Martha Rice announced that Miss Moore's pictures were clearer and more descriptive than those of any other entrants. The prize offered at the beginning of the contest is now available to Miss Moore at the office of the student union.

Ed Gilreath proved to be the most productive photographer, turning in seven enlarged photos for judging. Scotty Dellenger and W. J. Miller drew wolfish comments from the staff of male judges by entering two shots of the Wolf Gal.

Both photographs and snapshots entered in the union display are now available to the owners at Graham Memorial, according to Jack Girard, student union assistant.

Department Of Radio Created By University Faculty Order

Students See Hill's Heresy

Bowl Movies Expose Mistake by Official

By Earl Heffner

All that is sweet is not Sugar. In the Alpine atmosphere of Memorial hall balcony, the bittersweet of this lesson was administered by a movie projector to those unfortunate ones who brought their opera glasses.

For those not equipped with glasses and oxygen masks, the "Great Sugar Bowl Robbery of 1947," like other thefts of history, remains second-hand information. For Hollywoodian patrons of the New Orleans classic (i.e., students attending last night's miniature) close to the screen, conclusive evidence was seen that Gabe Hill defied Justice and surplanted Jesse James, Bad Bascomb, Pretty Boy Floyd, et al, as public enemy No. 1.

Drop the Handkerchief?

Advanced notices proclaimed that pictures of the New Year's classic were to be shown last night. Pictures were shown much to the confusion of patrons who came away wondering whether they had seen Hill's Heresy of 1947, a basketball game, or a solo "drop-the-handkerchief" by the myopic official.

The annals of Sugar Bowl history will reverberate with the story of the infamous forward-lateral, a fallacy of contradictory premisse. Less famous, yet equally widespread will be the details of Ken Powell's catching a touchdown pass and roughing the defender so much that he (Powell) was knocked out. And the penalty cost the Tar Heels a touchdown.

While officials contributed their share to the farce, the Adagio dance by the Bulldog's kickoff specialist who emulated a pogo stick on each kick, served to burlesque the spectacle.

Would that Gabe Hill could have heard the saddened comment of one ardent fan, who leaving Memorial hall said, "I think the city fathers should change the place's name to Chapel Mountain."

Earl Wynn of Communications Center Selected as Director of New Group

By Ed Joyner

A new Department of Radio was voted into existence yesterday afternoon by the close decision of 53 to 45 votes of the faculty at a meeting held in Howell hall.Earl Wynn, now director of the Communications Center will be head of the department.

The department will offer training in program planning, writing and production, and a degree in radio will be available to students starting in September 1947.

Began in 1940

Radio broadcasting began at the University as long ago as 1940 and most of the courses to come under the new department are already being taught in connection with the departments of dramatic arts, journalism and physics.

Communications Center director Wynn in his speech to the faculty yesterday advocating creation of the department gave as its three main purposes:

1. to supply the demand of students for training in the field of radio.

2. to supply a control for the growth of radio on the campus.

3. to supply the demand of radio stations for adequately trained personnel.

"Radio is a young, powerful, hungry, giant medium," Wynn said, "and it is our purpose to supply it with intelligent, well trained, educated university men and women well grounded in the liberal arts.

Required Courses

In order to put this plan into effect it was deemed advisable to place certain limitations on students going into the field. A minimum number of courses in radio will be required, and the student will be required to get an extensive background in the liberal arts.

One unique feature of the new department will be a screening plan designed to insure that only students genuinely interested and qualified for a career in radio enter into that field of study by limiting radio courses to students majoring in that department.

Another feature of the program is that students will receive training through actual broadcasts which they will plan, write and produce through the facilities of the communications center.

Communications center officials hope that eventually a broadcast station will be established here at the University, and four studios are now under construction at the center which, when finished will be the best equipped station in North Carolina.

Brazil Election Is Set To Music; Voters To Samba

Rio de Janeiro, Jan. 17—(UP)—Brazil holds its first national election in a decade tomorrow—an election set to music.

Five million voters in twenty states will go to the polls while sound trucks play South American rhythms and the people samba in the streets. The election is expected to be quiet except for the music and the explosion of firecrackers, an old South American election custom.

The voters will chose their own governors and legislators.

Ex-president Vargas picked his own men for the twenty states back in 1937. Then his applecart upset in October of 1945 when the Army decided to oust him from office.

Now Vargas is back in the political pirze-ring. He leads a party opposing Brazilian communist Luis Carlos Prestes. Followers of Vargas and Prestes figure in the individual election fights. Tomorrow's voters will decide whether Brazilian politics will swing to the left or right.

UVA Clubhouse Is Answer To High Cost Pub Crawling

By Larry Kent

For a long time students have been voicing the need for a place close to the campus where they could take a date to spend an evening dancing, having a few cokes, maybe just sitting around talking—and not have it cost them from five to ten dollars.

With the opening of the University Veterans' club Friday night many of those students found exactly the place they had been asking for.

Located directly on the campus the veterans' club is open every night of the week from 6:30 until the prevailing co-ed curfew hour. Fortunately, also, it is available to the majority of the student body, as the only admission price or cover charge is a membership card in the UVA—and over two-thirds of the students as veterans are eligible for membership.

Excellent Dance Floor

Inside the club is an excellent dance floor and good music at a low price from the nickleodeon. Arranged around the dance floor are white-clothed tables for time-outs between dances. At the bar are available cold drinks, sandwiches, ice cream and cigarettes.

At one end of the club soft cushioned divans and chairs are arranged into a lounge for quiet conversations.

The only draw back that some students will see in the club is the rule of "no beer." Only soft drinks are sold, and all members must behave themselves in an orderly manner while in the club.

Walt Talley Elected Florida Club Leader

Walt Talley of Bradenton, Fla., was chosen temporary president of the Florida club at the organizational meeting of the group Thursday evening.

Permanent officers will be elected next Thursday. The group voted to hold a supper meeting at this time but previous reservations at the Carolina Inn have made this impossible. The time and place of the next meeting will be announced later by Talley.

Approximately 40 students from Florida attended the first meeting of the club. Tentative plans for several parties later in the year were discussed and the meeting concluded with a social period in the Candlelight room.

Pictures To Be Taken Again Monday, Tuesday

Freshman and sophomore pictures will be taken Monday and Tuesday, due to the large number that could not be taken on Friday. However, no more junior pictures will be made. Also Monday and Tuesday from 1 to 6 p. m. German club and University Dance committee pictures will be made and members must be in tails. Pictures will be made on the top floor of Graham Memorial. The photographer will use the best proofs of all the juniors who do not turn in their proofs by Monday afternoon.

COOPER TO PREACH

Rev. Bertram C. Cooper, chaplain of Episcopal students of the University, will preach at the 11 o'clock service in the Chapel of the Cross tomorrow morning.

Teachers' Pay Bill Still Not Settled

Next Major Meeting Will Be Held Monday

By United Press

Raleigh, Jan. 17—Both houses of the General Assembly will meet tomorrow morning, but the session will be only for local bills since many members have gone home for the weekend.

The House has named members of an expanded conference committee to work out an agreement on the teacher pay bill but the Senate has not appointed its delegates to the compromise group.

Meeting Monday

There won't be an important business session until Monday night.

Meanwhile the House has approved the second reading of a bill which woud permit parking meters in all North Carolina towns with more than a population of one thousand or more. If the measure passes one more reading, it will go to the Senate for consideration.

The present law allows parking meters only in towns of more than 20 thousands.

Veterans Bill

In the Senate, a bill to exempt disabled World War Two veterans from the poll tax has been introduced. The existing law already exempts those disabled in the first World War. The bill was introduced by Senator Rudolph I. Mintz of Southport and four other senators.

Another bill by Mintz and the others would extend the advantages of state veterans legislation to former Coast Guardsmen.

House Members Named To Conference Group

Notice Not Sent

As for the contested teacher pay raise bill, a formal notice of house action in naming its members of the conference committee was not sent to the Senate, although the upper house waited several minutes before adjourning this morning.

When the message from the house arrives, Lieutenant Governor Ballentine is expected to re-appoint the three original conference committee members—Senators Barber, Lumpkin, and Brown—and also to name three others.

Confusion at Caldwell

"Unbelievable, but true," is a term that can well be applied to the situation prevailing daily at Caldwell hall.

One of the busiest classroom buildings on this busy campus, Caldwell is jammed with students at every hour throughout the morning. Yet the many students must all come and go by way of the small front door.

Which they can't do—in any reasonable fashion. Morning after morning students are forced to queue up in lines resembling a New York subway rush hour. If anything, the subway crowd moves faster.

Because of the single, small entrance-exit, it takes most students the goodly part of the 10-minute period between classes to get in and out of the building. General confusion is the result.

The situation would be bad if nothing could be done about it. What makes it worse, something can be done about it. There are doors at both sides of the building. But they are closed. Dr. Robson, head of the political science department in the building, told us he has repeatedly requested that the doors be opened. Such a move would alleviate matters no end.

The two side entrances are supposed to be fire exits. But they are locked. If fire were to break out in Caldwell hall, it would be humanly impossible for the students to get out of the front door safely, and panic would undoubtedly cost additional lives.

As it now stands the situation is highly impractical and creates a troublesome bottleneck. Opening even one of the side doors would allow for a smoother flow of student traffic and give people a chance to get in and out of the building conveniently—a chance they don't have now.

It would also give them an even break in case of fire—something not beyond the realm of possibility because of the careless manner in which many students handle matches and cigarettes.

This newspaper will campaign to have the side doors opened immediately for the benefit of everyone concerned. If there can be a valid reason for keeping the doors locked, we will find it out and see if it can't be changed.

The present situation at Caldwell is farcical—and dangerous!

Time Is Short!

At the recent National Student Organizations convention in Chicago, student leaders from all over the nation hailed the University's official student constitution as one of the country's outstanding accomplishment's in student governmental machinery. The Daily Tar Heel almost agrees with them! Almost, because the constitution is in a nebulous state, and is only unofficially in effect now nearly two years after the first work was begun on it.

If it is to go into effect at all before April 1948, much work must be done, and fast! Though student government is now operating under the bill, one of the most important sections, the fee structure, is yet not in effect and all student activities fees remain controlled under a system installed in 1923. This new fee structure which we believe infinitely superior to the present system, would give the student legislature authority to collect and apportion all student fees up to $20 per school year. The student legislature, student body, and administration have all approved this provision as well as the rest of the constitution. However, this new fee structure must also be approved by the University Board of Trustees before going into effect.

This must be done soon. Section 5, Article I of the constitution states: "The Student Legislature shall not alter the fee structure for a given school year later than April first of the school year immediately preceding." This means that if this new system of fee collections is not in effect within the next ten weeks, it cannot go into effect before April, 1948, as the constitution now stands.

Thus the trustees must act to approve this section in ample time to permit the University business department to prepare the necessary forms and get the new machinery rolling before April 1.

Despite this, Student Body President Dewey Dorsett stated yesterday that the committee on constitutional revision, appointed by him last summer to consider possible changes in the document before its final adoption, was yet completing changes in the constitution, which will be presented to the legislature for approval in the last meeting of the month, a week from next Thursday. Should the legislature approve the changes, a two-thirds affirmative vote of the student body will be required for ratification of the changes. Then the changes will be subject to approval of the administration. When this is completed, Dorsett will give the constitution to President Graham, who will then present the section on the fee structure to the trustees for approval or rejection.

This leaves a tremendous amount of work to be done, and an alarmingly short time in which to do it. Though we favor immediate presentation of the constitution to the trustees with amendments after it is finally in effect, at this stage—with most of the changes nearly ready for presentation to the legislature—we can only urge speedy, careful work—Only ten more weeks remain!

Strictly Detrimental....

Students Who Burn Midnight Oil Deserve Midnight Snack

By Jud Kinberg

Raising to the full height of its bureaucratic hindlegs, University officialdom has started a thorough hot-plate hunt through the dormitories, in which it looks like the students are once again going to get burned. The offensive equipment is to be snatched from rooms, seized as contraband and impounded.

The reason given for this descent upon such items is that they are a fire hazard, repeatedly cause the premature death of many a good fuse and the residue of foodstuffs cooked on and in them serve as sustinence for marauding "ants and other insects." I'm not quibbling with Administration bloodhounds about the dire results unchecked hotplates can have upon that suttle dormitory community life. Such offenders against the power lines must and should be yanked out.

It does seem to me, though, that while we're clean-sweeping the dormitories, it would prove beneficial to ponder the "why" of the "hot plates, coffee pots and appliances other than radios and lamps." They are obviously the result of a complete lack of any social or gastronomic facilities in the dormitories.

The average college man rarely closes his last book of the night until well past the witching hour. At twelve or one o'clock in the morning there is no food shop open in Chapel Hill. Even if there were, it's a far piece to travel after an evening of intensive study. To provide for early-morning and late-at-night hungers, why not set up an approved refrigerator and hot-plate in each of the men's dormitories? The men themselves could stock it and very little janitorial effort would be necessary to keep it clean.

Of course, the food problem could be pursued further into a suggestion for the future that we follow the Harvard plan and have full-fledged, three-meal kitchens in our new dormitories. Whether that is contemplated seems very unlikely. But the small, range-refrigerator units could easily be installed in even the oldest dorms as soon as completion of the new units frees a room for non-sleeping purposes. Meanwhile, plans for them should be included in the hostelries which are quickly threatening to block the view from Woollen Gym.

At the same time, the older and more discussed question of social rooms in each man's dormitory also seems to have been forgotten. That they are closer to necessity than luxury is proven by their presence in the man's living quarters at most other schools. Perhaps they were unimportant in BVP when every man had his own sitting room, but I doubt if we will ever return to those wallowing luxury days. In fact, most dormen I know have limited their prayers to getting the third guy out of their cubbyhole.

Certainly, in the dormitories now under construction there should be full allowance for at least one large four-walled area that can be designated as a social room. More than any other one thing, this would lift a dormitory out of its present designation as a place where a student hangs his hat and pajamas. It would be a center for activities which would make the dorm a concentrated, effective community. To go far afield, so important have dormitories become at Harvard that they closely resemble fraternities in the interelation of their occupants.

As one professor bluntly put it, "We just don't know how to live graciously here." It is about time that we started to learn. Social rooms in each dormitory plus the snack rooms are a first step in that essential education.

Student-Government Topics

From the panel discussion covered in our last column, we moved to a regional caucus. North and South Carolina comprise our region. There was difficulty in getting a chairman for the region, since it represents a tremendous task in organization. Finally, when we were about to adjourn without a chairman, I nominated Ralph Wallace, a Negro from Bennett College in Greensboro, to act as temporary chairman until sometime in April when the region will have been organized for its first meeting.

Wallace was well-qualified in my opinion and was the only man who would accept the unpopular position. There was limited opposition to the appointment, but Wallace was elected. Later the position was reconsidered, and Bill Miller, the only other Carolina delegate at the first caucus, agreed to assume the duty of co-chairman with Wallace. Bill felt that it would be fatal to have a Negro as chairman of the region. The majority of those meeting with the caucus for the second time agreed that it would be impractical to have the future of the regional organization in Mr. Wallace's hands. I do not consider myself an "extremist" when I admit that I cannot follow their reasoning completely in this respect, despite the valid arguments which attend their conclusions. In theory, two men should be able to do a better job than one, but I am not prepared to admit with anyone that the white students of North and South Carolina are so prejudiced that they cannot co-operate with another student who is as well qualified as any one of them, be he a Negro, a Jew, a Chinaman, a Moslem, or any other decent individual. I have more confidence in the college student than that!

From the Regional Caucus we entered the final Plenary Session. The aims of Panel IV again became the focal point when the delegate from Georgetown moved for a reconsideration of the aims of that Panel for the purpose of amending them (along the lines we had wanted in Panel IV.) His reason for doing this was because the delegate from Georgia had banded together about five Southern States—Florida, Georgia, Mississippi, Kentucky, Texas—who said they would not be able to recommend that their schools enter the N.S.O. if the "racial" aims were left unamended. Carolina did not sign this "warrant of secession," but Bill Miller and I later agreed to walk out with them if a more fair discussion were not conducted. We supported the delegate from Georgia because, although we were not certain how the student body at Carolina felt, we knew it was true that Georgia, Mississippi, etc. would not come back.

The first move to reconsider failed and the South prepared to "secede." However, the opposition saw the exigencies of the problem they faced and after several rousing and heated talks (Bill Miller made an effective, well-delivered one for the South), they gave in and the aims were made a special point of business. Jim Smith of Texas presented the compromise which finally went through—that all aims and clauses pertaining to the racial issue be held in abeyance until the Constitutional Convention in September. There was little doubt that they wanted and needed the South in the National Students Organization!

With this accomplished, elections were conducted. Jim Smith of Texas was elected president; Russell Austin, vice president; and Cliff Wharton of Harvard, the executive secretary. The staff committee, according to rules adopted, came from within a 150 mile radius of Chicago.

I have retained most of the information which I gathered at the conference and will be glad to allow anyone who wishes to peruse it at his disgression. The room is 105 Stacy Dormitory.

With the Student Legislature's permission, I hope to terminate this series of "diaries" with several conclusions which I have reached as a result of the Chicago Conference.

Foo Foo and Friends Discuss Their Problems And Progress Concerning Pins, Parties, Men

By Tookie Hodgson

The present school year having progressed some three or four months, editor William Dumderclick, the flying Dutchman and Czar of all the Daily Tar Heels, summoned me to his sumptuous offices and bade me seek an interview with Foo Foo Jellyroll, the campus queen.

"Hodgson," quoth Sweet William, "It is now time to again ferret out the inimitable Miss Jellyroll and ask her to regale our highly intelligent readers as to the trials and tribulations of the coed body."

"Aye, aye, excellency!" I replied, saluting smartly. "I shall do what you order with pleasure. The coed body, particularly as exemplified by Miss Foo Foo Jellyroll, holds a great deal of interest for me!" And without further ado, I mounted Meteor III, my faithful pogo stick, and was on my way hopping merrily over hill, dale and mud puddle. A cold drizzly rain impeded my journeying somewhat, but being an old Chapel Hillian, the mild case of pneumonia I contracted from it, affected my pogo stick technique only slightly and in but a few moments I arrived at my destination, the Mu Cow Mu sorority house.

I found, at this manse of female Greekdom, not only the lovely Foo Foo, but also, two of her most intimate companions, Miss "Hot Garters" Swoonlow and Miss Tallulah Lou McSwingit.

Miss Jellyroll was discussing sorority matters of great import with her two friends and not wishing to intrude upon this typically girlish chitchat, I lingered on the patio, one ear keenly alert for newsworthy items.

"Well, girls," said Foo, "We done it again! Our little ladies have once again collected more frat pins than any other sorority on the campus. Now, let's see—we have seventeen Inka Dinka Doo pins, eleven Razma Tazma pins, twenty-six Lambda Damnda pins, nine Hic Haec Hoc frat pins, two tenderfoot Boy Scout badges, one Junior G-man badge, one old Wilkie button and seven hundred and ninety three discharge buttons. Oh, darn it! I told you, Hot Garters, that those discharge buttons don't count!"

"Goodness!" answered Miss Swoonlow. "Do you mean I've gone through all that for nothing? Oh me, think of those trips through the Arboretum and all those beers I bought them! Oh, why didn't I listen to mother and go to St. Mary's?"

"Pooh thing!" echoed Miss Tallulah Lou McSwingit. "You all went at things the hard way, didn't you. Pulsonally, ah played hard to git. Ah never let a boy kiss me until he looked at me the second time. Never did have no trouble until that cross eyed boy started eyein' me. Then I liked to have gone crazy. One eye looked West, one eye looked East and I was standin' South. It was awful!"

"Tell me" asked Foo Foo, "How did everything turn out?"

"Well," responded Tallulah Lou, "I was standin' South and he was a Southern bery, so we got together right away. All I had to do was to give the old rebel yell and let nature take its course."

"That's fine," answered Foo Foo, "But let us turn our heads to newer matters. First, here's a little item of our sorority cosmetic bill. Let's see, last month the girls used six vats of cold cream, one ton of face powder, six cases of rouge, eleven gross of lipstick, thirty pounds of mascara, ninety-five pairs of fake eyelashes, six hundred bottles of peroxide, one thousand bottles of nail polish, fourteen wigs, one cork leg and nineteen carloads of Kleenex. Now, I think that's altogether too much stuff to be used in one month's time!"

"But, Foo Foo," protested Hot Garters Swoonlow. "We have almost thirty girls in the sorority now!"

"I don't care," responded Foo Foo, "We must cut down, and I think we should make that girl buy her own cork legs!"

"As you say, Foo Foo" answered the two sorority sisters deferring to Miss Jellyroll's authority. "But it will be hard for us to give up our beauty treatments."

"Well, anyhow," spoke Foo Foo, the campus queen. "The next thing to consider is what kind of a party we should give the Inka Dinka Doo fraternity. They are such nice boys and they have such beautiful fraternity pins. I really believe that we must give them our famous 'Mu Cow Mu Supper Special Riot Party."

"Goody, goody," shrieked Foo Foo's charming companions who as loyal coeds thought riots to be peers among parties.

"Let me see" began Miss Jellyroll "First we'll need a hogshead of whiskey, one olive and a half of a teacup full of powdered sugar. That takes care of the punch, the punch with a punch we'll call it. Next, we must have our trick floorshow in which we all dress up as brides and have mock weddings with the Inka Dinka Doo's, only these weddings won't be mock. We'll have a preacher handy as well as a few strait jackets for those boys who won't enter into the spirit of the thing. In only a few minutes all of us Mu Cow Mu's will have accomplished what it takes most coeds four years to do. Now, isn't that a grand idea?"

"It certainly is! Mu Cow Mus, all hail!" echoed the loyal sisters as I wended my dismal way back to safety.

Carolina Boxing And Swimming Teams See Action Today

SPORT SPINS - -

with

IRWIN SMALLWOOD

LAST NIGHT THE long awaited Sugar Bowl movies were shown in full to the student body in Memorial hall, and giving credit where credit is due, we want to thank Coach Crowell Little (who operated the projector) and the athletic department for making it possible for us to see the movies last night. The films just arrived in Chapel Hill yesterday morning, and the students were given first look at them.

Also in for a vote of thanks are Foster Fitz-Simons and Paul Young, the men who are getting ready to put on the play "The Bartered Bride" shortly. . . . The Playmaker group had Memorial hall originally to practice their production, but they postponed their rehearsal long enough for the films to be shown. Their cooperation in making the movies possible was very creditable to their positions.

We are aware that a lot of students failed to see the pictures at the showing last night because of the fact that they were out of town for the weekend, but they will be shown again as soon as they can be obtained—which shouldn't be but a week or two. The Daily Tar Heel sports staff will keep informed on the whereabouts of them and contract them for another showing as soon as possible.

Today marks one of the most active weekends in Carolina sports since fall, for the boxers, wrestlers, swimmers, and frosh and jayvee basketballers all either have seen or will see action before the weekend is through. Only the White Phantoms and trackmen were idle.

This afternoon will see the second swimming meet of the year staged in Bowman Gray pool, and it will be a serious test for the Blue Dolphins. Georgia Tech, the opponent, has one of its best teams in years and rates a good choice to knock the Tar Heels off their top-ranking position in Southern circles.

And then tonight the boxing team, although minus several stars who participated in the Sugar Bowl events against Syracuse, will take on vaunted Virginia in a traditional battle. . . . These matches will round out a full program for Chapel Hill for the weekend. . . . The Jayvees and Frosh played last night, and the grapplers will be in action this afternoon at Blacksburg, Virginia.

Carolina Chatter:

The big test in Southern conference basketball circles will be seen tonight in Duke's indoor stadium. The Blue Devils are to meet State's Red Terrors in what promises to be the top game in North Carolina. . . . The Dukes had a hard time beating George Washington, and State will give them even a harder time. . . . Yesterday's Raleigh News and Observer had good still pictures of the forward "lateral." . . . The Tar Heel football squad will convene in Woollen Gym Monday afternoon at 4 o'clock to discuss practice plans.

Football Meeting

Coach Carl Snavely will meet all footballers Monday afternoon at 4 o'clock in room 304 of Woollen gym. It is imperative that all squad members be present.

Play Duke Tonight

The jayvees see action again tonight, journeying to Durham to oppose Duke's Blue Imp quintet in the preliminary contest preceding the Duke-N. C. State clash. The tilt is slated to get under way at 7 o'clock.

Tankmen Face Georgia Tech

Engineers Favored Over Blue Dolphins

By Mac Katzin

Carolina's Blue Dolphins will tangle with the swimmers from Georgia Tech this afternoon at 2:30 in Bowman Gray pool, and for the first time in many seasons the invaders will be the favorites.

The Tar Heels will be trying to extend their home pool streak to 26 wins while the Engineers will be using all their aquatic prowess to overcome the Carolina jinx that whipped them last year. Tar Heel mentor Dick Jamerson commented on the matter thus: "Coach Freddie Lanoue has strength in every event. We could squeeze out a win, but pre-meet performances make Tech the favorite."

Bo Jenkins will be out to duplicate his last year's record of beating Tech's star back stroker 'Splash" Flowers. Flowers, however, is not the only strong man on the Engineer club. Johnny Hiles is regarded as the South's outstanding distance swimmer, while Barrett has bettered all the times of the Blue Dolphin breaststroker's this year. Matching talents with Carolina's Ficklen and Greenbaum in the sprints will be McCauley and Thomas.

Spirits High

In regard to the spirit of the squad, Coach Jamerson stated, "The team feels confident that they can win. With such a spirit the boys might be able to upset the dope. We definitely know that we are not beaten until our opponents prove it by getting 38 points before we do."

Trying to upset Tech, Jamerson has shifted his lineup considerably from last week. Probable starters for Carolina are:

300 meter medley relay—Sper, Breedon, Morrow

220 meter freestyle—McCoy, McCauley

50 meter freestyle—Ficklen, Greenbaum

Diving—Sper, Erle

100 meter freestyle — Ficklen Greenbaum

150 meter backstroke — Jenkins, Sper, or McCoy

200 meter breast stroke—Cook, Hexner

400 meter freestyle—McCauley, McCoy, Hutton, Norwood

400 meter freestyle—Greenbaum, Ficklen, Morrow, Sper, McCoy, Hutton, Bultman, McCauley

Cagers Start Work For Virginia Clash

The White Phantoms went through a long practice session yesterday afternoon as Coach Tom Scott began heavy preparations for Tuesday's clash with Virginia.

The Cavalier tilt will be the first of three for Carolina next week, with the Scottmen leaving on another northward jaunt next Friday, although going only half as far as they did on last week's journey. The Phantoms engage in their second Southern conference tussle next Friday on the home court of Maryland and face Coach Ben Carnevale's Navy quintet Saturday afternoon in Annapolis.

Frosh and Jayvee Cagers Score Wins

Lew Hayworth's Jayvees turned in a 43-38 victory over the Sanford American Legion Team in a game played at Sanford, last night. Fred Swartzburg was high scorer with 11 points.

The Tar Heels held a 20-15 lead at half time. Jack Fitch and Junie Bailey turned in fine defensive games.

Frank Murray's Tar Babies got back in the winning column with a 45-43 win over the Needham Broughton High School team at Raleigh last night.

Bill Walker paced the scoring with 10 points and the fine floor play of Charlie Nichols kept the Tar Babies in the lead.

Tar Heel Matmen Tackle VPI In Blacksburg Today

Co-Captains Hearn, Seaver to Lead Local Grapplers in Opening Match

(Special To Daily Tar Heel)

BLACKSBURG, Va., Jan 17.—The University of North Carolina wrestling team arrived here tonight for their match here tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock with the matmen of Virginia Tech. The teams are scheduled to weigh in for the bouts around 9:30 o'clock tomorrow morning.

It will be the opening meet of the season for both teams, and the contest is rated a tossup in view of the fact that not much is known of the strength of either team. This is the first meeting of the two teams in several years.

Coach Chuck Quinlan and his assistant, Hobie McKeever, arrived with the team tonight, and the Tar Heels were entertained at supper in the VPI dining hall. The visitors plan no additional workouts before the meet tomorrow afternoon.

Leading the field for the Tar Heels will be Co-Captains Tommy Hearn and Dick Seaver, wrestling in the 136 and 145-pound classes respectively. Others to take part include Doug Thompson at 121, Tom Urqhart at 128, Irving Zirpel at 155, Oscar Gupton at 165, Bill Kemp at 175, and John Stoioff at heavyweight.

Hearn was undefeated in six matches for Carolina last season, and Zirpel was unbeaten as a freshman wrestler in 1942 at Carolina. The Tar Heels won five of six contests last year and were co-conference champions with Duke.

he was entered in. Others out for this event are Jim Bowles, Stuart Cramer, Harold Frost, Charles Gottesman, Bill Grier, Dan Martin and Bill Rogers.

The eventual outcome in competition in these events falls on the men themselves, as to the amount of work they put out in getting themselves in condition, for the meets this season.

Runners Working For Coming Meets

Coach Ranson finds the middle distance situation for this year similar to the rest of the track events, plenty of potential talent with the question, will the GI's be able to come back?

In the 440 there are three lettermen returning, they are Don Nelson, Conference Champion in 1944, Bob Dodson, 880 Champion in 1945 and Bynum Hunter.

During the indoor season the toll is particularly high on the quarter milers as they are called on for nine spots on the program. They are, four in the 440, four for a one mile relay and one for the sprint medley relay.

Besides the three lettermen, other candidates are Phil Woollcott, Ben Douglas, Lon McKnight, Fred Farley, Holt Farley, Hubert Robertson and Bill Halsey.

In the 880, Coach Ranson has Mark Burnham and Tommy Turner to call on, both of these men lettered in 1946. Burnham was a miler last year and finished well up in all the meets including the IC4A. He was one of the leaders on the undefeated cross country team this fall. However, with all the talent in the longer events Burnham's terrific speed should make him one of the top college performers in the half mile race.

Turner is a steady runner and was a member of the two mile relay team that represented Carolina in the Garden last year.

Outstanding prospect in the half mile is Halstead Holden, a Freshman from Durham, last year he won the state 1000 yard title and also was well up in all the 880's and 440's that

Ringmen Meet Virginia Crew

First Bout Slated To Start at 8 p. m.

By Jim Pharr

Carolina's boxing team will open its regular season in the home ring tonight when Coach Mike Ronman's boxers will battle the powerful University of Virginia mittmen in Woollen gym. The first bout is scheduled to get under way at 8 p.m.

The Tar Heels, who lost to the Syracuse University leather-pushers in the Sugar Bowl by a 5 1-2 to 2 1-2 decision, will enter the ring with practically a new lineup tonight. Illness and other difficulties have taken a heavy toll on Coach Ronman's ranks.

Among the losses from the Carolina team, probably the greatest are Ed McGee, heavyweight, and Dick Young, 165-pounder, who took the only Tar Heel victory at New Orleans.

Unbeaten Record

Virginia invades Chapel Hill with a record for the season of two wins against no losses. The Cavaliers opened by ekeing out a 4 1-2 to 3 1-2 win over Maryland's Old Liners. Coach Al York's men took their second contest by crushing the Coast Guard Academy, 6 1-2 to 1 1-2.

The match shapes up as a battle between Charles Lambeth, Leonard Green, and Conway Rose, of Carolina, against the boxing brothers from the Old Dominion state, Basil, Joe, and Jimmy Miragliotta.

The probable lineups:

Carolina	Weight	Virginia
Buffaloe or Orr	125	Burch
Lambeth	130	B. Miragliotta
Rose	135	Jim Miragliotta
Winn or Norton	145	Barnett
Green or Webster	155	Joe Miragliotta
Young	165	McNagny
Amos	175	Shoaf
Foster or Galinkin	hwt.	Poe

During 1946, approximately 11,486,000 persons were employed as farmers in the United States.

Proposed Law Aims To Muzzle Wolves

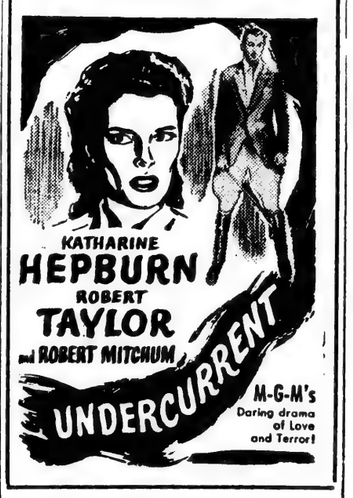
Raleigh, Jan. 17—(UP) — The Wolves at North Carolina airports are going to have to operate in sheep's clothing, and under state law, if State Senator Gordon Gray has his way.

According to a bill introduced in the legislature by Senator Gray, a whistle calculated to embarrass a woman at an airport would be to the tune of one hundred dollars or sixty days in the brig.

Wolfcalls Are Out

Verbal remarks and wolfcalls are out too. The Senator from Winston-Salem says there has been too much loud talking, loafing, and wolf calling around airports. And he wants to stop it.

The bill would outlaw boisterous conduct, vulgar or profane language, and anything said to annoy or disturb travelers.



But it specifically includes whistling.

gress on the 75th anniversary of the 13th amendment to the Constitution.

Made Many Recordings

A graduate of Hampton Institute, the sepia soprano's voice has been waxed on numerous Red Seal records. Among her most popular recordings are a great number of negro spirituals done without accompaniment.

Her latest album is devoted entirely to "Sacred Songs," with the Philadelphia orchestra. Among these records which the New York Times calls "some of Miss Maynor's best efforts," are such selections as Mendelssohn's "Hear Ye, All Israel," and Bach's "Laudamus Te."

Members of both races are expected to be in attendance at tomorrow evening's recital in Memorial hall. The program is being sponsored as a benefit for the Fellowship of Southern Churchmen. Tickets, ranging from $1.00 to $2.00, may be purchased at the YMCA.

NEWS BRIEFS

Arnall Resigns Governorship

Thompson Installed; Will Continue Battle

Atlanta, Jan. 18—(UP)—Georgia's lieutenant-governor M. E. Thompson has told a news conference that he now considers himself acting governor of the state. He made the statement following the official resignation of Ellis Arnall, who said Thompson now is qualified to act as governor.

Thompson told newsmen he will continue the battle to oust Herman Talmadge who was named governor by the General Assembly. But, said Thompson, "Since I do not have a strong military force at my command, I am not in a position to say at this time what steps I will take if Talmadge refuses to evacuate the office."

Marshall to Take Oath As Secretary Monday

The White House, Jan. 18—(UP)—General George Marshall will officially be sworn in as Secretary of State at 11 o'clock Monday morning in President Truman's office. Retiring Secretary James Byrnes and a score of high government officials and congressional leaders will look on as Chief Justice Vinson administers the oath.

Unification May Cause Service Budget Slash

Washington, Jan. 18—(UP)—Senate Republican leaders feel certain that sizeable cuts can be made in the budget now that unification of the armed forces is under way. President Truman announces that service officials are working with White House advisers on a consolidation bill which will be ready for Congress soon.

One Dead, 13 Injured In Cleveland Blaze

Cleveland, Jan. 18—(UP)—It now is known that one person was burned to death, another is near death and 13 were injured in the Cleveland apartment house explosion and fire this morning.

Thief Steals Radium From Texas Shipyard

Houston, Texas, Jan. 18—(UP)—Officials in two Texas counties are trying to track down the person who stole a radium capsule from technicians in a Galveston shipyard. The thief has possibly doomed himself to a slow, painful death. And authorities are baffled as to the motive for taking the deadly mineral.

Red Church in Canada Is Expelled by Moscow

Toronto, Jan. 18—(UP)—An order tantamount to excommunication of the Russian Orthodox church in Canada has been published in a Russian Communist newspaper in Toronto. The order appeared over the signature of Alexis, Patriarch of Moscow.

French Forces Repel Hanoi Suicide Attack

Saigon, Jan. 18—(UP)— French dispatches from Saigon say a suicide attack by pro-independence troops on a Hanoi airport has been repulsed. The fighting was heavy.

Sleep-Talker Is Held In Black Dahlia Case

Los Angeles, Jan. 18—(UP)— A 38-year-old man who allegedly muttered suspicious words during a bus ride has been arrested in Merced, California, in connection with the slaying of the movie extra known as the Black Dahlia. According to police, the arrested man—Edward Thorpe—aroused the suspicions of a fellow passenger when he said in his sleep "not to cut the scar off her leg." The other passenger told police they'd previously been talking about the case.

WEATHER TODAY

Cloudy with intermittent light rain and continued rather cold.

Appearing under the sponsorship of the Council for Religion in Life, Negro soprano Dorothy Maynor will sing a complete program of many various types of songs this evening in Memorial hall.

Student Delegates Report To YMCA Tomorrow Evening

Tomorrow evening at 7 o'clock the five UNC delegates to the national convention of the Student Christian Movement will make a report to the members of the Y at a joint meeting to be held in the Roland Parker lounge of Graham Memorial. A report on the entire convention will be given by Tommy Holden. Earle Page will speak on the affirmation of Christian faith; and Don Broad on the policies which developed from this—Ethel Perry will tell of her personal impressions of the convention.

Held at the University of Illinois during the Christmas holidays, this convention was attended by over 1200 persons from the U.S., and many foreign countries. It was designed to set the policy for the National Intercollegiate Christian Council for the next two years.

Faith Affirmation Policy

The first policy to be presented to the assembly was an affirmation of Christian faith. Among the more outstanding developments stemming from this affirmation were the policies on social responsibility and world relations. These included one on race relations calling for complete abolition of segregation, and others on economic justice asking for full employment, regulation of international trade, and legislation to improve rural economy and social life.

A political effectiveness committee was established with representatives in Washington, and pressure group tactics were urged and endorsed to further Christian aims.

Ask Rights Surrender by U.S.

The policy on world order called on the United States to surrender its sovereign right to declare war, advocated a strong, centralized world government with military power to enforce its decisions, and progressive world disarmament.

The Y extends an invitation to all students interested in the report, and especially urges all members to be present. The meeting will end at 8 o'clock, allowing everyone ample time to attend the Jooss Ballet.

Bridge Tourney Dates Changed

The weekly bridge tournaments sponsored by Graham Memorial will be held each Tuesday night at 7 o'clock in the Roland Parker lounge instead of each Thursday night, announced tourney directors Howell Peacock and Jim Jackson.

Peacock and Jackson stated it was essential that students desiring to compete in the bridge tournaments be ready to play at 7 o'clock in order to finish by 11 o'clock, week night closing time of Graham Memorial.

Uniform Marriage Law Subject of Phi Debate

"Should the federal government enact uniform marriage and divorce laws, constitutionality granted?" will head the list of bills to be reported out by the ways and means committee of the Phi assembly for discussion Tuesday evening at 7:30.

Since 1890 when the American Bar association requested that Congress enact uniform marriage and divorce laws, the proponents of uniformity have endeavored to secure approval for the proposal. Defeated on the national level, the adherents to the bill have endeavored to secure uniformity through state action. So far, however, only a few states have taken action along this line.

Yackety Yack pictures of the Phi members will be taken at this meeting.

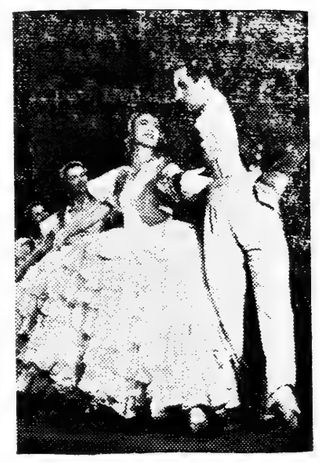
Maynor Sings in Memorial Hall

Negro Folk Music Is Integral Part Of Benefit Tonight

By Sam Whitehall

To help members of her race find the means to contribute to American culture is one of the motivating ambitions of the noted Negro soprano, Dorothy Maynor, who will appear in a concert sponsored by the Council of Religion in Life tonight at 8:30 in Memorial hall.

Tickets for the concert which range from $1 to $2 may be purchased at the door. Members of both races are expected to attend the program which is being sponsored as a benefit for the Fellowship of Southern Churchmen.



Miss Maynor will include on her program "Malaguena," by Nin; "The Blooming Hedges," by Debussy; and two numbers by Mendelssohn, "On Wings of Song," and "New Love."

Also on the program is Massenet's aria from "Herodiade," "Il Est Doux, Il Est Bon," and "The Maiden's Lament" by Dvorak.

Important Research

Dorothy Maynor has made some important research in heretofore unpublished Negro folk music and has done much to familiarize the American public with its songs and spirituals. An integral part of her program tonight will be her presentation of three Negro spirituals, "I'm a'Traveling to the Grave," "What Kind of Shoes," anl "Go on, Brother."

Miss Maynor, who recently was the guest soloist at New York university's Hall of Fame, has been working consistently both through the medium of her voice, as well as through various social activities to foster the recognition of Negro contributions to our culture.

A scene from the Jooss ballet's presentation of "A Ball in Old Vienna," which pictures the gay lives of hoop-skirted ladies and their swains in the 1840's.

'The Green Table' To Highlight Slate Of Satire Numbers

By Bettie Washburn

Featured in the performance of the Jooss ballet here tomorrow evening will be the dramatic satire on diplomacy, "The Green Table," which was awarded first prize at the International Congress of the Dance at Paris in 1932.

Admittance will be by season tickets for the Student Entertainment series. Others may buy individual tickets at Swain hall or Ledbetter-Pickard's. The performance will be in Memorial hall at 8:30 tomorrow evening.

The ballet's sequences show how the diplomatic "gentlemen in black," failing to settle their differences through sane discussion, throw their countries into turmoil by beginning a war.

"The Big City"

Another striking ballet to be included on the Jooss program is "The Big City," which embodies a series of impressions of a modern European metropolis. The streets are full of people who rush about their business without caring for or knowing each other. The last scene of the ballet reveals the disillusion that awaits a young girl who has deserted the working quarter on the arm of a handsome stranger who has dazzled her with his promise of adventure.

In direct contrast to "The Big City," Jooss offers "A Ball in Old Vienna," which portrays the gallant life in the 1840's, enlivened by the sentimental intrigues of fair ladies and their admirers.

New ideas are continuously under study for Jooss ballet repertoire and new talents at choreography, costuming anl settings are always championed by the forward-looking Kurt Jooss, who has been called "the most original mind in ballet today."

IRC to Discuss Marshall Career Tomorrow Evening

"Which Way with Marshall?" will be the discussion question for guests and members of the International Relations club informal forum tomorrow evening at 7:30 in Graham Memorial's Roland Parker lounge. For the term's first open IRC session, refreshments will be served at a reception for visitors following the regular meeting.

"The IRC plans many interesting innovations for the coming term's weekly discussion programs," said John Bristow, the organization's vice-president, who will lead the forum tomorrow night. Reports on General Marshall's career and the diplomatic problems he faces will be made by Stewart Lucas and E. B. Jeffress.

Meanwhile, the IRC is making arrangements to bring to the campus an outstanding Zionist to answer the address of Arab nationalist Nejla Izzedin. Dr. Izzedin, who spoke under IRC sponsorship to a capacity crowd last Wednesday in Graham Memorial, objected to further Jewish immigration into Palestine.

Prospective members interested in world affairs are invited to attend Monday night's meeting. At that time, application forms will be available and membership interviews will be conducted this week.

Student Party Elects New Officers Today

There will be a meeting of the Student party this afternoon at 4 o'clock in the Candlelight room of Graham Memorial. New party officers will be elected at this time, announced temporary chairman Jack Booraem.

Buying Club Stockholders Complete Initial Food Order

Over 100 persons gathered in Bingham hall Friday evening to participate in the Chapel Hill co-op's initial mass buying meeting of the winter quarter.

Opening the meeting with a brief explanation of co-op aims and purposes chairman Tom McDade announced, that by action of the board of directors, if the organization does not have its own store in operation by the end of this year those stockholders who wish to withdraw may sell back their stock, except for one share.

"We are taking this action in order to encourage everyone to invest as much as they possibly can in club stock," explained McDade.

Ten Per-Cent Mark-Up

In line with standard co-op procedure Dr. L. M. Brooks suggested that the local group vote a 10 per cent mark-up over wholesale prices to cover expenses. His suggestion was put in the form of a motion by Dr. Frank J. Kottke with the stipulation that any profits from the mark-up be returned to stockholders through a dividend within the next four months. The motion was carried without dissenting vote.

Orders taken at Friday's meeting will be purchased wholesale this week and delivered to Chapel Hill. Here they will be sorted by a committee of volunteer workers and they distributed through neighborhood chairmen in town, victory village, and the trailer camp.

It was decided to hold the next buying meeting February 10 in connection with the organization's annual meeting for the election of officers.

Screen star Greer Garson makes the appeal for funds in the motion picture 'A Step Forward' which will be shown in all local theaters during the March of Dimes, January 15-30. The March of Dimes is the only fund-raising activity sponsored by the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis.

North Carolinians Headline Cast of 'The Bartered Bride'

Carolina Playmakers, Music Department Cooperate in Latest Campus Production

Thirty-five North Carolinians have been cast in "The Bartered Bride," Smetana's comic opera to be produced jointly by the Carolina Playmakers and the music department in Memorial hall here Friday and Saturday, January 31 and February 1.

The production is being co-directed by Foster Fitz-Simons, assistant professor of dramatic art, and Paul Young, assistant professor of music.

A 25-piece orchestra, under the direction of Professor Young and composed of faculty members and students, will furnish the background music.

Cast Members

The role of Marie, the peasant bride, will be sung by Nina Thomas of Tampa, Fla., and understudied by Alice Sommers of Rogersville, Tenn., who is also cast as Esmeralda, the danseuse in a troop of acrobats. Harriet Keen of New York City is Ludmilla, Marie's mother, and Martha Hygel, Asheville, will sing the role of Hata, a peasant girl.

Ed Easter, Lexington, is cast as Jenik, Marie's sweetheart. Ed Von-Lehn, Brooklyn, is Kezal, the marriage broker. Rufus Norris, Chapel Hill, will sing Krushina, Marie's father. The roles of Micha and Vashek, a peasant father and son, will be played by Sam M. Greene, Mooresboro, and Carl Perry, Schoolfield, Va. The principal comedian is James Geiger, Miami, Fla.

Men's Women's Chorus

In the women's chorus the sopranos are: Hilda Frances Lawrence, Chapel Hill; Maude B. Foy, Kinston; Valeska Haydon, Chapel Hill; Phyllis Bradshaw, Chapel Hill; Betty Jo Blanton, Asheville; Sarah Parker, Smithfield; Helen McCann, Asheville; Marcia McMillan, Raleigh; Joyce Heafner, Lincolnton; Alice Sommers, Rogersville, Tenn.; and Martha Hygel, Asheville.

Altos: Ann Dubbs, Durham; Eugenia Quinn, Chinquapin; Audrey [illegible], Augusta, Ga.; Henrietta Cooper, Wallace; Eleanor Webb, Henderson; Eliska Chanlett, Chapel Hill; Frances Leazer, Atlanta, Ga., and Mildred Showalter, Raleigh.

Chance To Remember

Psychological aspects of the human mind are such that individuals unconsciously follow the line of least resistance and forget—intentionally or otherwise—the distasteful facts and occurrences of life.

Often a remembrance of a tragic moment may stimulate a munificent action. With this realization in view, the Daily Tar Heel is using this space to turn back the pages of time to the unfortunate day when President Franklin D. Roosevelt died.

When confronted with the news of the Commander-in-Chief's death, many servicemen felt the weight of loneliness upon their shoulders. A similar note of despondency must have been registered in the hearts and minds of all Americans.

Shorn of their wartime leader, citizens alternately bereaved the President's death and looked with trepidation towards his successor. But an analysis of ensuing events is not the purpose of this editorial.

On the day of Roosevelt's demise, many persons sincerely expressed themselves as being willing "to have done anything" to postpone the tragic event. Later they became emotionally fired with the intent of furthering the ideals of their deceased leader.

Emotions fluctuate with the tides. Personal problems soon supplant those of the world; the intent to aid mankind in the solving of world problems soon takes a secondary role.

This week each student has an opportunity to take his "world betterment" desires out of moth balls and aid in a program advocating no political philosophy, a program supported by all polemics whether leftists or rightists.

Once again every American has the privilege to join actively *in one of the great peace-time battles waged by Man in his ceaseless struggle to make the world a better place in which to live.

Each student may contribute to the March of Dimes campaign against Infantile Paralysis. In so doing each may walk in spirit with that great leader in the fight against polio—Franklin Delano Roosevelt.

Progressive Action

Another progressive page was written into the history of the University on Friday afternoon when the faculty by an affirmative vote of 53 to 45 opened a new and lucrative profession to diligent and interested students by creating a Department of Radio.

To supply the demand of students for training in the field of radio, to supply a control for the growth of radio on the campus, and to supply the demand of radio stations for adequately trained personnel are the reasons given by Communications Center Director Earl Wynn for creation of the department.

The Daily Tar Heel commends the foresight displayed in voting into existence the new department.

With the advent of radio, a new writing technique was introduced. Broadcasting companies have been forced to train their own personnel in the intricacies of radio writing.

In time, perhaps, most colleges and universities will create departments of radio training. In so doing they will enable prospective writers to seek a field where monetary rewards parallel the quality of work.

Journalistic efforts—with rare exceptions—receive a compensation only slightly above that of the underpaid educator. Playwrights and novelists receive higher stipends, but only after long writing tenures with the ever-present and probable possibility of repeated failures.

In radio writing the neophyte is offered a compensating field.

He may not satisfy his crusading instinct as he would by journalistic endeavor; he may not leave a great work for the world as will another George B. Shaw or James Joyce. Neither will he live in an attic with aspiring authors doomed to failure, nor a house owned by the local bank as is the lot of a majority of newspapermen.

Unique and admirable is the intent of officials to screen students so that only those interested and qualified in a radio career may enter the field of study.

Wanted: Political Optometrist . . . .

Stifling of Free Speech Not The American Way

"I'm only shootin' at th' red birds!"

By Eddie Allen

The world of our time is a sick man, plagued by internal disorders which its multitude of would-be social physicians are unable to comprehend. Yet for all its bodily needs, it would today seem most in need of a political optometrist. There appears on this page this morning a minor example of the color-blindness and myopic dogmaticism which have kept peace and world understanding a mere misty dream. It is a dangerous disease this, which can eclipse tolerance and affix virtual blinders to eyes which should be kept ever open.

I refer to the letter from a professed group of conservatives who would eliminate the hateful "red" from everything except fire trucks on a university campus famous for its liberalism and unfettered thinking. Speaking for their organization, Charlie Kauffman and John York advocate the barring from local appearance of any speaker "whose national loyalty is in question."

Communist Elizabeth Gurley Flynn, whose scheduled talk here was cancelled because of her illness, is the immediate object of their righteous wrath. They list her crimson and checkered past, including her part in the famed Sacco-Vanzetti case, parts of which have become synonomous with freedom of expression (however lacking in "national loyalty") in the United States.

They decry the fact that she was to have been brought here by the Carolina Political Union "supported by funds involuntarily contributed by all students." They thereby are apparently reasoning that the function of the CPU is to hear and discuss only those beliefs compatible with—pardon the phrase again—"national loyalty." They discover, too, by round-about reasoning that since many students are attending the University under the G. I. Bill that the United States itself is contributing to the spread of communist doctrine. Is not "Free speech" still in the constitution they so religiously support?

It is unfortunate that Miss Flynn was unable to appear as scheduled. For had the conservatives attended—which they probably would not have, for I had not heard that attendance was compulsory—they might have found that she would not have delivered a leftist harrangue but rather a calm, informative talk which could prove food for thought even for her dyspeptic critics.

One would think that the many stumbling detours which man has taken toward a still-distant Utopia would at last make him humble and willing to learn. That he is not is undeniably at the root of abortive peace-plans and the unchecked surge of rampant nationalism which keep the globe divided.

This writer has no love for communism or its allied doctrines. It has its faults. But so does democracy. The perfect government lies somewhere between, how far between one cannot know. But one can learn.

True, the communist party in America has made grevious, unforgivable errors. But I have had a fleeting glimpse at the soapbox anarchists in New York's Columbus Circle. I felt that they were wrong, but however wrong they were they were allowed to speak. I felt as I left that this was as American—yes, even these dirty-shirted men with beards and thick accents—as a certain statue which stood not far from where they spoke.

Clemenceau, the French statesman of the first great war, was once asked by a friend why he did not disown a son who had joined a communist society in Paris. The Tiger replied, "If my son had not become a Communist at 20, I would have disowned him. If he is still a Communist at 40, I will do it then."

"Nothing at last is sacred but the integrity of one's own mind," and it cannot be a mind which would isolate itself from the living world and living ideas.

Letters To The Editor

All letters must be typewritten, double-spaced, under 300 words in length, and signed by the writer. Writer's name will be withheld on request, but letters must be signed. The Daily Tar Heel reserves the right to present the letters as it wishes and to delete all matter it considers libelous.

"Free Speech"

The Carolina Conservative Club, at a recent meeting resolved that they officially opposed the presentation on the campus of speakers "whose national loyalty is in question" and requested that the Student Legislature take the proper action to prevent such occurrences in the future.

Recently the Carolina Political union planned to present as a speaker Miss Elizabeth Gurley Flynn, Chairman of the Women's Committee of the Communist Party of America. Miss Flynn has been an admitted Communist and anarchist since 1906 when she joined the Industrial Workers of the World. The first Tar Heel article on the then-coming Flynn speech presented the view that Miss Flynn was more of a martyr than an anarchist. With the court record that woman's got this position seems remarkable to say the least. The role she played in the Sacco and Vanzetti affair luckily (for herself) won her only a nice red parading flag while her two male cohorts were awarded with a nice red-white-and-blue rope by the state government of Massachusetts.

Such campus organizations are financially supported by funds involuntarily contributed by all students at the beginning of each quarter. And as there are many students now attending the University under the benefits of the G. I. Bill of Rights, the United States Government is contributing to these funds. Therefore, the Carolina Conservative club considers the bringing of "disloyal" speakers to the campus by these clubs a gross act against the confidence that the student body and the government have placed in student activities.

The club wishes that the Student Legislature and the Student Body will join in making it known to outsiders that a large majority of the students of the University have selected the Constitution of the United States as sufficient in regard to "freedom of speech and thought" and that this University is not a haven for the communistic thinkers in this country.

Poland Going to the Poles In First Postwar Election

By Manny Margolis

Today is Election Day in Poland. The entire country will go to the polls—or, more accurately, to the Poles—in the first general election in that country since before the war.

The Polish government and people have had a centuries-old tradition of feudal Fascism to overcome. This election marks an important milestone on a long, uphill climb toward a people's democracy, away from Czarism, from Pilsudskyism, from Hitlerism.

Unfortunately, this election, like several which have preceded it in other countries in Europe, finds East and West "poles" apart as to its legitimacy. Newspapers in our country have played upon this political polonaise with increasing crescendo—charges and countercharges, points and counterpoints, notes and counternotes.

Yet, discordant as this polonaise has sounded, one theme has become increasingly clear and audible. Leland Stowe very capably brings this out in his recent book, "While Time Remains," when he says:

"Socialism, whether we like it or not, has become the last strong defender—and perhaps the last effective champion—of political democracy in Europe. In the immediate future, if we cannot co-operate with Socialist democracies in the Old World, we shall find precious little democracy with which to cooperate."

We have not cooperated with the present socialist Polish government, nor de we ever intend to, it would seem. Even BEFORE the present Polish Election Law was enacted (Sept. 1946), a protest had been filed with the government of Poland by the United Kingdom and the United States concerning the general election. At best, these notes were premature. At worst, they were—as former UNRRA Director LaGuardia has called them—"untimely, unnecessary, and without justification."

True, the election has not been completely free of violence. But aren's these the normal "honeymoon" squabbles of a nation newlywed to democracy? America had them. The Latin American states have had them. France and Italy are still having them.

It is equally true that certain persons have been excluded from exercising their voting privileges in today's balloting. In addition to the mentally insane and criminals, Polish citizens who became German subjects or who occupied privileged positions under the Nazis have been disfranchized. But this would hardly justify the all-black or all-red pictures which have been painted of this Polish election. For despite these facts, an estimated 13 million of Poland's 23 million population will enjoy the right of a closed ballot in today's voting.

Free-and-unfettered reports in American newspapers for the past few weeks have predicted that the election would be communist-controlled, a "Moscow sham," and highly un-American, to say the least. In this connection, some more facts might shed some light on this distorted subject.

There will be at least two contesting political parties in each of the 82 electoral districts, and in many districts as many as four. The chief contesting parties include the Polish Peasant Party, headed by Stanislaw Mikolajczyk, and the Fusion or Coalition Party, made up of the Socialist, Liberation, Democratic, and Polish Workers (Communist) parties. Moreover, independent nominations can be effected by filing a petition signed by 100 voters.

The endless stream of force-and-violence reports which have headlined our newspapers for the past week have emanated from Mr. Mikolajczyk's Peasant Party headquarters. In this connection, it is interesting to note what Fiorello LaGuardia, who is not long returned from Poland, opined in "PM" on January 5th:

"In my talk with Mr. Stanislaw Mikolajczyk. . . I gathered that in all likelihood he would contest the election. This is entirely true, I believe, to advice and pressure brought to bear on him and his party from sources—and I would not exclude governments—OUTSIDE OF POLAND. There has been meddling on the part of diplomatic representatives in Poland. . ."

Is it possible that the free-and-unfettered shoe belongs on the other foot?

Tar Heel Grapplers Down VPI, 18-10

Cop Six Bouts In First Meet

All Carolina Wins Gained by Decision

(Special to the Daily Tar Heel)

Blacksburg, Va., Jan. 18—The Carolina grapplers today opened their 1947 season with an impressive 18-10 win over VPI.

The Tar Heels scored victories in six of the eight bouts. Tommy Hearn and Dick Seaver, Carolina co-captains, turned in decisive victories in downing their opponents in the 136 and 145 pound classes respectively.

Doug Thompson opened the meet with a decision over Williams of the Gobblers. This was the first loss by the VPI boy in ten bouts. In the 128-pound division Tom Urquhart decisioned Kenson, 6-2.

In the 155-pound section, Irv Zirpel was pinned by Rosen with a body press in 3:41 in the best bout of the afternoon. The score was tied at 5-5 until the pin.

Oscar Gupton and Bill Kemp posted the last two Tar Heel victories in the 165 and 175 pound classes by decisions.

John Stoioff was pinned by Eimers, VPI heavyweight in 6:49, by a three-quarter nelson.

Shown above is Tommy Hearn, co-captain of the 1947 wrestling squad, who copped a 12-0 decision over his VPI opponent yesterday as the Carolina matmen opened their season.

Distance Runners Run Time Trials

The Tar Heel distance men were put through their first time trial of the season yesterday morning in the Tin Can with good results being shown.

Jimmy Miller paced the fifteen runners home in the mile in the fine time of 4:24, followed closely by Alvin Smith in 4:27 and Jack Milne and Julian Mackenzie in 4:29.

Freshmen Sam Magill and Halstead Holden were clocked in 4:34 and 4:41 respectively. This was the first mile clocking for either of these boys and they are indeed promising prospects for the coming seasons.

Mark Burnham crossed the line in 4:31 and John Bristow in 4:47 to round out the finishers.

Carolina Ringmen Lose Opening Tilt to Virginia

Cavalier Boxers Win by 5½-2½ Margin; Young, Green, Sumas Register for Locals

By Morty Schaap

A courageous but mostly inexperienced Carolina boxing team dropped a 5½ to 2½ decision to the University of Virginia in Woollen gym last night.

The finest bout of the evening was the evenly-matched 155-pounders which saw Dick Young of Carolina pound out a decision over previously unbeaten Joe Miragliotta. Young showed the crowd some fine boxing and footwork and stayed out of range of the deadly right hand of the Virginia lad.

Pug Green scored the only TKO for Carolina after he opened up on his much taller opponent in the 165-pound class. Using a hard right to his advantage, he blasted McNagny all over the ring with the referee stopping the fight late in the third round.

In the opening bout of the evening Bill Sumas, Tar Heel 125-pounder gained a draw in his bout with Johnny Burch.

Basil Miragliotta of Virginia showed too much finesse for a game but ineffective Charlie Lambeth. Charlie tried to make use of his heighth but the Cavalier had too much savvy.

Conway Rose of the Tar Heel team played the aggressor in the 135 pound tilt but the counter-punching of Jimmy Miragliotta proved to be his undoing and the referee stopped the fight in the second round.

In the 145 division Bennet of Virginia proved too ringwise for Charlie Norton and although Norton stayed with his opponent for the first round the pressure of the second proved too much and the fight was stopped in 1:57.

The 175-pound and Heavyweight classes saw Virginia footballers Shoaf and Izard pound out TKO's over Jim Amos and Joe Foster.

The summary:

125 lb Class—Sumas drew Burch.
130 lb Class—B. Miragliotta (V) decisioned Lambeth.
135 lb Class—Jim Miragliotta (V) TKO Rose (2nd rd).
145 lb Class—Barnett (V) TKO Norton (1:57 2d rd).
155 lb Class—Young (C) decisioned Joe Miragliotta.
165 lb Class—Green (C) Tico McNagny (1:46 3rd rd).
175 lb Class—Shaef (V) TKO Amos (1:11 2d rd).
Hvywt Class—Izard (V) TKO Foster (1:58 2d rd)

Jaycee Cagers Drub Blue Imps by 44-32

Durham, Jan. 18—Carolina's junior varsity registered a 44-32 victory over the Duke jayvees here this evening in a rough contest that was marked by 32 personal fouls.

The two teams fought on even terms for the first 10 minutes of play but the junior Tar Heels pulled away for a 20-13 halftime lead and increased their advantage during the second half. Coach Lew Hayworth substituted freely towards the end of the tussle.

Leading the scoring parade in the game was Carolina forward Ed Wagner, who tallied 12 points. Jack Fitch starred both offensively and defensively with Marks Nathan's outstanding floor play and Harvey Weinstein's control of the backboards playing important parts in the victory.

For the Blue Imps, Byrd scored 11 points followed closely by Edwards with 10.

Box score:

Carolina JV (44)		(32) Duke JV
Wagner (12)	f	(11) Byrd
Swartzburg (5)	f	(6) Penny
Bailey (8)	c	(2) Bynum
Weinstein (10)	g	(10) Edwards
Fitch (5)	g	Thompson

Substitute scoring: Carolina — Nathan (4). Duke—Baynes (3).

Wrestling Summary

121 lb Class—Thompson (C) decisioned Williams, 5-0.
128 lb Class—Urquhart (C) decisioned Kenson, 6-2.
136 lb Class—Hearn (C) decisioned Holland, 12-0.
145 lb Class—Seaver (C) decisioned Barlow, 8-2.
155 lb Class—Rosen (VPI) pinned Zirpel with body press in 3:41.
165 lb Class—Gupton (C) decisioned Oliver 13-8.
175 lb Class—Kemp (C) decisioned Kray 8-3.
Unlimited—Eimers (VPI) pinned Stoioff with ¾ nelson in 6:49.

Home Winning Streak Ends After 26 Triumphs in Row

By Mac Katzin

In a thrilling meet that saw the lead change hands more than four times, the Blue Dolphin home winning streak of 26 straight victories was stopped by a powerful swarm of Yellow Jackets from Georgia Tech yesterday afternoon by the score of 41-34.

The final event of the meet decided the winning margin as the Tech mermen broke a 34-34 deadlock to take the 400-meter relay race in record time. Other highlights of the meet were the four record-breaking dual meet performances turned in by the tankmen. Carolina initiated the smashing program by taking the first event, the 300 medley relay, in 3:44.4. The other three record times were made by the invading forces in the 100-meter freestyle, the 150-meter backstroke, and the 400-meter freestyle relay.

Both clubs had numerous stars who lived up to pre-meet expectations. On the Tar Heel roster, Sper and Jerry Cooke took first places while Techmen Hiles and McCauley tied for individual point-getting honors with two first places each, with an additional top position by "Splash" Flowers.

Sper, the diving specialist from California, demonstrated his swimming abilities by putting the Dolphins ahead in the 300 medley relay besides topping the diving card. Cooke put on a beautiful exhibition of breaststroking art as he breezed to the 200-meter breaststroke event with Pete Hexner pulling in a close second.

Results of the meet are as follows:

300-meter medley relay: Sper, Breedon, Ficklen (C), 3:44.4. (New dual meet record.)

200-meter freestyle: Hiles (T), Rolfe (T), McCauley (C), 2:29.8.

Diving: Sper (C), 85.4; Erle (C), 79.2; Brantley (T), 76.4.

100-meter freestyle: McCauley (T), Ficklen (C), Greenbaum (C) 1:02.9. (New dual meet record.)

150-meter backstroke: Flowers (T), McCoy (C), Avery (T), 2:02.6. (New dual meet record.)

200-meter breaststroke: Cooke (C), Hexner (C), Edelson (T), 3:11.4.

400-meter freestyle: Hiles (T), Norwood (C), Hutton (C), 5:37.5.

400-meter freestyle relay: Chapman, Swanson, McCauley, Hiles (T), 4:21.8. (New dual meet record.)

Tatum Accepts Post As Maryland Mentor

College Park, Md., Jan. 18— Jim Tatum was named head football coach of the University of Maryland today.

Tatum concluded his first season at the University of Oklahoma with a fine record that was climaxed with an overwhelming victory over N. C. State in the Gator Bowl.

Ever since Clark Shaughnessy resigned as mentor of the Terrapins Tatum's name has been linked with that job.

Jim Tatum will be remembered as an outstanding football player and coach at Carolina. Head coach in 1942 after several seasons as freshman mentor, his team had a record of five wins, two losses and two ties, including a 13-13 deadlock with Duke. Coach Tatum left Carolina after the 1942 season to enter the Navy.

Men's Council Cases

The following report represents cases held before the Men's Council since our last report through the Daily Tar Heel. It is the policy of the Men's Council not to publish the names of the students called before it for violation of either the Honor code or the Campus code. However, it is the desire for all students to be familiar with the action taken on the violations of the Honor system. The genuine interest which you manifest in your Student Government and your ideas on these reports are most important. The Men's Council meets every Tuesday night at 7:30. You should feel free to call on the council concerning all aspects of student government and especially the interpretation of the Honor system.

These cases are indicative of the variety which come before the council anl emphasize the importance of having a flexible system of student government which can give a real meaning and experience in personal and group honor and integrity.

Three students in the same class were reported by their instructor for a possible violation of the Honor code. The basis for the report was similarity of quiz papers. The three students appeared before the Men's council and a thorough investigation of all the aspects of the report, was made.

ACTION: The three students and the case were dismissed. The basis of this decision was that the council did not, in its investigation, believe that proof of violation was present.

A University student was apprehended by the Chapel Hill police for creating a public disturbance in the business district of the town. The disturbance involved very ungentlemanly conduct. The student was called before the council, and his obligation to the Campus code, his University, and his fellow students along the lines of personal conduct was explained to him.

ACTION: This student was placed on University probation indefinitely.

During a football game held here during the fall quarter, a student attempted to inhibit a local policeman from performing his duty of stopping a disturbance caused by several other students. This student was called before the council and he stated that he had been drinking and that he did not fully realize what he was doing when he bothered the officer. The local court had fined him for the act.

ACTION: The student was placed on University probation indefinitely.

Two students were reported to the council for a possible violation of the Honor code. On being summoned before the Men's Council, one of the students admitted that he had received help from his neighbor in the quiz. However, the other student denied having given the aid. The facts of the case brought out that the papers showed the presence of cheating. There was direct testimony that both men were equally guilty.

ACTION: Both students were found guilty and were suspended for an indefinite period of time. One of the students appealed the case and the Student Council sustained the action of the Men's Council.

A student who had been suspended early in the fall quarter resquested that he be allowed to reenter the University in January. The Men's Council did not feel that this former student had served a suspension of sufficient length in line with the violation which caused his suspension.

ACTION: This student was denied the right to reenter the University at this time.

During exam week of last quarter a student was reported for violating the Honor code. The student had taken a fellow student's lab report, changed the name to his own and had handed the report in as his own. This is a clear case of a student receiving credit for work which he has not performed. Although this case was reported during the middle of exam week, the council felt that this direct violation merited strong action.

ACTION: The student was given an F on the course and he was suspended indefinitely.

Two students who sit near each other were reported for a possible violation of the Honor code. The violation, as reported, occurred during their exam on a course which they took together. They admitted that they talked during the exam, and that they did talk about the exam. There was no apparent collusion between them in the answering of the question on the exam. They also stated that they did not use any help during the exam, although they did discuss the exam. Both students knew that their act represented a violation of the Honor code.

ACTION: Both students shall be given an F on the course and both shall be placed on University probation indefinitely.

Governorship Fight Unsolved By Georgians

Talmadge, Thompson Both Claiming Post

Atlanta, Jan. 20—(UP)—The two contestants for the governorship of Georgia, M. E. Thompson and Herman Talmadge, traded sharp blows today, as Thompson appeared before the state senate and was given the oath of office by a Superior Court judge. When the Talmadge-dominated Senate discovered what was going on, they raised a howl, and pushed through a resolution calling for a joint session of the Legislature at noon tomorrow—to hear a speech by Talmadge.

And the resolution used the words, "His Excellency, Governor Herman Talmadge." Thompson forces opposed the resolution, but it went through.

Consider Excluding Negroes

The Georgia House of Representatives is considering a bill to exclude Negroes from voting in the state's Democratic primary. The bill, approved by both Governor Thompson and Governor Talmadge, received committee approval in short order.

Many Rivers Rising Over North Carolina

Raleigh, Jan. 20—(UP)— Weeks of rain and a constant downpour during the past twenty-four hours have brought the Pigeon River and smaller streams in Haywood county to the flood stage in mountainous western North Carolina.

Although there appears to be no immediate danger from uncontrolled flood waters, farmlands and rural roads have been submerged after the week-long drenching.

The Weather Bureau here says the Cape Fear and Roanoke Rivers in eastern North Carolina are expected to rise above flood level.

Flood stage is expected on the Cape Fear at Moncure, North Carolina, tonight and at Fayetteville Tuesday night. However, little damage is expected. The Roanoke River is expected to reach flood stage at Weldon Thursday.

Light Brazilian Vote Seen by Newspapers

Rio de Janeiro, Jan. 20—(UP)—Rio newspapers estimated today that a third of Brazil's seven and a half million registered voters stayed away from the polls in yesterday's state elections—despite the appeals by the Catholic church and Democratic leaders for a large turnout to counter the Communist vote.

Communists, who claimed a total of one million votes throughout Brazil, turned out en masse to vote for 20 state governors and legislatures, a 50-man Rio de Janeiro town council and fill 25 vacancies in the national senate and 18 in the chamber of deputies.

Ballot boxes were opened and "token" tabulating begun in the different states, but no indication of a trend was expected until tomorrow.

Reds Defeated Twice In UN Group Meeting

Lake Success, N. Y., Jan. 20—(UP)—Soviet Russia was defeated on two counts in the United Nations Security council this evening. The council over-rode Russian objections against consideration of the dispute between Britain and Albania and voted to accept the American proposal to postpone talks on disarmament for two weeks.

Student Party Selects Jack Booraem To Succeed Chuck Heath as Chairman

Group Chooses Head Following Deadlock

By Sam Whitehall

After an hour of heated balloting, marked by several compromises and deadlocks, the Student Party Sunday afternoon elevated Jack Booraem to their chairmanship replacing Chuck Heath, who has served in that capacity since re-forming of the party last March.

Though he was the first nominated candidate for the position, Booraem, party wheel horse since its rejuvenation, withdrew his candidacy. However, after three deadlock votes between Johnny Jones and Johnny Clampitt, he accepted the position, upon a successful motion that he be elected by acclamation to serve as temporary chairman for one month, until another election will be held.

Heath Declines Nomination

Chuck Heath early in the balloting was put up for reelection, however, he declined, stating, "I have served three times. I believe that it is time for new leadership within the Student Party."

Immediately a motion was made from the floor, which carried unanimously, that an office of advisory chairman be created, Heath to serve in that capacity. As advisory chairman he will serve ex-officio on the party steering committee, and will render a report on pertinent business at each mass caucus.

Bill Mackie, recently elected legislator from the town district, was chosen as vice-chairman, and Bettie Washburn was reelected to her position as party secretary.

Within the week Chairman Booraem will choose a steering committee of nine members, all party officers to be installed in the group.

Formerly the Student party vice-chairman, Jack Booraem, left, was Sunday afternoon chosen as a compromise temporary chairman, after long and heated balloting. The group retained Chuck Heath, right, as advisory chairman. Heath, who declined to run for the chairmanship again, had served in that capacity for nine months.

Five Fellowships Open to Students

Opportunities for five American students to study in English universities during the year 1947-1948 are being made available by the American Committee of Management for the Charles and Julia Henry fund. The fund provides fellowships of 600 pounds (about $2,400) a year. The fellowships are open to both men and women.

Preference in selecting the fellowships will be given to students graduating from American colleges this spring and to those who have graduated since 1942.

Those selected for fellowships will have a free choice of subjects to be studied, and may attend either Oxford or Cambridge university in England.

The fund, established under the will of the late Lady Julia Henry, also provides fellowships enabling English students to study at Harvard and Yale.

Applications must be submitted on or before February 28, to the Office of the Secretary of Yale university or to the Office of the Secretary of the Corporation of Harvard university.

Arts, Craft Course To Begin Tomorrow

Registration for the second arts and crafts course is now open at Person hall art gallery and classes will begin at 7 o'clock tomorrow evening. The course will cover approximately 44 hours and will be held every Monday and Wednesday evening from 7 to 10 o'clock in the Caldwell hall studio under the direction of Mrs. John M. Foushee.

Instruction will be given in art metal (trays, bowls, desk sets); wood carving and the finishing of various woods; simple jewelry (from metal, ceramic, shell, bead); leather (tooling, finishing, and the salvaging and restyling of old leather articles); simple plastics; fabric decoration (linoleum blocking, silk screening, and hand stenciling); weaving (square-knotting, card carving); woolly toy animals; and book binding.

The fee will be $15.00 plus a minimum charge for certain materials.

IRC to Conduct Campus Poll On American Foreign Policy

Voting Will Be Held in YMCA All Tomorrow; Students to Indicate Presidential Choice

By Helen Highwater

Students will vote tomorrow on questions of American foreign policy in a sweeping poll of opinion sponsored by the International Relations club. The polling place in the YMCA will be open throughout Wednesday and ballots will be counted in the evening. Final results will be released Thursday.

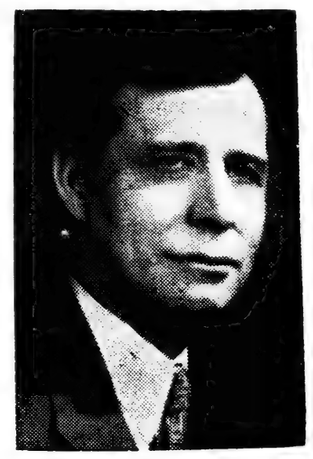
A presidential straw-vote and questions involving General Marshall, Soviet Russia, Peron's Argentina, China and the atom bomb are to be featured in the IRC poll. The actual queries will be published in tomorrow's Daily Tar Heel.

With over 2,000 students participating, Harold Stassen led Henry Wallace and James Byrnes in last year's campus-wide poll of presidential preference. Newspapers throughout the state published the results and many commented on, what they called, the liberal trend at the University.

"It is not only the results of the poll which the IRC is seeking," explained the club's president, Betty Anne Green, "we are interested in stimulating thought and discussion of international affairs on the campus. As they vote, we hope that students will stop and think and discuss many of the controversial problems facing the world."

Doctors to Honor Late Dr. Manning

Approximately 700 North Carolina physicians, graduates of the University of North Carolina two-year Medical school, have been invited to attend a memorial luncheon here tomorrow honoring the late Dr. I. H. Manning, it was announced today by Dr. George L. Carrington of Burlington, president of the University medical alumni association.



"The theme of the meeting," wrote Dr. Carrington in letters of invitation mailed to medical alumni residing in the state, "will be Dr. Manning's contribution to medical training and care in the state and the projection of his spirit into the solution of our present and future medical problem."

Dr. Manning was a teacher in the University Medical school for 39 years serving as Dean from 1905 to 1933.

Mid-Winter Press Institute Will Convene Here Thursday

Bascom Timmons, Washington Correspondent, Will Deliver Address at Opening Meeting

Plans were completed here today for the opening Thursday of the two-day annual mid-winter North Carolina Press institute to be held here and at Duke university. Registration will begin at 4 o'clock at the Carolina Inn Thursday afternoon. The opening session is set for 8 p. m. in Gerrard hall with Herbert Peele, Elizabeth City, president of the North Carolina Press association, presiding.

BASCOM TIMMONS

Principal speaker will be Bascom Timmons, veteran Washington newspaper correspondent. Chancellor Robert B. House will welcome the delegates, and President Peele will respond. Frank Daniels, News and Observer, Raleigh, will introduce the speaker.

Breakfast Meeting

The executive committee of the association will hold a breakfast meeting at 8 o'clock Friday morning at the Inn, and at 10 there will be a meeting of the associated dailies and a weekly clinic.

Several members of Chapel Hill's writers' colony, including Paul Green, Noel Houston, and James Street, will participate in a roundtable discussion of "Communication for Today," along with Earl Wynn, director of the University's Communication center, and Professors Leon M. Pollander and Stuart Sechriest of the journalism department, at a luncheon at the Carolina Inn Friday at 1 o'clock. Professor Walter Spearman will preside.

Following the discussions, the University Glee club, under the direction of Professor Paul Young, will entertain. A business session of the Press association is scheduled for 3:30 o'clock Friday afternoon.

Friday night the group will move over to Duke university where the closing dinner session will be held, beginning at 6:45. Principal speaker will be Sidney S. Alderman, prominent Washington attorney and member of the prosecution staff at the Nuremburg trials, who will be introduced by Willis Smith, Raleigh.

Cherry to Give Awards

Governor R. Gregg Cherry will present the annual press awards. Dean W. H. Wannamaker of Duke university will preside, and President Peele will make a brief talk. A Duke university quartet, under the direction of J. Foster Barnes will sing several selections.

Preceding the formal opening of the Institute, the North Carolina Associated Press club will hold a luncheon at the Carolina Inn at 1 o'clock Thursday, with Brodie Griffith, Charlotte, president, presiding.

Independent Coeds Will Hold Meeting Tomorrow Evening

The Carolina Independent Coeds association will meet tomorrow evening at 7:30 in the Roland Parker lounge of Graham Memorial.

Betty Anne Green, president of the International Relations club, will address the organization on "The Potentialities of CICA."

President Betsy Ann Barbee urges all members of CICA to attend the meeting in order that definite plans may be made for the fashion show to be sponsored by the organization in cooperation with Montaldo's. A tentative date of February 20 has been set for the fashion show, but it is necessary that the organization give its approval before further arrangements may be made.

Also on the agenda is the discussion of crested bracelets for members of the organization, plans for May Day festivities, and the co-sponsorship with the Pan-Hellenic council of Miss Martha Lucas, president of Sweet Briar College, who will address the coeds on February 24.

President Barbee also stated that the meeting of CICA is open to any independent coeds who might be interested in attending or joining the organization.

Dean Wettach Appoints Howell to Head Staff Of Law School Review

Robert H. Wettach, dean of the Law school, announced yesterday the appointment of the student board of editors for the North Carolina Law Review.

Logan D. Howell of Raleigh was named editor-in-chief with Cyrus D. Hogue, Jr., of Wilmington, and William B. Aycock, of Salem, as associate editors.

In its twenty fifth year of publication, the Review serves lawyers of North Carolina with professional treatment of significant developments in the law of the state and the nation. Editors are chosen on the basis of scholarship and ability.

Other staff members appointed are: Joe H. Barrington, Jr., Walter E. Brock, Jr., William H. Burton, Jr., Thomas G. Dill, Henry L. Harkey, John R. Jordan, Jr., Miles J. McCormick, L. P. McLendon, Jr., J. Dickson Phillips, Jr., Louis J. Poisson, Jr., J. T. Rendleman, Claude F. Selia, and Noel R. S. Woodhouse.

Welfare Board to Meet Thursday Afternoon

The Student Welfare board will meet Thursday afternoon at 4 o'clock in the Grail room. On the agenda will be further discussion of automobile problems, the necessity for the establishment of a central scheduling agency for campus activities, and the advisability of smoking in classrooms and assemblies.

Hundreds of children in North Carolina have won the battle against infantile paralysis and regained their health during the last several years as the result of treatment made possible by your dollars and dimes. Above are two typical cases—8-year-old Leona Truelove of West Asheville (left) and 6-year-old Janice Dillinger (reclining) of Hendersonville, who are being visited in the Asheville Orthopedic hospital where they are patients, by Philip S. Randolph, state representative of the National foundation for Infantile Paralysis; Dr. Kenneth S. Landauer, assistant medical director of the National foundation, New York, and Harry S. Gruver, chairman, Buncombe County chapter of the National foundation, Asheville, left to right. Contributions of your dollars and dimes during the current campaign, which ends January 31, will save the lives of many such youngsters.

Untie the Knot

The state legislature has started its third week and the important measure to increase teachers' pay remains tied in knots.

A second committee has been appointed to study the emergency increases, on which the senate and house have thus far failed to reach any compromise.

We are in favor of 30 per cent increases for the teachers and state employees who have been so vastly underpaid for so long a time. It is not too much.

As we have stated previously, the members of the legislature are not just debating the teachers' salaries. They are debating their children's futures. Only through education can our children become leaders of the world to come. Only by paying them living wages can we expect to keep good teachers.

The time for debate is fast running out. The time for action has arrived. We sincerely hope this week sees the necessary wheels rolling in the right direction—towards progress in increased salaries.

Proud Progress

While religious and racial controversies continue to rage in other lands and in sections of our own nation, the University and the Council for Religion in Life can well afford to be proud of their Sunday night presentation of Miss Dorothy Maynor.

For the first time, to our knowledge, a Negro and white audience attended a public concert in Memorial hall without any segregation in the seating arrangement. Side by side, the group listened attentively to a brilliant concert, sung by a distinguished artist.

All of which exemplifies the liberal, progressive attitude and way of thinking which is so sadly lacking among so many of our nations' so-called leaders. We are glad to see such is not the case here.

Dorothy Maynor Provides Thrilling Musical Program

By R. Haskell Hamilton

Seldom, if ever, was Dorothy Maynor in better voice than she was Sunday night when she thrilled over 1,000 persons in Memorial Hall as one of America's fine soprano voices was displayed. Miss Maynor's program was well chosen in that it allowed for a full display of her great talent, without being too heavy and laborious for the musically uninitiated among her listeners. Since her debut in 1939, with Koussevitzky, an already extraordinary voice has received training and polish which has resulted in the presentation of a recital pleasing to all. Singing in a relaxed, yet vital, manner Miss Maynor's crescendo, diminuendo, and absolute mastery of her art marks her as foremost among sopranos.

The program was divided into six parts. Displaying a gay, mellow and lusty quality the Spanish language songs "Seguidilla" and "Asturiana" by Falla and Nin's gay "Malaguena," "Alma Sintamos," and "Tonado del Conde Sol" comprised the first offerings of the evening's fine entertainment. Spontaneous, hearty, applause gave a fitting climax to this section of the recital.

Mendelssohn's "Auf Flugeln des Gesanges" and "Neue Liebe" were the first selections of Miss Maynor's offerings in the German language. These two songs were followed by Hugo Wolf's "Verschwiegen Liebe" and "Hochbegluckt in deiner Liebe." The pleasant cantabile of the artist evoked another spontaneous burst of applause and Miss Maynor obliged with an enchanting encore, "Mausfallenspruechlien," also by Wolf.

Completing the triad of languages Miss Maynor's next offerings were in French. Singing Debussy's "L'Echelonnement des Haies" and Duparc's "Chanson Triste," followed by Pierné's "Le Moulin," Miss Maynor seemed more spiritous and her mood was conveyed to the cheering audience which demanded an encore. Another Debussy selection, Fantôches, was the audience's reward.

Next followed an Aria, by Massenet, "Il est doux, Il est bon." For me, this was the highlight of the evening as rarely have I heard such tonal and pure qualities of soprano voice. Again the audience demanded an encore and Miss Maynor sang Schubert's "Ave Maria" as her last offering before the intermission. An audible sigh and genuine appreciativeness marked the audience's reaction to the passionate, feelingful rendition.

Following the intermission two Dvorak selections, "Maiden's Lament" and "My Song Resounds" were sung. The latter a gypsy song was accorded a full, fine treatment. Next was a cycle of Slavic folk songs arranged by George Shick. These were new to my ears and will be accorded a place in my memory of great musical moments. The demand for another encore resulted in Dvorak's "Songs My Mother Taught Me," a familiar song which lost none of its inner warmth by Miss Maynor's treatment.

Two songs, still in manuscript form by Karol Rathaus, "Sweet Music," and "As I Ride," introduced the final portion of the program which ended with three Negro spirituals, "I'm Traveling to the Grave," "What Kind of Shoes," and "Go On Brother." The emotional, heartful, and yet genuinely musical treatment of these spirituals called forth the demand for a series of three encores which concluded the recital.

I'd Rather Be Right

New Education Bill Offered For Senatorial Mastication

By Earl Heffner

Often the manipulations of Congress are reminiscent of a philosophical drunk debating with himself whether to indulge in a beer and then a whiskey, or whether to partake of a whiskey and then a beer. Perhaps the significant difference is that the drunk will attain no benefits from his advocation while Congress can aid the nation with intelligent legislation. Last Wednesday, another bill for Federal aid for education was introduced into the Upper Chamber by Senator Aiken of Vermont. The solon entitled his bill the Educational Finance Act of 1947. The act contains many of the provisions of Senate Bill 181, which has been pending since last summer, but it differs from all other bills so far introduced in that it would establish a national floor of educational expenditures of $100 a pupil in average daily attendance.

This floor would not be reached immediately but would be approached gradually over a period of six years and would be attained in 1953. The Federal appropriation would begin with $20 a pupil in 1948 and would increase $10 a year until it reached a maximum of $60 a pupil.

In order to qualify for the Federal aid, a state would be required to spend at least $40 a pupil or what it spent the fiscal year 1946, whichever was smaller. Since no state has spent less than this sum since 1944, all would receive Federal aid—unless a state should drop below the $40 minimum.

It would not be sacreligious for me to say "Thank God" in view of the proposed legislation. Nor should I be branded as a Doubting Thomas—even though my name is Thomas—in view of lethargy shown by man legislators toward proposed Federal aid to education.

Many states, primarily Southern, have continued in the throes of economic depression for so long that even their greatest efforts are insufficient to grant their children the educations so necessary if the nation is ever to realize its full potentialities. For that matter, since the whole is a sum of its parts, the world cannot become the Utopia of idealists until each nation approaches its potential.

To promote the lasting peace for "One World" education for all men must be pushed to the utmost.

This Federal aid to education is not a charitable gesture. Through aid to the needy, the nation strengthens itself. Exponents of the "Superman" philosophy believe in concentration of effort toward furthering the lot of the powerful minority. Democratic philosophy expounds aid to the less fortunate.

Nor will Federal aid to education lead to a Fascist state. It is true that powerful and selfish individuals could seek to tie strings to the acceptance of such aid by advocating that certain subjects be taught by schools receiving such aid. Yet this fear may be discounted as long as enough "Watchdogs of Democracy" are elected to the Congressional seats. An educated people constitute an intelligent electorate. By analysis we may see that the more intelligent the voter, the more superior his representative.

Even if the above were not true, Mr. Aiken forsees the danger and protects against it with a clause which states:

"No department, agency, officer, or employee of the United States shall exercise any direction, supervision, or control over the personnel, curriculum, or program of instruction of any school system to which funds have been allotted or paid under this act."

The Senator's bill would be of great value to the nation. It may have flaws; it may not. In any event it would improve the present educational status of the nation.

To bring his bill down to cases, North Carolina spent $65.16 on each pupil in 1944. In the fiscal year 1948, this state would receive from Federal aid $20 a pupil, in 1949 $30, in 1950 $40, in 1951 $50, and in 1952 and thereafter $60. But in the meantime the state must continue to spend as much as it did in the fiscal year 1946. The total money that North Carolina would receive under the plan would be $14,568,240 in the fiscal year 1948, and this sum would increase to $43,704,720 in 1952 and thereafter.

With a little more effort on the part of the state than it is now exerting, these allotments easily would pay the increased cost of the South Piedmont salary schedule without any burdensome addition to state or local taxes.

Perhaps the Senator's bill will become a law. Unfortunately, however isolated they may be, a few individuals such as Bilbo of Mississippi—the Man—will recognize the threat to their jobs in having an intelligent electorate and can be counted upon to oppose the bill with all measures at their command.

Letters To The Editor

Admitting Weakness

There are times when I think the DTH a bit juvenile. Today in publishing the York-Kauffman letter denying the right of free speech to Communist Elizabeth Flynn and answering it with Mr. Allen's column which defends her right to speak, I think you showed intellectual honesty that is mandatory for good reporting and editing. Congratulations.

Like Mr. Allen, I do not agree with communism. I do not agree with the Carolina Conservative Club (hereafter referred to as CCC, because I agreed with Roosevelt). To hurl a charge of disloyalty at a citizen of the United States calls for exhaustive investigation culminating in proof. I would like to see that proof. I would like to see the proof of the CCC's right to speak for a majority of the student body.

By saying Communist Flynn has no right to speak, the conservatives are admitting the weak stature of their own political beliefs. I do not question the honesty and sincerity of Messrs. York and Kauffman. I question their intelligence. It is evident to me that the only way to stop communism is to feed and educate the people. If the CCC can show me when conservatives have ever advocated a belief in the fundamental rights of man and progressive legislation to protect those rights, thus halting communism, then I will become their most sincere member. I will even advocate as a member of the Carolina Conservatives that we forget the leadership of Conservatives Coolidge, Harding, Chamberlain, and from my own Time-excluded state, Rankin and Bilbo. I will believe that since Red denotes disloyalty, we should remove it from our own flag. Hell, every time the flag is raised, a free advertisement is given to communism.

What Do YOU Say?

By Harry Snowden

Today's Question

Who do you think should be governor of Georgia?

Answers

I believe Thompson has every legal right to be governor, although it doesn't make a great deal of difference to me.—Reid Johnson, Raleigh.

Gov. Arnall seems to be the only one qualified, but under the existing laws Thompson would seem to be the rightful successor.—Earl Hartsell Jr., Chapel Hill.

Georgia's political machine of Talmadge and family should be completely destroyed. At least political democracy should exist in these United States of America.—E. L. Boatman, Morristown, Tenn.

In my opinion Arnall should be governor, but that is for the people of Georgia to decide. The complete Talmadge family seems to have done a wonderful job of messing up the government.—James A. Bridau Jr., Bladinboro.

Not understanding all the legal technicalities it is hard to say who has the constitutional right, but it seems pretty clear that Talmadge is not the man for the job. I say Thompson should succeed to the office.—Earle C. Page, Florence, S. C.

Kick the whole gang out. I think they all stink.—Wilbur McFarland, Salisbury.

I definitely feel that Thompson should take over the job as governor of Georgia. Herman Talmadge and his Ku Klux Klan followers are the most out-spoken example of bigotry present in the United States today. Neither Talmadge nor his followers are worthy of any office in our government.—Michael Pochna, Ridgewood, N. J.

Anyone but Talmadge and his gang will be fine with me.—Bill Miller, Greenville, S. C.

I feel Thompson should be governor because in my opinion Talmadge is not fit for the job. Otherwise there should be a general election for the post.—Joe Butler, Roseboro.

The man chosen by the majority of the people of Georgia. A popular vote should be cast to determine the next governor.—Ed. Wess, New York City.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

TRUMAN WARS AGAINST BIGOTRY; GEN. MARSHALL STUDIES STATE DEPARTMENT REORGANIZATION AND CAREER CLIQUE; GEORGIA FASCISM WAS PREDICTED

Washington.—At the exact moment President Truman's tightrope-walking Secretary of War Bob Patterson was refusing to help beleagured Gov. Ellis Arnall of Georgia, President Truman himself was blasting Arnall's chief foe, the Ku Klux Klan. Truman's blast took place at the first meeting of his Committee on Civil Rights, organized to combat bigotry and race prejudice. The President talked straight-from-the-shoulder and the churchmen, businessmen and educators who comprise his committee were greatly impressed.

Livest member of the new committee turned out to be Charles Luckman, head of the giant Lever Brothers Soap Company. Dullest was Charles E. Wilson, pontifical head of General Electric. Appointed Chairman of the civil rights group because he knew Truman back in the days of the old Truman Committee, Wilson seemed more engrossed in details than in big objectives.

New York attorney Morris Ernst, author of "The Four Freedoms," caused a buzz of discussion at the closed-door meeting when he proposed:

"Why not invite the Ku Klux Klan, the Columbians and Gerald L. K. Smith to give us their views on racial prejudice also? There is no reason why we should shut our ears and hear only one side. Our final report will be stronger if we hear both sides."

Another proposal the Civil Rights Committee considered was with-holding federal funds from state universities which discriminated against racial or religious groups. Such a provision, introduced by Republican Senator Langer of North Dakota two years ago, killed the Federal Education Fund, aimed at aiding public schools and raising teachers' salaries. When Langer introduced his nondiscrimination amendment, Southern Congressmen threatened a filibuster.

Note—Mainspring behind the organization of the Civil Rights Committee was Attorney General Tom Clark who, though from the south, has consistently crusaded for protection of civil rights.

WILL MARSHALL GET TOUGH?

Friends of new Secretary of State Marshall report that while resting in Hawaii he was also studying plans for reorganization of the State Department, including a knock-down, drag-out battle with the so-called white-spat career diplomats who for years have had a closed shop on U. S. foreign policy.

General Marshall already has had the benefit of a thorough State Department study made for him by the former Secretary of the U. S. General Staff, Col. Frank McCarthy who, like Marshall, is a Virginia Military Institute graduate. Originally Jimmie Byrnes appointed McCarthy Assistant Secretary of State with the job of reorganizing the State Department. But the career clique, just as skillful at closed-shop techniques as John L. Lewis, bogged him down.

Tenderly and adroitly they cut McCarthy off from Byrnes. Sick and disgusted, McCarthy finally resigned.

In the interim, Byrnes' South Carolina law partner, efficient Donald Russell, has carried on in McCarthy's place. Even he, however, has had trouble bucking the kingpins of career diplomacy. Russell has championed the principle of the career service, has tried to boost the younger, live-wire diplomats, has set up joint diplomatic schools with the Army-Navy and has demanded that all diplomats get a chance to come home on occasional visits so they won't forget they're still Americans.

DIPLOMATIC CLOSED SHOP

However, not even Russell, good as he is and close as he is to Jimmie Byrnes, could budge the career kingpins' closed shop. In the last two weeks of Byrnes rule, they succeeded in:

1. Blocking Russell's plan to move the State Department out of its ancient palace to a more efficient building.

2. Starting a boom for Freeman Mathews, detailed and dull, to become Undersecretary of State.

3. Putting a few road-blocks in the path of hard-working Assistant Secretary Bill Benton.

Finally the kingpins almost put their man, Sam Reber, in the Office of International Conferences. Reber is sometimes referred to as "the so-called Sam Reber" because he authored Cordell Hull's wartime statement blasting deGaulle's forces as the "so-called Free French."

With the USA now trying to build up middle-of-the-road and deGaulle Frenchmen as against Communist Frenchmen, Reber's appointment to a job handling international conferences was frowned upon.

This is some of the finagling inside the State Department reported to Marshall during his so-called vacation. Meanwhile, Marshall is on the lookout for some hard-headed aides who can recognize deadwood when they see it.

White Phantoms Encounter Virginia In Woollen Gym Tonight

Football Squad Meets; Letter Winners Named

Snavely Expected to Announce Plans For Practice Soon; Team Sees Movies

The Carolina football squad, some 40 strong, met in Woollen gym yesterday afternoon with Head Coach Carl Snavely, and practice plans for the winter and spring terms are expected to be forthcoming within the next two days. During the meeting, which was the first since the Sugar Bowl game January 1, a discussion was held and Snavely will make a decision some time this week.

In the meantime, the Tar Heel footballers will see the movies of the Georgia game Wednesday afternoon and continue the general rest from the grid drill field.

Snavely was in Greensboro last night showing movies to the Greensboro Alumni association and Touchdown club in the high school auditorium, where some 1600 people jammed to see the spectacle. He has a full itinerary for the coming week in the "knife and fork" league.

Monogramers Revealed

A list of 1946 football letter-winners was announced last week, along with the official times of some of the players.

Due to a free-substitution policy, there wasn't a single 60-minute ball player on the club, but Chan Highsmith saw 57 minutes of action against VPI and 54 against Duke. The only other Tar Heel to go as long as 50 minutes in one game was Ralph Strayhorn, the other co-captain, who punched 50 minutes in the Duke encounter.

Charlie Justice, the fleet little scatback who was supposed to just be a spot runner, provided the surprise of the season, averaging 27 minutes per game, including the drawback of just 10 minutes played against Maryland in the rain.

The lettermen:

Coed Cage Tourney To Begin This Week

By Glenna Ange

Play in the women's intramural basketball tournament will get under way this week with the first tilt being scheduled for tomorrow night.

All teams interested in using the Woman's gym for practice may do so by signing the list that has been posted on the gym bulletin board. Tourney managers Joyce Fowler and Katie Durham announced yesterday that each dormitory and sorority participating in the tournament must supply its own scorer and timer.

A basketball club has recently been formed for all women, both graduates and undergraduates, who have cage experience and who are interested in the game. The club will hold regular meetings twice weekly on Monday and Wednesday afternoons at 3:45 o'clock.

The fall-winter women's tennis tournament has reached the finals with Joyce Fowler and Judy Swain, survivors of a field of 26, contesting for the championship. Miss Fowler advanced to the finals by virtue of a 6-3, 6-2 win over Jane Morrison, while Miss Swain was taking the measure of Helen Morrison, 6-4, 6-3.

Boxers Begin Workouts For South Carolina

The Carolina mittmen went through a long workout yesterday afternoon as Coach Mike Ronman began laying plans for the coming match against the University of South Carolina Gamecocks Saturday.

Coach Ronman was fairly well pleased with the showing his men made against the Cavalier leather-pushers last week-end. "We are in pretty fair shape," he said, "and if Ed McGee and Max Spellman are able to join the lineup later in the season, we should look like a championship outfit."

Close Clashes Pace Murals

Handball Tourney To Start Monday

A slim schedule of only seven contests constituted the mural cage program yesterday afternoon, but what quantity was lacked was made up in quality as several close clashes were run off.

Oakwood Drive highlighted the day's activities by dropping Aycock, 21-17 while Zete No. 3 was easing by DKE No. 2, 23-22. Kap Sig No. 1 edged PiKA No. 2 in another hard fought battle.

In other games, Chi Psi defeated Pi Lam No. 1, 33-20; Kappa Psi took the measure of Phi Delt No. 3, 26-20; Sigma Chi No. 1 stopped SAE No. 2, 34-14 and Emanon beat Axes, 30-22.

The mural handball tourney will get underway next Monday afternoon with a large field expected to compete. It will be a single elimination affair.

All entries must be in the mural office by two o'clock Thursday, with only one entry allowed to each organization. Each team will be composed of two doubles and one single, making five different individuals competing on a squad. Courts 1 through 3 will be reserved for mural use.

Mural Schedule

Tuesday, 4:00—Court No. 3: KA No. 2 vs. Phi Delt No. 1; court No. 4: Delta Sig No. 1 vs. ZBT No. 2; court No. 5: Grad vs. Town; court No. 6: Chi Phi No. 2 vs. Phi Kap No. 1; court No. 7: Lambda Chi vs. Sig Nu No. 3.

5:00—Court No. 3: Zeta Psi No. 2 vs. ZBT No. 1; court No. 4: ATO No. 2 vs. Beta No. 3; court No. 5: Lewis vs. Steele; court No. 6: Phi Gam No. 1 vs. Sig Chi No. 2; court No. 7: Alexander No. 1 vs. Locals.

Swimmers Prepare For VPI Encounter

With thoughts of last Saturday's defeat behind them, the Blue Dolphins pushed heavy preparations for their next encounter with Virginia Tech on Friday, January 31. This will be the Dolphins' first conference clash of the season and will give them a chance to extend their loop meet win record to 25.

Although it is still doubtful whether star diver Buddy Crone will be ready for the next contest, the club's roster was strengthened by the return of Bill Herr, a sprinter on the 1943 team. Herr will give Coach Dick Jamerson three experienced sprinters to use in any of the dash events.

Jamerson had the swimmers working hard yesterday as the backstrokers, breaststrokers, and distance men took especially long workouts.

Wrestlers Begin Work For Davidson Matches

The Tar Heel wrestling team, returned from Blacksburg, Va., where they defeated VPI last Saturday, were back at heavy work yesterday afternoon in view of the match this Saturday with Davidson.

A definite site for the matches has not been announced, but it is anticipated that it will be held here in Chapel Hill. Head Coach Chuck Quinlan and assistant Hobie McKeever sent the matmen through rigorous drills, and preparations were being made for the elimination bouts on deck before the second meet of the season slated for this week-end.

Laurie Hooper, 1944 team captain and a promising heavyweight, is expected to be ready to go against the Wildcat grapplers, but Art Bluethenthal may miss the matches again.

Jayvee Quintet Downs Fort Bragg Team 69-42

Team of Varsity Reserves and Jayvees Prove Too Much For Scrappy Army Five

By Gil McLeod

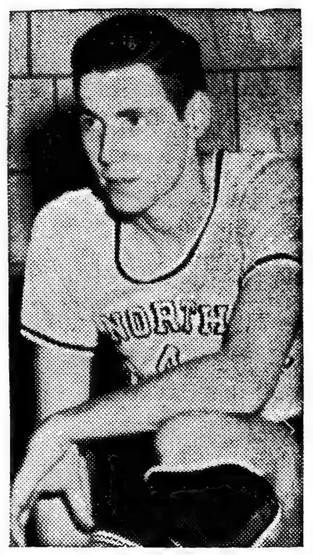
The Jayvee cagers made it six in a row last night by downing the First Regiment Cannoneers of Fort Bragg, 69 to 42, in Woollen gym.

High scoring honors went to Carolina guard Jim Hayworth, who racked up 17 points. Berger and Handlan of the Army quint followed with 13 and 12 points respectively. Vic Seixas and Roger Scholbe each tallied 10 points for the Tar Heels.

Jim Hayworth's set shot broke the deadlock and put his team ahead six to four after four minutes of play, and the jayvees kept increasing this advantage to gain a 36 to 14 halftime lead.

The Fort Bragg quint started the second half fast, dropping in eight tallies while holding the Blue and White scoreless. Hayworth again started his team on a scoring spree, dropping in nine points and the small crowd that witnessed the game saw the Tar Heels ring the bell for 33 points in the remaining 15 minutes of the game.

Junie Bailey and Sherman Nearman were the defensive standouts in the Carolina victory, while Jim Berger and Bill Ives turned in fine performances for the losers. Berger is a former cage star at Indiana State Teachers college, and Ives played the hardwood sport at Cornell university.



Young Tom Scott, Jr., made his basketball debut last night by rendering the Tar Heels excellent towel service during the timeouts.

Box score:

UNC (69)		Fort Bragg (42)
Carson (6)	f	Handlan (12)
Nearman (4)	c	Brandfess (5)
Ryan (4)	g	Rosenburg (3)
Hayworth (17)	g	Gunter (3)

UNC reserves: Nymiciz (4), Fitch (4), Bailey (4), Cole (6), Seixas (10), Weinstein, Wagner. Fort Bragg reserves: Ives, Bingley (4), Seagraves, Harada, Decker (2).

Officials: Hayworth and Murray. Halftime score: 36-14.

MR. REBOUND is the title given to this White Phantom forward who is one of the finest backboard players in the country. Paxton will be seen in person at Woollen Gym tonight.

Three Lettermen To Pace Jumpers

"We have three lettermen back in the high jump and should be pretty well fortified," Coach Dale Ranson said yesterday afternoon.

The returning lettermen are Joe Corpening, who has jumped six feet, Jack Fitch, who has hit 5'10" and Leroy Ward who has cleared the bar at six feet.

Greenberg Will Play For Pittsburgh Pirates

New York, Jan. 20—(UP)—Hank Greenberg says there's no truth to rumors that he might retire from baseball as a result of being sold by Detroit to Pittsburgh. Such reports, he says, are silly. At the same time, he said he was extremely disappointed in leaving the club with which he has spent his entire major league career.

Scottmen Seek Seventh Win

All-Star Five Plays Yearlings in Opener

By Bob Goldwater

The White Phantom cagers sandwich one home tilt between two road jaunts tonight at Woollen gym when they engage the Virginia Cavaliers in their 10th contest of the campaign. Tipoff time will be at 8 o'clock.

In a preliminary exhibition starting at 6:30 o'clock, Coach Frank Murray's freshman quintet opposes the Carolina Clowns, composed of Tar Heel gridders.

Seeking to take up tonight right where they left off last week when they upset highly-favored NYU in Madison Square Garden, the Phantoms will present the same starting five as they shoot for their seventh triumph of the season. This puts Bob Paxton and Jim Hamilton in the forward berths, Johnny Dillon at center, and Jim White and Norm Kohler at the guard slots.

Dillon leads the team in scoring for the nine games played so far, with 90 points to his credit. Paxton and Hamilton follow with 84 and 83 respectively, while Kohler and White have 77 and 70.

In the lineup for the Cavalier outfit will be Les Blankin and Bill Pandak at forward, Ward Speer at center, and Chuck Noe at one of the guard posts. The remaining guard slot is still uncertain.

In the preliminary tussle, Coach Murray will start with Pete Peters and either Bill Childress or Junius Idol in the forward posts, Sandy Hoft at center, and Bill Walker and Bill Harrington at the guards.

For the Clowns, Charlie Justice, Ray Walters, Randy Brown, Bert Nesbit and Dick Donnan will open with substitutes including Jim Camp, Joe Wright, Max Spurlin and Claude Crocker, who pitches for the Brooklyn Dodgers.

Virginia Wilson Named To Board of Directors

Virginia Wilson was elected representative from the Women's Interdormitory council to the Graham Memorial board of directors at the meeting of the Council last week.

Stressed at the meeting was the following regulation: Coeds are not permitted to visit men students in their rooms. This applies to men in dormitories, co-op houses, apartments, trailers, private homes, West house, Acacia cottage, and the professional fraternity houses. The rule does not apply to organized parties held by men students with the approval of the dean of women.

Campus Conservatives To Meet This Evening

The Carolina Conservative club will meet tonight at 8 o'clock in the Roland Parker lounge, Graham Memorial.

The bill passed last week to prohibit Communists from speaking at Carolina will be brought up for further discussion.

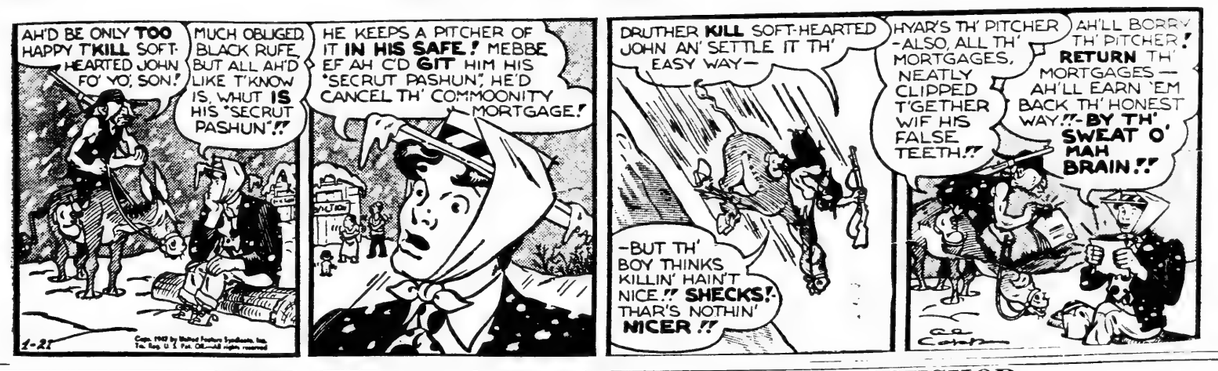
Also planned for discussion, time permitting, is a bill to outlaw the closed shop in North Carolina. The public is invited to attend and participate in the discussions.

Witherington Elected President of Mangum

Residents of Mangum dormitory elected the following men to office last Thursday: Ben Witherington, president; Earle Caldwell, vice-president; Peter Gerns, secretary-treasurer and social chairman.

Among future social plans are a dinner-dance and a picnic to be held in conjunction with women's dormitories and sororities in the early part of spring.

Uniform Divorce Laws To Be Debated by Phi



Debate on uniform marriage and divorce laws will be the main item on the agenda this evening when the Philanthropic Literary society meets in the Phi hall, New East at 7:30. The resolution will be introduced by Frank Hassell.

Yackety Yack pictures will be taken of the assembly during the meeting.

NO DANCING CLASS

In keeping with the announced policy of not having dancing classes on nights when a varsity basketball game is scheduled, this week's class will not be held tonight, Dr. Oliver K. Cornwell announced.

Authorities Rush Iron Lung To Woman Striken with Polio

Maybe North Carolina's medical facilities and care are at a low ebb, but when a person is stricken with infantile paralysis, there seems to be astonishingly quick cooperation within the state and rapid aid from without.

Something of a record was established in North Carolina last Friday when a special-type iron lung was urgently needed at Raleigh.

By telephoning Philip Randolph, state representative of the National Infantile Paralysis foundation at headquarters here, the iron lung was on its way to Raleigh within an hour —but the record is this:

Telephoned New York

Randolph telephoned New York headquarters and asked officials there to locate this special type of iron lung for there was not one available in this state. Within the hour, New York had not only located one in Roanoke, Va., but the lung was on its way to Raleigh by truck!

That first urgent call from Raleigh came at 2:30 p. m. By last night at 9 o'clock the iron lung was at Rex hospital, and the patient was transferred to it immediately.

The patient, Mrs. Edna Woodruff, 23, of Selma, was stricken with infantile paralysis several days ago. She was completely paralyzed, only able to talk.

She was taken to Rex hospital and put in an iron lung. However, she needed the hot pack treatments for the paralysis and to give them to her she had to be taken out of the lung which was dangerous even for a few minutes.

Special Iron Lung

There is a type of iron lung that doesn't completely cover the patient, enabling her to breathe but at the same time exposing her body. There was not one available in North Carolina yesterday. Rex doctors called Randolph to locate one for them.

Thus, with the spirit of cooperation among the chapters and the National foundation, the telephone, and a careful truck driver, Mrs. Woodruff was moved into the iron lung that was probably necessary to her life.

Girl Kidnapped In California

High School Senior Held for $10,000

Lodi, Calif. Jan. 21—(UP)—The father of a kidnapped 16-year-old girl has been summoned to a rendezvous from ransom payment in a tavern in Sacramento, California. The kidnaped girl is Alice Devine—attractive blonde high school senior—daughter of the socially prominent Mr. and Mrs. John Devine of Lodi, California. The father—a rancher and grape grower—is described by friends as moderately wealthy. The demanded ransom is reported to be 10-thousand dollars.

Girl Vanishes

Alice vanished last night after she had her picture taken in a local photography studio in company with a conservatively dressed man. According to the Stockton, California, Record, this man told the co-owner of the studio that he represented a national magazine conducting a beauty contest. Shortly after the girl and the man left the studio, her father received an anonymous telephone call directing him to look in the wood-pile. Devine raced out to his back yard and found a note tucked between two logs. It is reported that the note demanded 10-thousand dollars cash and threatened the girl's life if Devine notified police or the newspapers.

Marshall Takes Oath; Confers with Truman

Washington, Jan. 21—(UP)—General George C. Marshall officially has taken over the duties of Secretary of State. The former army chief of staff was sworn in at a brief but impressive ceremony in President Truman's executive office. The oath was administered by Chief Justice Fred Vinson.

After the ceremony General Marshall conferred with President Truman for nearly an hour. Then he went to the State Department for a conference and luncheon with retiring Secretary Byrnes, who plans to leave the capital for his Spartanburg, S. C., home tonight. Both Republican and Democrats predict that the new Secretary of State will have smooth relations with Congress because of his earlier forthright disavowal of any political ambitions.

Cost of Portal Pay May Reach 3 Billion

Washington, Jan. 21—(UP)—The chairman of the government's war contract price adjustment board says portal pay suits might cost the government the $3,000,000,000 that was saved through renegotiation of war contracts. Brigadier General Maurice Hirsch testified before a senate subcommittee which is considering bills to wipe out current union back pay claims.

Al Capone Near Death In Palm Island Home

Nuam Beach, Fla., Jan. 21—(UP)—Scarface Al Capone—once head of Chicago's one-hundred-million-dollar bootleg empire—is near death tonight on his closely-guarded Palm Island estate in Florida. Capone has been unconscious all day after a stroke of apoplexy early this morning. And his doctors say there is no indication that he will recover.

Eisenhower Stricken With Stomach Ailment

Washington, Jan. 21—(UP)—General Dwight D. Eihenhower is in Walter Reed hospital tonight suffering from a stomach disorder. However, doctors say they don't consider his condition serious.

Havanans Demonstrate Against Black Market

Havana, Jan. 21—(UP)—A mass demonstration by organized labor against black market operations closed down all business and industrial activity in Havana for two hours this afternoon.

Poll of Campus Opinion To Be Sponsored by IRC

Student Voting Scheduled to Begin Today; Ballot Boxes Placed at Central Locations

Students will vote today in the campus-wide poll of opinion, sponsored by the International Relations club, at polling places in the YMCA, Lenoir dining hall and the Carolina Inn. Results of the balloting on the IRC world poll will be published in the Daily Tar Heel.

A summary of the questions on the poll are as follows:

1. Which of the following would you favor for the next President of the U. S.: Truman, Marshall, Byrnes, Wallace, Vandenberg, Dewey, Stassen, Taft or others.

2. We should end the occupation of Germany: Immediately, in 5 years, in 10 years, or more than 10 years.

3. Do you favor the admission of one hundred thousand dispalced persons into this country?

4. Do you favor the appointment of military officers to high diplomatic and executive posts?

5. Do you favor the release of the atom bomb secret to the U. N.: with the veto, without the veto, not at all?

6. U. S. tarriff barriers should be: Raised, lowered, based on reciprocal trade agreements.

7. Do you favor the establishment of a Zionist state in Palestine?

8. Should the U.S. insist on participation in any conference relating to a change in the "status quo" of the Dardenelles?

The YMCA polling place will be open from 8 a. m. to 4 p. m. while Lenoir dining hall and Carolina Inn will be balloting points from 12 noon till 2 p.m.

"The asterisk next to Stassen's name on the ballot," explained Ed Davenport, IRC poll chairman, "is merely a typographical error and indicates no preference on our part." The poll committee consists of Basil Sherrell, Ernest Harrill, John Bristow, Ed Tork, Peggy Rankin and Stuart Lucus.

Not Comprehensive

"We do not consider the poll as being comprehensive," said Davenport, "but, the International Relations club hopes to stimulate campus discussion on important world problems by this method."

Meanwhile, Vincent Williams, membership chairman, announced that ap-

DAV Chapter Gets National Charter

The Chapel Hill chapter of the Disabled American Veterans has been granted a charter from the National Executive committee, it was announced by Victor J. Kelley, commander of North Carolina chapter No. 22.

Chartered by Congress after World War I the DAV is a non-political, nonsectarian organization open to veterans gassed, wounded or injured while on active service in wartime.

Commander Kelley stated further that a meeting will be held this evening at 7:30 in Gerrard hall.

Fraternities Will Have 'Open Rushing' Period

Members of the Interfraternity council voted to have "open rushing" for the remainder of this term and throughout the spring term. "Open rushing" as termed by the council signifies that all new men may be rushed and pledged at any time during the specified period.

Frank Graham Will Deliver Speech to Di

Meeting Will Open Group's 152nd Year

The Senate of the Dialectic Literary society will open its 152nd year tonight with the inauguration of its new officers for 1947. Don G. Shropshire, Commerce junior from Winston-Salem, is to be installed for a second term as president.

Included in the installation ceremony, to be held in the Di hall in New West at 8 p.m., are the traditional inaugural address by the president, a message by Dr. Frank Porter Graham, himself a Di member. The new slate of officers will be guests at a reception in the main lounge of Graham Memorial after the ceremony in New West.

Oldest in South

Shropshire was reelected last fall to a second term as head of the south's oldest debating society. Previously president pro-tem and critic of the Senate, Shropshire was unanimously chosen House speaker at the 1946 North Carolina Student Legislative Assembly in Raleigh.

Dan McFarland, former critic, will be inaugurated as president pro-tem of the Di. Other officers to be installed at the ceremony are Critic, Bill Mackie, recently named chairman of the legislature finance committee; Clerk, Maurice Braswell, House Reading clerk of the Student Legislative Assembly and new Debate council president; Treasurer, Clifford Horton, Sergeant-at-arms, Russell John-

Infantile Campaign To Hit Peak Friday

March of Dimes to Receive Proceeds From Dance Sponsored by WNC Group

By Sam Whitehall

The infantile paralysis campaign will hit its climax Friday night in Woollen gymnasium when Ned Reap and his GM Dream Serenaders play for a gala charity ball sponsored by the Western North Carolina club.

Norman Pless, president of the WNC which is sponsoring the "March of Dollars" dance Friday night, urges all students to attend the dance in order to "give the less fortunate men and women a chance to be able to dance sometime in the future."

All proceeds from the dance, which will be semi-formal, will go to the campus "March of Dimes" fund. Tickets are now on sale in the Y at $1.50 per couple. WNC club members are also selling tickets.

Pless Urges Attendance

"Your dancing will give less fortunate men and women a chance to be able to dance sometime in the future," stated Norman Pless, president of the WNC club, in urging students to attend the all-charity dance.

Reports from the campus committee in charge of the polio campaign indicate that student reaction has been disappointing thus far. Highlighting the drive has been a single $50 contribution by the University Veterans Association.

The committee has urged that all dormitories and fraternities get behind the drive 100 per cent this week. If solicitors miss some of the student body, individual contributions may be mailed to the Daily Tar Heel "March of Dimes" editor.

Steed to Perform At Piano Recital

Another program in the series of student music recitals presented by the music department, will be held this afternoon at 4 in Hill Music hall. Featured in today's program will be Edwin Steed, who will give a piano rendition of Beethoven's "Concerto in C major." Steed will be assisted by Miss Virginia Hare.

Lawrence Brown and William Sasser will follow with a presentation of "Dolly" by Faure. Together they will play "Le Jardin de Dolly," "Kitty-Valse," "Tendresse," and "Le pas Espanol."

Floridians Will Elect Club Officers Tomorrow

Permanent officers of the newly organized Florida club will be elected tomorrow evening at 7:15 at a meeting in Roland Parker lounge 1. After the meeting a program of entertainment has been arranged.

All University students from Florida are eligible to become club members and are welcome to the meeting.

Alderman Coeds to Be Feted At UVA Open House Tonight

The University Veterans association will be the hosts tonight at an open house for the coeds from Alderman hall. Those in the escort committee are requested to report to the club at 8:15 to call for the coeds at 8:30. All members of the Association are cordially invited to attend. The Chesterfield company has insured plenty of free cigaretts for the occasion.

Tomorrow evening at 7:30 the UVA will hold an open meeting for its members in the form of a smoker, to last about an hour. On the agenda for the evening will be the election of a secretary to replace Jim Farlow who resigned recently to become the business manager of the club.

Several bills pertinent to veterans on the campus will be discussed at this time. President Roy Moose has urged that all members of the association to be present.

Norman Cordon and Anne Jeffreys have gone a long way since they left Chapel Hill. The Tar Heels, Cordon who graduated from the University in 1924, and Anne, a native of Goldsboro who attended kindergarten and school in Chapel Hill, are caught in a scene of the "Street Scene" which opened in New York recently.

Anne got an early start on Broadway and appeared in many musicals before going to Hollywood and signing a contract with RKO.

Cordon, a native of Washington, N. C., has sung in over 700 performances at the Metropolitan Opera as a leading bass-baritone. (Photo courtesy of Greensboro Daily News.)

Two Music Majors Will Give Program Of Original Duets

Larry Brown and Bill Sasser, senior music majors and students of Miss Virginia Hare, will appear in a program or original piano duets Friday evening, at 8:30, in Hill Music hall.

Sasser, who is from Wilson, is known on the campus for his work as musical director of Sound and Fury. Brown, from Asheville, makes his initial appearance in Chapel Hill with this recital. Both are members of Phi Mu Alpha, national honorary music fraternity.

The program, consisting mostly of work by French composers, will be of special interest to those concerned with French music. The first number will be Mozart's "Sonata in D Major." This will be followed by the French suites. "Le Beau Jardin," by Dupin, 'Epigraphes Antiques," by Debussy, and "Dolly," by Faure.

Tryouts to Begin For Musical Show

Sound and Fury will begin tryouts for its new show this afternoon from 3 to 6 o'clock in the Horace Williams lounge of Graham Memorial, Bill Carmichael, president of the musical comedy group, stated yesterday.

All persons interested in singing or speaking parts in the show may try out between these hours.

Carmichael said that the two act musical, which is at present unnamed, will go into rehearsal within the next two weeks.

New Books Available At Graham Memorial

Nine new murder mysteries are now available for student reading at Graham Memorial. These books, eight of which are handy pocket book sizes, were presented to the student union by Rachel Athas, Carolina student until this quarter. Miss Athas is sister of Daphne Athas, whose novel, "Weather of the Heart," is to be published in March.

Some of the top names among mystery writers are included in the books presented by Miss Athas. Ellery Queen's "Halfway House," and Agatha Christie's "Easy to Kill" head the list. Miss Christie's "And Then There Were None" was made into a movie and successful stage play under the name "Ten Little Indians."

Other books now available are "The Man in the Moonlight," by Helen McCloy; "Fast Company," by Marco Page; "The Saint-Fiacre Affair," by Simenon; "The Punch and Judy Murders," by Carter Dickson; "Red Harvest," by Dashiell Hammett; "Young Doctor Galahad," by Elizabeth Seifert; and "North Side Nurse," by Lucy Agnes Hancock.

Charges of Biased Reporting Filed Against Daily Tar Heel

Conservative Club to Present Accusation At Meeting of Publications Board Today

Charges of biased news coverage and discrimination against a staff member for political reasons have been presented against the Daily Tar Heel by the Carolina Conservative club. The Publications board will act as the judiciary body in the case.

Charlie Kauffman and Russell Johnson, spokesman for the conservative group, maintain that the student newspaper has unfairly and unjustly denied news space to the CCC because the editors, particularly managing editor Roland Giduz, are prejudiced against conservative ideas. Also alleged is the accusation that DTH editor Bill Woestendiek discharged a staff member after the editor learned that the staff member had become a member of the CCC.

To Be Heard Today

The case will be heard when the Publications board meets today at 3 o'clock in the Grail room of Graham Memorial. Also on the agenda at this time will be a report from Gene Johnstone and Jean Huske on the financial loss incurred by the Yackety Yack in its recent Beauty Ball.

Irwin Smallwood, sports editor of the DTH, will present a request for funds over and above the approved budget; these requested funds would be used for trips by sports reporters with Carolina athletic teams.

Editors and staff leaders of the student newspaper will present a special resolution before the Board assembled in executive session, but the nature of this resolution has not been revealed by the staff or board.

Bill Selig, business manager of the DTH, will make several requests for increases in items of the business staff budget.

Take Yack Pictures

The Yack photographers will at this time make pictures of the members of the board.

Any student wishing to bring matters before the board today must present these matters in writing to some member of the board before the meeting.

It Can Be Done

(The following letter is self-explanatory. We regret that more organizations on this campus have not shown the generosity and cooperation demonstrated by the UVA. We hope the UVA's generous action will awaken interest among other groups in this vital campaign. We must have more contributions if we are to successfully combat infantile paralysis.)

Dear Bill:

I wish to inform you that the University Veterans' Association is 100 per cent behind you in the current "March of Dimes" campaign now going on here on the campus. To further this worthy cause I am enclosing a check for $50 voted by the organization. Perhaps this will start the ball rolling for other organizations on the campus to do the same thing.

In addition to the above amount, I am going to encourage each member of the UVA to contribute an individual amount to the campaign at our meeting Thursday night.

The UVA is intensely interested in plans that will make the future brighter and more secure. Certainly good health comes under that heading and polio is one of the most disheartening diseases that must be licked before good health for the nation as a whole can become a reality.

The annual "March of Dimes" campaign is undoubtedly one of the most worthy now in existence. I certainly hope that the students on the campus realize it and will aid in attaining the goal set for Carolina. Too many victims of the dreaded disease depend upon the contributions. I feel that in this Carolina cannot fail.

Sincerely,
Roy C. Moose,
President, UVA

Lige fixed just to satisfy yourself never satisfied anybody.

Take responsibiltty on your shoulders and it leaves no room for chips.

Carolina Merry-Go-Round

By Bob Jones and Bill Robertson

The present farcical political situation in Georgia has an international significance which should not be overlooked. At the present time our nation is engaged in a world-wide battle of ideas in which the value of our economic, social, and political institutions is being brought into question. It was not so very long ago that the National Negro Congress made an appeal to the United Nations requesting an investigation of our treatment of national minorities. This move did not place us in a favorable light before the rest of the world.

The events in Georgia not only serve to emphasize the validity of the charges made by the National Negro Congress in their appeal but in addition they reveal a certain lack of efficiency in the operation of our forms of political democracy.

In the economics section of the Veterans' Booketeria there are quite a few copies of the works of Stuart Chase. A report from the Labor Research Association informs us that Chase is a liberal of the Wallace type. Wallace himself has said, "Our type are fighting to save the American capitalist system by making changes, in a careful, legal way, fast enough so it can be saved."

It appears that Chase tends to ignore the importance of political power in bringing about these changes. Wallace does not—and in this he is as close to the truth as certain outstanding members of the Republican Party.

The main economic problem of the South—that of finding the ways and means of industrialization within the most powerful industrial nation in the world, (does not the existence of such a problem seem ridiculous?) will inevitably develop into a political problem of the greatest importance. With this in mind we should pay increasing attention to the developing political movements.

Perhaps capitalism can not industrialize the South, but as long as it exists we Southerners shall have to fight to obtain those of its benefits which have been denied us.

Students Keep Heads Buried In Sand of Sheer Academics

By Jud Kinberg

The crowd filled Gerrard hall with the clamor of argument. Determined to make themselves heard, pro and con appealed to the mass of students. Tempers were short, speeches impassioned. That was 1939. A large portion of UNC had rallied for a determined stand against war. Right or wrong, they were intelligent and articulate enough to stir the University and the State.

At Carolina today there are only brief flashes of that former intensity of thought. In these crucial months you hear little about the atom bomb in the organized discussion or informal bull session. All too often, the main subject is the atomic blonde.

We have sedulously scotched any attempts to limit free speech on campus. But in our fight we have overlooked the salient point that free speech no longer means dynamic, liberal speech in the majority of this nation's colleges and universities. In South America, in Czechoslovakia, in the resistance movements of the occupied countries the college student won his right to post-war consideration. Granted that, he has almost consistently raised his voice on the side of forces struggling toward a better and a peaceful world. There has been no compromise with reaction, no attempt to escape the role of leader.

During this same time, during these vital days the American student has seen fit to bury his head in the sand of sheer academics. Study has not been used as a wheel upon which to sharpen the faculties for the struggle against reaction. Rather, it has seized as the mask to cover the dozing face of the breed which now populates the schools.

The twin sisters Lethargy and Indifference catapulted many do-nothings into public office recently. We are in the midst of a nation-wide swing away from liberalism. One of the major reems is that liberalism requires a little mental work on the part of the citizenry while conservatism makes few demands upon the rank and file. The middle of the road with its smoothly worn ruts is less arduous than breaking trail cross-country.

Overseas where this tendency towards inaction manifested itself, the student has quickly risen to fight it. That is not true in the United States. Instead, the campuses have welcomed the current relief from having to do too much political thinking. By and large there is none of the intellectual battling that was so much a part of the University in the late 1930's. We have settled down to the contentment of middle age long before our time.

It is not free thought that we are in danger of losing. It is vital thought that we have lost. Content to take the cue from our elders we have washed our hands of too deep consideration of the world's problems. Ours is not even militant reactionism, it is mere do-nothingism.

On a planet where the year past and the year to come can decide peace or extinction, the American college man and woman is out of step with his confreres. Whether collegiate opinions are right or not—according to our own concepts—in other nations they are at least voiced. No such loud voice comes from this student body.

With only occasional bright spots—the Student Assembly in Raleigh and threatened "march on the capital" in Georgia—the college picture in the USA today is a drab one. Toneless greys upon our collegiate canvas seem pitifully inadequate for these times. The issues to be decided are momentous. The Negro question is most important to this area, but many others face the entire nation. "Boom and bust" seem to be back in vogue, international issues are still a tenuous gossamer of conflicting interests. Yet we recently had a Chicago conference which settled little, spoke in whispers at a time when even a shout is hard to hear.

At Carolina, the important problems are shunted aside to debate points of little merit or lasting importance. Cries for and against a humor magazine brought more campus interest than have any national questions in recent months.

Realization of the fact that this education of ours imposes obligations should have reached all of us long before this. University is far more than books, dates, sports, extra-curriculars. It is a time for bold thinking and brave speech. So far, the American student has refused to honor the obligations. He must if he is to have a future, if there is to be a world for him to enter when he leaves school.

Talented Jooss Ballet Group Gives Original Performance

By R. Haskell Hamilton

The Contemporary Dance-Theater directed by Kurt Jooss presented a superb performance in Memorial hall, Monday night. The 1000 balletomanes devotees of the modern dance, and those who had never seen a ballet before were all thrilled and appreciative of the terpsichorean talent and ability the dance troupe.

The Jooss Ballet is definitely not of the classical school. But, what lacked in preciseness and formalism it more than made up for in verve originality, and expressionism. The intricate movement patterns and use of the dance to convey the meaning thoughts and yearning of a human story were shown to perfection.

It is difficult to single out performers, since the entire company are well-grounded, superior ballet performers. But, I particularly liked the performances of Hans Zulig, who for my money was the best of a stage-full of good dancers. Rolf Alexander and David Kerval were not far behind Mr. Zulig. Among the female members of the company, Noelle de Mosa and Joy Bolton-Carter thrilled me with their delicate and definitely feelingful dancing.

Far and away the best ballet of the evening was the world-famous "The Green Table," the prize-winning original ballet by Kurt Jooss. This marked the first time that I had seen this ballet, and it left me with the feeling that I want to see it over and over again. The parts of Death and the Profiteer were danced to perfection by the aforementioned Mr. Alexander and Mr. Zulig, while Joy Bolton-Carter was moving as The Old Woman.

The program also included "A Ball in Old Vienna," Company at the Manor, and "The Big City." The latter was beautifully performed and the intricate movement patterns were a joy to witness.

Music was supplied by William Hilsley and Mollie Davie at the piano. Costuming was by Hein Heckroth, Doris Zinkeisen, and Aino Jooss-Siimola; and was perhaps the single weak spot in an otherwise wonderful evening. This reviewer realizes the difficulties entailed in carrying a large wardrobe on the road, as well as the difficulty of sweeping the stage in Memorial hall, but dirty, ill-fitting, and torn costumes (as worn by the Dancing-Master in "A Ball in Old Vienna,") do much to destroy the mood of the ballet.

Irreparable Harm?

Dear Sir:

The Carolina campus has long been noted for its free and friendly style of buildings. One of the first impressions has been the beauty of its informal arrangement. Every addition has added much to our campus; that is, until South Building proposed to erect wooden barracks in various positions scattered throughout the campus.

I heartily endorse the decision to do something about the crowded conditions that prevail in our classrooms. But the decision of placing the "shacks" on our campus proper I cannot accept. Rather, the buildings should be grouped somewhere near the campus. The other side of the Raleigh road is an ideal spot. Later the wooden buildings could be replaced by permanent brick structures, designed in the style of the rest of the campus. This would extend Carolina's facilities permanently and add, not detract, to the campus we have come to cherish.

Sincerely yours,
Name withheld on request.

Wasting Money

To The Editor

To speak in the vernacular, I would say that the University is making a racket out of text book sales.

There are many veterans enrolled at the University whose books are paid for by Uncle Sam, and most of us really do not care how much their text books cost or how many they have to buy as long as the amount paid for them does not exceed the allotment of the G. I. Bill.

It seems to me that the University is taking advantage of this situation by frequently changing text books (some of which are written by UNC professors), and requiring students to buy as many as nine books for one course (this quarter Political Science 42).

Having seen thousands of dollars wasted by the Army does not make me immune to it. I hate to see government money wasted here.

I really don't want to think the above-described situation is true, but can some one convince me that it isn't? If it is true, what can we do about it besides pay the money back in taxes the rest of our lives?

THE FOOTBALL SEASON may be over, but there's no rest for Carl Snavely, the man who has the task of producing Tar Heel gridiron elevens. The silver-thatched Snavely, preparing soon for his thrid season at Carolina, is booked solidly by Alumni associations all this week and next and for days to come.

Last night it was Burlington, tonight it is Durham, and tomorrow he goes to Asheville, Friday to Norfolk, Va., and Saturday to Elizabeth City. There's a brief rest Sunday and next week the same thing starts all over again, with Monday set aside for Winston-Salem and so on the rest of the week.

And while Coach Snavely busies himself with appearances with Sugar Bowl movies, Athletic Director Bob Fetzer and his assistant, Chuck Erickson, are hard at the task of cooking up a "cedula grande" to hand Snavely and his crew of assistants for next season.

Already sewed up as one of the games to fill in the three as yet un-assigned dates is a rodeo with the Longhorns of Texas in Austin next fall, namely October 4. As for the others, the picture is still rather obscure officially, but as soon as complicated shifting processes are completed, a corking good schedule should be forthcoming. With Texas, Tennessee, Duke, Wake Forest on the slate already not to mention the other always-tough SC battles, it should be the hardest slate in history which greets the Tar Heels next fall.

Remaining in the football world but shifting slightly out of Tar Heelia, it's worthy of mention that Carl Snavely will be battling one of his old pupils and assistants come the Maryland game in the fall. Genial Jim Tatum, who formerly played football here for Snavely and later was his assistant at Cornell and head coach here one season, has taken over as athletic director and head coach at Maryland. . . "I know he will have a good team there," said Snavely upon hearing the news. "I'm glad he's back in this section again." . . . Just as a matter of passing, one of Tatum's assistants at Oklahoma, George Radman, is working on a master's degree while here this quarter. It's a compliment to the Carolina physical education department having him pick the Tar Heel department to do his graduate work.

Ex-Pre-Flighters in the news:

Johnny Sain, one of the same, was voted the most valuable player in the city last season by the Boston sports scribes, over Ted Williams that is. . . Buddy Hasset, also a former Pre-Flighter, has been named pilot of the Norfolk Tars of the Piedmont league for next season. . . From the New York Times comes a good compliment to the White Phantoms. The best conditioned team to appear in the Garden this year, no less. . . Looking over the State college Technician, we would say they've got quite a few satire experts from the looks of the stories on the Gator Bowl game. And the Georgia school paper has already started plugging St. John, Rauch and others as All-Americans for next season. Maybe so!

Peter's Tip-in Shot Clinches Tight Tilt

By Morty Schaap

A hard-fighting Freshman team coached by Frank Murray took a sensational win, 40-39, from the Carolina Clowns in a game played in Woollen gym last night.

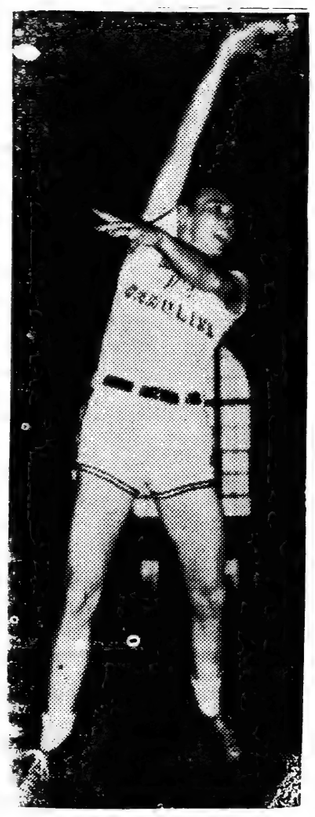
The game was decided in the last second of play when a basket on a tap-in by Pete Peters put the Babies in the lead for the first time during the game.

The Clowns featured an offense built around Choo Choo Justice with his blocking done by Joe Wright, Max Spurlin and Jim Camp.

The Tar Babies capitalized on a fast break and time and time again were under the backboard for two-pointers. Justice scored six points in a row on two snowbirds and a set shot which gave the Clowns a ten-point lead at one time.

Game's leading scorer was Randy Brown of the Clowns who used his 6'6" frame to tally 10 points. Junie Idol paced the Tar Babies with eight markers.

Box score:



UNC (40)		Clowns (39)
Peters (6)	f	Donnan (5)
Idol (8)	f	Nesbett (2)

Tar Heels Roll After Slow First Half; Paxton Sparks Club With Floor Play

By Irwin Smallwood

The Phantoms beat a rough Virginia team here last night. They rumbled through a slow, rugged first half to emerge with only a one-point lead and then came roaring back in the second half to hit their scoring stride and scurry off with a 63-38 victory.

Carolina's Phants, playing their first game since knocking off NYU in New York a week ago last night, dumped in three field goals and a free shot in the first minute and 10 seconds of the second half, and at the end of 10 minutes of play held a 36-24 advantage.

Jim White and All-American Johnny Dillon led the scoring parade for the Tar Heels, and Bob Paxton and Norm Kohler personally took care of the situation under the backboards. Both Dillon and White began their hitting in the second half, and the results was Dillon 14 points and White 16. White made eight for 16 shots from the floor, and Dillon rallied after a loose first half to sink four for seven 'hooks' in the second 20 minutes of play.

Coach Tom Scott played the Phantoms with but one substitution until something like five minutes remained in the game. Paxton, the stellar man as usual, didn't leave the game until three minutes from the end.

Ward Speer was the big gun for Virginia along with diminutive Chuck Noe. Speer, however, went out on fouls in the second half after scoring 10 points.

The first half saw a rough Virginia team keep the Phantoms pumping to get out from under the tight defensive play, and it wasn't until 15 minutes and 15 seconds of the first half had passed that the Tar Heel five took the lead. Virginia had led 6-1 at the end of five minutes, 11-9 at the end of 10 and then finally fell behind at the three-quarter mark.

It was six minutes before Carolina sank a field goal, and it was Jim White who broke through to drop a layup shot. Dillon was constantly kept out of the bucket shooting position in the first half by hard-driving Cavalier pivot men.

The Phantoms swing north again this weekend, meeting Maryland in College Park Friday night and Navy at Annapolis Saturday afternoon.

Locals, Zetes, Delta Sigs Score Mural Cage Triumphs

Free-scoring contests were the feature of yesterday's mural cage play with the Locals, Zete No. 2, and Delta Sig No. 1 turning in high scoring wins.

The Locals defeated Alexander No. 1, 46-36; Zete No. 2 downed ZBT No. 1, 39-21; and Delta Sig No. 1 walloped ZBT, 68-8.

In other games, KA No. 2 stopped Phi Delt No. 1, 23-14; Sigma Nu No. 3 tripped Lambda Chi, 22-8; ATO No. 2 snowed Beta No. 3, 41-12, and Steele edged Lewis, 23-19.

Elsewhere, Phi Gam No. 1 topped 28-13 and Chi Phi No. 2 took the measure of Phi Kap No. 1, 38-31. The Town boys won by forfeit.

Mural Director Rabb has announced that today is the last day that entries will be accepted for the mural handball tourney. All those who wish to enter the event should sign up at the mural office before two this afternoon.

The mural department also announced that the badminton club will meet tonight at seven at Woollen Gym. All are invited.

Matmen Practice Hard For Match

With details of their Saturday meet still waiting to be completed, the Tar Heel grapplers went through a heavy practice session yesterday with the sessions slated to continue for the remainder of the week.

Coach Chuck Quinlan is still attempting to arrange the schedule meet with Davidson on Saturday but, with the possibility of the Wildcat team being unable to come due to final exams, there is a chance that a meet with Virginia will be scheduled. The match is slated for Woollen gym Saturday evening as part of a double header that also features the Carolina boxing team.

The lineup for the weekend tilt, the second of the season for the matmen, may be the same as that which defeated VPI last week. Lone exceptions may come at the 165-pound and heavyweight posts, where two former lettermen are expected to battle for starting berths. At the former, Archie Allen will compete with Oscar Gupton, who took a 13-8 decision over his VPI opponent last week. Laurie Hooper, 1944 team captain, will provide the competition for John Stoioff in the heavyweight division.

The rest of the lineup is expected to have Doug Thomson at 121, Tom Urquhart at 128, co-captains Tommy Hearn and Dick Seaver at 136 and 145 respectively, Irv Zirpel at 155, and Bill Kemp at 175.

Brasington, manager of Graham Memorial's student darkroom, announced today his satisfaction with the reaction shown by the campus to his offer of free instruction in photography and darkroom work. So great was the response that Brasington is ready to proceed with his teaching. Therefore he urges all students who have not contacted him but who still want to learn, to see him at 1 o'clock tomorrow at Graham Memorial.

Brasington will be in the office of Graham Memorial each day from 1 until 2 o'clock to discuss with any interested student the free instruction periods.

The subject of President Graham's address is "The Senate, the University, and the State." Dr. Graham was elected to membership in the Di when he was a student at the University.

Leo Durocher Reported Married to Movie Star

Hollywood, Jan. 21—(UP)—Movie Actress Laraine Day and Brooklyn Dodger Manager Leo Durocher are reported to have been married in El Paso, Texas. Hollywood Attorney Bernard Silbert says he got this information in a telephone call from an unidentified person in the Texas city.

Talmadge Effigy Hung By Atlanta Students

Atlanta, Jan. 21—(UP)—A grotesque, Swastika-marked effigy of Georgia Governor Herman Talmadge has been hanged from the arm of a statue on the state capital ground in Atlanta. The stuffed figure was carried by some 2,000 jeering university students who marched to the state house to demand that Talmadge quit the office he took over last week.

Four New ARTIE SHOW Releases at AB's BOOKSHOP

Dr. W. R. Stanford (left) chairman of the Dr. I. H. Manning Memorial committee, and Dr. Paul Whitaker (right) will make the principal addresses at the Manning Memorial luncheon in the Carolina Inn today.

An estimated 200 to 700 graduates of the University's two-year medical school now residing in this state will be guests of honor at the luncheon which is being given as a tribute to the late dean of the medical school.

Men's Council Cases

A student was reported to the Men's council for a violation of the Honor code. The student had taken a short story which another student had written and had returned to him. The story was handed in by the reported student as his work. The same student was also found guilty of receiving aid on his exam in the same course.

This student was suspended for an indefinite period of time and was given an F on his course.

A student was reported for attending a class after he had apparently had a few drinks. The conduct of the student was not of a violent nature in any way but it was obvious that he did not have complete control of himself. His instructor testified that he had not created any class disturbance.

This student was reminded of his obligation concening his personal conduct on the campus and in his classes. He was placed on University probation indefinitely.

A student was reported for cashing several checks on the campus which were of no value. He had been notified several times about the checks being returned but he had failed to make any of the checks good. The student was called before the Men's council and was instructed to take up his bad checks right away. Soon afterwards he did so.

At the time of the hearing the student was placed on bad check probation.

Recently a student was reported for a possible violation of the Honor code. Reportedly the student had received help on a math exam. The student was summoned before the Men's council and the facts of the case, including similarity to the paper of his neighbor and the impossible answers he had recorded as his own, were presented to him. The student denied having received aid on the exam. However, he did admit that he had seen his neighbor's paper. The facts on the papers or the circumstantial evidence which the answers on the exam presented clearly showed that cheating had taken place.

This student was given an F on the course and was suspended for an indefinite period of time. He notified that he planned to appeal the decision but changed his mind the next day and left school.

A professor reported that he felt that one of his students had violated the Honor code. The student was called before the Men's council. He admitted that he had received aid on the quiz. He was conscious of his violation.

This student was given an F on the course and was suspended indefinitely.

GOP Senators Show Strength

War Investigations Will Be Continued

Washington, Jan. 22—(UP)—The Senate War Investigation committee has been extended for another year. Republican senators won their first test of strength with the Democratic minority with a final vote of 49 to 43.

Down the line, as each name was called, the GOP lined up for continuation, the Democrats against, that is, with only three exceptions. The three who broke ranks were Republican Langer of North Dakota and Tobey of New Hampshire and Democrat Lee O'Daniel of Texas.

Wartime Excise Tax

The house rules committee cleared the way for the house to consider the first major legislation of the new session, a bill to continue the wartime excise tax rate beyond June 30.

Hoover Plans to Study German Food Problems

Washington, Jan. 22—(UP)—Former President Herbert Hoover is going to Germany at President Truman's request to study food conditions. He says his mission, which begins next week, is aimed at relieving some of the burden of the American taxpayer.

Unamerican Committee Will Investigate Reds

Washington, Jan. 22—(UP)—The house committee on unAmerican activities, now working under Republican leadership, has voted to investigate alleged Communist activities in the Hollywood film colony. The group also decided to "expose and ferret out Communist sympathizers in the federal government."

Talmadge Backers Fail To Remove Oath-Taking

Atlanta, Jan. 22 — (UP) — The Georgia senate has voted to leave the governorship oath-taking of Lieutenant Governor Thompson on the records. Backers of rival Governor Talmadge made the motion to remove the oath from the records, but a tie vote of 27 to 27 left the record unchanged.

West Virginia Group Wants to Change Name

Charleston, W. Va., Jan. 22—(UP)—Two state legislators have prepared a resolution to change the name of West Virginia. They complain that the present name leads one to believe the state is, as they say, "merely the western part of Virginia."

French Premier Gets Government Organized

PARIS, Jan. 22—(UP)—Premier Paul Ramadier has completed the formation of France's first government under the new Fourth Republic. He announces that he succeeded in staffing his cabinet only after putting down violent disputes among the prospective members.

Police Say Kidnapper Is 'Just Rank Amateur'

Lodi, Calif., Jan. 22—(UP)—The police of Lodi, Calif., have only professional scorn for the kidnaper of 16-year-old Alice Devine. "He's just a rank amateur," said Police Chief Millard Fore. And the Chief hinted that the snatcher will be bagged shortly.

'Lost Colony' to Run For 49 Performances

Raleigh, Jan. 22—(UP)—"The Lost Colony," the historical play on Roanoke Island, will have a schedule of 49 performances this summer. That's the announcement by directors of the Roanoke Island Historical association. The directors met in Raleigh today. The pageant will open July 1 and run through Labor Day.

Veterans Housing Project Launched On Rogerson Drive

With President Frank P. Graham driving the first nail, the Chapel Hill community's largest-scale housing project to date has just been launched.

Thirty dwellings of the Cape Cod style are being constructed on Rogerson drive and purchase preference is to be given married veterans.

The project is being carried out under the Federal Housing administration which will fix the prices of the homes, expected to range from $6,000 to $6,500.

There will be 19 five-room and 11 four-room houses, with plaster finish, hardwood floors, asbestos siding, and central heating. All will have two bedrooms.

First Ready by February 1

The first home will be completed around February 1, and, weather permitting, the others are scheduled to be finished at the rate of one a week.

Construction is being carried out by Hill Homes, Inc., owners of Which are Edward B. Ward and William M. Hill, of the Foster-Hill company, Wilmington. F. R. Whitaker, of the Whitaker Real Estate company, Goldsboro, a partner in the project, is in charge of construction. H. M. Shaw, Wilmington, is superintending the project.

Chicago Report Will Be Heard By Legislature

Committees Named; Hearing Underway

The Student Legislature will meet at 7:30 this evening in Phi hall on the fourth floor of New East instead of Gerrard hall, usual meeting place of the assembly.

Under old business, the delegates to the Chicago conference will deliver summary reports on the trip. With regard to the National Students organization, there may be a motion introduced as to whether or not the University should join the group.

Ray Jefress, delegate to the recent student government convention in Knoxville will also report.

Investigations Begun

Charlie Warren, speaker of the legislature, said that the fact-finding board, appointed last quarter had already begun investigations into "financial matters which concern students."

Warren stated further that he had urged the chairman of the Rules committee, Bob Collins, to enforce the rule which automatically dismisses a legislator after more than two unexcused absences from meetings.

Early next week there will be a meeting of all committee heads to map policy for the current quarter.

The committees whose chairmen were elected at last week's meetings are considering bills which have not yet reached the floor. Hearings have gotten underway in the Ways and Means committee concerning a bill which would create a centralized scheduling center for extra-curricular activities on the campus.

Meanwhile the Elections committee is considering a bill introduced last quarter that would empower the president to appoint students to offices that are vacated between elections.

Committee Appointments

Warren also appointed the committees yesterday.

Sigma Chi To Honor Ambassador Johnson At Banquet Tonight

Carolina alumnus Ambassador Herschel V. Johnson, United States representative to the United Nations Security council, will be honored tonight at 6:15 in the ballroom of the Carolina inn at a banquet to be given in his honor by the Sigma Chi fraternity.

Johnson, who was an active member of the local Alpha Tau chapter of Sigma Chi during his undergraduate days at Chapel Hill, graduated from Carolina in 1916. He is scheduled to speak at tomorrow's convocation in Memorial hall. All 11 o'clock classes will be suspended for the occasion.

Also present at tonight's banquet with Johnson will be Dr. Frank Graham, Dr. Roy B. McKnight, Dr. James Godfrey, and Dr. C. B. Robson, head of the political science department. All of the fraternity's active members and pledges also will attend the banquet.

Ambassador Johnson will be introduced to the group by President Graham, with whom he attended the University over 30 years ago.

'Not Running for Anything' Kyser Answers Latest Rumor

By Warren Duffee

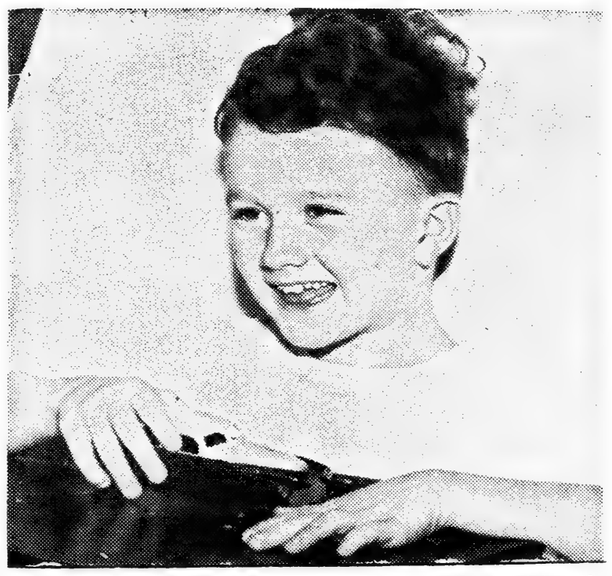
Raleigh, Jan. 22—(UP)—Kay Kyser, whose cockeyed "Kollege of Musical Knowledge" took him to the top in Radioland, put rumors to rest today that he would run for Governor of North Carolina and stilled speculation that half-elated, half-deflated every denizen of Capitol Square.

The bandmaster told the United Press in Hollywood the reports were "ridiculous" and declared he was "not running for anything."

A rumor first printed in Variety Magazine, the Bible of the show trade, snowballed incredibly as unprepared statehouse politicians first grinned, then frowned as they heard it.

Sponsor Trouble

Variety said Kyser was having sponsor trouble in his radio program, but that the real reason was the "Kyser anxiety to get his campaign started for Governor of North Carolina, which has been in his craw for some time."



Kyser said any reports that he had political ambitions were "preposterous, absurd and the biggest joke I ever heard of."

Nevertheless the grinning maestro remained a live political target as a red-hot battle shaped up in the North Carolina General Assembly over big appropriations for a long-range medical care and hospital building program.

Although most Tar Heels first laughed at Kyser's rumored candidacy, more than one politician took a secretly sober view.

The wise-cracking "Professor," they felt, might be too hot to handle in the hustings.

Newspapermen Meet Today

This happy smile from David Hugh Spruill of Columbia, means that he is hoping to be able to leave soon the state orthopedic hospital in Gastonia where he has been treated for infantile paralysis.

Thousands of youngsters like David will be able to have this expert treatment leading to complete recovery from the dread disease if you do your part through liberal contributions in the current polio campaign.

Student Union Band to Play For Charity Dance Tomorrow

'Dance so Others May Walk' Is Slogan Of Ball to Aid Infantile Paralysis Fund

By Sam Whitehall

"Dance so that others may walk" is the slogan with which the Western North Carolina club is sponsoring tomorrow night's charity ball in Woollen gymnasium from 9-1 o'clock. Ned Reap and his GM Dream Serenaders will furnish the music for the semi-formal dance, all proceeds of which will be turned over to the campus infantile paralysis campaign. Admission is $1.50 per couple or stag and tickets are now on sale in the Y.

Added Attraction

As a special added attraction, a quartet will sing several numbers, including some new songs written by members of the quartet. The popular new quartet is known in campus circles for past performances at various campus parties.

Norman Pless, president of the WNC club, and Bill Woestendiek, campus chairman of the campus "March of Dollars" drive are hopeful of a large turnout for the dance tomorrow night. It will be one of the first big dances of the current quarter and will give students an opportunity to enjoy themselves and at the same time make a valuable contribution to the fight against one of the nation's most dreaded diseases.

Returns Thus Far

Returns from fraternities and men's dormitories have been very slow thus far in the campus drive to raise funds. However, returns are expected to increase today and tomorrow.

McIver dormitory is heading the field at present in the amount contributed by the various dormitories. The coeds have contributed over $55 to the drive and was showing the way to the rest of the girls' dormitories as of yesterday afternoon. Alderman was second with over $30.

Bascom Timmons Plans to Speak At 23rd Session

Members of the North Carolina Press association will hear Washington Correspondent Bascom Timmons tonight at 8 o'clock when the 23rd annual North Carolina Press institute convenes in Gerrard hall.

Registration of the estimated 125 North Carolina newspapermen will begin at 4 o'clock this afternoon preceded by a luncheon in the Carolina inn at 1 o'clock.

Vice-Presidential Candidate

Timmons, well-known correspondent who has reported on happenings in the nation's capital for the past 33 years, will talk on "Washington Observations." In a lighter vein he will tell the group about his "campaign" for the vice-presidency in 1940 and in 1944 when he received one vote each time.

Frank Daniels, general manager of the Raleigh News and Observer, will introduce Timmons.

Broddie Griffith, managing editor of the Charlotte News and president of the AP club, will preside at the luncheon, and Curtis Russ, editor of the Waynesville Mountaineer, will preside over the weekly session.

Peele Talks Tonight

Herbert Peele, editor of the Elizabeth City Advance and president of the State association, will preside at tonight's session. Chancellor Robert B. House of the University will give the address of welcome, and President Peele will respond.

Several members of Chapel Hill's writers' colony, including Paul Green, Noel Houston and James Street, will participate in a roundtable discussion of "Communication for Today," along with Earl Wynn, director of the University's Communication center, and Profs. Leon M. Pollander and Stuart Sechriest of the journalism department at a luncheon tomorrow with the University as host. Prof. Walter Spearman will preside.

The University Glee club, under direction of Prof. Paul Young, will give several selections.

A business session is scheduled for 3:30 tomorrow afternoon.

To Duke Tomorrow

Duke University will be host at the closing dinner session tomorrow night at 6:45. Principal speaker will be Sidney S. Alderman, Washington, General Counsel for the Southern railway and member of the prosecution staff at the Nuremburg trials, who will be introduced by Willis Smith, Raleigh, Chairman of the Duke Board of Trustees. Governor R. Gregg Cherry will present the annual press awards.

Wayne Morse Talk Postponed by CPU

Wayne Morse, Republican senator from Oregon, originally scheduled to address a meeting under the sponsorship of the Carolina Political union here tonight, will not speak at this time, it was announced by Jerry Davidoff, Chairman of the CPU.

Davidoff stated that due to the weight of other matters on the campus calendar, and out of courtesy to the annual North Carolina press institute, which tonight presents Bascom Timmons, noted Washington correspondent, the Senator had been asked to delay his appearance here until next month.

Resuming its regularly scheduled roundtable discussions this Sunday evening, the union's topic will be military men in government, with special reference to the recent appointment of General George C. Marshall as secretary of State. Charles Berman of Miami, Fla., will introduce the subject.

WINSTON-SALEM CLUB

The Winston-Salem-Carolina club will meet this evening in the main lounge of Graham Memorial at 7 o'clock. Plans for the spring dance will be discussed.

CCC Fails To Appear Before PU Board

Official Delegate from Conservative Club Does Not Appear for Charges Against DTH

By Sam Whitehall

Representatives of the Carolina Conservative club failed to appear before the Publications board yesterday to present the CCC's alleged charges against the Daily Tar Heel. Richard H. Caudle, a member of the CCC, was present, but he announced that he knew little of the matter and had not been designated by the Club to make charges.

DTH Editor Bill Woestendiek, Managing Editor Roland Giduz, and other prominent DTH journalists were present to defend the newspaper, and a number of interested students appeared to hear the proceedings.

Morrison Assured

Robert Morrison, president of the Board, said that he had been assured by a member of the Club that an official delegate would be present to present the charges and that a copy of a bill citing charges against the newspaper had been submitted by a committee of the CCC and later revised. The revised bill was never produced.

On a motion by Howard Merry the matter was dropped from the agenda, the Board taking no action.

Other business done by the Board included the appropriation of $15.00 to the sports department of the DTH, this money being used for trips to sports events.

On a recommendation from Bill Selig, DTH business manager, the salary of the subscription manager, was raised from $5.00 to $8.50 weekly, and $6.38 was appropriated for quarterly service on the DTH Addressograph machine. Selig's request to raise the subscription rate of the DTH from $5.00 to $8.00 per year and from $2.00 to $3.00 per quarter was granted, but the Board decided not to honor Selig's request for an increase in the rate charged students for classified advertisements.

Giduz requested $75.00 for the printing of a DTH stylebook and $18.00 for an unabridged dictionary; both requests were granted.

A number of staff leaders of the newspaper and magazine appeared before the Board to discuss printing difficulties. The Board went in executive session with the staff leaders to discuss this matter, and no report is available at this time. Further consideration of the matter will come before the Board when it meets next Tuesday afternoon at 3 o'clock in the Grail room. Also on the agenda for this meeting are requests from Fred Jacobson, editor of the Carolina Magazine, to copyright the magazine, provide keys for staff members, and raise the circulation allotment from $20.00 to $25.00 per issue.

YORK-RANKIN ENGAGEMENT

Ed York, Statesville, and Peggy Rankin, Port Washington, N. Y., announced their engagement on January 10.

Men Asked To Reserve Rooms For March Term

The Admissions office requests all men living in the dormitories to reserve their rooms for the March term if they wish to stay in them. The number of men returning to school and on the waiting list makes it necessary for housing officials to know the number of rooms that will be available.

Any man who does not reserve his room with the dormitory manager before February 3 will not be able to keep it during the spring quarter.

CAROLINA WORKSHOP

There will be a meeting this afternoon at 4:30 in the Playmaker's theatre of all students interested in Carolina Workshop festival.

Fulfilling A Need

It was Mark Twain who said that everybody talks about the weather and nobody ever does anything about it. Until the problem reached the critical stage, North Carolina's long-suffering public school teachers found their case being treated with much the same sympathy.

Now that there is pay-boost legislation on the Raleigh fire, there naturally has come to mind the application of further incentive to prevent our school m'arms from returning to the farm—or the office—in frightening droves. It is fortunate that such legislation not only has come to mind but on Tuesday was presented as a bill to the general assembly by Orange county's progress-conscious John Umstead.

Rep. Umstead's bill would provide free tuition to residents of the state who study in state-supported institutions and agree to teach in the state's school system after graduation. The act specifies that a student who wishes to enter teaching would sign a note for tuition, which note would be cancelled when he had taught in the state system a specified time within five years after completing his education.

Actually, passage of such legislation would merely be a reiteration of a former similar provision which went out of effect in the dark years of 1933—when teachers were on every street corner and not refugeeing from the classrooms.

It is a bill which should have been revived long ago. In fact it is somewhat surprising that it was not, for with the need not quite so acute our state's fathers then might have felt themselves worthy of a bit further procrastination on teachers' aid.

There is no conceivable opposition at present to the Umstead act, which undoubtedly will make that legislator more popular on this campus than the previous merchant-supporting action which bears his name.

With subsidies for teachers in effect, it is probable that Cupid might suffer but the state will benefit. In other words, the state's education system will be altered for the better instead of "altared" for the worse.

Letters To The Editor

All letters must be typewritten, double-spaced, under 300 words in length, and signed by the writer. Writer's name will be withheld on request, but letters must be signed. The Daily Tar Heel reserves the right to present the letters as it wishes and to delete all matter it considers libelous.

Synonymous

To the Editor:

Whenever the "disloyalty" of a communist is mentioned in the Daily Tar Heel, as in the current "Flynn Case," someone is promptly accused of hurling charges without proof.

For those few who insist on ignoring facts which are obvious to most of us, I propose to prove that communism and disloyalty are synonymous:

1. Webster's Collegiate Dictionary: "loyal . . . 1. Faithful to the lawful government . . . to whom one is subject."

2. Official ruling of the U. S. Attorney General, (1942): "The Communist Party of the U. S. A., from the time of its inception to the present time, is an organization that believes in, advises, advocates and teaches the overthrow by force and violence of the government of the United States."

As to Miss Flynn—our form of government is worth fighting for, but intolerance as a weapon is neither desirable nor effective. Let her speak! It is our duty to make of this country such a successful exposition of the virtues of democracy that she won't have a leg to stand on! Until we have accomplished that, we deserve no better than having her make us squirm!

BILL PATTERSON.

What Gives?

Dear Sir:

Now that the rains have come and the quagmires reestablished, perhaps it would not be too injudicious to inquire regarding what in the vain name of the nether regions ever became of the projected, and half-and-half materialized brick walks that were to grace this hallowed saltmine?

Half-and-half, that is, since although half have undulated their way to a spot just south of Murphey, the other half remain scattered in sundry strategic balustrades, intermingled with assorted sand-traps and road-blocks. To repeat, sir, in regard to this highly vaunted and much publicized campus improvement, what gives?

Far be it for this humble onlooker to murmur that the original, traditional tow-paths were an improvement over the present circuitous trails, bogs, fens, fords, etc., but what will returning alumni think come the next Duke game? Sir, will they ever improve that precipitous gully beside that architectural landmark, the "Y"? Will the bricks ever get to Bingham? When do we tune in again?

Yours,
J. KRUSPY.

Student Government Topics....

Delegate Lists Conclusions About Chicago Conference

By Tom Eller

These are some of my conclusions and opinions regarding whether or not the University of North Carolina should become an official member of the National Students Organization. Points are listed for and against; they are not necessarily shared by the other delegates:

Pro-NSO

(1) It is possible for the NSO to facilitate the alleviation of several pertinent long range needs, viz., the domestic and international exchange of students, the expansion of government scholarships as the GI bill begins to wane, the promotion of more independent student government agencies etc.

(2) It is possible for the NSO to serve an immediate purpose through the process of association by the students who attend its meeting. There will always be (as there was this time) the informal exchanging and broadening of ideas in student affairs.

(3) The leaders of the NSO appear capable and iterate their aims for achieving the goals mentioned in (1) and (2).

(4) In this present day when large organizations of all types and degrees are the fad, the NSO has a good chance of surviving and progressing.

(5) The University of North Carolina is the forerunning student body of the south; we must think of what we should give as well as what we may receive.

(6) It is a fact that the name of students of the United States will be attached to the name of the NSO whether or not they belong; therefore, if our name is to be used it is our duty to have a say in the way it is used—For the south to be served, the south must be represented.

Con-NSO

(1) It is probable that the objectives mentioned in (1) and (2) will often be sacrificed while the racial issue is being discussed. (By the term "racial issue" is meant, the relationship of whites and blacks in the south.) From the previous discussions the person who had not heard of the riots in Detroit and the east, and "Japanese" troubles in the west would not know the problems exist in those sections of the country. The emphasis is definitely upon the problem as it exists in the south. To me it is evident that someone has an absorbing interest in the negro for reasons which are not apt to be good for either the negro or the whites so long as they are in the United States and are under a democratic government. However, the "reactionaries" do as much damage as the "radicals" by whispering "communist" about even those who endeavor to apply the Christian principles to the race problem.

(2) The University of North Carolina, if it becomes an official member, will probably be the nerve-center of their region. That means student money must be spent.

(3) The problem of organizing the North and South Carolina region for adequate representation is tremendous. Several people are going to be forced to academic sacrifices while they tour the two states speaking and while they answer letters which they will receive from the region and from Chicago.

(4) Several previous attempts at the organization of students in the United States have failed because certain groups forced their aims upon the others. The fatal result was that the "others" withdrew and there were not enough people left to do the "railroad" measures which they had passed any real good.

(5) More is accomplished by method than by objective. Students are apt to show that they do not remember this principle by being too aggressive and by being impractically "liberal."

(6) There is danger that the name of the students of the United States may be used for the wrong purposes if representation is not carefully cultivated to its maximum and if it is not just as carefully selected by the student gov'ts themselves.

Under no circumstances should any national organization or group or clique, be allowed to choose the representation to the NSO from the individual schools.

Considering all these points, I submit the following suggestions for your consideration:

(1) It seems reasonable for UNC to stay in the NSO until the Constitutional Convention is held in September. If at that time the representatives who attend feel that the gains will not be worth the effort, it should withdraw by denouncing the NSO as a representative student organization. If, on the other hand, the delegates at that meeting feel that the results will justify the other factors, they should return and endeavor to complete the job of organizing the NSO.

(2) The representatives for September should select a chairman as soon as they themselves have been chosen (which should be at the earliest possible date) and should prepare themselves thoroughly. After they are agreed upon policy they should try to study with other students of the region in preparation of aims and ambitions to be set forth in the NSO. There is no reason why the constitution of the NSO should be a duplicate of the International Union of Students—it should not for obvious reasons.

(3) The delegation should be prepared to compromise on the racial issue and should be careful that it, in no way, inflates the issue as it exists in its own state. In this problem, the representation should assume the responsibility for their own school on the basis of fair, unemotional polls taken among their own student body.

(4) I personally feel that the NSO should leave the specific problem of race, in the south, to the people of the south. Racial agitation is only serving to retard the liberalizing process which is visibly in progress among southern students.

The racial problem as directly related to students will be solved by an increasingly rapid evolution in the direction of equality of opportunity. Segregation will decrease in direct proportion to the increase in equality. Dramatization on the part of either the "radicals" or the "reactionaries" serves no beneficial purpose.

Brushing Out the Cobwebs....

Brighter Days Seen Ahead For 'The Balanced State'

By Eddie Allen

Popular appeal, employing the human equation held over from the crusades, remains the most potent means of providing impetus to any movement. Carrie Nation and Hatchet probably did as much to bring about Prohibition as the legislators who actually put the dry edict temporarily into the law of the land.

Many are the cases wherein constructive reforms are born through direct and emotional public appeal. The proverbial and problem-burdened man in the street, thus aroused, sees that something is done.

Such is democracy, at its finest and such is the story of what at last appears to be an awakening to North Carolina's treatment of its mentally ill. Partially through efforts of Orange county's capable representative, John Umstead, the 2,000-bed hospital at Camp Butner soon will be converted into a new and improved center for the treatment of the insane.

Knowledge of the apalling conditions prevailing not only in North Carolina but in a majority of state-supported institutions has come only recently to dispell lethargic legislative cobwebs. Five years ago Tom Jimison's series of articles on the state hospital at Morganton shocked its readers, frightened the non-seeing officials of the institution, and precipitated investigations which at last may be bearing grapes—not of wrath but of understanding.

Jimison's series was an indirect forerunner of a flood of such exposes, most notable among them the novel, "The Snake Pit," which are now deluging the literary market.

Life magazine showed that the problem is an international one with its article on London's Bethlehem asylum. A New York newspaperman recently toured Georgia's infamous Milledgeville hospital, found conditions even worse than expected.

In Georgia reasons for the neglect of the mentally ill are obvious. In that strife-ridden state there are two classes of what we have to come to call the "insane." The larger class cannot vote; the other evidently holds public office and is oblivious to its own needs.

One hopes on an almost tragically serious note, that the dawn has at least come for mentally ill of the true, amenable-to-aid sort. The late President Roosevelt once called North Carolina "The Balanced State." It should be certain that its balance should include the most important of all things—the welfare of its people—as well as its economy. Brighter days seem to be ahead.

Jud Kinberg's elegy of yesterday on the descent of Carolina's student body into an academic bog leads one to think that perhaps Mr. Kinberg is getting old. For it is a standard defense of the waning generation to hint that its successors are unperceiving and incapable of their responsibilities.

Jud, evidently recalling pre-war (the good old) days when things seemed better and he—oddly enough—was a bit younger, believes that the college student of today is declining into a maelstrom of indifference in regard to questions of true importance. Could not it rather be, Jud, that the degenerate student of today is more interested in completing his war-spliced education so that when he comes to face such problems in reality instead of theory he can make the most of his abilities?

Mr. Kinberg cites the march of Georgia students on Atlanta among the lone evidences that current collegians give a damn about what is happening about them. Would it not have been in the long run more effective for them to have remained in Athens, preparing for the day when their metamorphosis from the intellectual cocoon is complete and they will be ready to express their feelings in other than half-baked demonstrating?

The cub lion does not have to vent a puny roar for one to realize that some day he will be king.

But if that be reason, may Jud make the most of it.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Drew Pearson

RFC SABOTAGES LOANS TO SMALL BUSINESS; BIG BANK REPRESENTATIVE ON RFC STAGES LIGHTNING MANEUVER; TRUMAN TELLS CABINET HOW TO GET ALONG WITH G. O. P. CONGRESS.

Washington.—Last week the Reconstruction Finance Corporation announced an inconspicuous routine announcement stating that its BPA program would expire Jan. 22. To most people this meant nothing. To thousands of small businessmen throughout the country, however, it meant the difference between prosperity and the opposite.

To people inside the RFC, furthermore, it represented one of the cleverest rush-jobs of backstage maneuvering in recent RFC history. Two Republican RFCommissioners, taking advantage of two Democratic absences, abrogated the RFC plan to guarantee 75 per cent of bank loans to small business up to $100,000. In the last year these support loans to small business have been the most important loans the RFC has made.

Here is the inside story of what happened:

Charles Henderson, RFC Chairman and generally considered a friend of small business, was absent in California. George Allen, another Democrat, and a staunch champion of small business, resigned effective Jan. 16. John Goodloe, nominated to take his place as a Democratic commissioner, had not been confirmed by the Senate.

This left the RFC, on Jan. 17—day after Allen resigned—in control of three men—two Republicans and one Democrat.

On that date also the two Congressional Committees on Small Business had not yet been reorganized. Both have staunchly championed RFC loans to small business, but since the new Congress began, the two committees have been in the throes of reorganization.

BIG BANKER VIEWPOINT

On Jan. 17, therefore, one day after Allen resigned, and before the Small Business Committees on Capitol Hill could get going, commissioner Henry T. Bodman moved to drop the BPA program, in other words, the "Blanket Participation Agreement" whereby the RFC automatically underwrote 75 per cent of loans which a bank extends to a small business.

Commissioner Bodman's background is the National Bank of Detroit, one of the most powerful financial institutions of the automobile capital. Behind it are the Fisher Brothers, of Fisher Body fame, and General Motors. They are also linked with the Bankers Trust and the Guaranty Trust in New York. This group represents big business, and generally speaking does not favor loans to small business.

Mural Clubs Show Signs Of Attaining Top Shape

Oakwood Drive, Sigma Nu, Stacy Outfits Roll Up Wide Margins in Topping Rivals

A host of top-flight contests were reeled off by mural cagers yesterday as the play by dormitory and fraternity teams alike began to reach mid-season form.

Oakwood Drive won its second straight tilt in a like number of days as it roared over Ruffin, 35-11, while Sigma Nu No. 2 was producing the top score of the afternoon in downing Chi Phi, 62-10.

In other games, SAE No. 1 dropped Kap Sig No. 3, 29-17; Beta No. 1 edged Phi Delt No. 3, 22-21; Delta Sig No. 2 beat Sigma Nu No. 1, 37-10; and Alexander nosed out BVP No. 1, 32-28.

Elsewhere, PiKA No. 1 took the measure of Beta No. 2, 32-24; Kappa Psi topped DKE No. 1, 27-12; Everett defeated the Law School, 31-22; Pi Lam No. 2 won over Phi Kap No. 3, 21-15; the Independents eased by the Ringers, 25-17; and Stacy whipped PBC, 35-12.

Today is absolutely the last time that handballers may sign up for the mural tourney. All entries must be in the mural office by 2 o'clock this afternoon.

Today's schedule:

Thursday, 4:00—Court No. 1: Aycock No. 1 vs. BVP No. 2; court No. 2: KA No. 3 vs. Phi Delt No. 2; court No. 3: Nash vs. Mangum; court No. 4: Zeta Psi No. 1 vs. TEP; court No. 5: St. Anthony vs. Phi Kap No. 2; court No. 7: Zeta Psi No. 3 vs. Pi Lamb No. 1.

5:00—Court No. 1: Graham vs. Med School; court No. 2: Delancey M. vs. Axes; court No. 3: SAE No. 3 vs. Sig Chi No. 3; court No. 4: Aycock No. 2 vs. Emanon; court No. 5: DKE No. 2 vs. PiKA No. 2; court No. 7: Kap Sig No. 1 vs. SAE No. 2.

Tar Heel Mittmen Drill On Offense For Saturday Tilt

Carolina's boxing team polished up its offense yesterday afternoon in preparation for the ring battle with the University of South Carolina Gamecocks here Saturday night.

Coach Ronman, plagued by injuries and scholastic difficulties all season, expressed the hope yesterday that his squad would be in top shape for the meet Saturday. "We should definitely be in better shape than we were against Virginia last week," he said, "and with any kind of luck we should put up a good scrap against the Gamecocks."

The boxing team facing South Carolina will be approximately the same that met the Cavaliers, Ronman said. The only change will probably be in juggling some of the men around in different weight classes.

Dick Young, Leonard Green, and Bill Sumas have been pacing the Tar Heels thus far this season. Green scored the only TKO for the Carolina mittmen against the Cavaliers, while Young won his match by a decision and Sumas gained a draw in his 125-pound battle.

Little is known about the South Carolina team, but the Gamecocks traditionally come up with a strong ring outfit. The Carolina leatherpushers are expected to counter with an improved team, who will be working toward the smooth offensive organization needed for the national boxing matches in March.

Davidson Mat Match Switched to Monday

The wrestling situation for the weekend was finally cleared up yesterday when the Athletic office announced that the meet with Davidson, originally slated for Saturday, would be held Monday evening in Woollen gym.

Dillon, Justice, Proctor Nominated Among Candidates for Teague Award

Award to Be Given Leading Athlete In Two Carolinas

By Irwin Smallwood

Carolina athletic production is among the best in both the Carolinas. That was demonstrated Sunday when the nominees were announced for the annual Teague award, given each year to the outstanding amateur athlete in North and South Carolina.

Eight men were named as candidates for the presentation, and of that eight, three were Tar Heels—Johnny Dillon, Charlie Justice and Snooky Proctor. And one of the women, swimmer Frances Kinney, is a former Blue Dolphin.

Other nominations include Nick Sacrinty, Wake Forest football star and Phi Beta Kappa student, Ray Yagiello and Tony Georgiana, Catawba college footballers, Bryan Meeks, South Carolina center, Ed Koffenberger, Duke basketball star, and Estelle Lawson Page, nationally prominent Chapel Hill woman golfer.

And in the choice of the three Carolina candidates, three top-notch athletes were named, three who could put their abilities up against not only those of any Carolina athlete, but those of any in the nation.

Two All-Americans

Dillon, the hook-shot artist, has been an outstanding White Phantom for two years, and last season won All-American honors on the Sporting News selections. He scored 450 points in 30 games for an average of 15 per game.

Justice, whose gridironics need hardly any explanation, was an All-Southern freshman tailback, and was placed on the second-string United Press All-American and on the Associated Press third-string. His performances on the football field were second to none in the running department and kicking as well, and he was far from a second-rate defensive player.

Proctor, of Rocky Mount, was one of the members of the outstanding Tar Heel swimming teams of the past several years, and his abilities in the swimming pool in competition are enough to merit him sports recognition in any part of the country.

All of these Carolina candidates will undoubtedly receive many votes, and we are of the opinion that one of them will be chosen as the winner of the Teague award in the voting of the Carolina sports writers in two weeks.

Here are the votes of an appreciative student body at least!

Twelve Cagers To Make Jaunt

Trip Includes Tilts At Maryland, Navy

By Bob Goldwater

Hitting the road once again for their last two away-from-home tilts until the middle of February, 12 Carolina cagers depart by car this afternoon en route to Maryland where they will take on two court opponents in the next two days.

Plans call for the team to stay overnight in Richmond and continue on to College Park, home of the first opposition, on Friday. The White Phantoms will play their second Southern conference contest of the campaign Friday evening against Maryland, a team they topped by 58-42 earlier this month. Then, on Saturday afternoon, the touring cagers run up against the coach who led last year's Carolina quintet to the finals of the NCAA tournament when they engage Ben Carnevale's high-powered Navy outfit in Annapolis. The team will return to Chapel Hill late Saturday evening.

Making Trip

Coach Tom Scott is still uncertain about the 12 cagers he will take along on the trip. Ten players are already certain to go, with the list consisting of Bob Paxton, Jim Hamilton, Johnny Dillon, Norm Kohler, Jim White, Sherman Nearman, Roger Scholbe, Dick Hartley, Jim Hayworth, and Taylor Thorne. The other two will come from Coy Carson, Freddy Ryan, Vic Seixas and King Cole. Coaches Scott and Pete Mullis, trainer R. A. White and Manager Mike Loftis will accompany the squad.

Looking back on Tuesday evening's success against Virginia while his charges were running through their paces in yesterday's practice session, Coach Scott expressed pleasure with the showing made in the second half, when the Phants rolled up their highest total for one half this season. "I liked the evenness of the scoring," he declared. "It shows that the boys are cooperating well and that's what any team needs."

Track Squad Strong in Two Hurdle Events; Timber Toppers Sparked by Six Lettermen

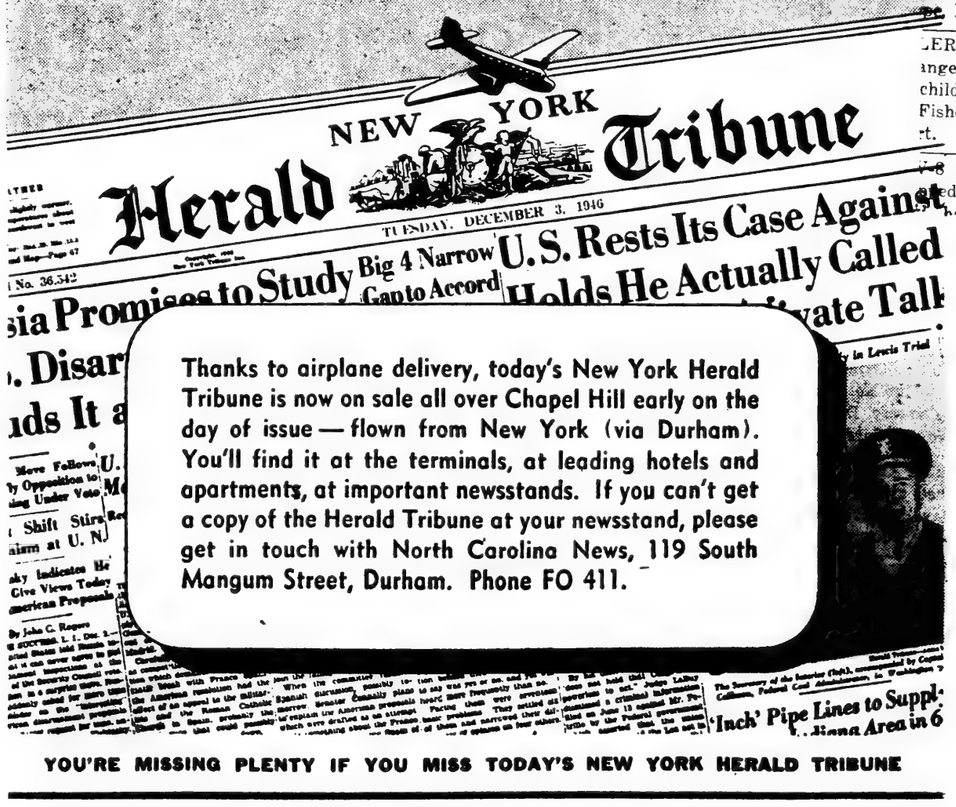
Track fans here this year will be treated to fine performances by the timber-topping corps which features six returning lettermen.

In the high hurdles Coach Dale Ranson can pick either Chunk Simmons, who placed third in the IC4A competition last year and averaged 18 points per dual meet, or Hunter Heggie. Heggie showed what fine condition he is in by copping the Harry A. March Trophy for the fall decathalon. The final returning lettermen are John Lineweaver and Dick Taylor.

Finest of the prospects for the highs is freshman Bob Morrow, who last year took the state championship while representing Charlotte Central High School.

The low hurdle event features the two Teds, Shultz and Haigler plus Simmons, who took second in the IC4A last year. This event should prove one of the strongest on the program for the Tar Heels.

Other prospects for the hurdles include Johnny Jones, Don Ahern, Cyrus Frazier, Fred Saunders, Paul O'Brien, and Henry Barnes.



Coach Ranson stresses the fact that any boys that have hurdle experience or would like to try out for the hurdles come down to the Tin Can any afternoon and work out. Ranson is especially interested in freshmen as he will be fielding a Tar Baby team in both indoor and outdoor track and with some of the leading frosh running with the varsity plenty of spots will be open to boys who come out and work.

The track squad is still in dire need of managers and any one interested in a managerial position is welcome to come down and talk to the coaches.

Phi Mu Alpha Member Attends Convention

David M. Arner, graduate student and music major, was official delegate of Alpha Rho, local chapter of the national music fraternity, Phi Mu Alpha, to the national convention of the fraternity, held on the campus of the University of Michigan in Ann Arbor, December 26, 27, and 28, 1946.

Attending the convention, which was the first since before the war, were many of the country's leading composers, artists, and music educators. There were chapter delegates from each of the 76 chapters all over the country. Most important questions regarding the national fraternity were settled at the three-day convention, and a new slate of national officers were elected.

The trip taken by the UNC band to the Sugar Bowl prevented a number of delegates from attending the convention as representatives of Alpha Rho. Earl Slocum, band director, and province governor for the southern province of the fraternity, was unable to be present for the same reason.

WNC Club Will Elect New Officers Tonight

The Western North Carolina club will hold its first meeting of the quarter this evening at 7:30 o'clock in Phi hall on the fourth floor of New East.

Plans will be formulated for the election and installation of new officers. Also there will be a discussion of the March of Dimes dance, and arrangements will be made for social functions for new members.

Sound and Fury Holds Musical Show Tryouts

Tryouts for Sound and Fury's March musical will continue this afternoon in the main lounge of Graham Memorial.

All old members and others interested in this activity are asked to drop by and sign up for the production, Bill Carmichael, S&F president, stated. Technicians, actors, and assistants are urgently needed.

FLORIDA CLUB CONVENES

Officers of the Florida club will be elected in Roland Parker lounge 1 at 7:15 this evening.

All University students from Florida will be eligible to attend the meeting and vote for the officers. A program of entertainment and dancing has been planned after the business meeting.

HEAVEN HIGH

Hold not too close earthly things, but rather, cherish intangible things: The roar of the sea that lashes the beach; the song of the winds. . .things out of reach. All the eye can reflect, all the ear can detect. Scan the heavens from star to star. . .love them, if you must, but love from afar. Remembering, that which is born of earth, has such a short span to complete, were we to love too dearly this love would soon turn to defeat. For even as the fairest flower can steal our hearts by day, frosty winds creep by night. . .to sweep her beauty away.

Noted Authority on Divorce Speaks Before Phi Assembly

Dr. Clifford Adams, visiting professor of psychology at the University and noted authority on marriage and divorce problems, addressed the Philanthropic Literary Society Tuesday night. In giving a brief history of the problem, Dr. Adams pointed out that in 1860 the divorce rate was only three per hundred while latest tabulations show that the rate has risen to 33 per hundred. According to the distinguished authority "Divorces have become a giant business in the United States reaching the total of $500,000,000 per year for court and lawyer fees. "President Truman is expected to call a conference on married life within the year, so vital is the problem," he said.

Dr. Adams' address was followed by a debate on a resolution that the federal government should enact uniform marriage and divorce laws. Speaker Morrison, in support of the measure, pointed out the famous North Carolina vs. Williams Case as evidence that a federal law is necessary to remedy the situation.

John Giles introduced a substitute resolution calling for uniform divorce and marriage laws enacted by the several states. Orren Hyman, speaking in favor of the substitute resolution pointed out that since social conditions vary widely among the various states it would be impracticable to force a federal law upon them.

By a vote of 10-4 the substitute resolution was defeated and the Assembly then passed the original bill by a vote of 12-5.

The Phi will hold a supper meeting at the Carolina Inn from 5:30 to 7 p. m. Thursday evening.

State Assembly Adopts Bonus For Teachers

Emergency Pay Bill To Last Until July

Raleigh, Jan. 23—(UP)— Salaries for teachers occupied the attention f the Legislature today. Both houses approved a plan for a bonus to tide teachers and other State employees over until July the first.

Then the State Superintendent of Education—Dr. Clyde Erwin—asked the Appropriations Committee to earmark every single dollar they possibly could for teacher pay for the next two years. Dr. Erwin outlined the present teacher shortage in North Carolina. And he said increased salaries was the only way to cure it.

Board Makes Request

The State Board of Education said its request to the Budget Commission for a 20 per cent pay increase was prepared last summer—in the light of conditions then. But it said both the cost of living and the State's revenue had risen since summer. And it asked for more money—not for any definite amount, but for any sum possible.

In his Legislative address and again in his budget message Governor Cherry said he felt twenty per cent was the maximum raise the State should undertake.

Navy Patrols Rescue Four Missing Airmen

Pensacola, Fla., Jan. 23—(UP)—Air-sea patrols have rescued four of five Navy airmen, missing since their P-B-Y Catalina Flying boat crashed last night near Pensacola, Florida.

Details of the rescue are not available. But Pensacola Naval Air Training base officials report that four enlisted members of the crew are safe today. Lieutenant Junior Grade A. W. Dunham is still missing.

Smith Dies Suddenly At Farm in Virginia

Washington, Jan. 23—(UP)—Harold Smith, former director of the budget and acting head of the World Bank, died suddenly at his farm in Culpepper, Virginia, tonight following a heart attack. He was 48 years old.

Grand Jury Indicts May on Garsson Plot

Washington, Jan. 23—(UP)—A Federal Grand Jury has indicted former democratic Representative May of Kentucky on charges or receiving 53 thousand dollars in money and land from the Garsson Munitions combine. The one-time Chairman of the House Military Affairs Committee also is accused of conspiracy. The offenses carry a maximum total penalty of four years in prison and fines of 20 thousand dollars. The indictment also charges the Garsson brothers, Henry and Murray, and a partner, Joseph Freeman, with conspiracy to defraud the government.

Government Will Cut Number of Employees

Budget Bureau, Jan. 23—(UP)—The government plans to drop 100-thousand employees from the payroll by July. A budget official suggests that economy-minded lawmakers concentrate on trimming expenses in the War, Navy, Postoffice, Treasury and Veterans Departments.

British Meat Rations To Be Reduced Again

London, Jan. 23—(UP)—The government has served notice on the already diet-jaded British people that their meager ration of fresh meat again is being cut. The people also were told that other reductions are likely, and that an acute shortage of basic foods will continue.

WEATHER TODAY

Partly cloudy and Mild.

HERSCHEL JOHNSON

Johnson Will Deliver Address This Morning

Alumnus Herschel V. Johnson, United States representative at the meeting of the Security Council of the United Nations, will deliver the second convocation this morning at 11 o'clock.

All regular classes scheduled for 11 o'clock will not meet today.

Since graduating from the University in the class of '16, Johnson has attained a place of conspicious distinction and responsibility in the diplomatic service. After completing graduate work at Harvard university he began his career in the foreign service in various countries including Switzerland, Honduras, Mexico, England, Sweden and Bulgaria.

Johnson's address will be the second in a series of convocation addresses. Professor R. D. W. Connor gave the first address in December, speaking on "A State Experiment in Higher Education."

Hodgson Is Named To Director Post

Tookie Hodgson, DTH satirist and Carolina Mag writer, has been selected by the Publications board as one of the seven student directors of the Graham Memorial Student Union.

Late last term Hodgson was appointed a GM director by Robert Morrison, Board president, and Wednesday the Board ratified the appointment.

In a letter circulated recently to student government organizations, Joe Byrd, Legislature clerk, announced that the University administration had approved the Legislature's GM proposal and the faculty and student members are now being selected.

Graham Addresses Di On Literary Societies

Declaring anew that the two literary societies were the "source of student government at the University," Dr. Frank P. Graham, in his address at the Di Senate's inaugural session Wednesday evening, said that "revival and restoration of these societies can mark the arrival of a new era at the University."

"Something passed out of the life of the University when these societies declined," Dr. Graham told the Senate and guests who assembled to install the Di's new officers. "Not only student government," he declared, "but campus publications all grew out of the Di and the Phi."

Retiring President Pro tem of the Senate Tom Eller opened the meeting, gave the oath of office to the re-elected President Don Shropshire and turned over the gavel to him. In his inaugural address Shropshire assured the members he had no promises to make, that he wished the new year's work to be judged not by what he might have committed himself to but by "what has actually been accomplished."

Stassen Receives Second Highest Number of Votes

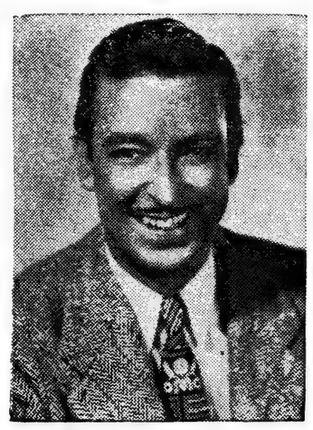
By Bob Rolnik

Leading the International Relations club poll of opinion, James Byrnes barely nosed-out Harold Stassen as presidential choice in Wednesday's campus-wide straw-vote in which more than 1500 students participated.

Students favored retaining occupation troops in Germany for more than 10 years and voted by a conclusive margin against releasing the atom bomb secret to the United Nations under any circumstances.

Appointment of military officers to high diplomatic and executive posts met with disapproval of the majority of voters.

Lower Tariff



The heartiest vote of favor went behind reciprocal trade agreements and lowering of U. S. tariff barriers. However, immigration barriers were upheld by 959 students who voted against admitting one hundred displaced persons into this country, while 469 favored this action and 84 had no opinion.

A Zionist state in Palestine was backed by most students who voted on the poll. By a wide margin, most ballots were cast in favor of U. S. participation in any conference relating to a change in the "status quo" of the Dardanelles.

Byrnes led the presidential poll with 320 votes, followed closely by Stassen with 305 votes. Wallace trail-

Club Signs Bands For Appearances In Late February

For the first time in many years two bands, Sonny Dunham and Dean Hudson, have been signed to play for the German club dances to be held in Woollen gymnasium on the weekend of February 21-22, Carroll Tomlinson, president of the dance group, stated yesterday.

The Modernaires, featuring Paula Kelly, will also appear at Saturday's concert and dance.

Two Concerts

Two concerts will be hald in Memorial hall, one on Friday afternoon with Hudson beginning at 4 o'clock, while Dunham and the Modernaires will jive from 2 to 4 o'clock on Saturday afternoon.

Both dances will be formal, Tomilson said. He also announced two changes in the German club administration. Jess Jernigan is the new treasurer and Earl Woodward has been named secretary.

Sonny Dunham whose music is billed as "subdued swing" has been knocking around the musical circuit for quite some time will play Saturday after an engagement at the University of Virginia Friday.

The trombone and trumpet soloist will split the Saturday program with Paula Kelly and the Modernaires who have won fame for themselves through numerous record releases.

Since 1938

Although not as well known as Dunham, Dean Hudson has been playing for college dances since 1938, with occasional stints at east coast night spots.

The Friday dance will begin at 9 winding up at one a.m. while Saturday's will last from 8 until 12 o'clock. There will be a German club figure at Saturday's affair.

Tomlinson said that the Friday night figure will not be held as in the past, "because a lot of folks get tired of them."

Charity Dance Will Climax 'March of Dollars' Program

The Infantile Paralysis campaign will be climaxed in Woollen gymnasium tonight when students dance at the "March of Dimes" charity ball. Featuring the music of Ned Reap and his GM Dream Serenaders, the semi-formal dance will last from 9-1 o'clock.

The dance, sponsored by the Western North Carolina club, will also feature the appearance of a new campus quartet. The quartet will entertain by singing several songs throughout the course of the evening.

"Dance so that others may walk" is the slogan by which WNC club members have been promoting the dance all week. All profits from the dance will go into the campus infantile paralysis fund. The dance, one of the social highlights of the winter quarter, is featuring the music of Ned Reap, who boasts one of the promising young campus bands. His most recent appearance was at the Graham Memorial dance honoring the football team two weeks ago.

McIver and Alderman dormitories continue to lead the coed dorms in contributions, while Pi Beta Phi is leading the sororities.

Zionist Plan to Meet For Study Panel Today

There will be a meeting of the Carolina chapter of the Intercollegiate Zionist Federation of America at 3:30 this afternoon in the Hillel lounge.

The study group will present a panel discussion on zionist organizations in America.

Eller, Miller Give Reports To Legislature

Group Encountered Many Difficulties

By Bookie Jabine

Meeting in historic, portrait-decked Di hall, the Student Legislature last night heard and accepted the reports of Tom Eller and Bill Miller, UNC delegates to the Chicago conference held last month.

Eller's concise and complete report told of the parliamentary difficulties encountered which kept the body in a "tangle." According to Eller much of the debate in the Windy City revolved about the question of segregation.

Before the Chicago reports, the assembly heard Ray Jefress explain the student government conference which was held in Knoxville last October. Said Jefress, "The University has the most freedom of student government of any institution represented at the Tennessee convention."

Miller, who was elected co-chairman of the regional committee of the National Students organization, advocated that the legislature consider the "practicability of joining the NSO, but we must go into this thing whole hog or nothing."

The Legislature then elected a six-member committee to consider the possibilities of joining the NSO. Named were; John Clampitt, Bill Mackie, Winston Broadfoot, Taylor Dodson, Peggy Rankin, and Jo Farris.

This panel will meet with the Chicago delegates.

Three bills were introduced on the floor last night, and reformed to committees.

Tom Eller introduced a measure that would require heads of numerous student activities to give complete reports both financial and concerning policy, past, present and future.

Eller, in speaking of the Chicago gathering, urged the legislators to join the NSO, but he said, "the North Carolina representatives must be better prepared. The speaker pro-tem recommended that if the legislature does send a delegation to Chicago in

Betty Ann Green Speaks to Coeds On CICA Group

Betty Ann Green, president of the International Relations club and chairman of the ways and means committee of the Coed Senate, addressed the Carolina Independent Coed association Wednesday evening on the potentialities of independent organization on the University campus.

"No one person can do the work necessary to make CICA the leading organization it should be," Miss Green stated. "We must work together as an integrated whole and endeavor to bring into our group every independent coed. To do this we must find some way of showing the now uninterested women students that CICA has a place for them and that we need their aid."

It was decided to order identification bracelets crested with a seal designed by Barbara Biggers. Any member of the organization who was not present to place an order for a bracelet is asked to contact Bettie Washburn at 204 Carr dormitory.

Six juniors were elected to serve on the executive council of the organization until the end of the spring quarter to aid in planning CICA policies and activities for the next six months: Mary Swann, Doris Harrell, Nan Guy, Sarah Blair Pearson, Nina de Berry.

The organization's president, Betsy Anne Barbee, also appointed various committee chairmen to work on the fashion show which CICA is sponsoring on March 3 in the Village theater, with the cooperation of Montaldo's in Greensboro. Chairmen of the groups are: Blanche Jacobi, models; Jean Thompson, decorations; Gloria Robbins, publicity; and etty Vashaw, clean-up committee.

Timmons Would Like to See 3rd Party

Says Truman, Dewey Will Be Candidates

President Harry Truman and Governor Tom Dewey will be the candidates of the two existing parties for the presidency in 1948, Bascom Timmons, Washington correspondent for 35 years, who represents some 25 papers in various sections of the nation, predicted in an address here tonight at the opening session of the 22nd annual North Carolina Newspaper Institute.

"I'd like to see a third party for one reason only," Timmons said, half way humorously. "Maybe some stout hearted Richard would stand at Armageddon and mix things up a little. Wouldn't it just be grand if we had Tom, Dick and Harry all running for President at the same time?

Nominated for V-President

Timmons referred jocularly to the fact that he was nominated for the vice-presidency in 1940 and 1944. He was sure he got at least one vote each time.

Timmons said that even if the Republicans win the presidential race next year they can hardly improve their Congressional position. "It would be perfectly possible for the Republicans to win the presidency next year and actually lose Congressional strength at the same time," he said.

Herbert Peele, editor of the Elizabeth City Advance and also president of the North Carolina Press institute, presided over yesterday's session of the institute and will also preside over the session today.

Institute to Hear From Local Writers

Meeting Today

Group meetings of dailies and weeklies will be held this morning, and the University will be host at a luncheon session at 1 o'clock at which several members of Chapel Hill's writers' colony, including Paul Green, Noel Houston and James Street, will participate in a roundtable discussion of "Communication for Today," along with Earl Wynn, Director of the University's Communication center, and Profs. Leon M. Pollander and Stuart Sechriest of the jounralism department. Prof. Walter Spearman will preside.

The University Glee Club, under the direction of Prof. Paul Young, will give several selections.

A business session is scheduled for 3:30, and the closing session will be held tomorrow night when Duke University will be host at a dinner in Duke Union.

Radically Wrong

The letter to the editor which appears on this page today concerning the publications board is well-worth considering.

The status of the publications board is something we have questioned for some time new. In reality, its makeup and its authority on certain matters have come up for question.

No doubt can exist as to the need for the publications board. It performs a vital function. It handles more student funds than any other group on the campus. It is elected by the students and represents the entire student body.

As such, we question the board's right to prevent any interested student from sitting in at any meeting the board may hold. The student body has every right to know how and for what all of its funds are being spent. The elected student members and the faculty members are supposed to be very capable of handling the allocation of student funds for publications and generally supervising the publications field. Even so, every student on the campus should be permitted to listen to what occurs at any regular board meeting.

It is even worse to realize that the board refuses to allow the editors of the campus publications to sit in on its meetings without permission.

We firmly believe the editors, and possibly the managing editors of every campus publication should be at least ex officio members of the publications board. Who is better qualified and better informed to discuss publications funds and projects than those men who work with publications daily. Naturally, other members should sit on the board to act as a sort of "check and balance" system on the editors, but editors, and all students, have every right to know what makes the wheels go around in the interior of the publications engine room.

As matters stand now, all they get out of the meetings is the steam from the engine. We feel the constitution should be changed in this respect to allow publications officials to attend board meetings as members.

And every interested student should be able to rightfully request a seat at the proceedings—all of which directly concern every student—and every student's money.

This newspaper is your newspaper. Your money pays for it. The two students who wrote the letter are correct. If more students would show the same curiosity and desire to find out what went and what goes with their funds and publications and other campus organizations, the campus would prosper immensely.

A change in the publications board set-up is necessary. We will continue to insist on open meetings and editorial representation on the board. We make no accusations as to the calibre and integrity of the present group—but we protest loudly over the manner in which they conduct their meetings and the manner in which members are selected.

Dance Tonight!

Students usually go to a dance to enjoy a pleasant evening of music and dancing.

At tonight's charity ball, you can do just that. But at the same time, you will be doing more than just having a good time.

The money you spend for tonight's dance will be used to treat children and students elsewhere who are suffering from infantile paralysis. Someone who can't even walk today may be able to dance in the future because you dance tonight. An evening could not be spent more profitable.

The only significance of life consists in helping to establish the kingdom of God; and this can be done only by means of the acknowledgment and profession of the truth by each one of us. —Leo Tolstoi.

Clandestine in Character

Dear Sir:

Since we were interested in the Carolina Conservative Club's charge that the Daily Tar Heel had discriminated against it, we were present when the Publications Board convened yesterday to conduct a hearing. We didn't know what we were in for.

There were about five of us who came as students. Right away Mr. W. A. Olsen, a faculty member of the board, announced that "he would not conduct business in the atmosphere of Pennsylvania station"—he wanted a closed meeting. Mr. Robert Morrison, a student member of the board, had us submit a written statement giving our reasons for desiring to hear some part of the business to be discussed, announced the board was in executive session, ushered us from the room, advised us that an agenda would be posted giving the time when that item in which we were interested would be discussed.

Mr. Morrison duly posted the agenda. We heard that part of the discussion which concerned the Carolina Conservative Club. The board then passed a motion to take up other business. No sooner had the motion passed when again Mr. Olsen made an issue of our being in the room. We were again ushered to the door but not before we protested to Mr. Olsen and Mr. Morrison that we felt that we had a right to sit in at the meeting. Mr. Olsen's attitude was "You are simply students."

The Publications Board is a board which allocates student funds. We feel that any interested student should not be excluded from meetings of the Publications Board or any other board which is given student funds. We are not advocating that students be given the floor; we are protesting that this board is denying our right to hear how and for what our funds are being allocated. The all-wise faculty members and the student elected members may feel that "Now, children, we know best how to spend your monies"—well, a war was once fought over something similar.

Can these boards eject Tar Heel reporters? It seems so. Yesterday it ejected Mr. Roland Giduz, the Tar Heel managing editor. Here is something for the Tar Heel and the Legislature to get their teeth in. There should be—perhaps there is—a provision in the Constitution which would compel all boards handling student monies or student affairs of similar importance to admit Tar Heel reporters.

Mr. Morrison was personally courteous; nevertheless, we object to star chamber methods fostered by Mr. Olsen and agreed to by Mr. Morrison and other members of the board. This board, like others, is spending student monies. The insistence of this board on secrecy—remember there were about five of us who came as students—causes us to wonder whether something dirty is going on. Let's smoke out this clandestine government. Let's get student affairs out of the cloak rooms and into the air.

Respectfully,
ROBERT NEILL

Industrial Nationalization To Help England's Economy

By Ernest Harrill and Basil Sherrill

Most Americans were flabbergasted in July, 1945, when Churchill and his Conservatives were defeated by the Labor party in England's national election. Many of us still have only a foggy idea of what is now going on in Britain. But, we in the United States, clinging to our economic way of life, must watch and try to understand this socialistic experiment.

The Labor party's objective is to put Britain's economy back on a secure footing. The chief method is the nationalization of industry. . .

Specifically, the Labor government plans ultimately to take over ownership and control of all (1) fuel and power, (2) inland transportation, such as railroads, airlines, canals and (3) the iron and steel industry. In spite of all this, some people claim that private capitalists will still retain about 80% of the nation's economy.

Now, after a year and a half under Atlee's Labor government, the Bank of England and the coal mines are the only sections of the economy fully socialized. However, Britain is rushing preparations to take over her sick steel industry, which needs about seven hundred million dollars' worth of modernization. Recent trucking strikes has placed transportation in the number one spot for government ownership.

Meanwhile, rubbing hardest against the American concept of private property, there comes the very latest move to socialize land in England. The Labor party introduced the Farm Control bill three weeks ago and last week the Town and Country bill popped up.

When these bills are passed, a man will be able to retain title to his property and may use his land for personal profit. However, the government can tell the property owner for what purpose he may or may not use his land. If the value of the property should go up for any reason, the government will confiscate these extra profits.

Stirring the average Englishman's imagination more than this industrial and land nationalization has been the far-reaching social security program. Parliament has pushed through four major laws to insure Englishmen against most social risks: the National Insurance Act, the Industrial Injuries act, the National Health act and the Family Allowances act. Under these laws, the government will be paid about 10% of the national income. In return, Englishmen will receive birth grants, child allowances, unemployment, sickness and injury benefits, free health service, retirement, widowhood and death grants—smoothing the path from the cradle to the grave.

Even with a more complete picture than this sketch of what has been going on in England, no one should risk any snap judgments. The changes have only begun and England is in the midst of abnormal, post-war conditions. It is too early for even the most ardent advocates of a planned economy to find positive assurance in England's record so far that a socialistic program is a cure-all for our economic ills.

Politicos Discover Nation Doesn't Always Follow Maine

By Al Lowenstein

Astute politicians have at last discovered that the old saw, "As Maine goes, so goes the Union," is no longer true, or at least is no longer true in Democratic years, Maine being Republican. Whether this observation was once poignant because the Union always used to go Republican, or because Maine didn't, does not particularly matter: They've had to amend the saw to warn, either, that as Connecticut (or Missouri) goes, so goes the Union, or—safer yet perhaps—that as Maine goes, so goes Vermont. Again, when tyranny was the order of the day a slogan like, "That government is best which governs least" might have been enough to inspire revolutions; today it just isn't true.

Yet so many people insist on restricting their thinking-processes by meekly accepting adages voiced once in the dim past, as guide-posts for today. With a sort of desperation born of confusion, for example, we sometimes find ourselves grasping at statements like, "For every new offensive weapon a superior defense is soon discovered"; and, muttering this reassuringly—though today the opposite is manifestly true—we convince ourselves that the atom bomb really is no new danger to our stolidity. And once we have hit upon one of these thought-saving devices, we cling to it with something like grim determination—and, presto, in a century or two our happy little motto has come to be regarded as sort of a folk-inspired addition to the Law and Prophets.

There is a whole body of literature, of things written and said through the Ages, that could not be truer or better said today or ever; but we must learn to differentiate in our thinking between such guiding, fundamental truths, Timeless and unequivocal, on the one hand, and on the other, catch-phrases which reflect only an observation of a situation which once was.

The theory that "idealists" on this campus ought to be relegated to Philosophy classrooms and tea-emporiums (except the more extreme cases, who are fit only for pastry-shops) is based on just such catch-phrases. The "practical" boys throw up their hands in horror at the thought of "philosophers" entering politics, and, calling into action various adages about how haloes don't win elections, they manage to convince themselves that they and only they, know how to "get things done." To judge by the election returns every time the issue has been joined, however, it might be reasonable to deduce that at least some of the horror is caused by the returns, by the conclusion which must stare them in the face: It is eminently "practical" to stick by ideals.

Every so often a wail arises that there are "no issues" in a particular campus election. This may be roughly interpreted to mean that rival candidates or parties have not set about bashing one another on the head over so crucial a matter as, for example, whether or not to restore a humor magazine; and this is indeed an important and justifiable topic for debate in an election. But there is always one fundamental issue at stake—and, phrase it as you will, what it boils down to is the means employed to get elected and the motive behind these means. There are ways and ways for a man to make money, but to some of us it matters somewhat if money be accrued by stealing or bribe-receiving or just what. Instead of sneering at all businessmen as "crooked" because some cheat, society outlaws certain practices and then apprehends violators of the law; and instead of sneering at "dirty politicians" in general it behooves all of us to pitch in and fight for what seems right in what seems the right way. One need be neither purist nor dreamer to assert that politics, the science of government, ought not be exempt from a moral and legal code.

Manufacturers use their equipment as long as it produces. Many unfettered and non-political students on this campus will be watching closely to see whether those now running the political parties regard the principles they profess to believe in simply as part of every good vote-manufacturer's equipment—to be disregarded after the goods have been turned out, after the votes are all in, and to be discarded completely if they do not satisfactorily "produce."

CAROLINA FOOTBALL, INC., having been closed for inventory and vacations since January 1, will reopen and begin winter drills February 10. That's the official word sounded yesterday by King Carl Snavely, the man who directs "operation football" and builds Tar Heel grid teams.

"We will begin work with all new men, jayvees and regulars who expect to participate in spring varsity sports a week from Monday," said Snavely as he completed his plans for mid-winter practice sessions. All other regulars will be excused from these early weeks of work, according to Snavely, and a list of such excused men will be posted some time next week.

"Winter practice is going to be mainly for the new and less experienced candidates," continued Snavely, "although there are several regulars and lettermen we want out there taking part in the drills." Falling into this category are quite a few lettermen who have returned to Carolina since the close of the season and who expect to be playing next fall. "We will stress fundamentals and size up the men on hand. In fact, we will just start practically at the bottom and work up," the white-haired gridiron professor concluded.

The Sugar Bowl encounter with Georgia was much more beneficial than several weeks of plain winter practice, and because of it, quite a bit of work that otherwise would have had to be done can be dispensed with. However, regular spring practice will be started immediately with the opening of the next quarter, meaning about the first week in April. At this time all the regulars and recruits alike will be out together, and work will begin in earnest for the coming fall season—a season which will greet the Tar Heels with one of the toughest schedules in history.

Gather 'round me everybody. . .The topic will be. . .

There's nothing worse than a sermon in a sports column, so don't take this as such, please. More, it is just a word of reminder to students and sports fans in general about several matters that have arisen and caused considerable comment during the past few weeks.

No matter whether you have a winning team or a losing one, there is always one thing that makes a school get favorable recognition—and that is good sportsmanship and fair consideration in competition. And at recent basketball games, and one boxing match in particular, there has been a little laxness on the part of Carolina students—not all of them, but a small part of them who have a tendency to forget once in a while.

For instance, there is the incessant "booing" of the officials—and opponents when they are shooting foul shots. Granted, there are some bad decisions now and then on the part of the officials, and Carolina students are particularly mindful of it what with the recent bungling of Cousin Gabe and gang in the Sugar Bowl. Nevertheless, it is being carried to an extreme, and we should take stock of ourselves and try to improve, both on the matter of riding the officials and the opponents. Another thing, done at the game last Tuesday night, is the tearing up of small bits of paper on various occasions. It is all well and good to be jubilant over good plays and such, but it is virtually impossible to clean up under the stands after a mass scattering operation as mentioned. The athletic department appeals to you, the students, to refrain from making an already hard task even more difficult by scattering paper under the bleachers.

"We know it is hard to restrain oneself inside at an exciting sports event," said Coach Bob Fetzer yesterday, "but our job of keeping the gymnasium clean and in order is made almost impossible by such performances."

The final thing brought to our attention this week was the "booing" of Mr. Mann—the referee of the boxing matches last weekend. Mann, when introduced as from Duke university, was given a welcome befitting a man who had just committed a horrible crime—and just because of the word Duke. That, again, is carrying things a little too far.

That's the story, gang. What say we try to improve, okay? Let's keep the spirit—which incidentally has been fine—but drop the displays of rather poor sportsmanship and messy outbursts. Your cooperation will be appreciated more than you know by Carolina athletic authorities, as well as the visitors who have always found a pleasant and sportsmanlike reception in Woollen gym. Thanks again!

Phants Play Liners Tonight; Cage Tourney Moves to Duke

Ticket Demand Causes Change

Cameron, Von Glahn Engineer Transfer

(Special to Daily Tar Heel)

Durham Jan. 23.—The Southern conference basketball tournament, held for the past several years in Raleigh's Memorial auditorium, was switched to Duke's indoor stadium for 1947 in a move made here today by Eddie Cameron, chairman of the conference basketball committee, and John Von Glahn, business manager of the tourney organization.

The transplanting of the tournament was made because of an unusually high demand for tickets coupled with the fact that Duke can take care of approximately twice as many spectators as Raleigh. However, it was announced simultaneously that there were no more tickets for the games available due to the fact that there were already enough requests in the office of the tournament committee in Raleigh to fill the indoor stands.

There will be no change in the sponsorship of the annual SC classic of the hardwood, the Raleigh Junior and Senior chambers of commerce remaining in that capacity. The only part Duke will take is to stage the game in their gym, which can seat some 9,000 onlookers.

Transfer of the tourney was greeted with accord from all points in the conference according to reports, and all concerned generally agreed that it was a wise move in view of the fact that the Raleigh auditorium seats barely 4,500.

BVP, Mangum, Emanon Pound Out Victories In Mural Cage Games

The intramural basketball tournament reached a peak in Woollen gym yesterday afternoon, with BVP No. 2, Mangum, and Emanon heading the play with victories over tough opponents.

BVP cracked out a 33-22 win over Aycock, No. 1, while Mangum whipped Nash, 33-31, and Emanon crushed Aycock No. 2, 36-28.

In other dorm games, the Med School whipped Graham, 23-15, the Axes beat Delancey M., 35-13, as part of the mural court activity.

There will be a meeting in 304 Woollen gym at 4 p. m. today of all students interested in forming a class in fencing, Dr. O. K. Cornwell, Professor of Physical Education, announced yesterday.

The Phi Delt No. 2 team tripped the KA No. 3 outfit, 28-27, Zeta Psi No. 1 downed TEP, 23-20, Phi Kap No. 2 rolled over St. Anthony, 42-20, and Zeta Psi No. 3 decisioned Pi Lamb No. 1, 26-19.

Rounding out the day's games, Sig Chi No. 3 won over SAE No. 3, 28-17, Pi Ka No. 2 edged out DKE No. 2, 28-26, and the SAE No. 2 squad slaughtered Kap Sig No. 1, 46-23.

There will be no more mural cage played this afternoon, but regular play will be resumed Monday afternoon, the mural department announced yesterday.

Scottmen Seek Repeat Victory

Locals Battle Navy In Saturday Clash

(Special to Daily Tar Heel)

College Park, Md., Jan. 23—North Carolina's touring cagers seek their second Southern conference victory of the campaign here tonight when they face Maryland in a return encounter between the two quintets.

Already holding a 58-42 triumph over the Old Liners, the White Phantoms will try for a repeat performance in the first of two tussles on the current jaunt. The cagers continue on to Annapolis Saturday morning and meet Navy's high-powered quint that afternoon, their last away-from-home tilt until February 17.

Same Starters

The same starting five that has opened the last nine games is expected to be the crew that Coach Tom Scott will field this evening. This puts Bob Paxton and Jim Hamilton in the forward berths, Johnny Dillon in the pivot spot at center, and Norm Kohler and Jim White at the guards. For substitutes Coach Scott has available Taylor Thorne, Dick Hartley, Sherman Nearman, Jim Hayworth, Roger Scholbe, Freddy Ryan and King Cole.

Probable starters for the Terrapins are Mont and Shumate at forward, Edwards at center and Brown and Schuerholz at the guard positions.

The clash will be the 11th of the season for the Phantoms who will be after their eighth win.

Frosh Courtmen Encounter Needham Broughton Tonight

By Gil McLeod

Coach Frank Murray's freshman quint will meet the Needham Broughton High School five in a return engagement tonight at 6:30 o'clock in Woollen gym.

The Tar Babies won the first encounter, 45-43, last Saturday in Raleigh.

Starting the game for the freshmen will be either Pete Peters or Bill Childress at one forward post, and Charlie Nichols or Junius Idol at the other. At center will be Sandy Hoft, with Bill Harrington and Bill Walker starting as guards.

Also ready to see action will be Gordon Sauls, Kenny Curtis, and Johnny Reagan.

As a preliminary to the South Carolina-North Carolina game next Wednesday night, the Tar Babies will play a return game with Danville's George Washington High School, starting at 6:30 o'clock.

The Danville five handed the freshmen their only loss this year, 34-31, on January 14. Coach Murray said that George Washington has "one of the best high school teams in Virginia."

Greenberg Gets Bonus

Detroit, Jan. 23—(UP)— Detroit Tiger officials revealed here today that slugger Hank Greenberg received a $20,000 bonus as a result of his sale last Saturday to Pittsburgh moving his 1946 salary total to $75,000. Previously, the club had been criticized for failing to inform Greenberg he was being sold out of the American League.

BOXERS PREP FOR MEET

Coach Mike Ronman's ring team continued to polish up its tactics yesterday afternoon in Woollen gym for the battle with the South Carolina mittmen here Saturday night.

Sasser, Brown Give Concert Tonight

Bill Sasser (left) and Larry Brown (right) senior music majors will present a series of original piano duets tonight at 8:30 o'clock in Hill hall. Sasser, well-known for his work as musical director of Sound and Fury, is from Wilson. Brown, from Asheville, makes his initial appearance on the campus with tonight's performance.

The program will consist mostly of work by French composers. The selections include Mozart's "Sonata in D Major," "Le Beau Jardin," by Dupin: "Epigraphes Antiques," by Debussy; and "Dolly," by Faure.

Iceberg Traps Antartic Ships

Two Vessels Imperiled By Gigantic Ice Floe

Little America, Jan. 24—(UP)—The ship of Admiral Richard Byrd's antarctic task force fled to the open sea tonight, stranding 75 men ashore. The action was taken when a giant iceberg partially blocked the entrance to their tiny harbor port.

Giant Iceberg

Two ships of the expedition down at the bottom of the world are endangered by the iceberg—an iceberg that's as long as two football fields put together. The huge ice floe drifted in from the open sea and parked itself across the narrow entrance to the Bay of Wales. One ship—the task force flagship, Mount Olympus, steamed out of the harbor before it could be bottled up by the ice

But two other ships are still inside, and keeping sharp lookouts. In case the ice starts moving in, they're ready to try to skirt around it, and get out to the open sea.

Jet-Propelled Planes Hit in Mid-Air Crash

Los Angeles, Jan. 24—(UP)—Two jet propelled Army planes—P 80's—crashed in mid-air today not far from March field, California. Both pilots were killed. P-80's can attain a speed of some five to six hundred miles an hour. It's not known how fast the planes were traveling at the time of the collision, but one of them simply disintegrated in the air. The other plummeted to earth, and burned. The planes—photo reconnaissance planes—were on a routine mission.

German Firms Taken By Peron Government

Buenos Airs, Jan. 24—(UP)—Argentina has taken an important new action which is certain to effect her relationship with the rest of the western hemisphere—particularly the United States. The Peron government has taken over 60 German business firms with total assets valued at 90-million dollars. It's not clear yet just what the government will do with the firms—nationalize them—sell them to non-German investors—or liquidate them. At least the government's action takes the firms away from the enemy property board, which had been seriously criticized by the US State Department for the slowness with which it has been liquidating Nazi assets.

Prime Minister Bevin Receives Stalin Note

London, Jan. 24—(UP)—Premier Josef Stalin has sent an extremely reassuring note to British Prime Minister Bevin. Stalin says he is entirely satisfied by Bevin's assurance that the British intend to stand by the Anglo-Russian mutual assistance treaty. And for the first time, he shows interest in a British suggestion that the treaty should be extended to cover a period of 50 years—instead of just 20. The Russian communist newspaper Isvestia has been charging repeatedly that Bevin repudiated the pact in a recent speech.

Big Steel-CIO Workers Reach Wage Agreement

Pittsburgh, Pa., Jan. 24—(UP)—The CIO Steelworkers and the United States Steel Corporation came to an agreement today which greatly eases the atmosphere in their contract negotiations. The agreement postpones the possibility of a strike for 75 days by extending the old contract until April 30th of this year. Originally the contract was scheduled to expire on February 15th. Both side, say the extension was agreed on in order to provide more time for them to get together on the terms of the new contract. And CIO chief Philip Murray adds: "The decision will help the national economy. . .And it will keep the public from being in a state of apprehension."

Grounds Committee Approves Locations for New Buildings

The University grounds committee, composed of faculty members and headed by Dr. R. J. M. Hobbs, yesterday afternoon inspected and approved sites on the campus for erection of the 25 temporary wooden buildings soon to be brought here from Camp Forrest, Tenn.

A revision of first plans for the buildings became necessary when University engineer A. R. Hollett, who went to Camp Forrest to select the buildings, found that they differed in size from specifications called for in the plans approved by the Federal Housing agency in Atlanta

Submit Plans to FHA

The revised plans will now be submitted to the FHA and are expected to be approved and returned here within a week.

The J. A. Jones company of Charlotte, which has the contract for erection of the buildings has already set up an office here and is ready to start work as soon as the new plans have been approved.

Construction is expected to begin early in February.

Two other matters also concerning innovations in the University grounds were dissolved by the facilities office yesterday. Work of laying the partly-completed brick walk from South building to the library will be resumed as soon as the sand dumps dry out enough to be usable in packing an even base for the walk

Also, work on the project of installing running water facilities to the trailer group behind Battle-Vance-Pettigrew will begin Monday.

Chapel Hill Writers Address Members of Press Institute

Governor Cherry Presents Newspaper Awards To Winners of Year's Outstanding Articles

North Carolina newspaper editors and publishers got better acquainted with members of Chapel Hill's writing colony yesterday when Paul Green, Noel Houston and James Street took part in a round table discussion at the luncheon session of the 22nd annual North Carolina Press institute.

The luncheon was held at the Carolina Inn, with the University playing host to the visiting newspaper people and Walter Spearman of the journalism department presiding.

Earl Wynn, director of the University's new Communications center; Stuart Sechriest, former telegraph editor and news photographer on the Greensboro Daily News and now teacher in the journalism department; and L. M. Pollander of Durham, who teaches newspaper advertising at the University, spoke briefly.

Paul Green, Pulitzer prize-winning playwright and author of "The Lost Colony," James Street, author of "The Gauntlet" and numerous other novels and short stories, and Noel Houston, author of "The Great Promise" and contributor of short stories to the New Yorker and other magazines, discussed the significance of drama, short stories and novels as a means of communicating ideas today.

Cherry Presents Awards

A number of awards for outstanding achievements in the field of journalism by North Carolina newspaper men and women during the past year were presented last night a Duke university by Governor R. Gregg Cherry.

Four cash awards of $100 each were presented for first places in editorial, photography, feature writing and sport reporting departments in the daily press division.

First prizes of $100 each were won by:

Daily Division—best spot reporting to Hal Tribble, Charlotte Observer, for his story on the Terry Taylor kidnap case; best feature writing—Harry S. Ashmore, Charlotte News, for his story, "Mr. Jones Goes to Washington"; best photograph—Frank Jones, Winston-Salem Journal, for photographing a riot resulting from CIO tobacco workers picketing the Piedmont Leaf Tobacco company

Tickets Now on Sale For 'Bartered Bride'

Tickets are now on sale for "The Bartered Bride," a comic opera produced jointly by the Carolina Playmakers and the department of music, co-directed by Foster Fitz-Simons and Paul Young, to be presented in Memorial hall next Friday and Saturday evenings at 8:30 o'clock.

A cast of over 50 and a complete orchestra of 30 will be presented in this opera for the Student Entertainment series. Tickets are being sold at Ledbetter-Pickard's and the Playmakers business office in Swain hall. All seats are reserved.

Admission is $1.00. Playmakers season ticket or Student Entertainment ticket. Those people who have purchased both a Student Entertainment book and a Playmakers season ticket book, and who only want one reserved seat ticket, will be refunded 60 cents at the time they pick up the reserved seat.

University Debate Team Schedules Tryout Date

UNC Squad to Appear in Five Tournaments; North Georgia College Is Initial Opponent

Tryouts for the University debate squad will begin Tuesday February 4, Maurice Braswell, president of the debate council stated. These tryouts, to be held at the Di senate hall, are open to the student body at large.

With five important tournaments set for the next four months, the debate squad will make several trips and meet top-notch competition from all over the country.

North Georgia college will be the debators' first opponent, the event to be held here February 8. This contest features debate only, with no extra oratory on the agenda.

Tourney in Hickory

The second meet will be the South Atlantic Forensic tournament at Hickory March 6-8. Sponsored by Lenoir-Rhyne college, this event is expected to draw teams from approximately 20 colleges and universities. Carolina has been invited to send eight debators, and up to 28 men and women to take part in other speech activities. Other events at this meet include: standard oratory, situation oratory, extemperaneous speaking, impromptu speaking, after-dinner speaking, radio newscasting, radio extemporaneous speaking, radio address, radio poetry reading, address reading, and poetry reading for women. Contestants for this meet, may not have more than 140 quarter-hours credit.

On March 13, the debate squad will meet the Wofford college team here.

Carolina will be represented at the National Invitational debate at Williamsburg, Va., along with competitors from 40 or more schools on March 14-15, features debate only

Grand National Tourney

The final event in which Carolina will participate is the Grand National Speech and Forensic tournament to be held at Fredericksburg, Va., April 3-5. Carolina has been invited to send up to 34 men and women for added events, and an unlimited number of debate teams.

Johnson Talks At Convocation

University Graduate Speaks on UN Hopes

Urging a broad conception of the United Nations as "the instrument for the execution of the most exciting transition in history—from the smaller to the larger freedom," Herschel V. Johnson, deputy United States representative on the UN Security council, told a large audience in Memorial hall at the University today that the representatives of the United Nations "are driven toward agreement not only by sober fear but also by high hopes.

"These hopes are reflected in the General Assembly's directive to ensure the use of atomic energy and other modern scientific discoveries and technical developments 'only for peaceful purposes'," Mr. Johnson said.

Sound Attachment

"Thus, around an important source of energy as well as a vital factor in security we shall learn how to work together with greater and greater efficiency and mutual benefit. By so doing it is inevitable that people will be prepared for a sound attachment to the world community."

An illustrious alumnus of the University, Johnson has held diplomatic posts in various countries, the last until now being that of Minister to Sweden where he remained until the end of the war.

He was introduced at a convocation of students, faculty and townspeople

Aptitude Tests, No Smoking Rule Are Suggestions

Three important resolutions passed by the Student Welfare board at its meeting Thursday afternoon are now being considered by administrative officials. The board, composed of 26 faculty members and 11 students, voted unanimously that a central clearing house for scheduling campus events be established in the office of the dean of men.

Also passed was a recommendation that smoking be forbidden in classrooms and assemblies. Both of these resolutions will be submitted to Chancellor House and President Graham for executive approval and action.

Aptitude Tests

A suggestion that aptitude tests be given all students entering the University was passed by a large majority. This test would not affect enrollment but would assist deans and other officials in giving vocational and academic guidance. This resolution will go to the admittance committee for action.

Charlie Warren reported that a resolution passed recently by the board recommending that local police be given jurisdiction over University property had been approved by the board of trustees. If the resolution becomes law in the legislature it will affect the University, Women's college and State college campuses.

Monogram Club to Hold Party on Monday Night

The Monogram club will hold a party at the Monogram club-house Monday night at 7:30 o'clock, which will include movies of either the Sugar Bowl or the Wake Forest games. Charlie Tietjen, secretary of the club, announced yesterday.

All former lettermen and new lettermen of varsity and cross-country teams with their wives and dates are invited to attend the party, Tietjen said. During the party, pictures of the Monogram club will be taken for the Yack.

Patricia Connelly Elected Secretary for Campus UVA

In an informal smoker on Thursday evening the University Veterans association elected as their new secretary Miss Particia Connelly. The 23 year-old former WAC spent three years in the Army before returning to the University to continue her work for a degree in English.

Four bills were discussed concerning Veterans' problems on the campus and in the state. Their first consideration was that of the student buyers' cooperative which they endorsed by a good majority.

Endorse Umstead Bill

The Umstead act which provides free tuition to all those who intend to enter the teaching profession, was acclaimed as an eminently worthwhile piece of legislation and a letter endorsing it was sent to its originator.

There was a unanimous acclamation in support of a state supported hospital and a four-year medical school at Chapel Hill.

The UVA sponsored a fourth bill calling for the immediate cashing of all terminal leave bonds. Colonel Shepard, University Veterans adviser, was on hand to answer all questions that arose.

The group also moved that the opening hours of the club will now be 7:30 instead of 6:30 as in the past.

Laboratory Theatre To Stage Sunday Productions

Full Schedule Is Announced by Drama Group; Millay's 'Arai da Capo' Set for February 9

By Foster Fitz-Simons

With the announcement that it will present a series of Sunday evening productions in the lounge of Graham Memorial, the laboratory theatre of the Carolina Playmakers continues to extend its activities to the campus.

Following up its initial success with the production of "Pierre Patelin," this new group has scheduled Edna St. Vincent Millay's "Arai da Capo" for February 9; Moliere's "The Imaginary Invalid" on March 9, and Sheridan's "The Rivals" on May 1

There is also an active play-reading group, under Harry Thomas, which meets at 8 o'clock each Sunday evening in the new Lab theatre, 111 Murphey hall. Anyone interested is urged to attend tomorrow evening. The meetings are characterized by informal discussions of the play under consideration. Each week the group decides on the play for the following meeting.

A Wider Scope

Primarily the purpose of the Laboratory theatre is to give a wider scope to the theatre activity on the campus than is possible in the necessarily limited and crowded schedule of the Playmakers. It is not a rival organization, but a complementary one, designed to absorb all of the theatre interest on the campus now going unused.

Last year a small group of interested students met informally to read plays and discuss new ideas and experiments in the theatre. Because of a greatly increased interest, this year it was decided to give this activity form and focus. The present plan welcomes the participation of all students—no matter what their theatre experience—who wish to broaden their experience as actors, directors, or theatre technicians. In addition to the Graham Memorial lounge productions there are others planned for the new Lab theatre in Murphey hall. These productions are to be chosen from the body of dramatic literature, of great plays seldom performed, as well as from new manuscripts seldom performed.

This program is purposely elastic and designed to meet each new interest in the theatre as it arises—and to give a chance before an audience.

David Hooks and Lynn Leonard, who will direct Moliere's The Imaginary Invalid, pictured as they appeared in the Playmaker production of School for Husbands.

GEOGRAPHY PLACEMENT TESTS

Georgraphy Placement tests will be given each afternoon Monday through Thursday of next week. Students wishing to arrange for the test are asked to contact the secretary in 208 New East.

It Is More Blessed...

Everybody is talking about the poor teacher in North Carolina these days. It is interesting that such a lack-of-wealth consciousness has so quickly dawned in this good state. We wonder if anybody remembers that just two months ago the people voted, in effect, a cut in the salaries of another group of State employees.

In November a constitutional amendment appeared on the ballot providing for payment of expenses for the State legislators. This amemendment was voted down by a slight majority. This amendment, if it had been passed, would have provided a small expense account for the State senators and representatives, who now get only ten dollars a day for their services. The inflation since the salary was first provided for has cut that salary in value by about fifty per cent. In a state-wide referendum the citizens have confirmed that cut.

We realize that the work of the state legislators is considered a contribution to the good of the state. But we also realize that the work causes a hardship on a few of the members who cannot afford such a personal contribution. Ten dollars a day will do little more than meet expenses at the capital with food and hotel rates at their present high costs. Perhaps the poor legislator is sending one or two dollars a day home to his wife and children.

Now we are not against the wage raise for teachers—far from it. We believe that the majority of the people are behind the raises to the state teachers and other employees. We believe that the raises are needed and desrved. But we also believe that the same applies to the compensation of state legislators.

The truth of the matter is that last November the vote did not reflect the feelings of the populace. This was because most of the people had "done their duty" in the primaries. The people were not interested enough in the poor legislators to vote them the compensation that is deserved.

We are glad that the legislators have not carried a feeling of vengeance to Raleigh. We are glad that they did not argue about whether or not the other state employees should get a raise—but as to how much that raise should be.

We hope that the good people of the state will learn a lesson from the present members of the General Assembly, and vote a raise for the legislators at the next opportunity.

Filthy Classrooms

Classrooms on the campus are becoming more unsightly daily. Difficulty in securing a sufficient number of janitors to keep the rooms clean is the main cause for the trouble, but a little student cooperation might help.

As matters now stand, some classrooms are almost buried in cigarette butts, ashes, discarded cigars, coke cups, old papers, and more cigarette butts.

Students could take some care in disposing of these items, especially the cigarettes and pipe ashes. Even if the janitor service were good, many students would still clutter up floors with the discarded items listed above.

Many of us are averse to sitting in classrooms that resemble back alleys the day before the trash man comes around. Few students would throw everything on the floor in their own home or even of their dormitories, but the classroom apparently has no limit on the amount of dirt that can be strewn about the floor.

It wouldn't take too much energy to put discarded cigarette butts in a paper cup or self-styled receptacle of some sort and throw them in the waste basket when the opportunity arises.

Maybe it's not a big thing, but a clean classroom would be so much more appealing—and sanitary.

If people would dare to speak to one another unreservedly, there would be a good deal less sorrow in the world a hundred years hence.—Samuel Butler.

Strictly Detrimental....

Time Has Come to Consider Role of Publications Board

By Jud Kinberg

The editorial eruption of yesterday's Daily Tar Heel dragged smoldering anti-Publications Board tempers out into the open. Campus editors have long felt the PU Board had meddled too much in strictly policy matters, but they kept that to themselves, fearing the power of the pursestring.

Today, with the issues joined about the proceedings of the Board, it is time for campus politicos and heads of publications to seriously consider the role and makeup of the Board. Long ago it was realized that control over currency can mean control over policy. That inherent power has not been flagrantly misused, but that is no assurance that it will not be.

Oldest member on the PU Board in length of service is Dr. J. M. Lear, Financial Adviser. Editors who saw their favorite plans hit stone walls in the Board have been prone to blame it on the conservative financial ideas of the man they refer to as "King" Lear. The truth is that Mr. Lear often mistakes the word "improvement" for "risk," resulting in junking of important advance because it might draw upon current finances. That kind of thinking can keep a balance in the bank and mediocrity in the newspaper and magazine.

The other two faculty members, replaced at intervals, have ranged from damn poor to indifferent. Only a handful, my recollection, have taken great interest in their duties. Student members have generally had publication axes to grind and the result is partisan regulation of the financial end of the Tar Heel, Carolina Magazine and Yack.

Bill Woestendiek's demand for ex-officio membership for publications' editors is only part of the answer.

The caliber of faculty members must be improved by careful selection of men conversant with publication problems. Rooting out the students who use the Board for their own purposes is a far more difficult assignment. Perhaps the solution would be limitation of the three posts to seniors so that those who sit on the board will no longer have political aspirations standing in their way of impartial judgment of the many important issues they decide.

Now that we have the dissension out in the open, let's not let it slip back to silent warfare without serious thought about this PU setup. Handling many thousands of dollars, controlling the pursestrings of the molders of campus opinion, the Board must be purged of the obvious imperfections. It must no longer be able to set itself up as a suttle censor or as the rock upon which worthy ideas are splintered. With election platforms in the making these weeks, politicos must consider the implications of prolonged publication-Publications Board friction and seek remedies for it.

Is Carolina Too Big?

Balanced Expansion Offers Only Solution to Problem

By Sam Daniels

The return of the veteran to the campus has caused the Nation's college facilities to be crowded far beyond capacity. Carolina is no exception. In every phase of our college life—eating, sleeping, dating, and even studying, the facilities at Carolina are at best too crowded. The lines at Lenoir, the mob in the library, the crowded dorms, are all products of the present post-war period.

It seems obvious that matters will be far worse upon the completion of the three dorms now under construction. Carolina's expansion must include more than the building of additional dormitories. The future expansion plans of U.N.C. are sadly lacking in eating, recreational, and studying facilities. Dorms are being built but it is probable that their recreational and studying facilities will be omitted and the extra space used to pack in a few more students.

It is the duty of this school to provide education for as many students as possible, but a balanced expansion is the only answer to the problem. As students, we must do two things in the future if we are to maintain the high standards of U.N.C. First we must realize that future expansions must be balanced, and second and most important, we must let the trustees, the administration, and all other parties concerned, know that the students are one hundred per cent against the adding of more dorms and nothing more. If we speak up we have nothing to lose; if we don't, we will be studying on the floor of the library, eating in places more crowded than Harry's on Sat. night, and sleeping in shoe boxes.

Letters To The Editor

All letters must be typewritten, double-spaced, under 300 words in length, and signed by the writer. Writer's name will be withheld on request, but letters must be signed. The Daily Tar Heel reserves the right to present the letters as it wishes and to delete all matter it considers libelous.

To Men and Coeds

Recently I observed a little man tomcat, who is undoubtedly one of the most remarkable cats ever to have dawned on this world. The little fellow, about five months old at this writing, obviously came to the conviction very early in life that every body loved him.

It is not conceit. Simply, the cat is imbued with a glad confidence that every living thing he meets anywhere is going to find him charming, affable, affectionate and helpful according to his lights. Up to now, he has been 100 per cent correct.

People who like cats find him especially delightful. Ladies who habitually shiver or moan when cats approach them find themselves, to their pleased surprise as a rule, stroking this little rascal's back after he has leaped companionably aboard their shoulders or laps. Dogs admire him, and are glad to let him rub, purring, against their legs. Other cats think he is positively out of this world.

So it has gone with the bob-tailed little character to date. The odds seem 100 to 1 that so it will go with him as long as he keeps his present state of mind; and that all those he meets will agree enthusiastically with him that they do love him.

It's one way to get along in the world, carnivora or primate. Maybe it's the best way?

Carolina Merry-Go-Round

By Bob Jones and Bill Robertson

The other day the voice of a radio announcer caught our attention. He was making a "blurb" of an entirely new kind. It consisted of a statement to the effect that the presentation of programs subsidized by advertisers had been proved by experience to be the best method. The "blurb" was presented in a matter-of-fact way, completely lacking in the subtleties of The Banana Girl. Nevertheless, we could not help but feel that it had a certain polemical quality which is not to be found in Weather Reports.

During the course of the last year several outstanding news commentators have left the air-waves. Many people have begun to suspect that, since advertising by big business is necessary for the continuation of the programs of these commentators, a certain strong and steady pressure is exerted upon their analyses.

It is certainly true that the Pure Oil Company takes sides in a labor-management dispute. It is certainly true that H. V. Kaltenborn takes sides in a labor-management dispute. But in all fairness it must be admitted that we are not certain that H. V. Kaltenborn has not arrived at his present position independently of the Pure Oil Company.

All this leads us to the question—what measures can we take in order to obtain more accurate presentations of and comments upon the news?

At the present time a series of advertisements are appearing in various newspapers and periodicals informing us that the Ford Motor Company is reducing the prices of its cars "as much as $50 in some Models." This information will come as a surprise to those who had established a direct, mechanical relationship between wages and prices. This reduction in prices will be made without a corresponding reduction in wages. Obviously, the loss must be accounted for in the profit per unit of the Ford Motor Company.

Mr. Henry Ford II appears to have a long-range view that many big businessmen lack. If more moves of this nature are not made a business recession will develop which will have disastrous political consequences such as the formation of a third party teeming with ideas about nationalization of monopolies.

And why will this recession occur? Not because the American people will not want the things produced, but because they will be unable to buy them. We should keep this fact in mind as the negotiations for higher wages in the major industries proceed.—B. R.

On Other Campuses...

Appleton, Wis.—(I. P.)—A recent survey sponsored by the National Interfraternity Conference through the medium of executive secretaries of all national fraternities places Lawrence College at the top of the list with 100 per cent—a distinct tribute for the type of fraternity life that exists on this campus. Northwestern University, which placed second among the 244 colleges surveyed, received 38 per cent.

Acording to Clyde S. Johnson, assistant dean of undergraduates on the Los Angeles campus of the University of California, the surveyors searched for "sympathetic, cordial, cooperative, well-planned and understanding. . . institutional policy in supervising and guiding group life, seasoned by. . . the student centered philisiphy. . . where collegiate authorities deliberately made fraternities an integral part of their educational program, depended upon fraternities for idealism gave constant recognition to their educational role, demanded from them leadership and high standards of performance. Next in importance was strict scholastic requirement followed by good housing facilities.

Marietta, O.—(I.P.)—This year Marietta College has taken its place as one of the first liberal arts colleges in the State of Ohio to organize a separate Department of Religion. During the previous 111 years of the college's existance Bible courses have been taught, to be sure,—usually by the president of the college—but never until now has it presented a comprehensive curriculum in this field.

The trustees and faculty of the college believe that this move should be made because of the feeling that studies in religion should be included in a broad and well-rounded liberal arts education.

Today's Question

Do you believe that smoking in classrooms should be prohibited?

Answers

No! It's one way of staying awake —Lynn Blanchard, Chinquapin.

No. All the "weed fiends" would spend much more time between classes having a smoke. This would upset the professors and many of the students would have "nicotine fits."—Happy Clarke, Greenwich, Conn.

I think it depends on the size of the class and the room.—Don Bryan, Lumberton.

Not if a person can listen to a lecture just as well while smoking. Why couldn't a few tin cans be put in the classrooms to be used as ash trays since there is a shortage of janitors? —Larry Widman, Asheville.

No, because I don't believe that it distracts anyone enough to bother them.—Jim Fowler, Charlotte.

No, if it doesn't bother the professor. He is the one who must be on the up and up and if it bothers him it possibly is hindering his teaching.—Don Ward, Goldsboro.

I personally don't see any harm in smoking in class.—James P. Deavor, Brevard.

No. I think that it relieves the tension in the classrooms. —Charles Thomas Smith, Lumberton.

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE

White Phants Upset By Old Liner Quint, 61-57

SPORT SLANTS

with
JIM PHARR

AFTER A CAREFUL study of attendance trends for the first few home games, the athletic department has decided to try to admit a few outsiders to see the White Phantoms play. They are starting with the South Carolina game Tuesday night and plan to place a limited number of tickets on sale to fans other than students.

This word is passed along to you so that you may be able to purchase tickets for dates, relatives or friends who plan to come to the game. The ducats will go on a first come, first served basis, and when they are all sold, there will be no more and the gates will have to be closed to outsiders as before.

Ham Strayhorn, who directs the sale of tickets, said yesterday that he expected to have them at the ticket window at Woollen gym this morning until noon. If there are any left they will be sold again Monday. If this experiment is a success, it is anticipated that the same procedure will be followed for most of the other home games this season. And to help make it a success, students are asked to fill up all the seats and not leave vacant places filled in with coats, etc., as has been done a good bit in past games.

The attention of Carolina sports fans has shifted northward this weekend, with Coach Tom Scott's White Phantoms tackling two tough opponents in tilts which, we expect, will go a long way toward proving just how good the Tar Heel cagemen really are. Last night the Scottmen battled the Maryland five in a conference clash, and tonight the local courtmen drop in to pay their respects to former Carolina Coach Ben Carnevale and his strongly-rated Naval Academy basketball team at Annapolis.

This will be old-home week for the Phants, with three out of the five Carolina starters playing against their old coach and the results should be indeed interesting. Not only Dillon, Paxton, and White, but reserves Scholbe, Thorne, and Hayworth have also played under the genial Carnevale.

* * * * *

Boxing will take the spotlight in Woollen gym tonight and Coach Mike Ronman hopes to get a large turnout of student boxing fans to watch his improved ringmen in action. Mike has had a lot of tough luck this season and we hope he at last has found a good combination of mittmen to round out the rest of the season.

We are very pleased over the decision of the Southern conference tournament committee to move the loop tourney from the Armory in Raleigh to spacious Duke gymnasium in Durham. It means that some 4,500 more fans of the cage sport throughout the state will be able to attend the outstanding winter sports event in the Carolinas than was the case under the old setup.

However, when the new gym at State College is completed next fall, capable of taking care of some 15,000 people, we feel that it will be only fair to give the tournament back to Raleigh, where it has been supported so well in the past. We feel it to be a fine gesture on the part of the Raleigh officials to move the tourney this one year in view of the serious seating shortage that exists in the Armory.

Ringmen Meet South Carolina Tonight

Fighters Seek First Triumph

Newcomers Bolster Home Team Lineup

Coach Mike Ronman's Tar Heel boxing team will go after its first victory in three starts tonight, when the Carolina ringmen engage the mittmen from the University of South Carolina. The first bout is scheduled to start at 8 o'clock.

Carolina is expected to be stronger than the team that took a 5 1-2 to 2 1-2 whipping from the potent Virginia ring team last weekend. Footballer Sid Varney, William Miles, and Clyde L. Finch are the newcomers that Coach Ronman expects to use in starting roles tonight.

Gamecock Squad

South Carolina invades Chapel Hill with a Southern conference boxing record that local officials regard as consistently good throughout the years. The 1947 edition of the Gamecock squad has been under wraps thus far, so little is known of the visiting outfit's strength.

The Tar Heel mittmen opened their season in the Sugar Bowl in New Orleans, when the Syracuse university leather-pushers handed the local ringmen a 5 1-2 to 2 1-2 setback.

Slowed by various difficulties all season, Ronman's team suffered the loss of Ed McGee, 175-pounder, and Max Spellman, heavyweight. McGee dropped out due to scholastic difficulties and Spellman suffered a fractured wrist during football season.

The following Tar Heels will probably fight in the different weight classes:

125-pound—Bill Sumas.
130-pound—Charles Lambeth.
135-pound—Conway Rose.
145-pound—Clyde L. Finch.
155-pound—Dick Young.
165-pound—Leonard Green.
175-pound—William Miles
Heavyweight—Sid Varney.

Tar Babies Win, 44-41 Over Raleigh Quintet

Yancey Paces Visitors With 11 Markers; Walker Scores 10 Points to Lead Frosh

By Morty Schaap

A hard pushed Tar Baby basketball team outlasted a game but undersized Needham Broughton High School five 44-41, in an exciting game played in Woollen Gym last night.

Frank Murray's frosh staved off a late rush by the high school quintet when Bill Harrington dropped a foul through the hoop, sealing the issue for the home team.

The visiting five was paced by substitute Bobby Yancey who hit the mark for 11 points to take high scoring honors in the game.

Bill Walker was the big gun in the Carolina line up tallying 10 points, while Billy Burgess, fine center of the Raleigh team, scored the same number.

The game was hard fought all the way and the officials called 34 fouls during the game including one play where Charlie Nichols was awarded three free throws for being deliberately fouled in the attempt to shoot.

Tonight the Frosh journey to High Point to take on the high school team. Coach Murray will again be without the services of first string center Sandy Hoft who was called home due to his mother's illness.

Phants Drop Fourth Game

Dillon Sets Pace In Thrilling Game

By Bill Carmichael

College Park, Maryland, Jan. 24—The Maryland Old Liners took an early lead here tonight and went on to upset Carolina's highly-favored Tar Heels, 61-57, in the second Southern conference clash between the two teams.

Carolina took the lead away from Maryland with seven minutes gone in the first half when Johnny Dillon hooked in one to make the count 12-11. But the Old Liners came right back and pulled ahead to make the halftime count 33-24, Maryland. The Maryland quint was never headed from that point on.

Coach Scott's men move up to Annapolis tonight to meet the Navy courtmen of Coach Ben Carnevale, in what is expected to be a free scoring contest.

John (Hook) Dillon was the big gun for the Phants, pumping in 18 points for the evening. Lanky Bob Paxton was second with 14 points.

Brown paced the Maryland team with 12 points, with Edwards bucketing 11 markers to take second place for the Old Liners.

After the Maryland five had coasted to a 33-24 intermission lead, the Carolina five came to life.

Dillon and Paxton each hit one to make the count 44-40. Then the Old Liners got hot again, matching Dillon shot for shot and the score was 48-47, with five minutes remaining in the second half.

A little later the count was 57-53, Maryland, when White was called for charging and that was the ball game.

In the last 30 seconds Kohler and Paxton each threw one in from center court, but the Maryland five was too far ahead.

The White Phants played without the services of Coach Scott, who left for the funeral of a relative. Assistant Pete Mullis directed the Carolinians.

Carolina to Face Fine Milers In Millrose Event Next Week

With the mile circle so full of fine milers this winter, the Millrose A. A. announced yesterday a secondary mile race for its program at Madison Square Garden on February 1.

This will be a mile team race among North Carolina, Penn State, New York University and Manhattan. Under the conditions set down by Fred Schmertz, Millrose games' chairman, each college will start four runners. All sixteen will run the full mile course and the race will be decided, cross-country scoring style, by the team that scores the lowest total of points.

Dale Ranson, Tar Heel coach, thinks that he can take the event with a team composed from Jimmy Miller, Julian Mackenzie, Alvin Smith, Mark Burnham, Sam Magill, and Jack Milne, all of whom can beat 4:25.

Manhattan's team will be Phil O'Connell, Paul Tiernan, John Flinter and Tom Comerford with Ed Walsh a possibility if he does not run in the Wanamaker Mile. NYU will probably be represented by Frank Dixon, Ray Zoelnner, Frank Martin and Darwin Bruce. Penn State will feature such runners as Curt Stone, Gerry Carver and Ralph Aschenfulter.

Coach Ranson said yesterday that the Tar Heel team will have to work hard and stick together in order to cop the honors.

Indoor Trackmen Hold Workouts this Morning

The Carolina indoor trackmen will hold time trials for the various track events this morning in Woollen gym, Coach Dale Ranson announced yesterday.

The sprinters and high and low hurdles will work against the stop watch at 9:30 o'clock. The distance men will work out at 11:15 o'clock.

Sports Highlights . . .

The New York Yankees have 35 players under contract for the coming season, with no definite prospects for holdouts. Among those already in the fold are Joe DiMaggio, Charlie Keller, Phil Rizzuto, Aaron Robinson and Nick Etten. . . . The Detroit Tigers are counting on contract trouble from Hal Newhouser, ace left-hander. . . . American League champs Boston Red Sox may have trouble with several star performers. Rumor has it slugger Ted Williams will ask $80,000, while infielders Johnny Pesky and Captain Bobby Doerr also may be hard to do business with. . . . St. Louis Cardinal front-office men are expecting 'Country' Slaughter to sign next week. Slaughter had made it plain that he was expecting a hike in salary. . . . Johnny Vandermeer is the only Cincinnati player to sign thus far.

Reserve Mermen Are Nucleus for Future

The nucleus of the Blue Dolphin squads of the future will be built around the reserve swimmers of Coach Dick Jamerson's 1946 edition. This year's team is filled to the brim with potential starters, many of whom have not seen action yet this season.

In the backstroke division, Bob MacKenzie, a freshman who is coming along well, and Warren Perry, a former letterman, make up the list of future starters.

In the breaststroke, Allison Pell and Stan Cohen are the leading second-stringers. Cohen saw action in the Bainbridge meet.

Plenty of Freestylers

The freestyle posts are the most plentiful with reserves. In the sprints are Bob Elliot, John Wichard, a member of the '45 team, Bill Truett, and Arthur Deitzer. The young distance men are "Bugs" Horton, who was on last year's squad, Claude Sutton, Sam Langel. Doing their part in both the long swims and the dashes are Tom Shelton, Charles Snow, Charles Boddie, Al Barth, and Johnny Frazier, another swimmer from last year.

Gridmen Hit Road

New York, January 24—(UP)—The traveling bug seems to have hit collegiate grid circles. Four members of the Texas Tech football team have transferred to Texas Christian with the "very best wishes" of their coach, Dell Morgan. However, it's a different story at nearby Hardin College in Wichita Falls, Texas.

Sound and Fury Producers Seek Novel Title, Talent

By Sandy Minnix

Can you title a musical comedy about a campus feud between the romanticists and the classicists? Sound and Fury is looking for a name for their new show to be produced on March 3, 4 and 5. The book is finished and auditions are now underway.

Written by Robert Dale Martin as a thesis for his master's degree in dramatic art, the show runs a full two acts and is packed with laughs and original music written by Al Bergman. Lyrics running from patter songs to romantic ballads were written by Dan Daum, Art Golby and Al Bergman.

Three Directors

To insure a smooth, rapid pace there will be three directors to handle the actual production of the script. They are Ben Kistler, Art Golby and Al Bergman. Mary Jo Cain is scheduled to do the choreography and take charge of the chorus routines. A 13-piece band will supply the music for this show, the first full-length production since 1943 by Sound and Fury. Sets will be done by Larry Goldrich and Pete Storder.

"We wish that all students who can act, sing, dance, or just work would come to see us in Graham Memorial as soon as possible," said President Bill Carmichael. He also emphasized that there were many good parts still open for people who wish to audition.

Walt Talley Chosen Florida Club Leader

Walt Talley of Bradenton was elected permanent president of the Florida club Thursday evening. Talley had been serving as temporary chairman since the organization of the group last week.

Bob Brock of Jacksonville was chosen vice president. Serving as secretary will be Ellen Price of Pensacola. Flo Ann Roberts of Tampa will be treasurer and Darley Lochner of Jacksonville, publicity chairman.

Bill Bell of Tampa was elected social chairman. Bell appointed Corinne Ossinsky of Daytona Beach as associate social chairman.

The group voted to consider a constitution prepared by the executive council at the next meeting. Also on the agenda for next week will be a report from the social chairman on preliminary plans for a party.

The time and place of next week's meeting will be announced by Talley as soon as he reserves a room large enough to accommodate the rapidly growing club.

A few vacancies still exist in the arts and crafts course being taught each Wednesday by Mrs. John M. Foushee. Those interested are asked to register before Monday evening.

Instruction will be given in art metal, wood carving and wood finishing, simple jewelry, leather finishing and tooling, simple plastics, fabric decoration, weaving, woolly toy animals and book binding.

The fee will be $15 plus a minimum charge for materials used. Further information can be obtained from Miss Lynette Warren in Person hall.

New Members Initiated By Chemistry Sorority

Initation ceremonies for Theta Psi Epsilon, honorary chemical fraternity, were held recently in the Alpha Chi Sigma room of Venable hall.

Following the ceremonies the 14 new initiates of the sorority were entertained by old members at a banquet at the Carolina Inn. Dr. and Mrs. S. B. Knight of the chemistry department were guests of honor.

The following coeds were initiated: Helen Athanaelos, Lelia Josephs, Peggie Sapp, Oveida Ellis, Anne Hagan, Mildred Koon, Lillian Reeves, Helen Ershler, Mary Swann, Bettie Tillett, Doris Harrell, Carolyn Neel, Frances Morgan and Mary Beth Lockwood.

Students Should Apply To Edit Coed Handbook

All letters of application for the editorship of the Woman's Handbook must be sent to Bettie Washburn, 204 Carr before Tuesday.

Any coed interested in further details about the booklet may see Washburn. The letters submitted will be read to the Coed senate which will decide on the candidate best qualified for the position.

Medical Building Plan Received by Assembly

Raleigh, Jan. 24—(UP)— Both houses of the general assembly have received the North Carolina Medical care commission's five-year, $48,000,000 hospital building program in North Carolina. The commission's report has Governor Cherry's general approval. The short session of both houses saw the introduction of several bills to revise public welfare and domestic relations laws. The General Assembly will meet tomorrow morning at ten o'clock for local bill sessions.

UN Diplomat Johnson Relaxes Amid Familiar Surroundings

By Bill Woestendiek

Relaxing from his diplomatic duties in the friendly atmosphere of the Sigma Chi fraternity house Herschel Johnson, honored alumnus of the University and the Alpha Tau chapter of Sigma Chi, readily agreed that the University has grown by leaps and bounds since his graduation in 1916.

The calm, sincere, level-toned diplomat, who has been from UNC through the Harvard law school into an impressive diplomatic career with the UN recently, was very much at ease as he chatted with fraternity brothers of past and present eras. He was kept busy for several minutes as students fired more questions at him concerning everything from Carolina weather to the world's future than he would have had to answer at a full-fledged press conference.

Banquet in His Honor

The informal bull-session took place following a banquet in Johnson's honor at the Carolina Inn Thursday night. Johnson, who made a brief after-dinner speech, was introduced by Chancellor Robert B. House. Among those present as guest of the Sigma Chi chapter were President Frank P. Graham, Porter McKeever, American press representative to the United Nations, and prominent Sigma Chi's throughout the state.

Johnson, who grew up with President Graham in Charlotte and graduated from the university with House, preferred to talk about former days at Carolina, but he was emphatic in answering a question as to the future of the United Nations.

"It is just the beginning," he stated, "but it is our only hope for avoiding another world war. It will succeed if the people get in back of it."

Most Memorable Experience

Asked what was the most memorable experience of his diplomatic career, the distinguished-looking representative didn't hesitate to say it occurred during the second day of the London blitz.

"A bomb fell on the house next door and killed nine people," he said. "If it had fallen on my house, it would have landed right on my stomach."

Johnson belied the common belief that a diplomatic career is an expensive one. "Health, disposition, and good judgment are the three essentials for being successful in the diplomatic service," he said. He emphasized that the job is not "Hollywoodish and glamorous," but that it requires a lot of hard, concentrated work.

The Tar Heel diplomat expressed genuine pleasure at returning to the University after 25 years in foreign lands. He went home to Charlotte yesterday afternoon and will return to New York and his many duties tomorrow.

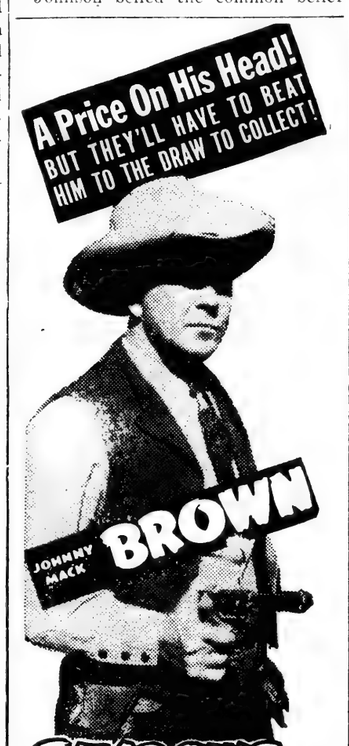
here yesterday morning by President Frank P. Graham. Chancellor Robert B. House, a classmate (1916) of Johnson's, presided.

High Tribute

Johnson paid a high tribute to the University when he said that the physical expansion of the institution since 1916 "has not dimmed the ancient lights of free inquiry and liberal progress and service which started the students of earlier days on their way in life. Under the leadership of President Graham these old ideals have been given new expression and have blazed to a greater intensity which has made Chapel Hill a by-word for liberal thought, sound scholarship and high ideals of public service."

STUDENT PARTY MEETING



Chairman Jack Booraem announced that the Student party will convene at 4 o'clock tomorrow afternoon in the Graham Memorial Candlelight room.

Enraged Georgia Citizens Say Both Governors Used Bribery

Group Demands Grand Jury Investigations; State Bogging Down in Financial Troubles

Atlanta, Jan. 25—(UP)—The possibility of new legal complications in the Georgia governorship tangle was raised tonight by a group of aroused citizens. The group, which calls itself just that, the Aroused Citizens of Georgia, is demanding a grand jury investigation. It charges that both sides, the factions led by both Melvin Thompson and Herman Talmadge, tried to bribe members of the general assembly at the time the assembly elected a governor.

The organization is headed by a civic official, Mayor Harvey Kennedy of Barnesville, Ga.

Shamed and Humiliated

Says Kennedy: "The people of Georgia are shamed and humiliated over the charges made by members of the general assembly that bribes were offered by both sides."

The demand for an investigation brought differing reactions from the contesting governors. Thompson says he'd welcome such an investigation. Says he: "The public is entitled to know about it—it should be either proved or disproved." Talmadge, however, had no comment to make.

State Bogging

Meanwhile, the state is bogging down in financial troubles.

It faces a partial financial breakdown within a week if the deadlock isn't broken by then. State records indicate that six agencies will run out of funds by next Saturday.

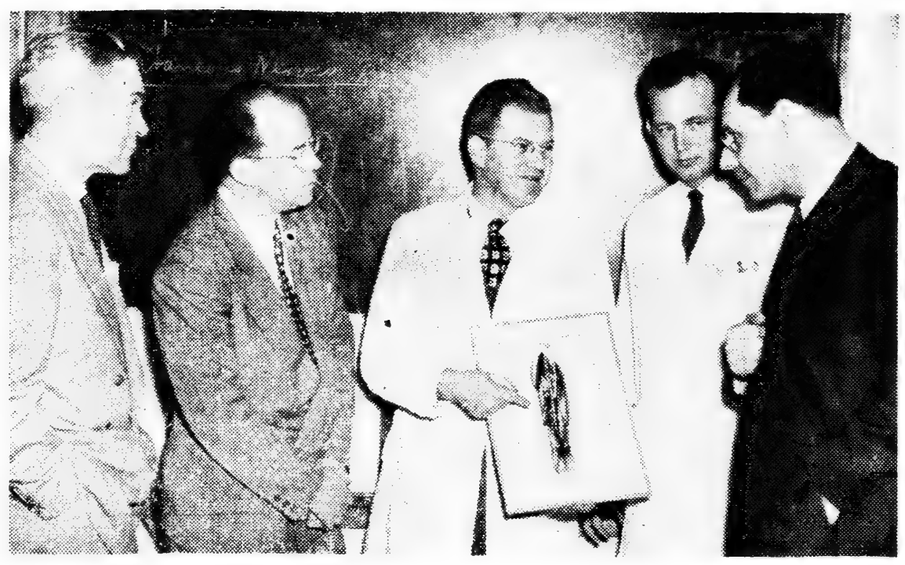
Weston Pictures Are On Exhibition At Person Gallery

Being shown in Person art gallery now in a large exhibit of 259 photographs by Edward Weston, noted American photographer. These include camera satires, portraits, and photographs of nudes and cats.

Weston, who will be 60 years old in March, first started taking pictures at the age of 16, when his father gave him a camera as a present. The sale to a magazine of one of his pictures, a landscape, convinced him that photography was to be his life's work.

In 1937 he became the first photographer to receive a Guggerheim fellowship, which he used to make a series of photographic documents of the West. This was his first chance in 26 years to concentrate on the type of work he was personally interested in.



In 1941 Weston was asked to photograph American scenes to illustrate an edition of Walt Whitman's "Leaves of Grass." The trip was not completed due to the advent of the United States into World War II, but he returned to his home in Carmel, California, where he concentrated his work on his large group of pet cats. These pictures, which are among those on exhibit, are described as ". . .an amusing series—and a photographic achievement."

IFC Removes DKE, SAE From Suspension List

The Interfraternity council has removed Delta Kappa Epsilon and Sigma Alpha Epsilon fraternities from suspension of visiting privileges. The removal from suspension will become effective at 12 o'clock, noon, Monday. At this time, all fraternities will again be on the approved list and may be visited by coeds under the rules of the IFC visiting agreement.

Important SP Meeting Set this Afternoon

Several important measures, with regard to future policy, spring elections, and party elections will be considered at a mass caucus of the Student party this afternoon in the Graham Memorial Candlelight room. Chairman Jack Booraem emphasized that the meeting is open to any interested students on the entire campus, as well as SP members.

The mysteries of damaged muscles in an infantile paralysis victim are being assiduously studied at Duke university, and, when the perfected treatment of the dread disease is discovered, it may be in this very classroom pictured above.

Duke is carrying on extensive infantile paralysis research under grants from the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, and the group shown above is demonstrating some of this research.

Not Even a Cigar Store Indian...

Mail Order Collegians Work Toward Degree By University's Correspondence Courses

By Raney Stanford

No Indian chief is listed, but just about every other occupation mentioned in the familiar nursery rhyme is engaged in by the 840 people who took over 1,000 correspondence courses through the Extension division last year. Farmers, merchants, industrial workers, engineers, scientists, even an aerologist at Operations Crossroads and a test pilot used their spare time to take one or more of the 150 subjects given by the University through the mails.

Mary L. Cobb, head of the Bureau of Correspondence Instruction, in a report surveying the Bureau's work during the past year, stated that 80 counties of North Carolina, 28 other states, and seven foreign countries were represented in the roster of students.

Credit Toward Degree

The majority of the mail-order collegians took courses to get credit toward a college degree, but many were teachers who were becoming qualified for teaching certificates. And still others took work just for the sake of learning. A wife of an American officer, stationed in Austria, finished one of her courses by mail after she had dropped out of school to join her husband. A manager of a book shop took a course in children's literature so that he might select children's books more intelligently. One housewife signed up for a course in short story writing and won the Joseph Caldwell cup, given by the Federation of Women's Clubs of North Carolina, for one of her stories.

Difficulties of all sorts were experienced by students in squeezing their scholastic work into whatever free moments they could find. A public accountant wrote the bureau: "The conditions under which I have been (and shall continue, I imagine) studying have been annoying. I have four hours a day to read (while on the train) but only a few a week for writing. I travel 125 miles a day back and forth to work in New York and don't get home until after 8 at night—giving me little time to myself, seeing as how I get up at 5:30. I've heard a rumor there is a housing shortage—as if I didn't know."

Homework on a Transport

A serviceman in the Navy told of the hardships involved in completing assignments aboard a rolling, tossing troop transport in the middle of the Pacific ocean.

No Great Decline

In concluding and summing up her report, Miss Cobb says: "When colleges are full, as at present, we cannot expect as large an enrollment of correspondence students as otherwise, but we find that there will not be a great decline during the coming year, for there will still be many persons unable to attend college and desiring to study."

Traffic Engineers to Meet At Institute Here this Week

A Traffic Engineering institute will be conducted by the University's Institute of Government for state and city officials responsible for traffic engineering and management at the Institute building here today through next Thursday, it was announced today by Albert Coates, Director. Registration is scheduled from 5 to 7 o'clock this afternoon.

Another institute, a City Street Superintendent school, will be conducted by the Institute of Government for city officials responsible for the construction and maintenance of streets, beginning at 1 o'clock Thursday, and continuing through Friday afternoon, Mr. Coates said.

The State Highway and Public Works commission and the Yale University Bureau of Highway Traffic are joining with the Institute in conducting the Traffic Engineering institute which is designed to help traffic officials deal with current problems arising out of increasing traffic and increasing speeds, parking, and traffic violations. The Highway commission is also aiding in conducting the City Street Superintendents School.

Clifford Pace, Assistant Director of the Institute of Government, is in charge of local arrangements.

Easter, Thomas Play Leading Roles in Comic Opera

'The Bartered Bride' Opens Next Friday

Edwin Easter of Lexington and Nina Thomas of Tampa, Fla., are co-starred, among 35 North Carolinians, in the leading roles of Marie and Jenik, peasant sweethearts, in "The Bartered Bride," a comic opera jointly produced by the Carolina Playmakers and the University Department of Music, to be given in Memorial hall here next Friday and Saturday evenings at 8:30 o'clock.

Easter left the University in 1942 to serve three and a half years with Army intelligence. Having studied voice under John Toms and Clyde Kentzer at the University during the pre-war years, he spent his summers entertaining on radio programs and singing with various orchestras, including Jeep Bennett, Jimmy Fuller, Freddy Johnson and Hal Thurston.

Nina Thomas and Ed Easter are pictured above in a scene from "The Bartered Bride," joint Playmaker-music department comic opera that opens in the Playmaker theatre Friday night.

Fitz-Simons, Young Direct Production

Lead in 'Chimes of Normandy'

Returning to Carolina last year Easter decided to major in history and music. He was cast in the leading role of a devil-may-care fisherman in "The Chimes of Normandy," a comic opera presented in the winter of 1946 by The Carolina Playmakers and the University Music department. Since then he has been active in the fields of radio, dramatic art and music. At present his voice teacher is Paul Young of the music department.

Production and choreography director for "The Bartered Bride" is Foster Fitz-Simons, assistant director for the Carolina Playmakers. Paul Young is music director. Costumes are designed by Irene Smart and scenery is by Lynn Gault, both of the Playmaker staff. Gwynn McPeek is assistant music director.

Eddy to Close Lectures Today

Author Will Discuss US-Russian Relations

Sherwood Eddy, world-famous authority on international relations and author of over 30 books, will conclude a series of lectures given in Chapel Hill during the last few days with two appearances at the Methodist church today. Dr. Eddy will preach the sermon at the regular 11 o'clock service this morning and will address the combined Wesley foundation and Canterbury club groups at 7 o'clock this evening.

U.S.-Red Relations

Dr. Eddy has chosen to discuss relationships between the United States and Russia at the evening meeting. Having visited Russia many times in recent years, Dr. Eddy has had wide experience with the people of the country. He has met many Russian leaders including Stalin.

The Canterbury club has accepted the invitation from Wesley foundation to join them in their regular Sunday night supper at 6 o'clock. All other interested students are invited to attend the supper as well as Dr. Eddy's talk which will come immediately afterwards.

CPU Will Discuss Men in Government

Tonight the roundtable discussion of the Carolina Political union will concern itself with the problems of military men in civil government, with special regard to General George C. Marshall's recent appointment as Secretary of State. Charles Berman, Miami, Fla., will give the introductory report.

Jerry Davidoff, union chairman, stated that as always, all interested parties on the campus were invited to attend the meeting, and to partake in the discussion, which commences at 8 o'clock in the Grail room, Graham Memorial.

It was also stated that there were still vacancies in the Union's membership, and that all those interested in applying were urged to obtain applications at the YMCA information desk.

AVC Will Choose Chairman Tuesday

Election of a new chairman will be the main item of business at the second winter quarter meeting of the American Veterans committee Tuesday evening at 7:30 in the Presbyterian church.

Acting Chairman Junius Scales announced that the proposed amendment to the constitution which will provide a term of office of six months for the chairman, instead of the present one year, will also come to the floor. In addition there will be a National Policy committee report on the status of AVC's forthcoming drive for a congressional bill to increase the amount of GI subsistence.

"In order that we may elect a new chairman who is properly representative of the group as a whole it is urgent that all members be on hand Tuesday night," said Scales.

Quaker Service Group To Show Films Tonight

The American Friends service will show films of the relief work performed in France and several other counties tonight at 8 o'clock in 103 Bingham hall.

Mr. and Mrs. John Elmendorf will be in charge of the showing and explain certain features of the films. Mrs. Elmendorf worked in Paris with the AFFD from May 1945 to August 1946, while Mr. Elmendorf worked with Willis Weatherford in the office which made plans for European work of the AFFD.

"MARINERS" MEET

The newly organized Merchant Marine club, "The Mariners," will meet Tuesday evening at 7 in the Roland Parker lounge, Graham Memorial. All Maritime or Merchant Marine personnel who manned ships during the war are asked to attend.

Welcome Action

It is gratifying to see the Student Welfare board voted that a central clearing house be created for scheduling campus events.

This newspaper has been campaigning for some time for the creation of such a clearing house. Too often in the past, as has been outlined on these pages from time to time, six or seven major programs, meetings, and entertainments were scheduled on the same night.

As a result, students desirous of attending several of the scheduled events were unable to do so. Now, if all organizations are forced to clear through the dean of men's office before scheduling programs and meetings, the danger of numerous conflicts can be avoided.

We recommend to the administrative officials now considering the resolution that they approve and act on them as soon as possible. No question exists as to the need for a central clearing house. It is very necessary and will answer one of the campus' most crying needs.

Smoking Problem

Another of the resolutions passed by the Welfare board Thursday will not prove as welcome and as readily acceptable to all concerned as the one creating the central clearing agency.

The recommendation that smoking be forbidden in classrooms and assemblies will meet with much opposition from the student body. The question of depriving them of what has become an accepted privilege cannot be taken lightly.

There is no doubt but what smoking must be prohibited in assemblies and shows such as those appearing constantly in Memorial hall. We have long contended that smoking should be prohibited in Memorial hall, and such action was taken recently—eliminating the stuffy, smoky atmosphere and the haze that obstructs clear vision.

Although the same principle can be carried over into the classrooms—particularly during this quarter when most windows must be kept shut and the rooms are overly-stuffy—and we are in favor of a "no smoking" rule, we realize that the students have a strong argument and right to feel they should be allowed to smoke. Not only some of the students, but also some of the instructors, must be included in such a category.

In a recent poll taken by the DTH, we found 100 per cent opposition to any prohibition of smoking in classrooms. All of the students asked were emphatic in stating their beliefs that they should be allowed to smoke.

Several suggested that the smoking rule should be left in the hands of the individual professors. None seemed to think smoking distracted enough from classroom proceedings to bother anyone, and they all were in accord that cans or some receptacles should be provided for ash trays.

Our principle objections to smoking in the classroom is that as matters now stand, the classrooms become littered with butts and ashes, presenting a very distasteful appearance when one enters the room.

In some buildings on the campus, a definite fire hazard exists. In these buildings smoking should be prohibited, regardless of arguments pro and con.

Some students dislike having to inhale and look through smoke hour after hour. Admittedly, these are usually nonsmokers—in the minority on this campus. If we are to go by majority rule, apparently they will have to grin and bear it.

Thus the problem can be debated by both sides. We are opposed to smoking in classrooms. But the strongest argument in its favor is that the overwhelming majority of students is in favor of smoking. Their feelings and opinions should be considered before any quick action is taken.

World Affairs

France Today Represents Miniature Politicial World

By Manny Margolis

France today is a political world in miniature. It is a veritable microcosm of our present-day tug-o'-peace. The struggle for supremacy within France between the M.R.P. and the Communists—which has recently catapulted the Socialists into power—is directly parallel to, and an outgrowth of, the political struggle between Great Britain and the Soviet Union on the European continent. Outside of France, imperialist colonialism is breathing its last gasps in French Indochina.

Is France making the same mistakes all over again? Is the new French Republic trodding the same catastrophic path as its predecessor? At first glance, it would seem to be. A quick look at recent developments in the Palais Bourbon and the Palais Elysee reveals the following:

(1) The unity born in resistance to Fascism has been replaced by political discord.

(2) The statesmen of the Third Republic—Leon Blum, Edouard Herriot, Champetier de Rives, Vincent Auriol, Paul Ramadier—have not been replaced by youthful and vigorous statesmen from the Resistance Movement.

(3) The defeat of the First French Constitution last June, which called for sweeping political, social, and economic reforms, was a victory for the right.

(4) A weak party (Socialist) has been able to capitalize on the present stalemated, balance-of-power situation, plus its abundance of "statesmen," and has gained temporary control of the government.

George Slocombe, in a discussion of recent political developments in France in last Wednesday's N. Y. Herald Tribune, concludes:

to differ from the Third, the more to differe from the Third, the more and more inevitably it will resemble it."

But fortunately, closer scrutiny would seem to indicate that the trend is neither that simple nor headed in that direction. The Tribune's columnist offers a fairly attractive editorial salad, but it lacks any real French dressing.

Elections in France over the past two years have marked more than merely a trend. They have marked the beginning of a new era for the French people. France is enjoying the fruits of the war against Fascism, which it helped and is helping to fight. This is a different France. This is a France which has become completely engulfed by a revolutionary and socialistic tide!

Here are the symptoms:

(1) Eighty percent (approx.) of the 20 million voters cast their votes for only three parties, rather than the traditional dozen.

(2) Socialist and Communist Parties alone have secured and maintained more than half of the total number of delegates to the National Assembly.

(3) A new party has emerged out of the so-called right—the Popular Republican Movement — which is markedly LEFT OF CENTER, in terms of habitual American thinking.

These are the great historical changes which defeat, occupation, collaboration, and resistance have achieved. In blazing contrast to their chaotic prewar politics, Frenchmen are demanding and will achieve greater opportunity for the many and a fairer share of their nation's economic benefits.

France's byword is, apparently, "Bien a Gauche!"

True Status

Dear Bill:

Re Jud Kinberg's "Strictly Detrimental" of January 25, I would like to point out, without much comment, that his remarks concerning Mr. Lear's role on the Publications Board might be subject to misinterpretation.

As a former member of the Board, Mr. Kinberg is aware of the facts to be presented, but I offer the following for publication because Mr. Lear's true status as a board member would not seem generally known.

Mr. Lear is financial adviser to the Publications Board. While, correctly, an influence, he is, however, the only member of the Board who has no vote; so that actually he cannot directly cause "the junking of important advance because it might draw upon current finances," or for any other reason.

As financial adviser, he offers his opinion and makes recommendations concerning financial policy of the publications, and the Board acts upon this advice and that which is contributed by the other members. He also ably supervises the correct expenditure of Board funds after they have been appropriated.

Personally, in my own business relationship with him, I have always found him extremely cooperative, very receptive to new ideas, and always ready to aid in any constructive movement which will improve the physical and/or internal caliber of the publications.

THE CPU ROUNDTABLE

By Charles Berman

During the past six-months, and especially since the precedent-breaking appointment of General George C. Marshall as Secretary of State, many people have asked the question, "How much influence does the military have on our foreign policy; and if there is influence, should we be alarmed?"

There is no sense in denying it, our foreign policy is being influenced by the military. Such men as Admiral Kirk, Generals Smith, Clay, MacArthur, Hines, Clark, Holcomb, and now Marshall are in the "higher ups" of our State Department and foreign policy. These men in my opinion are doing a good job; but as Hanson W. Baldwin points out, this trend toward the military is poor for our overall foreign policy. I agree with Mr. Baldwin, but I do not agree with those alarmists that say we must back-track and remove the military completely from our foreign policy.

Since General Marshall became Chief of Staff on September 1, 1939, the day Germany attacked Poland, military aid to our South and Central American neighbors has been constantly increased. This aid was necessary before and during the war; but now that fighting has ceased, many people believe that this aid should be drastically curtailed or even completely stopped.

The people who voice these opinions do not fully realize that by building up the potential military strength of our neighbors and standardizing the military techniques, we are in turn increasing the defensive capabilities of this hemisphere from foreign attack. Until the United Nations is firmly entrenched, I am inclined to feel that this positively is necessary.

Along with this plan for hemispheric defense, we should also consider whether or not we should retain subject to United Nation's inspection, those islands in the Pacific that are deemed necessary for our defense. The war proved that we needed those islands, and that they are of extreme importance, not only to us, but also to every other nation in the Western Hemisphere. Those of us who condemn this plan should recall the dark days of the winter and spring of 1942. Guam and Wake had fallen to the enemy because they had not been provided with an adequate military defense. Many people unjustly blamed the military when they should have blamed themselves, and remembered never to let it happen again.

It is expected that the military will continue to dominate the affairs of our defeated enemies. Our foreign commitments require that an army of occupation be retained in Germany. As long as this army remains, it is only logical to conclude that military government should also remain. If the control were shifted to the State Department, this would establish dual administrative government. This type of government rarely functions effectively—we must consider this before we make any hasty decisions.

So you see, because of national defense and foreign commitments, we must retain the military influence in our foreign policy. As it stands this policy is not alarming; should the military grow stronger, there would be considerable alarm. Remember though, that Congress retains the authority to investigate the Executive department of the government; as long as it does, the danger that the military will dominate our foreign policy seems nil.

Strange Phenomena

Dear Sir:

Recently I have noted very strange phenomena at some of our campus dances, especially those held in the woman's gym. The stag line seems to possess some unknown commander who lines them up, gives out an "eyes right" to check and then proceeds to have this group advance en masse from one side of the gym to the other. Of course when the center point of the advance is reached dancers are beginning to obstruct the group, and so we have the problem of a stag line stretching in a straight line almost in the center jump circle.

I am probably not the one to say anything about this because I have participated in the movement more than one time. All I ask is that let's cooperate (even if many don't like the word since we presume ourselves to be individuals) and give the very few lucky dancers a chance to show us how the art should appear in civilized society.

These dances are very crowded with men out numbering coeds about 7 to 1, so please let us not force the fellows with dates to leave and raise the odds.

White Phantoms Toppled By Middie Five, 39-35

---Bobbing in Sports---

with
BOB GOLDWATER

IN RESPONSE TO the many queries we've received regarding when Carolina's 1947 grid schedule will make its appearance, we dropped in to see Chuck Erickson again yesterday and placed the question directly before him. And the answer we received made our own troubles sound small indeed.

'Coach Bob Fetzer and I will sure be glad when that schedule finally does come out," the assistant director of athletics began. "We're more anxious to get it out of the way than the students are to see it. But to make the best possible schedule involves making switches and that takes time."

"As for who we'll play," he continued, "you might say that we'll face some old opponents and some new ones. We'll release the schedule as soon as we finish arranging all the dates, which may be this coming week. And," he concluded with a smile, "I will go on record as saying that Carolina will play Duke in 1947."

Also along the grid sidelines, our morning mail yesterday included a copy of the University of Georgia Red and Black, in which staff reporter Dick Pipes tells of the "vicious attack that the staff of the Daily Tar Heel made on Georgia's unbeaten football team." Mentioning the articles written in this newspaper on the "Great Sugar Bowl Robbery" (he didn't call it that) Pipes lashes out at colleagues Irwin Smallwood and Billy Carmichael for their words as to the capabilities of the officials as well as criticizing Editor Bill Woestendiek's editorial on the gallant showing made by the Carolina team. All of which, according to friend Pipes, "causes bitter results." Our only response to this is to ask if the movies of the Sugar Bowl game have been shown down in Georgia. If so, we wonder if the two scenes so offensive to our eyes could have been deleted for special showings down there.

Speaking of colleague Carmichael, we received an unpleasant long distance call from Billy yesterday afternoon, the unpleasantness coming when he told us the score of yesterday's Carolina-Navy contest. "Except for Dillon," he related, "things looked pretty bad." As for the loss to Maryland, he explained that the officiating, which was fine at Navy, had gone pretty much against the Phantoms at College Park. Last night he went over to Washington to view Bones McKinney in action with his professional club, the Capitals.

The cage loss to Navy, incidentally, was the first time during the present school year that a Middie team had taken the measure of a Carolina outfit. The Tar Heel cross-country team finished ahead of Navy twice and varsity and jayvee gridders scuttled the future Admirals on two other occasions. At that, it took a former Tar Heel, former Carolina mentor Ben Carnevale, to turn the trick this time.

Tar Heels in the news: Maryland appears to be lining up a Carolina coalition on the gridiron for next fall. Jim Tatum, head coach here in 1942 and now directing Maryland's grid fortunes, added his former All-American teammate George Barclay, to his staff two days ago. Barclay was the first Tar Heel to make All-American, being named in 1934 when both he and Tatum were sparking the Carolina forward wall. . .Bryan "Bitsy" Grant, one of the many outstanding tennis stars developed here by Coach John Kenfield, is the third ranking player in the South according to ratings announced this past week. . .In the latest of Dick Dunkel's weekly basketball ratings, Carolina ranked 22nd in the nation and fourth in the South, ahead of both Duke and N. C. State. Wonder where Mr. Dunkel will have us this week. . .Wofford college plays the Carolina junior varsity in football next October 4, according to the Wofford schedule released recently. . .George Stirnweiss' baseball school seems to be pretty successful, with nine of its recent graduates being signed by the Pittsburgh Pirates for their farm system.

Ranson Picks Millrose Team

With the Millrose mile team race less than one week away, Coach Dale Ranson picked what looks like his starting team for the event after sending his runners through time trials yesterday morning.

As it stands now, the team that will represent Carolina in the Madison Square Garden event will have Jimmy Miller, Jack Milne, Alvin Smith and Julian Mackenzie.

Milne turned in the best performance in yesterday's trials, running the mile in 4:24. The result was especially gratifying to Coach Ranson, since Milne's bruised heel, injured in the Georgia Tech cross-country meet last fall, had been slow in healing. His showing yesterday clinched a berth for him on the mile team that will oppose NYU, Manhattan, and Penn State teams in the special mile event.

Monogram Club Meets

The Monogram Club will hold a meeting at 7:30 o'clock Monday evening and will induct the fall lettermen in Cross Country and football.

All members are urged to attend and bring their wives or dates. Football movies will highlight the evening, Secretary Charlie Tietjen announced.

Mittmen Score First Victory

Young, Green, Rose, Sumas Capture Wins

By Jim Pharr

Carolina's boxing team took four of eight bouts in Woollen gym last night to pound out a 4½ to 3½ victory over the Gamecock leather-pushers from South Carolina.

The Tar Heels scored one win on a TKO and three by decisions in achieving their victory. The Gamecocks had two TKO's and one decision. The 145-pound bout ended in a draw.

Leonard Green took a decision over Chuck Spann, of South Carolina, in the 165-pound class, in what was rated the best bout of the evening.

William Sumas, using a powerful right hand to great advantage, stopped his opponent, Watson Dawes, of the Gamecocks, in 49 seconds of the third round and was awarded a TKO in the 125-pound class.

Conway Rose proved to have too much experience for Fletcher Dena, of South Carolina, in the 135-pound class, and went on to take a decision after a nine-count knockdown in the first round.

Charlie Norton fought Marion Watson, of the Gamecocks to a draw decision in the 145-pound class, in a close bout that could have gone either way.

Dick Young, of Carolina, was awarded a victory by forfeit in the 175-pound class.

The summary:

125 lb—Sumas (NC) TKO over Dawes (49 seconds 3rd rd).

130 lb—White (SC) decisioned Lambeth.

135 lb—Rose (NC) decisioned Dena.

145 lb—Draw between Norton (NC) and Watson.

155 lb—Avant (SC) TKO over Dyal (35 seconds 1st rd).

165 lb—Green (NC) decisioned Spann.

175 lb—Young (NC) forfeit over Kinsey.

Hvywt—Ruttledge (SC) TKO over Varney (1:37 2nd rd).

Frosh Play Tomorrow

Coach Frank Murray's freshman cagers go after their seventh triumph of the season tomorrow evening when they take to the road to play Fayetteville high school.

Probable starters for the Tar Babies are Charlie Nichols and either Pete Peters or Junie Idol at the forward posts, Sandy Hoft at center, and Bill Harrington and Bill Walker in the guard berths.

Nineteen Mural Cage Clubs Still Unbeaten; Fraternity Handball Play Starts Tomorrow

Nineteen intramural cage teams still remain among the unbeaten, according to figures released yesterday by intramural director Walter Rabb.

Twelve of the undefeated outfits are in the six fraternity leagues while the other seven are in the four dormitory loops. At least two of the spotless-record clubs will leave the unbeaten ranks tomorrow afternoon when SAE No. 1 and Phi Gam No. 1, both with 3-0 slates, clash for the leadership of fraternity league two, while Sigma Chi No. 1 and Chi Psi tangle to see who remains on top of loop six.

In the other fraternity leagues, Chi Phi No. 2 has a 3-0 record in loop one, as do Beta No. 1 and Pi Lamb No. 2 in loop three. The closest fight in any of the leagues is in loop four, where PiKA No. 1, Phi Kappa Sig No. 2 and Phi Delt No. 2 are deadlocked with 3-0 slates. Sigma Chi No. 3 and ATO No. 1 have 2-0 records in league five to round out the unbeaten fraternity aggregations.

The toughest battle in the dormitory leagues is in loop one, where the Grads and Locals are tied with 3-0 performances. The Independants rule alone on top of loop two with the same record, while Oakwood Drive has 3-0 and Everett has 2-0 in league three. Emanon heads loop four with 3-0, followed closely by another undefeated quintet, the Med School, with a 2-0 record.

Fraternity competition in handball gets under way tomorrow afternoon with two matches on the card. Dormitory competition will start next week.

Grapplers to Encounter Davidson Here Tomorrow

Tar Heels Seek Second Straight Victory; First Bout Gets Under Way at 7 o'Clock

Carolina's wrestling team will seek its second victory in as many starts tomorrow night, when the local grapplers meet the Davidson matmen in Woollen gym. The first match is scheduled for 7 p. m.

The Tar Heels will be led by Co-Captains Tommy Hearn and Dick Seaver, who turned in decisive victories in downing their opponents in the 136 and 145-pound classes respectively, in the opening match against the VPI grapplers.

Other outstanding matmen on Coach Chuck Quinlan's squad include Doug Thompson, who took his match at VPI over Williams, who had been undefeated in nine previous bouts, and Irv Zirpel who lost his match against VPI but turned in the best bout of the evening in the process.

Little is known of the Davidson grapplers but Coach Charlie Parker is expected to bring a strong team here tomorrow to engage the Tar Heels.

Carolina opened its season with an impressive 18-10 victory over the Gobblers January 18. Coach Quinlan's men are scheduled to engage in two more home bouts this season, following tomorrow's clash here. The Tar Heels meet Washington and Lee on February 8, and VMI on February 15.

The following Carolina grapplers are expected to start in the different weight classes:

121-pound—Doug Thompson.
128-pound—Tom Urquhart.
136-pound—Tommy Hearn.
145-pound—Dick Seaver.
155-pound—Irv Zirpel.
165-pound—Oscar Gupton.
175-pound—Bill Kemp.
Heavyweight—Laurie Hooper or John Stoioff.

Cagemen Drop Second in Row

Dillon Registers 19 For Scoring Honors

By Bill Carmichael

Annapolis, Md., Jan. 25— Despite a brilliant performance by hook-shot artist Johnny Dillon, Carolina's White Phantom cagers suffered a 39-35 setback at the hands of a strong Navy quintet here this afternoon for their second straight loss on the current jaunt.

Dillon hit a new high for a Carolina player this season, hitting the cords for six hooks and seven foul shots for a total of 19 points. The big center kept the Phantoms in the ball game all through the first half almost single-handedly, registering the first 10 points that Carolina made and 13 of the 18 that his team scored up to intermission. But his effort went for naught with none of the remaining Phantoms hitting for more than five points.

Navy Takes Lead

The contest started slowly, with Coach Ben Carnevale's quintet assuming a quick lead which they held for most of the game. During the first half, the Phants went for seven minutes without making a field goal but finally started moving with four minutes left and the score reading 17-13, Navy. A late goal by Dillon put the Tar Heels at a 20-18 deficit at the intersection.

The Middies kept a slight lead for the early part of the second half, but Carolina finally pushed into a 27-27 tie on two goals by Norm Kohler. Navy again pulled ahead but with five minutes remaining Jim Hamilton tallied a field goal and foul shot to put the Phantoms ahead for the first time, 33-32. Navy again moved out front but Dillon hooked another to make the score 35-34, Carolina. But that was all. Three fouls and one field goal in the last three minutes pushed the Middies way out front and that ended the scoring.

Foul Line Decides

The game was actually won at the foul line, with the Middies hitting 17 for 23 while the Phantoms made 13 for 24. Both teams had 11 field goals. For Navy, Kenny Shugart, five-foot, nine-inch forward who was named to the All-East quintet last year, led the way with 10 tallies.

Next tussle on the Carolina slate will be Tuesday evening when the Phantoms run up against South Carolina in their third Southern conference clash.

U.S. Reaffirms Atom Policies

Senator Claims Russia Has Atom Plant

Washington, Jan. 27—(UP)— Our government has reaffirmed its opposition to a Russian veto on punishment of atomic lawbreakers. This restatement of American policy on international control of the atom bomb came from Warren Austin—our delegate to the United Nations. Austin made the statement after a long conference with Secretary of State Marshall. Thus, Austin scotched rumors that Marshall's appointment might mean a major shift in our stand on the atomic issues.

Committee Charges

Earlier, on the floor of the Senate, the former chairman of the joint Congressional Atomic Committee charged that Soviet Russia apparently is building a secret atom bomb plant somewhere in Siberia. The Senator—Democrat Brien McMahon of Connecticut—warned that only the swift development of international safeguards can head off an atomic war.

Surplus Tomato Juice Is Alloted to State

Atlanta, Jan. 27 — (UP) — North Carolina will get its share of more than half a million gallons of tomato juice for school lunchrooms. The Production and Marketing administration has announced that 100,800 gallons of tomato juice is available to North Carolina. The tomato juice has been purchased from the Navy surplus stocks which were made available under the new national school lunch act.

Canadian Convicted Of Aiding Red Spy

Ottawa, Jan. 27—(UP)—A Toronto optometrist has been convicted of espionage for allegedly trying to obtain a false Canadian passport for a Russian spy in the United States. Harry Harris was the ninth person found guilty in the conspiracy.

France Plans to Use German War Prisoners

Paris, Jan. 27—(UP)—The French government announces that the United States has agreed to let France recruit German war prisonrers already captured by the American Army as laborers for French coal factories. All of the 620,000 involved now are in camps are under French custody. Nothing is to be done by the International Red Cross—to be sure no pressure is brought on the men.

Talmadge Forces File Superior Court Suits

Atlanta, Jan. 27—(UP)—The Talmadge forces in Georgia today filed superior court suits in the hopes of solving the state's financial log-jam. In both instances, the Talmadge men are trying to get the court to order the state treasurer to recognize the men of the revenue commissioner appointed by Talmadge. The sum involved is some $4,000,000 in collected taxes to be accepted by the state.

Griffith Urges Lift On-the-Job Income

Durham, Jan. 27—(UP)—The national commander of the American Legion, Paul H. Griffith, has made a speech in Durham calling for the government to lift the income ceiling for veterans taking on-the-job training. Speaking to the North Carolina post officers conference of the Legion, Griffith has said the present income ceilings mean unfair competition between former servicemen and other civilians.

Polls Open Today for Election Runoff

Broughton, York Vie For Student Council

By Bookie Jabine

The student body will go to the polls today to choose between Ed York (SP) and Bobby Broughton (UP), who are candidates for the post of representative-at-large to the Student council in a run-off election.

Ballot boxes will be placed in Gerrard hall which will be open for voting between the hours of 9 a. m. and 5 p. m. Elections board head, Jabie Hayward, stated that there will be two voting desks.

No Separate Lines

Since the election is campus-wide there will not be separate lines for town and dormitory students.

Heyward added, "The vote is expected to be very light."

Present plans call for the ballots to be counted by the election board aides while the voting is in progress, and Heyward said the returns should be tabulated by 7 o'clock this evening.

Ed York, president of the Interdormitory council, is the Student party candidate for representative to the Student council.

Heyward Thinks Vote Will Be Very Light

In the regular polling last fall, Broughton received 577 votes to York's 465, but did not attain a majority since Al Lowenstein, an independent, polled 411 votes. All other offices were decided in December and the Honor council job is the only one to be decided today.

Broughton, University party candidate, is a past Honor councilman, and has served a term in the Student Legislature.

Ed York of the Student party is president of the Interdormitory council, head of Old East, is a member of the Student Welfare board, and a member of the International Relations club.

Final Deadline For Local Fund Set For Friday

By Sam Whitehall

A total of $1140 has been reached to date in the campus infantile paralysis campaign, with several fraternities and dormitories still to be heard from. All contributions must be turned in as soon as possible this week, Friday afternoon being the final deadline.

Pacing all organizations on the campus, the Sigma Chi fraternity contributed $120 to the drive, almost twice as much as the second-place Beta Theta Pi fraternity, which gave $75. The Zeta Beta Tau's, although consisting of only 30 members, contributed the amazing total of $60.

"If all organizations were to show the same spirit as the Sigma Chi's, ZBT's, and Betas, the drive would be a sure-fire success," a committee spokesman announced yesterday. "The Sigma Chi contribution will probably be tops for the campus."

Other High Contributors

Other high contributors to date were McIver dormitory, the UVA, Kappa Sigma, St. Anthony hall, Pi Lambda Phi, and Chi Phi.

"If those fraternities and dorms that have not yet contributed to the drive will do so as soon as possible with the same spirit as the others, we will be able to call the drive a success," stated chairman Bill Woestendiek.

The campus honor roll of contributors will be published in this paper later in the week.

Page to Speak To Solicitors

WSSF Collectors Will Meet Today

Earle Page, University delegate to the National Student Christian association's convention held at the University of Illinois during Christmas holidays, will be the principal speaker at the first meeting of the solicitors for the World Student Service fund campaign to be held in Gerrard hall at 5:30 this afternoon.

Page will explain to the solicitors, who have been named by dormitories, trailer camps, fraternities, and sororities to serve in that capacity, the work and the needs of the Service Fund campaign. Literature will be distributed, information given and the technique for solicitation explained by Walt Stuart and Gay Morenus, co-chairman for the University's drive.

The campaign proper will be held during the second week in February, and the quota for the University has been set at $5500. The service fund is to provide food, clothing, and books for students in other countries. All larger schools over the country are supporting the service fund, and this is the only opportunity students will have for contributing to overseas relief.

New AVC Chairman Will Be Elected

Election of a new chairman as a replacement for Winston Broadfoot who resigned two weeks ago will be the main item of business at tonight's meeting of the American Veterans committee at 7:30 in the Presbyterian church.

Junius Scales acting chairman since Broadfoot's resignation, announced that a proposed amendment to the chapter's constitution will also come to the floor, to provide a term of office of six months for the chairman instead of the present one year tenure. Scales pointed out that a shorter term would free many men to serve as chairman, who now feel the job would be too great a burden.

Other items of business will include a National Policy committee report on the status of AVC's forthcoming drive on Congress for an increase in the amount of GI subsistence. This would provide for $90 per month for single veterans and $125 plus $10 per child for married men.

Greensboro Freshman Is Fatally Injured In Automobile Accident

William Samuel Welker, 23-year-old freshman from Greensboro, was killed Sunday morning in an automobile wreck twelve miles east of Greensboro on the Burlington road.

The car in which Welker was riding, driven by Warren Eugene Walden of Greensboro, collided with the left rear end of a truck parked four feet off the highway. One side of the automobile was ripped off by the collision.

Also in the automobile were Miss Doris Fogleman and Miss Margaret Shenck, also of Greensboro. They received slight injuries.

Funeral services will be held this afternoon at 4 o'clock in the First Reformed Church of Greensboro. Dean Ernest Mackie will attend the services. All students who wish to go to the rites may ride to Greensboro with Dean Mackie.

Phi To Discuss Taxes In Tonight's Session

Chester D. Zum Brunnen will introduce a resolution on taxation tonight in the recently renovated Phi hall when the Phi convenes.

Zum Brunnen, an accounting major in the commerce school, will propose that the assembly approve a resolution calling for a 20 per cent decrease in federal taxes.

Speaker Robert Morrison announced that the Assembly will present four authorities—two for and two against—to open debate on the bill. These include professor George Lent, now with the commerce school, professor Clarence Heer, also of the commerce school, Dr. E. J. Woodhouse, well-known member of the political science faculty, and professor Paul Wager, also of the political science department.

Yackety Yack pictures will be taken at this meeting.

DTH Staff Will Meet Thursday Afternoon

The Daily Tar Heel will hold a meeting of all members of the editorial, news, sports, and business staffs Thursday afternoon at 5 o'clock to endorse a member of the staff for editor in the spring elections. All members whose names appear in the masthead are asked to attend or notify Editor Bill Woestendiek beforehand.

New Student Directory Due to Come Out Soon

The Y office has announced that the student directory is now being printed and should be ready for distribution sometime within the next two weeks. As yet no plans have been made regarding the method of distribution. Copies are expected to be made available to all dormitory rooms and student organizations.

Officials Will Probe Rents Of Housing in Vets Village

UNC Delegates, FPHA, OPA, UVA Confer; Married Veterans Call for Price Reduction

By Ed Joyner

Officials of the University, the University Veterans Association, the Atlanta office of the Federal Public Housing agency and the Durham office of OPA will meet here at 2 o'clock this afternoon to discuss a possible readjustment of rents on houses in Vet Village. The action came as a result of a report on local rental prices drawn up by a UVA committee, approved by the University and submitted to the Atlanta FPHA office last quarter.

FPHA Representative

H. L. Sullivan of Atlanta will represent the FPHA at the meeting and William E. Byrd, Jr., will represent the Durham OPA office, which has authority over the Chapel Hill rental area. For the UVA, President Roy Moose, Ruffin Bailey, Tom Mitchell, Tom Cole and Prof. F. W. Hanft of the law school will be present.

Either C. E. Teague or J. S. Bennett, or both, will represent the University in the discussion.

Agitation for lower rents in the University administered housing project has been in progress since last August when married couples living in the houses and the University Veterans association joined in a resolution favoring lower rents.

On October 17, as a result of a petition sent by the University at the request of the UVA, the Atlanta FPHA office sent Sullivan here to investigate the situation. At that time, however, Sullivan ruled that rents in the development were in line with those on comparable property in Chapel Hill and that he had no authority to change them. He suggested that if a full report were made it might bring further action.

Bailey, Mitchell and Cole, acting for the UVA and the married veterans, then made a survey of rental prices prevailing on other rental properties in Chapel Hill. They sent this report through the University to FPHA, citing rents in effect and the types of living quarters concerned and recommending what they considered fair rents for the Vet Village houses.

This report will be the basis of the rent revision discussion this afternoon.

Carolina Mag Seeking Circulation Manager

The Carolina Magazine will interview all applicants for the job of circulation manager this afternoon from two to five o'clock. The work is [illegible] for each issue.

Prentice to Talk Here On 'World Government'

Colgate Prentice, president of Student Federalists, Inc., will be on campus, February 5, to speak on "World Government—a Challenge." Prentice, a veteran of World War II, will outline world government as a practical necessity, not a Utopian dream.

Starting from New York, he has travelled more than 5,000 miles on a speaking tour, through New England, the South, the west coast, and back, and is speaking here in Chapel Hill on his return trip.

IRC MEMBERSHIPS

International Relations club membership blanks must be turned in by today in order for applicants to take part in interviews being conducted this week, stated Vincent Williams, membership committee chairman. Prospective members may get blanks from the Y office, and they will be notified by mail of the time of their interview.

FFC MEETS TONIGHT

There will be a meeting of the Freshman Friendship council at 7 o'clock this evening in Gerrard hall. All freshmen interested in going to a dance at Woman's college in Greensboro on February 8 are urged to attend the meeting tonight, Ed Hamilton, president of the council, stated.

North Carolina Little Symphony

North Carolina Symphony Orchestras Face Full Schedule

Approximately 130 concerts, by both the North Carolina State Symphony orchestra and the Little Symphony of the State orchestra, have been scheduled so far for the spring season which opens next month, it was announced here today by Dr. Benjamin Swalin, director.

The Symphony's season will begin in Goldsboro the first week of April, when two concerts, one for adults and one free program for school children, will be given.

Other concerts by the Symphony which has a personnel of approximately 60 will be played in Washington, Kannapolis, Greenville, Wilmington, Fayetteville, Raleigh, Durham, Chapel Hill, Burlington, Leaksville, Reidsville, Roanoke Rapids, Rocky Mount, Greensboro, High Point, Winston-Salem, Salisbury, Charlotte, Gastonia, Shelby, Hickory and Asheville.

The series will close the latter part of May.

The concerts in Kannapolis and Greenville are parts of the concert series, but they are not Symphony membership concerts.

Little Symphony Schedule

The Little Symphony, beginning the latter part of February in Warrenton, will also appear in Robersonville, Windsor, New Bern, Morehead City, Jacksonville, Elizabethtown, Laurinburg, Sanford, Asheboro, Albemarle, Mount Holly, Kings Mountain, Newton, Valdese, Morganton, Marion, Forest City, Hendersonville, Brevard, Franklin, Murphy, Sylva, Waynesville, Mars Hill, Burnsville, Spruce Pine, Banner Elk, Mount Airy, Roxboro, and Oxford.

Approximately 55 membership drives are being conducted by the State Symphony Society this season, some of the new communities being Asheboro, Kannapolis, Greenville, Morehead City, Morganton, Mount Airy, Laurinburg, Windsor, Newton, Mount Holly and Warrenton.

Unbecoming Conduct

Noise and brutal thinking seem to habitually replace intelligence and thought at any athletic contest, but on recent occasions in Woollen gym, the Carolina student has been letting his vociferous support run away with him.

Whether it be a hangover from the Gabe Hill Sugar Bowl fiasco or just a desire on the part of some of the more pugnacious members of the student body to see some blood spilled, the cold fact remains that the students have been putting on some unsportsmanlike displays in recent weeks.

Several complaints have reached our office about student conduct at Saturday night's boxing match. Several spectators termed it one of the most disgraceful exhibitions of sportsmanship they have seen in a long, long time.

Not only do intercollegiate boxing rules request quiet during the fighting, but the fight announcer also requested the students to remain quiet during the fighting. But they yelled during each round and practically booed the announcer off his seat when he politely tried to request silence.

Two weeks ago, a referee took a terrible riding from the students merely because he came from Duke. At recent basketball games the crowd has been too free in giving vent to its displeasure over minor decisions, many of which came when Carolina was far ahead and a foul made little or no difference.

Spirit is a fine thing. But spirit ends when pugnaciousness begins in the close confines of an indoor auditorium. Carolina students have developed the habit of riding the opposition and booing everything in sight just to be making noise. All of which also creates a bad impression on the visitors. A little consideration and thought would go a long way—even at a basketball game or boxing match—towards making the event more enjoyable from every standpoint.

Vote Today

We could use many pleading adjectives and fiery verbs in an effort to get the students to the polls for today's run-off election for the Student council spot.

But we will only say that if you are interested in your student government, vote today. The position in question is an important one. The man elected will represent you on the Student council.

Make sure he is the man you want by voting for him in Gerrard hall today.

Appreciation

A few words of thanks and appreciation are due everyone responsible for making Friday night's charity ball a success.

The members of the Western North Carolina club deserve much credit for sponsoring the dance and devoting their time to plugging it without any personal financial gain for their organization.

Ned Reap and his smooth young band gave their time and talent to the dance free of charge because it was a benefit ball. They could have been making money elsewhere. Their charitable work here is appreciated.

As is that of Messrs. Cornwell and Huggins in making the gymnasium available, Dean Mackie in taking care of the dance fee and Miss Lynette Warren, secretary of the Art school, art students Frances Powell, John Sink, Sarah Maltas and William Smith for the fine posters they designed during the week. Through such spirit, great victories are won.

I'd Rather Be Right

Traditional Hatred, Bigotry Can Still Be Found on Campus

By Earl Heffner

In some quiet sequestered villa where the people still think Abe Lincoln is president of the Union and Jeff Davis is the leader of the Confederacy, I should expect to hear the ringing cry of "Chase the Damyankees back into the North."

In Mississippi or in Georgia where a "little education has become a dangerous thing," I should not be surprised to hear the race mongers say "send the nigger to the back door."

For long I have known that we possessed a Constitution protecting the Four Freedoms, offering equality of opportunity to all Americans without reference to race or creed. As I recall our nation recently finished waging a war to right the wrongs of the oppressed.

This week I was confronted with the realization that some people—I know not their number—on campus heartily endorse the hatred philosophies taught by Demagogues Bilbo and the late Eugene Talmadge.

I'm not a Lenin-shirted Communist although I do own a red sport shirt. I still have my old Army uniform, but I'm certainly not a GI any longer. I wear black shoes, but I'm not a Fascist. My name is Earl, but I don't advocate the establishment of a monarchy in these United States. I don't wear the American flag on my sleeve, but I do believe in the American principles.

Above all I do not believe that men and women of today can propagate their kind and hope that their descendants will be able to live in peace and prosperity until deeply-imbued sectionalism and nationalism are eradicated. Nor can these ills be eliminated by letting them "work themselves out" as it was suggested to me by a states-rightist.

To my mind the problem of a city is equally that of the county, the tangle of the state is the worry of the nation.

Perhaps the South can work out its racial problem alone; perhaps the North can eliminate its racial problem without assistance from the South. The town bully perhaps could be licked by Little Brother. If this be true why couldn't Little Brother win faster and with less trouble if he permitted his twin to help.

Progress toward Wendell Willkie's ideal "One World" has been made since man first began to wear a fig leaf. Through experience man has learned the hard way to seek assistance in meeting his difficulties. In times of great distress we learn to "hang together" rather than "hang separately."

Unfortunately man doesn't remain humble and willing to learn. When the danger is past, he returns to the philosophy of selfishness. Evidence of this has mounted since the end of World War II.

During the war we shared our politics, our shortages, our automobiles, our food, even our problems. Since the war, some people desire to pull back in their shell. Mississippians "showed Walter Winchell and Drew Pearson that they couldn't run Mississippi from a typewriter." When the two columnists revealed Bilbo as the Klu Klux despot that he is and told Mississippians they should defeat The Man, the Southern voters rallied to the cause and sent Darwin's Missing Link back to the Senate.

No one man, no one section, no one country is capable of solving the world's ills. Through exchange of ideas the cure would seem to be possible although lengthy. Certainly this exchange should be advocated and permitted to replace the sectionalistic and nationalistic isolationist method since the latter has proven itself only capable of leading to another war.

Certainly, too, if the world is to look for leadership it must look to its students, its future leaders. If the South is to surmount its difficulties it must look to the universities. Products of these institutions of higher learning should possess a humbleness and willingness to learn that is a partner of education and not possess dogmas and hatreds that are the sisters of ignorance.

I hope the examples I found of traditional hatred and ignorance are isolated on this campus. I hope also such men will open their minds to the ideas of all men of every political philosophy. And although I'm a native of North Carolina I don't want to send the "Damyankees back to the North."

The only Yankees I dislike are Larry McPhail's Bronx Bombers. And I'm a Cardinal fan myself.

Internationalism

Dear Sir:

On Friday, January 24, many students heard Mr. Herschel V. Johnson, the United States representative on the Security Council of the United Nations, speak. Can we say that the highest expression of a considered judgment was reflected in his address at the Convocation? I submit that this was not the case, that Mr. Johnson did not follow through to the logical solution. Diplomacy is still too cautious about obligating its country: it will sign treaties but it recognizes no sovereign law to make them binding. Mr. Johnson dismissed immediate organization of a world legislature as a mere "legalism" and voiced the familiar and vague policy of "international cooperation toward a common purpose."

What is "internationalism" but the relations between national states? The internationalist believes that perpetual peace can be assured by treaties between national states, though such agreements are not binding on the signers because of the lack of world-wide law. At present every nation is a law unto itself and has the power to draft its citizenry, levy war taxes, and erect high tariffs which twist healthy international trade to the advantage of the national state. It is essential therefore that the United Nations amend its Charter to provide for a world legislature. General Carlos P. Romulo, Philippine representative to the United Nations, advocates such a revision suggesting that the present crippling five-power veto be changed to a three-power veto to facilitate action. But at the Convocation Mr. Johnson defended the five-power veto. Does he speak for the best interests of the United States? Anything short of world law is decidedly against our best interests. Atom bombs and bacteriological warfare only intensify the urgent need for an effective World Government.

On February 5 there will be a Rally for World Government meeting, Mr. Colgate Prentiss, President of National Student Federalists, speaking. Everyone is urged to watch for the announcements.

Sincerely,
HALE CHAMBERLAIN.

Endorsement

The amazing independent vote in the election last term—which, without publicity and without organization, very nearly equaled the vote polled by the established parties pointed conclusively to the strength of independent students on this campus.

Only the parties are represented in the run-off. After carefully considering both candidates, I have come to the conclusion that Ed. York would more nearly represent those principles for which we voted in the first election.

I hope the many persons who felt as I did in the first election will realize the serious consideration and careful thought that goes into this sincere, unsolicited endorsement of the Student Party nominee, and that they will put their weight in the S. P. after the run-off as well as now.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Drew Pearson

RUSSIAN AMBASSADOR HINTS SOVIET MAY HAVE A-BOMB; WOMEN ASK TRUMAN FOR MORE GOVERNMENT JOBS; GENERAL MARSHALL HAS FAITH IN PEOPLES ARMIES

Washington.—It took breathtaking Bob Gros of California to do what no diplomat or newsman so far has done regarding the A-bomb and Russia. He got a hint from Soviet Ambassador Novikov that Russia has either the secret of the A-bomb or an adequate defense against it.

Gros, a California lecturer who annually interviews more Washington bigwigs in 24 hours than the average newsman does in one week, called on Ambassador Novikov the other day and at the end of his interview asked: "Do you have anything you wish to say to the American people?"

"Yes," replied the Ambassador. "You Americans should not rely too much on the A-bomb. Against France, Italy, Germany, yes. But against Russia, no. You should not depend on it."

"That, Mr. Ambassador," suggested Gros, "sounds as if the Russians have developed a defense against A-bomb."

"Yes," replied Ambassador Novikov, "this and more. I do not wish to say anything further."

This significant statement ended the interview.

MORE WOMEN IN GOVERNMENT

President Truman's failure to appoint more women to high office was tactfully laid before the President by a group of ladies the other day.

Mrs. La Felle Dickinson, President of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, headed the delegation and told Truman quite frankly that woman generally were disturbed because he hadn't appointed as many women to government jobs as Roosevelt had. She reminded the President that the State Department had built up a roster of 80 well-known American women capable of handling important Government work and urged him to bring the list up to date.

Dr. Katherine McHale, of the Association of University Women, was equally strong in urging the appointment of more women to Government.

Truman replied that he would like to appoint more women to jobs but it was difficult to get the right person for the right job. He mentioned General Marshall as a sample of a man who exactly fitted the job, and also told how he enjoyed appointing Mrs. Roosevelt as a United Nations Delegate.

Truman also paid high tribute to former Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins, whom he has made a Civil Service Commissioner.

"Few people know just how fine a person Miss Perkins is," the President said. "I watched her work very carefully as Secretary of Labor. She did a wonderful job under very trying circumstances."

WOMEN RADIO COMMISSIONER

Mrs. Dickinson, Dr. McHale and Anna Lord Strauss, of the League of Women Voters, all assured Truman that they had given Miss Perkins' nomination their full backing.

"I watched President Roosevelt work for a long time," Truman continued. "I knew then, but didn't realize fully, just how large a portion of the President's time was taken in finding the right people for the right job. I want you to know that nobody makes my appointments for me. I make them on the basis of my own judgment."

Mrs. Dickinson strongly urged the appointment of a woman to the existing vacancy on the Federal Communications Commission, but didn't suggest any names. The women's club leader pointed out that women make up the overwhelming majority of daytime radio listeners, yet had no representation whatsoever on the FCC. (Some of the women present favor Marion Martin, former Women's Director of the Republican National Committee, for the FCC vacancy; others are backing former Congresswoman Chase Going Woodhouse of Connecticut.)

Mrs. Dickinson also proposed that a woman be named Assistant Secretary of State, because of the enormous interest and great stake that the women of the country have in keeping the peace. Truman said the suggestion was interesting.

Note—One idea some of the women have discussed but didn't mention to the president, was the appointment of qualified women as Assistant Secretaries of War and Navy.

GENERAL MARSHALL ON RUSSIA

When General Marshall took the oath as Secretary of State the other day, some of his old friends on the general staff recalle da hitherto untold incident which followed Marshall's sensational press conference in 1941, when he predicted the Red Army would collapse like an accordian before the Nazis. The incident illustrates that though Marshall can make mistakes, he also profits from them.

The day after Marshall's press conference on Russia, Gen. Leslie J. J. McNair, late chief of the Army Ground Forces, walked into a meeting of the General Staff and stated flatly he disagreed with his chief. Marshall, however, stuck to his guns, and cited Russia's inability to produce.

"George," replied McNair grimly, "you've made a mistake on Russia. I haven't seen their army, but it's a revolutionary army. You couldn't beat Napoleon when his was a revolutionary force. You couldn't beat Washington's revolutionary army, and you'll never beat Stalin."

What McNair said made a deep impression on Marshall.

Phantoms Face Loop-Leading Gamecocks In Woollen Tonight

Second Guessing ....

with
BILLY CARMICHAEL

MEMOIRS OF MARYLAND: Big Jim Tatum arrived at Maryland last week to take over the duties of head coach and athletic director, and the folks up College Park way are really worked up about the prospects of the coming of "big-time football" to the Terrapin campus.

There's talk around Maryland that Doc Blanchard will be signed as assistant coach although the consensus of opinion is that "Mr. Inside" will soon sign a pro contract. There's also talk that President Curly Byrd is launching plans to build a stadium to be ready for the 1948 season with a capacity of 50,000, and a mammoth field house that will handle crowds of 10,000 and up. And there's also talk that the Terrapins are planning to schedule such grid stalwarts as the University of Southern California. All of which points to the rise of another athletic power in the presently lop-sided Southern Conference.

WE SAW an old, familiar friend during the weekend, and after he and his flashy Navy quint had given our Phantoms a lesson in cage play, Coach Ben Carnevale stopped to have a few words with us. He said he'd been keeping up with all his old boys and was mighty proud of the showings they were making this season—Dillon, Paxton, Thorne and White, still leading the way at Carolina; Jim Jordan starring with the red hot Wildcats of Kentucky, and big "Bones" McKinney who is pacing the league-leading Washington Capitals of the American Pro circuit. Coach Ben, who says he'll always have a soft spot in his heart for Chapel Hill, will return to the vicinity of his former stamping grounds this week when the Academy boys face Duke in Durham Saturday night.

THE WHITE PHANTOMS were treated to a rare comparison of officials on their latest northern jaunt. "Popular" Paul Menton, who has been pilfering contests in the Southern conference for the past twenty years, again perpetrated robbery in Friday night's game in an action that colleague Jud Kinberg would have labeled as "strictly detrimental" to both parties concerned. Let's hope Menton isn't around come tourney time. Saturday's contest at Navy was an entirely different story. With two of the nation's top whistle tooters, Jocko Collins and Matty Begovich, doing the calling, the game was officiated to the satisfaction of coaches, players, and fans alike—a rare occurrence. Both of these officials worked in the NCAA tourney last March.

ODDS and ENDS: Harry Wismer, noted sports announcer added the sound commentary to the official Sugar Bowl movies during the past week. No release date on the films has been announced . . . Maryland's Tommy Mont, it is reported, will sign with the Washington Redskins come next football season. The word is that Mont was farmed out to Maryland during the past year for "seasoning" . . . Speaking of Maryland, next year's Tar Heel-Terrapin contest may be played in Washington's Griffith stadium. It will be the first meeting of Snavely and Tatum since they parted ways . . . Seen on the road: George Barclay, Carolina's first All-American, who resigned the line-coaching job at Dartmouth last week to take over a similar post at Maryland . . . Stan Colbert, ex-Tar Heel scribe, Mag editor, and campus politico, now with the Army Special Services in Washington . . . Don Gleasner, ex-Pre-Flight athletic star, now completing college in the east . . . Ed Golding, former Tar Heel lineman, at present a Middie at Annapolis . . .

HITHER & THITHER: The latest victim to Leonard Green's boxing victory string was Chuck Spann of South Carolina who had been previously unbeaten in 32 starts . . . Jack Milne, one of Dale Ranson's leading tracksters holds the University Record of 3:10 for the three quarter mile race. . .The track squad also numbers two brothers of former Carolina greats in Frank Hardy and Joe Corpening. Both these boys are lettermen themselves and are going after the marks that were set here by the well remembered names of Fred Hardy and Bill Corpening.

A WORD OF NOTE: The Monogram club is under new management, so to speak, and its new officers are trying to make it the ideal second home for lettermen, the only way that this can be achieved is to have the 100% cooperation of all eligible members. Support your club, letter winners, attend meetings and help make the Monogram Club of the University of North Carolina the best of its kind in the country.

Coed Badminton to Start

Coed badminton intramurals will begin in Woollen gym this afternoon at 4 o'clock, with the tournament to be continued every Tuesday and Thursday until the meet is completed. Each dorm and sorority are expected to enter two players, with the winner to be decided by elimination.

The old coed point system has been revised and the revision is effective for everyone except seniors. The new system is designed to improve individual chances for making points.

Coeds entering the basketball tournament will be allowed to play only five quarters during each day of the tourney, the women's athletic association announced yesterday. Players may divide the quarters between their dormitory and their sorority, but may not play more than five quarters during one evening.

Scottmen Seek Eighth Victory

Frosh Play Prelim Starting At 6:15

By Bob Goldwater

Seeking to better its seventh-place standing in the Southern conference standings, Carolina's cage quintet will attempt a reversal of form this evening in Woollen gym against the team currently sporting the best loop record, South Carolina. The opening jumpoff comes at 8 o'clock.

Twice emerging on the short end of the scoring on their most recent northern tour, the local cagers face a tough opponent in the Gamecocks, who are tied with Duke with a 4-0 record for the conference leadership but hold a slight advantage in points scored and keeping opponents' points to a minimum. Carolina, with one loop victory over Maryland and one setback to the same outfit, will be gunning for its second conference win and eighth of the campaign.

Same Starters

The usual starting quintet is slated to take the floor for tonight's tussle. This puts Bob Paxton and Jim Hamilton at the forward positions, Johnny Dillon in the center pivot spot, and Norm Kohler and Jim White in the guard berths. Taylor Thorne, Dick Hartley, Sherman Nearman and Jim Hayworth head the replacement list.

Main offensive spark for the Gamecocks is forward Cantore, the eighth leading scorer in the Southern conference with a total of 59 points in four games.

As a preliminary to the main event, Coach Frank Murray's yearling quintet will oppose a team composed of physical education majors, including Lew Hayworth, Junie Smith, and Bob Altemose, all former Phantom stars. The tilt will get under way at 6:15 o'clock.

The Phantoms have yet to be beaten on their home hardwood and will go all out to preserve the streak.

Tar Heel Matmen Win Second Match Of Season With Victory Over 'Cats

Hearn, Thompson Gain Falls To Set Pace As Carolina Tops Davidson By 29-5 Score

By Irwin Smallwood

The Carolina men of the mats made it two in a row here in Woollen gym last night, turning back out-classed Davidson 29-5 in a Southern conference wrestling match. The Tar Heels defeated VPI in the opening match of the season a week ago.

Davidson started with a 10-point deficit by virtue of two forfeits, in the 145 and 155-pound classes. The Wildcat grapplers were not represented at all in these two classes, giving the Tar Heels a lead from the beginning, and Co-Captain Dick Seaver and Irv Zirpel were credited with the wins respectively.

Little Doug Thompson started the fights off with a bang after Zirpel and Seaver had put on an exhibition match to open the night's activities. Thompson, a freshman wrestler, pinned Davidson's C. C. Moore with a half-Nelson, body press in a minute and 26 seconds of the second period.

Tom Urquhart followed Thompson's triumph with a one-sided decision over Clyde Strupe in the 128-pound division, and Co-Captain Tommy Hearn ran his current victory string to eight in a row by defeating Rufus Long with a pin in two minutes and 33 seconds of the first period. Hearn was fighting one of the best men representing Davidson but gained the advantage over him with an initial take-down and went on to win by fall before the end of the first three minutes.

In the 165-pound battle, Oscar Gupton "out-muscled" Wildcat Walter Walker in a three-round decision to add three more points to the Tar Heel aggregate. His fight went nip and tuck during the opening round, but Gupton's superior condition and ability assured a victory midway in the second period.

"Battling" Bill Kemp, veteran Carolina wrestler, took the 175-pound bout with a decision over Bill Alexander in one of the "fightingest" matches of the night. Kemp took an early lead, but Alexander rallied momentarily before Kemp put the bout on ice.

Dick O'Hare, Davidson heavyweight, took the only points of the night for his team, winning by forfeit over Laurie Hooper in 10 seconds of the final period when the latter suffered an injured ankle. Hooper had just effected an escape when injured, giving him a 4-1 lead in points at the time of forfeit.

A crowd of some 750 persons witnessed the first home meet of the season for the Tar Heel matmen.

Fayetteville High Defeats Tar Babies By 37-30 Count

(Special to Daily Tar Heel)

Fayetteville, Jan. 27.—The Eastern Class AA Fayetteville high school basketball team handed the Carolina Freshman quint its third setback of the season here tonight 37-30 in a hard-fought court contest.

Sandy Hoft led the Tar Babies in the scoring column with eight markers, and Bill Walker was next in line with six. Sherrill of Fayetteville was high man for the night with 12 points, followed by his teammate Yates, who got nine.

Fayetteville led from the beginning, holding a 16-10 advantage at intermission, but the Carolina quint constantly pushed the local schoolboys in an attempt to overcome the six-point lead in the second half.

Coach Frank Murray's freshmen suffered their second loss of the season last Saturday night to High Point high school by a 36-28 margin and are slated to see action again tonight (Tuesday) in a preliminary to the Carolina-South Carolina tilt.

In Saturday's game, Gordon Curtis and Charlie Nichols were high scorers with six points apiece. The Tar Heels played minus the services of star center Sandy Hoft.

Sigma Chi, Fijis Take Mural Tilts

There were lean pickings on the intramural slate yesterday with only four cage contests and a pair of handball matches scheduled to be run off.

Sigma Chi No. 2 turned in the top performance of day as it rolled over ATO, 40-19, while Phi Gam No. 1 was turning back SAE No. 1, 34-22. Sigma Chi No. 1 beat Chi Psi 23-16, and Kappa Sigma No. 3 downed Zeta Psi No. 2, 28-18 in the remaining two clashes.

Down in the handball courts, the Phi Delts whitewashed PiKA by a 3-0 count. Sigma Nu won from Delta Sigma Pi by forfeit.

Mural director Walter Rabb announced yesterday that the regular Wednesday night badminton tournament will be held this week as planned. The pairings for the tourney will be made this afternoon by the mural office and will appear in tomorrow morning's paper.

All those who have signed up for the event are asked to check the listings and to be on time for their matches.

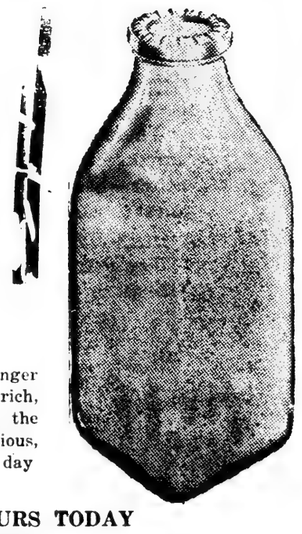
Wilkinson Sets Pace In Rifle Team Victory

T. H. Wilkinson member of the University's NROTC rifle team, scored 191 out of a possible 200 in pacing his team to a victory over Miami university rifle team last week. According to Capt. Lawrence W. Smith, Jr., USMC, officer in charge of the team, this is the highest score that has been fired at the Navy unit this year.



Wilkinson's team-mates and their scores were as follows: D. E. Adams—187. B. A. Wood—169. Fred Dale—172, and W. L. Vest—170. The Carolina Unit captured a score of 889 to Miami's 808.

'Le Cercle Francais' Club Will Reorganize Thursday

Because of numerous repeated requests from interested students at the University who are greatly interested in the French language, it has been decided to reestablish "Le Cercle Francais," a club whose sole prerequisite for membership is a desire to speak French. The first meeting of the club will be held Thursday evening at 7:30 o'clock in Graham Memorial. The program, to include an informal chat, games, and singing will be under the direction of M. A. Yarrow and refreshments will be served at the conclusion of the meeting.

Enrollment Not Necessary

All students interested in speaking French are urged to attend the first meeting. It is emphasized that the students need not be enrolled in a French class at the University—only a desire to speak French is necessary.

"Le Cercle Francais" functioned before the war, during which time some of its members wrote plays and articles which were immediate successes. It is hoped that the new French club will be even more active, especially in view of the number of returned veterans who had the opportunity to visit France while in the service.

Howard Duerr to Help In Bridge Instruction

Howard J. Duerr, instructor of philosophy at the University of Buffalo, will be in the Grail room at 5 o'clock every afternoon this week to teach bridge in collaboration with Howell Peacock, according to Martha Rice, Director of Graham Memorial. Duerr, former graduate student at the University of North Carolina, has become well-known in New York state for tournament playing.

NEWS BRIEFS

Truman Plans Mexican Trip

Presidential Visit To Last Three Days

Washington, Jan. 28—(UP)— The White House has disclosed that President Truman is going to pay an official state visit to Mexico City a little more than a month from now. And the President will make the trip by his favorite mode of travel—airplane. Tentative plans call for him to spend three days touring Mexico City and other sections of the country, as the guest of Mexico's new president Miguel Aleman.

Later on, Aleman will return the visit. The White House emphasizes, incidentally, that the visit will not be a vacation—but an official state trip in line with the "Good Neighbor" policy inaugurated by the late President Roosevelt.

Laraine Day Ordered To Face Divorce Court

Hollywood, Jan. 28—(UP)—Actress Laraine Day has been ordered to appear in court next Tuesday to explain why her California divorce should not be cancelled. Following the California divorce, Miss Day got another Mexican "quickie" divorce and married Leo (The Lip) Durocher. Nothing but trouble followed.

Atomic Energy Rumors Denied by Patterson

Washington, Jan. 28—(UP)—Secretary of War Patterson says rumors that the Civilian Atomic Energy commission would not properly safeguard atomic secrets are wholly unwarranted. He says there has been no change in the existing security regulations after atomic control was transferred from military to civilian hands.

Air Forces Commander Speaks on Air Wrecks

Washington, Jan. 28—(UP)— The deputy commander of the Army Air forces—Lieutenant General Eaker—told a Senate subcommittee that during recent months only 12 per cent of Army air accidents were caused by bad weather. He said normally 70 per cent of the air force crashes are blamed on pilot errors.

Georgia Government In Fiscal Stalemate

Atlanta, Jan. 28—(UP)— Georgia's state government has bogged down into a fiscal stalemate because of the dual governorship row. About two thousand state employees probably will not be paid on Saturday because the state Treasurer refuses to issue funds until the dispute is settled.

Saltonstall Requests Adoption of Measure

Washington, Jan. 28—(UP)—Senator Leverett Saltonstall of Massachusetts has urged the Senate to adopt his anti-filibuster bill which would limit debate by a majority rather than a two-thirds vote. The Republican says, "In this country we believe in the decision of the majority."

Poland Accused by US Of Controlled Election

Washington, Jan. 28—(UP)— The United States has formally accused the Polish provisional government of failing to carry out its pledge to hold free elections. The State Department says there was widespread intimidation against Democratic elements when the Polish people cast their ballots a week and a half ago.

Two Britons Reported Released by Zionists

Jerusalem, Jan. 28—(UP)—Authoritative sources say that the two Britons kidnapped in Palestine by the Jewish underground have been released.

Voting Is Light As UP Man Wins By Small Margin

By Bookie Jabine

In one of the lightest voting turnouts in the history of University politics, Bobby Broughton, University party candidate, defeated Ed York of the Student party, 355-269, for the post of representative-at-large to the Student council.

Jabie Heyward, head of the Elections board, stated that the total vote cast was 628.

Little Excitement

Few students passed through the doors of Gerrard hall which were open all day yesterday for polling. None of the regular election excitement was present as the "Y" court was virtually void of campaigners and handshakers during election hours.

The election yesterday was a run-off between the two candidates who ran in the general elections last December. In that race, Broughton received 577 votes to York's 465. Al Lowenstein, an independent, polled 411 ballots. The fact that Broughton did not receive a majority necessitated yesterday's run-off.

Student disinterest and the proximity to last quarter's election was responsible for the light vote, election spokesmen said.

Former Honor Council Member

New Councilman Broughton is a former member of the Honor council and the Student Legislature. He is a member of Phi Gamma Delta fraternity.

York, who conducted a more vigorous campaign than the winner, is president of the Interdormitory council and a member of the Student Welfare board.

Due to the light vote, Elections board officials had counted the ballots by 6 o'clock last evening. Four of the votes cast were disqualified, Heyward explained.

HumorShow Holds Final Auditions

Sound and Fury will hold its final tryouts and casting this afternoon from 2 to 6 in the main lounge of Graham Memorial.

All those who have signed up for work on the current production and new persons interested are requested to put in an appearance between these hours.

Casting of the thus far unnamed musical will be completed this weekend and rehearsals are scheduled to get underway the first of next week.

WORLD FEDERALISTS

There will be a meeting of the Student World Federalists group this afternoon at 4:15 in the Grail room of Graham Memorial.

WSSF Request Student Help

Food, Books, Clothes Needed by Foreigners

"Students are asked not to give, but to invest in the World Student Service fund," Earle Page told the newly-named solicitors for the WSSF campaign beginning here February 10, last evening in Gerrard hall.

Textbooks, clothing, food and medical care are urgently needed by students in foreign countries, and, Page said, "We have what they need." Plants have been demolished, there is a great shortage of teachers, and students in many countries, who feel they have a responsibility toward their homelands and fellow men, have begun teaching classes for their elders.

The adults are learning to read and write under student tutelage, Page explained, and are learning the workings of their government. American students, therefore are being asked to give, and give sacrificially, in support of the campaign, he concluded.

Stuart, Morenus Direct Drive

Information for solicitors was distributed by Gay Morenus and Walt Stuart, campus co-chairmen. Speaking before the group, Morenus explained "We have a large quota—$5500—and we have got to get an average of a dollar from each student we contact."

Duke University's campaign, with a quota of $5000, will begin the same day that the UNC campaign gets under way. Twin thermometers are to be placed outside the YMCA, and reports will be recorded daily.

Vets' Club to Honor Kenan Coeds Tonight

This evening the doors of the Veterans club will be thrown open for the coeds of Kenan dormitory.

The escort committee will meet at the club at 8 o'clock and call for the coeds by 8:30. The club will supply the music and the Liggett-Myers Tobacco company has guaranteed plenty of free cigarettes. Ben Douglas will officiate as the master of ceremonies during the floor show. Highlights of the program will be songs by Moffitt Sherard, a humorous skit by the Gordon twins, and Jack Borney at the piano.

WESLEY COUNCIL

Wesley foundation council will meet at the Methodist church tonight immediately after vespers. President Bob Dulin has requested all students who are planning to attend the State Student conference in Greensboro, February 15, to be present.

Vespers will be at 7:15, the meeting at 7:15 and the weekly Bible class at 8 o'clock.

Special Assemblies Called For Freshmen, Sophomores

Two special meetings, the first of their kind in several years, have been called for this afternoon in Gerrard hall to take the initial step forward organizing the freshman and sophomore classes.

Students in their sophomore year will meet at 4 o'clock followed by a meeting of all freshmen at 5 o'clock.

All students who do not have over 36 quarter hours will be considered a member of the freshman class while members of the sophomore class has been defined as "any student who has attended the University more than three quarters and has between 36 and 84 academic hour credits.

A spokesman for the group stated yesterday that "a nominating committee will be chosen at the meeting to prepare a nomination list for class officers and it is urgent that every freshman and sophomore attend their respective meetings."

Dewey Dorsett to Speak On Student Constitution

President to Recommend List of Amendments At Meeting of Legislature Tomorrow Night

By Barron Mills

Interest in the Student Constitution is expected to reach an all-time high tomorrow night in Gerrard hall when Dewey Dorsett, president of the Student Body, will recommend a list of amendments to the Legislature. In announcing his plans for presenting the constitutional changes Dorsett stated that "many people don't like the idea and have already tried to stop the changes."

The Constitution committee headed by Dorsett began its work back in the summer and has spent considerable time since then planning the amendments that will be recommended to the Legislature tomorrow night. Members of the Constitution committee were selected from all parties represented on campus and from all phases of the student government. Included in its membership are: Fran Golden, Ray Jefferies, Bill Tate, Charles Warren, John Surratt, Charlie Vance, and Tom Eller.

The Student Legislature will meet at 7 o'clock in Gerrard hall tomorrow night instead of the regular hour, announced Charles Warren, speaker. The change was made in order to finish the meeting before the basketball game at 8:30 o'clock.

The committee began its investigations following Dean Weaver's report, which in effect stated that the constitution as it was passed is now in effect on campus with the exception of the clauses dealing with the fee structure.

Although Dorsett has not disclosed the exact nature of the recommended changes it is thought that the majority of the amendments will be in regard to the fee structure of student government.

Expert to Assist Tourney Aspirants

H. J. Duerr, famous bridge teacher and tournament director, will be on campus this week as a guest of Graham Memorial to assist UNC bridge players who have been invited to compete in the intercollegiate bridge tournament in Chicago in April. Duerr, now on vacation between semesters from duties as instructor in the philosophy department at the University of Buffalo, will be in the Grail room of Graham Memorial each afternoon at 5 o'clock to lecture on advanced playing techniques and bidding.

Howell Peacock, Graham Memorial bridge director, announced that he is still on the lookout for undergraduate students who feel qualified to play in the Intercollegiate tourney. Elimination will begin as soon as the Chicago officials send the bridge hands to Carolina. The officials will grade the bidding and play of the students and determine the ability of each contestant.

CARTERET CLUB MEETS

The Carteret county club will meet tonight at 7 o'clock in the north end of the main lounge in Graham Memorial. Yackety Yack pictures will be made at this time.

General College Shows Majority; AdmissionsDown

By Bill Sexton

Despite a jump in enrollment of several hundred students predicted for the winter quarter by University officials last fall, the student body has increased by only 92 students since the fall term, Central Records Office Director E. S. Lanier said yesterday. Final enrollment total for the winter quarter, Lanier says, is 6893—compared to the fall term's 6802.

Over 600 Withdraw

A total of 747 new students have registered at the University, but an unexpected 656, after the last quarter, withdrew, graduated, or failed to return, the Central Records office's figures revealed. Admissions officials had predicted before Christmas that approximately 500 new students would register in place of an estimated 250 withdrawals.

Largest division of the University at Chapel Hill is the General college, which lists 2885 students. The College of Arts and Sciences is second with 1664 registrants. 1034 students are registered with the School of Commerce.

Enrollments in other branches of the University include the Graduate school, with a total of 753, Law school (217), Library Science (32), Medicine (79), Pharmacy (184), Public Health (122), and Social work (39)

Officials Reach No Decisions On Victory Village Rentals

FPHA Representative Rejects UVA's Plan Which Set $11 as Average Rent Reduction

By Ed Joyner

FPHA, OPA, UVA, and University officials deliberated on the subject of lower rents in Victory Village for two and a half hours yesterday afternoon without reaching any decision which will immediately affect the rents now in effect. Recommendations made by Ruffin Bailey, spokesman for the University Veterans association committee, to lower rents an average of $11 on the different types of living accommodations in the Village were rejected by Federal Public Housing agency representative H. L. Sullivan. Sullivan commented that the figures which the committee advocated as a fair rent based on values of comparable property were "cock-eyed."

Further Consider

Only concrete decision to come out of the discussion was that University Business Manager C. E. Teague and Superintendent of Utilities J. S. Bennett, with the advice of Forrest Pollard, OPA director attorney for the Chapel Hill area and with a UVA observer, will settle upon what they consider a fair rent for the housing development and submit it to the Atlanta FPHA office for approval.

The group proposed that a committee of student veterans be set up to act upon applications of Victory Village residents for rent adjustments. Adjustments are made when rents consume more than 25 per cent of the resident's income.

Participants

Bailey and Prof. F. W. Hanft of the law school faculty were the chief spokesmen for the student veterans group, with UVA President Roy Moose, Tom Mitchell, Tom Cole, and Hugh Wells also taking part in the discussion. Teague and Bennett represented the University while Sullivan was present for the FPHA and Pollard and W. E. Byrd, Jr., attended the meeting for the OPA.

Sullivan also gave the opinion that the FPHA would consider favorably an application from the student buyers' cooperative to rent one of the Victory Village structures for use as a store.

IRC Members Discuss Marshall at Meeting

"Which way with Marshall?" was the topic under discussion at the weekly meeting of the International Relations club Monday night with John Bristow as presiding officer.

Stuart Lucas opened the meeting with a report on General George C. Marshall, presenting a brief resume of Marshall's past experience, giving examples of praise he had received from many high sources, and stating the 3 main problems which face Marshall today—acquaintance with American foreign policy, selection of personal staff and advisor, and consultation with the President on changes in the State department .

Lucas's report was met with controversy by Vincent Williams who expressed much fear with regard to the fact that our government seemed to be taken over by the military. The discussion then became an open one, and centered mostly around the non-military and military aspects of the government. Bob Rolnick closed the meeting with a few comments concerning the direction our foreign policy will now take.

At next week's meeting the speaker will be a Dutch student, Henrietta Rooserberg, who will speak for the World Student Service Fund.

TOURNEY TONIGHT

Due to the basketball game last night, the weekly bridge tournament was postponed until tonight. Regular starting time remains at 7 o'clock in the main lounge of the student union.

Kinston Coed Is Featured In Playmakers Production

By Brooksie Popkins

Maude Baynor Foy of Kinston is featured in the role of Esmeralda, the danseuse in a troupe of acrobats, in "The Bartered Bride," a comic opera jointly produced by the Carolina Playmakers and the University department of music, to be given in Memorial hall Friday and Saturday evenings.

Before Maude graduated from Kinston high school, where she was active in dramatic work, she had attended summer school at Carolina and studied with the Junior Playmakers. In the five summer sessions she was with the Junior Playmakers she appeared in many one-act plays on the campus.

Drama at G C

Maude entered Greensboro college for her first two years of undergraduate work. While she was there she studied voice, sang with the glee club and was active in the dramatic organization.

Coming to Carolina last year, Maude majored in dramatic art and continued her voice training. She sang a solo with the glee club when they toured last year and did technical work in two Carolina Playmaker major productions, "The White Steed" and "The Chimes of Normandy." The role of Esmeralda will be her first public performance with the Playmakers since her summer school acting.

All seats for "The Bartered Bride" are reserved, and tickets are now on sale at Ledbetter-Pickard's and the Playmakers business office. Admission is $1.00, or by Playmakers season ticket, or by Student Entertainment season ticket.

Pros and Cons of Publications Board Question Are Aired

Robert Morrison, former DAILY TAR HEEL editor, and president of the Publications board has stated below the official views of the Publications board as he sees them, for keeping their meetings closed. We believe Mr. Morrison has several good points. However, in many instances we do not agree with him. Therefore, we are running this article as a forum on the question interspersing the views of the DAILY TAR HEEL in italics. We request you to weigh both sides of the question as stated here, and then draw your own conclusions.

By Robert Morrison
President, Publications Board

The recent columns and editorial questioning the Publications Board have undoubtedly caused the student body to desire to know more of the facts. It is in view of this desire that the following facts are given here.

First, I want to say that I have no objection to open meetings of the Publications Board. I would not object to the Board's meeting as the student legislature now meets, however I have great respect for the wishes of the other members of the Board, and if they desire closed meetings, I know that their desire is logical, honest, and sane. If a majority of the members of the Board can better serve the student body by following the present procedure, I do not feel that this procedure, based upon the following facts, should be changed.

As a former editor, Mr. Morrison realizes the necessity of the Board's constantly consulting with the editors of the three publications to better supervise their finances. We appreciate his sentiments on this, and agree that the members of the Board opposed to open meetings are honest and sane in their desire for private sessions. However, we believe that if we are privileged to sit in on all of the discussions concerning our respective publications, as we may sometimes desire to do, we may aid the group in reaching the best decisions. Though we favor having a Board completely made up of the editors and business managers of the three publications with two faculty MEMBERS on the Board from the journalism and commerce departments, we believe the functions of the present Board will be infinitely improved if they can get all of the facts from those who know them.

(1) Since the institution of the Publications Union Board on this campus many student generations ago, meetings of the Board have regularly been closed.

1. In our eyes this is no reason whatsoever for its continuing to do so. This fact has indisputedly ALWAYS been the course of a very great deal of friction between the Board and the publications, as Mr. Morrison will readily admit. PRECEDENT IS NOT NECESSARILY A BASIS FOR REASON!

(2) Other fee-spending student boards and councils hold secret meetings, for example, the Student Council, the Men's Council, the Graham Memorial Board of Directors, the Debate Council, the Women's Council, and others.

2. These groups deal with personal problems! The functions of the Board are specifically restricted to financial matters by the new student constitution. Therefore, as no personal element should enter into their decisions, their meetings might just as well be open. The fact that meetings have been closed in the past has often allowed the Board to usurp non-granted powers, and often bring personal prejudices into their decisions. Open meetings would prevent this.

Also, the constitution makes no provision for closed meetings. Therefore, the question of the constitutionality of their holding closed sessions must be left up to the Student council. We maintain the Board itself has no right to prohibit those of us who are directly concerned with their decisions from hearing their discussion. We further maintain that their vote should well be taken in secret, but ALL discussion should be made with the stipulation that all parties directly concerned be allowed to listen in.

(3) All action taken by the Board dealing with student funds is made public by publication of audits in the student newspaper, by publication of news accounts, by announcement to staff officers, and by information supplied to individual students.

3. Right! Very detailed reports of the Board's decisions are always promptly released. But the reasons behind their decisions, we often feel are fallacious. Many of these decisions are decided by those who do not know the facts. With those who know the facts (i.e., the editors) sitting in on their discussions, whenever there is any doubt, the correct information will be available.

(4) The Board employs a professor of economics to sit with the Board, offer financial advice, and manage the financial records of the Board.

4. This person, Professor J. M. Lear, is one of the most competent people concerned with the Board. As he is usually the only one in the meetings who knows all of the facts pertinent to the financial status of publications, he should just as well be a full-fledged member of the group, instead of a non-voting adviser.

(5) All funds and financial transactions handled by the Board are checked through the Student Audit Board and the Student Audit Fund office.

5. Excellent procedure. The honesty and good intentions of the Publications board have never been questioned. However, the fact that their accounts are kept straight has no particular bearing on this present question of private meetings!

(6) Accurate bookkeeping and auditing of all financial matters are carefully adhered to.

6. Again we agree. Accurate records are kept. Is this a reason for holding closed sessions?

(7) Every conceivable financial loophole has been plugged—there is no certain opportunity for the misuse of student funds.

7. The only certain opportunity for misuse of student funds is their MISAPPROPRIATION! Is this not as great a crime as embezzling?

(8) The duly elected and appointed members often find that work can be accomplished more efficiently if the meeting place is not filled with a number of disturbing influences.

8. We do not wish to interfere with the Board's procedure in any way. We wish to help them. Until this present fracas of our being ejected from last week's session, when we requested permission to stay to hear the minutes read, very seldom had a student outside of the publication concerned ever requested permission to sit in on a Board meeting. We would like to observe ALL of their discussion, (not their voting) and if we believe they are wrongly slanting some matters, we would request the floor to point out certain facts they might have missed.

(9) Any student wishing to bring legitimate business before the Board will never be denied admittance to the meeting.

9. True. The Board will allow any student to present business to it, upon written application, and a vote of admittance. The student may present his case. Then the Board may question him and discuss it in his presence, or, as is usually the case, they will request he leave, and then discuss the value of the facts he has presented before voting upon it.

(10) When personalities and money are involved in controversy, much embarrassment and unnecessary damage to reputations can be avoided if the matter is not settled in a public meeting.

10. We believe we are old enough to hear ourselves talked about! So why do it behind our backs? Though the business of the Board is theoretically purely financial, personalities admittedly often enter into their affairs. Thus, we believe that by thrashing out problems openly, some Board members often may rid themselves both of prejudices and of a great deal of ignorance of true facts!

Recent printed writings have rather vaguely attacked the make-up of the Board. I'm not quite sure what is under fire here, for I understand the make-up of the Board to be:

(1) The student members of the Board are elected democratically by the student body each year under the constitution of student government.

(2) The faculty members of the Board are usually nominated by the student members, and the appointments are usually ratified by the chancellor of the University. Although the chancellor has the power to reject the student nominations, the chancellor has almost invariably respected the student choice.

(3) The officers of the Board are elected by the Board; although eligible, the faculty members rarely accept office.

DTH Columnist Jud Kinberg wrote, "The . . . faculty members . . . have ranged from damn poor to indifferent." I cannot agree with this observation. The present faculty members are Dr. Lyman Cotten and Mr. W. A. Olsen. Dr. Cotten is an excellent scholar of sound judgment and immense popularity with his students. His opinions are carefully meditated and no one can justly maintain that he does not command considerable respect and admiration. Mr. Olsen, full professor of English, teaches one of the most popular courses in the University. He is a man of great personal understanding, many social graces, and a wide knowledge of parliamentary procedure, public affairs, and student government. Two other recent faculty members were Dr. William Wells, recently appointed Dean of the College of Arts and Sciences, and Mr. Roy Parker, owner of a chain of state newspapers and member of the University Department of Journalism. That faculty members have ranged from "damn poor to indifferent" is a false and cheap denunciation.

So here we ARE getting down to personalities. Most of the above facts are very true. Again, it should be remembered that Mr. Kinberg, as a DTH columnist, speaks purely for himself, and his views VERY often do not reflect those of the editors. But we think many of the faculty members have been poor. Though they are excellent in their own field, please remember they studied for YEARS to learn the values of political science, geology, or English, and not of the daily newspaper, a good printing job, and rising engraving costs. The honest ignorance of some faculty members makes them dangerous men to be manipulating funds of the students.

And Mr. Roy Parker is without a doubt one of the best choices for a member of the Publications board in many, many years.

The members of the Publications Board perform a number of tedious tasks and receive no compensation and little praise. The Board desires to carry out the informed wishes of the student body. If the present opposition represented the carefully considered opinion of many disinterested students, the Board, I feel, would immediately change its policy of closed meetings. It would be to their advantage and conscience to do so.

Their work is indeed hard and often dull. And this all the more reason for their being competent and making correct decisions!

Again let us say, we know the present Board is competent, but we believe our case as stated here represents the sentiments of nearly every interested student on the campus. For over 20 precedent-scarred years this problem has festered! It's time to correct it!

Iron Curtain Is Raised To Reveal Soviet Mind

By Earl Heffner

Soviet Russia recently lifted its Iron Curtain long enough to give observers a dual peak into the psychological workings of the Slavic mind and the scientific results of research and industry.

First Feodor T. Gousev, Deputy Soviet Foreign Minister, opposed the admission of smaller powers to discussion of the German treaty by arguing at the London conference that the four Great Powers had "paid in blood" for the right to dictate the peace terms without interference.

Whether the Big Four can work out the most just treaty or not isn't a subject that may be determined satisfactorily prior to actual formation of the treaty terms.

What is apparent to even the most ardent of pro-Russians and anti-Russians is the fact that the Soviet is playing the international game of power politics. Whether the purpose is to protect Russia, to seek an intelligent treaty, or to prepare—as alarmists would say—for eventual expansion, can't be determined at this time.

It is possible to question the reasoning behind opposition to admittance of the smaller powers at the treaty conference.

In a recent editorial, The Charlotte Observer clearly and forcefully showed the fallaciousness of this argument advanced by the Soviet with the following comments:

"And in what coin, may we ask Mr. Gousev, did the smaller nations pay?

"If Norway, Denmark, Holland, Belgium, Poland, Czechoslovakia, Yugoslavia, and Greece did not pay in blood, they surrendered a currency still more precious.

"Norway paid with its liberty, Denmark with its self-respect, Belgium and Holland with their sons and daughters carried off into slavery and degradation, Poland with the victims of Buchenwald, Czechoslovakia with Lidice, and a hundred similar crimes, Yugoslavia by being delivered from one butcher to another, and Greece with the starvation of its people."

Only one comment may be added to the Observer editorial for the information of Mr. Gousev.

If this payment isn't also a blood donation, then what is? Also, it might be added that in proportion, the smaller nations paid a greater blood toll than did the Four Powers.

Also sneaking into small print of late is the intimation by a Russian statesman that the United States should not count too greatly on the atomic bomb, that Russia has either a defense for the bomb or a bomb of its own.

It would be encouraging to think that a defense for the weapon has been developed; conversely, it would be discouraging to know that the bomb secret has been rediscovered in another nation. Either or both of these are a possibility.

Unfortunately, it is obvious that the Russian intimation is another trump or bluff in the international poker game of power politics.

History will record the effectiveness of the Soviet stand.

Good, Strong Cigar Becoming Badge of Distinction Today

By Jud Kinberg

"In America today, the cigar is becoming the badge for distinction. Different styles, shapes and prices clearly mark out social classes and professions."

Coming across that piece of cogent reasoning in the midst of a night's perusal set me to thinking about such things as cigars. They've become more than a smoke. If properly utilized, the bulky wads of rolled tobacco leaf can help stratify our society.

Several years ago I remember a movement among Radio City junior executive hussksters to have cigars according to Dunn and Bradstreet ratings. It seems some flunkies had been cleaning out the White Owl "Junior Executive" shape from local tobacco stands. The plan would have had every stand plugged in to D & B so that immediate check on a man's financial status could determine the type of cigar to which he was entitled. I never found out how the advertising boys did in selling that sort of soft soap.

But here at Carolina, at this heterogenious campus of some 7,000 souls, the "cigar badge" might help us distinguish the hoi from the paloi. In best Southern tradition, our campaigning politicians should be sold only the long, black ones that bulge out of every Southern candidates breast pocket. These would have an added advantage: we'd be able to smell the politicos long before they move into sight, or can you already?

Once elected, solons could graduate to the heavy round shape that stays lit through any number of speeches. For the leaders of the legislatures we could order king-size sizes to retreat behind.

Not to forget publications, I suggest the stubby, well-smoked variety. Nothing looks more pontifical and astute than a masticated cigar poling from a scowling visage. For my fellow columnist-snoopers, I think the short, Entre-Actes would be best. Then, when forced to leave the cigar behind in some quick-opening keyhole, the loss would not be prohibitive.

I've only started on the subject. Amplification is as vast as the varied types parading about the school. I'm afraid that convention will exclude women from this jiffy classification system at present. Other than that, though, no one should be excluded. No longer will we say hello to insignificant people or slight potentates.

Let's get everyman behind the right cigar and organize the campus!

Carolina Merry-Go-Round

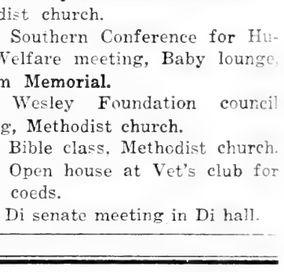
By Bob Jones and Bill Robertson

It is unfortunate that we find men holding high positions in our government discussing the present world situation in a vague and abstract manner. Mr. Herschel V. Johnson in his speech at the convocation in Memorial Hall Friday morning brought to our attention the "growth of nationalism" throughout the world. In the course of his speech we heard such phrases as "nationalism" that "satisfied human feelings," "nationalism in its most brutal form," dynamic nationalism," etc.

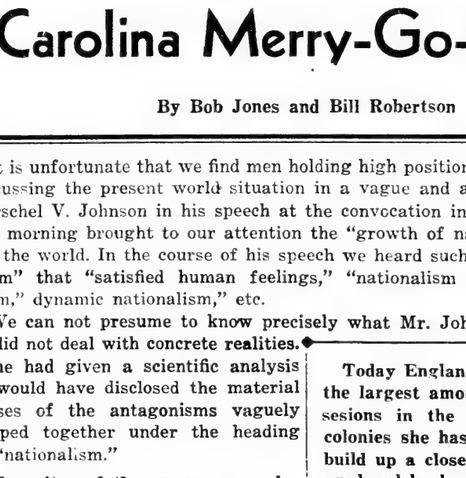
We can not presume to know precisely what Mr. Johnson meant because he did not deal with concrete realities. If he had given a scientific analysis he would have disclosed the material causes of the antagonisms vaguely lumped together under the heading of "nationalism."

In spite of the vague way in which Mr. Johnson treats the subject, we are faced with a problem in international relations. This problem may be stated briefly as the problem of the economic contradictions between various nations.

Let us take a concrete example. Today our nation is the most powerful industrial nation in the world. The limitations of our system do not allow us to buy back all that we produce. Therefore, our business men must seek for foreign markets.



Today England is the nation with the largest amount of colonial possesions in the world. Within her colonies she has tried very hard to build up a closed market for goods produced by her industries.



Does it take a great deal of thought to see this as the concrete basis of all sorts of antagonisms between American and British businessmen? Of course there are political, social, and ideological antagonisms between the various nations of the world. But the causes for these antagonisms are to be found in the already existing relations between these nations. Let us study these relations and let us keep our feet on the ground while we are doing it.—B. R.

CAROLINA WILL NOT play the University of Shanghai this fall. That's official. But they will play Georgia here in Kenan stadium September 27 if present plans materialize. The most definite information available at present comes via the United Press and states that Carolina is on a tentative Georgia schedule.

Coach Bob Fetzer, director of athletics here at Carolina, said last night that there was nothing he could say on the subject, and that when and if an official statement was released, it would have to come from Athens, Ga., not from Chapel Hill.

It has been known for some time that negotiations were underway to match Carolina and Georgia in a game next fall, but several bottlenecks have held up formal announcement. Yesterday morning a story came from the Atlanta Constitution and the pen of John Bradberry that Carolina would be host to the Bulldogs in Chapel Hill next fall, and newspapers all over the state picked up that story and all other rumors at hand and made it into a story that fairly assured the meeting.

There has still been no official contract for the game at this writing, but we are of the opinion that the announcement will be forthcoming very soon. When that official announcement comes, the Daily Tar Heel will pass it on to you. We didn't carry a story on the game this morning or previous to this writing because we and all concerned had been requested not to speculate on the game in the press. However, it did leak out to the press and we are giving you all the facts we have at present. Negotiations are taking place and in all probability the game will be played as rumored.

If the Georgia game is played as planned, that leaves only more open date n the Carolina slate for 1947, and that final game will more than likely be secured within a week or so . . . Games definitely on the schedule so far include Texas, Tennessee, Duke, Wake Forest, Maryland, William and Mary, Virginia and Florida. Georgia will make No. 9, and No. 10 will fill out the Tar Heel slate.

Dick Jamerson, the gentleman of Carolina swimming teams, has been named to the National AAU swimming committees for the men and women. It is a compliment to the veteran Tar Heel swimming coach, and we speak for the student body in congratulating Jamerson. His swimmers will be after their 27th consecutive conference triumph when they meet VPI there this weekend. . .The Tar Heel Jayvee basketball team, undefeated in six games so far this season, will be trying to make it seven in a row against High Point college's 'B' team there tonight. The Jayvees have been playing good ball all year and deserve a lot of praise for their efforts. . .Johnny Pesky, the former Carolina Pre-Flight baseball star who last year was an important cog in the Boston Red Sox pennant-winning team, killed rumors yesterday that he would jump to the Mexican league by signing his 1947 Bosox contract . . . Buddy Luper, Duke football star last season who has one more year of eligibility, will not be with the Blue Devils next season. He has already graduated from Duke and plans to begin his coaching career soon. Center Frank Sinkovitz and Guard Ernie Knotts had previously quit school . . Again from Duke, Buck Cheek, who started on the Blue Devil basketball team last season, will reenter school for the winter and spring semester.

The Tar Heel wrestling team, directed by Chuck Quinlan and Assistant Hobie McKeever, put on the first home show of the season Monday night—before a crowd of just 750. It was the second win in as many matches for the Carolina matmen, who are top contenders to win the Southern conference crown this year. What say we come out and give them a little more support at the next home match? They deserve our support, so let's give it to them.

"Kokey" Kohler of the Phantoms ...

NORM "KOKEY" KOHLER, stellar guard from New York, was one of the big guns in the Carolina attack last night, playing an outstanding floor game. Kohler played freshman ball at L. I. U. before coming to Carolina.

Chi Phi, Lewis Dorm Gain Easy Mural Cage Victories

Lambda Chi, ZBT, Grads Also Take Wins; DKE, KA Score Triumphs in Handball Tourney

Chi Phi No. 2 continued to loom as the leading mural cage powerhouse yesterday afternoon as it rolled over Sigma Nu No. 3, 97-19, while Lewis was leading the way in the dorm circuit with a 63-37 win over Alexander No. 1.

In other games, the Independents downed Whitehead, 27-17; ZBT No. 1 topped Beta No. 3, 33-15; Lambda Chi edged KA No. 2, 18-14; and the Grads snowed Old East, 51-16.

Over in the mural handball league, DKE shutout Zeta Psi, 3-0, as KA took the measure of ZBT, 2-1.

Play in the mural badminton tourney will continue tonight with the first matches slated to get underway promptly at seven. All contestants are cautioned to be on time for their tilts.

Tonight's badminton pairings:

Tin Can—Mixed doubles, 7:00—court no. 1, Davis-Davis v. Crockford-Jackson; court no. 2, Blunt-partner v. Taylor-Taylor.

Blue Dolphins Work For Meet With VPI

The Blue Dolphins continued their preparation for the Virginia Tech swimmers with a lengthy workout under the watchful eyes of mentor Dick Jamerson. The Carolina mermen will be on the rebound when they meet the Gobblers and will be gunning for their 25th consecutive loop win.

Little is known about the Tech tankmen, but there will be more knowledge available after they meet Duke Thursday. Their meet with the Blue Devils will be their first conference contest, although they already have a win over the University of Virginia under their belts.

Jayvee Cagers Meet Panther Five Tonight

Coach Lew Hayworth's cagers seek their seventh consecutive victory tonight when the journey to High Point to engage the High Point College jayvee five.

Starting for the jayvees will be Junie Bailey and Fred Swartzburg at the forward posts, Dan Nyimicz at center, and Harvey Weinstein and Marks Nathan as guards.

Also making the trip to High Point are Buster Stevenson, Ed Wagner, Bill von Bramer, Dave Mackie, Bill Henson, and John Wilson.

Ranson Uncertain About Broad Jump

The broad jump is about the most uncertain of all events this season for Tar Heel mentor Dale Ranson.

There are two returning lettermen in school, E. T. Van Hecke and Leonard Briley. These boys are now working and trying to improve themselves. Their top ceiling has been a little better than 21 feet.

Johnny Jones is also out for the event and is in the same class with the lettermen. Others out for this event are Tommy Jacobs, Guy Jackson, and Joe Corpening.

Any boys in school who have had any experience at all in broad jumping are urged to come down and work out. Coaches Hilton and Ranson again stressed yesterday the necessity of having more freshmen down at the workouts so that plans for frosh competition for both the indoor and outdoor seasons can be completed.

Hamilton Tallies 17 Points In Thrill-Packed Ball Game

Dillon Scores 14 Points as Runnerup; Adams Paces Visitors With 16 Markers

By Irwin Smallwood

Jim "Daddy of 'em all" Hamilton, diminutive White Phantom forward, dropped in a foul shot with a minute and 30 seconds left to play here last night, and that one-point that sent Carolina into the lead proved the winning margin as the Tar Heels took a well-earned conference victory from South Carolina by a 50-49 score.

South Carolina's Gamecocks, the best team the Phants have faced in Woollen gym all year, battled nip and tuck with Coach Tom Scott's charges throughout the ball game, and more thrills were packed into that last minute and 30 seconds than are usually seen all night.

With the Tar Heels leading by their slim one-point margin, the Gamecocks finally succeeded in breaking up the freezing operation and necessitate a jump ball with 32 seconds to play. The visitors managed to get the ball and take a shot at the basket before the Phants tied them up on the floor and another jump ball was called in the South Carolina foul circle.

Norm "Kokey" Kohler batted the ball down the field on the first jump, but the Gamecocks recovered the ball and came up and the referees called another jump ball amid the mass of human bodies clamoring for possession of the ball. Time was running out with the second jump, but the clock was stopped with another tieup. On the third jump, and with something like five second remaining in the game, Jim White leaped into the air and batted the ball down into the Carolina fore-court, where a South Carolina man retrieved the ball just as the gun sounded ending the ball game.

Hamilton, the scoring leader for the night, bucketed 17 points in leading Carolina to its eighth triumph of the season. Dillon followed Hamilton with 14 markers for the Phantom cause. Bob Paxton was next with seven and White in fourth place with six. Al Adams, giant Gamecock pivot man, led his mates with 16 markers, and Henry Martin followed Adams in the scoring column with 13 points. All night South Carolina's red hot set shot artists kept the Tar Heel five hopping. The lads from South of the border were in the lead, 21-20, at halftime and during the final minutes kept either one point ahead or tied with the Tar Heels.

Paxton, playing his reliable floor game, kept things under control most of the time under the boards, and the ham-handed forward played the entire game without relief as did Hamilton. Reserves Jim Hayworth, Taylor Thorne and Shearman Nearman played important parts in the victory with their outstanding relief playing for the starters. Thorne and Hayworth both broke through for crucial field goals while in the game.

Hamilton, with three minutes to go, put on an excellent display of floor play and shooting when he dribbled the entire length of the field and dropped in a one-handed push shot. He made eight out of 15 shots from the floor in pacing the Phantom scorers.

In the preliminary game, the Carolina freshman quint dropped a 45-51 contest to the Carolina Phys Ed Majors. Julian Smith paced the winners with 14 points, while Pete Peters was high for the Frosh with 12 markers.

It was the second straight loss for the Freshmen, who play Danville in a prelim to the Carolina-Wake Forest game here tomorrow night.

Betty Smith's Latest Novel Also Has Brooklyn Setting

Betty Smith, author of "A Tree Grows in Brooklyn," recently returned to Chapel Hill after a three-months visit in Switzerland, just in time for the appearance of her latest book, "Tomorrow Will Be Better," which is expected to reach sales counters this week.

Betty's newest novel has a Brooklyn locale, but the author says it is not a sequel to "A Tree Grows in Brooklyn" which brought her fame.

No Brooklyn Emphasis

"The emphasis is not on Brooklyn," Betty explained. "It's just a book about people. It'll be much shorter than the first one, a much tighter story. There are only two or three main characters, and I've spent more time on them. In the new book I try to put the story against the Brooklyn background which I described in much detail in 'The Tree'."

"The Street of Little Promise" was the original title of the novel but the publishers, Harper's, changed the title.

In Switzerland Betty wrote a movie scenario on the subject of "American Youth" for Swiss producer Lazar Wechsler. Filming of the movie will take place in the United States.

Students Are Learning About America–Report

Washington, D. C.—(I.P.)—American college students are learning more about America. So reports Dr. Robert Whitney Bolwell, chairman of the George Washington University's Graduate Council, who ten years ago originated the American Thought and Civilization major now being offered by a dozen leading universities.

It was inaugurated on this campus as a distinct departure from the long established programs of studies which teded to associate "culture and learning" only with "things European."

Dr. Bolwell reports that studies about America are becoming increasingly popular with students and faculties. Students majoring in diverse fields choose to study American courses as electives, Dr. Bolwell points out. To meet demands of these students as well as to broaden the program of studies for the major, many new courses dealing with American life have been introduced here and at other schools during the past decade.

DuPont Announces Fellowship Fund

The DuPont company announced today that it is awarding 75 post-graduate and doctorate fellowships to 46 universities for the academic year, 1947-48.

Each post-graduate fellowship provides $1,200 for single person while married scholars are granted $1,800. The university receives $1,000. The post-doctoral awards carry an award of $3,000 with the university getting $1,500.

As in the past the selection of nominees is left to the institutions. The individual is under no obligation with respect to employment after he completes his work.

Post-graduate fellowships have been awarded in chemistry, chemical engineering, mechanical engineering, and physics, while post-doctorate awards have been granted in chemistry.

NC, SC Kappa Alphas Will Convene Friday

Members of the Kappa Alpha order from North and South Carolina will gather at Chapel Hill Friday and Saturday for their annual Smith Province Council meeting.

Nine KA chapters from every prominent college in the two Carolinas will send delegates to the meet, which includes banquets, dances, and important business sessions.

Such prominent Carolinians as Dr. Hubert Poteat, Wake Forest professor of Latin, and Rev. McLeod Frampton, Chester, S. C., Smith Province commander, will attend the meetings.

28 EYES CAN'T MISS

Portales, N. M. (UP)—Thanks to the keen eyes of someone in a group of 14 (count 'em) New Mexico college sorority sisters riding in one (that's right) car, a large feed warehouse was saved from heavy damage in a fire. The girls reported the blaze in time for it to be brought under control.

Utilities Head Promises Better Long Distance Service

Official Sees Scarcity of New Telephones Continuing Indefinitely Due to Shortages

By Sigsbee Miller

Grey Culbreth, manager of the University's utilities department, today promised an efficiency increase of nearly 50 per cent in the handling of outgoing long distance telephone calls by March 1 but said that the shortage of new telephones might not be relieved for many more months.

Southern Bell Telephone company of Raleigh is installing a cable that will add 10 lines to the 23 long distance lines now operating out of Chapel Hill, Culbreth said. The new lines will be in operation by March 1 and will be handled by the two operators now on long distance service. A third operator will join the staff by next August, when a new switchboard will go into operation, he said.

Blame Budgeteers

Culbreth held the refusal of the Budget commission in Raleigh to approve requests for additional utilities appropriations for the next biennium, along with the difficulty in getting new materials responsible for the telephone company's inability to install the new lines that are needed.

As a part of the University, the utilities department is unable to put any of its profits into capital investment for expansion of its present facilities, Culbreth explained. However, he said, efforts to procure more telephones will continue.

Twenty-five new lines, ordered in June, 1945, have recently been installed and 175 more lines remain on order. On the other side of the picture the telephone company has applications for 240 new telephones and this figure, Culbreth said, would be much higher if that were any indication that new lines were available. Complete relief of the Chapel Hill telephone shortage, he estimated, would entail the installation of more than 400 telephones at a cost of around $10,000.

Not Peculiar Here

"This situation is not peculiar to Chapel Hill," he pointed out. "The same shortage exists all over the country. Even if we had the money for expansion it would still be very difficult to get new lines, instruments and cable."

Culbreth said there was no immediate prospect of adding more telephones to the men's dormitories, adding: "In moments of exhilaration some of the boys have a tendency to tear their telephones off the walls and, on occasion, to burn them. The fact that visitors are often responsible for this does not make it any easier to repair the damage." He emphasized the need for protecting the instruments already in service.

Congestion in long distance calls reached its peak during the football season when as many as 3,000 calls a day were turned down by local operators for lack of service. This situation has already eased and should be helped considerably by the new lines being installed.

May Bring Complaints

Culbreth invited students and townspeople to bring their complaints to his office for discussion.

"Usually we can't do anything about them," he asserted, "but sometimes there are complaints which can be remedied but which have not occurred to us."

CAMPUS CALENDAR

—Short Notices for Busy Readers—

Absentees Listed From Legislature

The following persons have unexcused absences from the Student Legislature. Under the by-laws of the legislature only two unexcused absences are allowed per academic year. All excuses must be turned in to the Rules committee chairman, Bob Collins, by the meeting following the one missed. The following were absent from the Jan. 16 meeting:

Chuck Borton, Taylor Dodson, Bob Little, Bill Raker, Dennis Smith. Absent from the Jan. 23 session were: Jerry Atkins, Kenneth Black, Chuck Borton, Bob Little, Bill Moffitt, Bill Raker, Bob Stockton, Walt Talley, and Sara Tillet.

Those persons who fail to submit excuses by this Thursday will be automatically counted unexcused.

Di Senate to Debate Compulsory Vote Bill

The Di senate this evening will debate a bill recommending that all students be compelled to vote in general campus elections. The measure states: "Resolved: The majority of students take almost no interest in Student government."

DTH STAFF MEETS TOMORROW

A meeting of all members of the Daily Tar Heel's news, sports, editorial, and business staffs will be held tomorrow afternoon at 5 o'clock to endorse a candidate for editor of the publications in the spring elections. All members whose names appear in the masthead must attend the meeting or make previous arrangements with Editor Bill Woestendiek.

Craig to Speak Here Under CRIL Auspices

Dr. Clarence T. Craig, professor of New Testament at the Yale Divinity School, will speak in Hill hall at 8 o'clock Sunday evening under the sponsorship of the Council for Religion in Life on the topic "Jesus."

An alumnus of Morningside college, Dr. Craig took his work in theology and his graduate work at Boston university. He was ordained in the Methodist church where he held several pulpits with distinction.

As a teacher he served at Foochow College in China and at the Graduate School of Theology of Oberlin College before taking his present position at Yale.

Dr. Craig is the author of many books on Religious subjects and played an important role in revising the translation of the New Testament.

Women's Badminton Tournament Begins

Play began yesterday afternoon in the women's intramural badminton tournament, and five first round matches were reeled off during the first day of competition. No matches are slated for today, but play will be resumed Thursday with second round contests.

Matches yesterday saw Roddy defeat Hoffman, 11-4, 11-0; Carter defeat Powell, score unavailable; Smith defeat Small, 11-5, 11-9; Kenney defeat Evans, 11-0, 11-0; and Swain defeat Adkins, 11-0, 11-3. Managers for the tournament are Janet Crinkley and Mary Goodwin.

Send in your copies of the DTH and let us have them bound for you.

SCHW Constitution Is on Agenda Tonight

The campus chapter of the Southern Conference for Human Welfare will convene tonight at 7:30 o'clock in the Baby lounge of Graham Memorial to discuss several vital subjects, including approval and ratification of the chapter's new constitution, as well as proposed action on the state health program now under consideration in the State Legislature.

All members and interested visitors are invited to attend.

schools.

Actually, the enrollment estimate is "amazingly close" to the registration figure, Director of Admissions Roy Armstrong said. "This is the first normal year," he declared, "that winter enrollment has exceeded the fall's." Armstrong believes the "amazing constancy" and "determination" of the veteran students account for the reverse of a traditional drop.

NEWS BRIEFS

British Banker Is Released By Zionists

Claims Maltreatment By Terrorist Agents

Jerusalem, Jan. 29—(UP)—Jewish underground agents have released the British banker they kidnapped Sunday and have delivered him to a hospital clinic in Jerusalem.

Newsmen found Major Collins standing in the main street outside the clinic door with bandages on his head and on one arm. He said he had been maltreated and asked to be taken home.

Bevin's Plan

Meanwhile in London, well-informed sources say Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin has outlined to Jewish leaders a plan to separate Palestine into Jewish and Arab provinces under central British control. Today's conference was reported confined to generalities. But it's said that the question of forming actual partition states might be taken up later.

Evacuation of China To Take Two Months

Washington, Jan. 29—(UP)—Evacuation of U. S. military units from northern China is expected to take about two months. Military sources say the 332nd Army Air group probably will be evacuated within one month, but the removal of the Marines may take about twice that long. The decision to pull out of China, announced today in Washington, appears to both Nationalists and Communists as the final blow to hopes for the success of U. S. peace efforts.

Hearings Will Begin On Labor Legislation

Washington, Jan. 29 — (UP) — Chairman Fred Hartley announces that his House Labor committee will start hearings on labor legislation next Wednesday. It will try to get a strike-control bill on the floor by March 15 with the idea of heading off any effort by John L. Lewis to call another coal strike.

Air Safety Commission Urged by Union Leader

Washington, Jan. 29—(UP)—The president of the A. F. of L. Airline pilots has urged the re-establishment of an independent air safety board. David Behncke told the house Interstate Commerce committee that the board would restore the public's confidence in air travel.

Vet Insurance Bill Approved by House

Washington, Jan. 29—(UP)—The House has unanimously passed a bill permitting veterans to reinstate their Army life insurance without physical examination beyond the present February 1 deadline. A new deadline will be set.

Stassen Urges Cut In Present Budget

Topeka, Kan., Jan. 29—(UP)—Minnesota's Harold A. Stassen says he believes Congress should and will cut the Truman budget down to $32,500,000,000. The only announced Republican candidate for President calls Mr. Truman's recommendations "wasteful and extravagant."

Air Wreck Kills 17 In Columbia Jungle

Bogota, Jan. 29—(UP)—Seventeen persons, including two Americans, have died in a plane crash in the Columbia jungle. Rescue parties have reached the scene.

Vandenberg Advocates Big Three Conference

Washington, Jan. 29—(UP)—The top Republican foreign affairs expert, Senator Arthur Vandenberg, has called for an immediate Big Three meeting to investigate the Polish elections. He charges that Poland broke its promises for a free election.

Legislature To Hear Dorsett Outline Constitution Changes

No Smoking Rule Will Be Debated In Gerrard Hall

By Bookie Jabine

In order to complete business before the basketball game, the Student Legislature will meet at 7 o'clock this evening instead of 7:30 in Gerrard hall.

Charlie Warren, speaker of the Legislature, said that the chief item on the docket would be Dewey Dorsett's report on the findings of the Constitutional committee of Revision. In his address Dorsett will suggest amendments to the original document which was ratified by the student body last spirng.

No Discussion

Warren explained, "Amendments will probably be introduced from the floor, but there will be no discussion since the proposals must be referred to committees."

The speaker added that the entire constitution will be outlined by Dorsett, "including the fee structeure."

Three bills are expected to be reported out of the Ways and Means committee tonight. A measure, introduced last week by Bob Collins, to create a campus postal system, will be decided. The proposal would provide a post office for the exclusive use of the University.

Eller's Bill

Another bill which was referred to the committee last Thursday was Tom Eller's measure requiring all campus organizations such as Graham Memorial, Interfraternity council, etc, to make reports to the Legislature on both the financial status and future policy.

This bill will come out of committee this evening, Warren said.

Also due to come up for discussion is the much-scoffed anti-smoking regulation. This proposal, also introduced last week, would prohibit smoking in all university classrooms and assemblies.

When the bill was read, a great moan came from the members. Said Ways and Means chairman, Bill Miller, "The administration should get a student opinion on this proposal."

Rouzie Named Head of AVC

Broadfoot Replaced By Virginia Senior

In a special election to replace Winston Broadfoot who resigned two weeks ago, Ben Rouzie, senior from Richmond, Va., was elected chairman of the Chapel Hill chapter of the American Veterans committee without opposition at the organization's bimonthly meeting Tuesday evening.

"It is a distinct honor and a privilege to follow a man as capable as Winston Broadfoot into office. AVC objectives, as outlined in our constitution, will be pushed with the same vigor that characterized the organization under Broadfoot," said Rouzie in accepting office.

Fullerton Reports

In addition to electing Rouzie chairman the group heard Garry Fullerton, national policy committee chairman, report that letters had been dispatched to Senator Umstead of Durham congratulating him on his appointment to office and urging him to join in the fight against seating Senatoor Bilbo.

Ralph Hyde, AVC member who has been helping with the negro community center in Carrboro reported that 252 books of fiction and 400 of nonfiction had been obtained for Carrboro library. He urged members to take an active interest in obtaining as many volumes as possible.

Six-Months Term

Under old business the chapter voted to amend the constitution to provide a term of office of six months for the chairman instead of one year. It was also decided to co-sponsor with CPU, IRC, and Student Federalists the appearance here of Prentiss Colgate who will speak on "World Government as a Practical Necessity Now."

'Cercle Francais' To Meet Tonight

"Le Cercle Francais" will hold its initial meeting of the year tonight at 7:30 in the main lounge of Graham memorial. Everyone interested in speaking French is invited to attend.

Reorganizing tonight for the first time in several years because of repeated requests from students, the club does not require any interested student to be taking a course in French to be eligible to join. A sincere desire to speak French is the sole prerequisite. Many ex-GI's who saw service in French-speaking countries are expected to join the group.

KAPPA ALPHA DANCE

Paul Bell and his orchestra will furnish the music for the Kappa Alpha fraternity dance in the Woman's gym Saturday night. The hours are from 9 to 12.

Giduz Challenged by Hodgson To Debate Before Legislature

'Partisanship, Suppression of Criticism' Scheduled to Be Chief Items of Discussion

Culminating several weeks of editoral controversy between the Daily Tar Heel and the Publications board, PU secretary Tookie Hodgson yesterday challenged managing editor Roland Giduz to to an open debate before the student legislature "at the earliest possible time."

Hodgson said the debate would concern what he termed the "Daily Tar Heel's partisanship and supperession of criticism." He charged that the papers editorials contain falsehoods, misrepresentation of facts, and personal prejudices.

Specifically Editorial

He referred specifically to the editorial in yesterday's DTH explaining the Publications board's views on its closed meetings and other activities. The piece was written by Bob Morrison, president of the board, but was interspersed with a running editorial commentary.

"As Mr. Giduz desires open discussion, he will have an opportunity to hear one very shortly before the Student Legislature," Hodgson declared. "It will concern unauthorized and illegal expenditures of student funds and will concern him."

Bill Woestendiek, DTH editor, expressed open amazement when informed of Hodgson's challenge. "It seems to me," the editor stated, "that if Hodgson is interested in debating the editorial policy of the paper, I am the man he ought to talk to rather than anyone else on the staff. I fear the whole thing revolves around a personal animosity that exists among certain men on this campus."

"I feel that the whole situation is absured, but I shall certainly defend the Daily Tar Heel and any member of its staff against ridiculous accusations. Personally, I believe the legislature has more valuable subjects on which to spend its time."

Hodgson also said he would read from the board's minutes certain pertinent information which he promised "would be of interest to all."

Speaker of the legislature Charlie Warren could not be reached for comment last night.

Special Box Designated For Student Complaints

Chuck Heath, new chairman of the legislature fact finding board, requests students having any grievances concerning the cost of living here to insert them in the committee box in the YMCA office.

The purpose of this board, which was created by the student legislature is to investigate financial matters on the campus which are of direct concern to the welfare of the student body.

Veterans Service Aide To Be at Legion Hut

Alonzo Kenyon, Orange county representative of the State Veterans Service commission, will be at the American Legion hut on East Rosemary street every Tuesday and Wednesday from 9 in the morning until 5 in the afternoon except for the lunch hour from 12 noon until 1 in the afternoon.

Local YMCA Gives Approval To U. of Texas Negro Policy

The YMCA here has officially approved the action of several campus organizations at the University of Texas who endorsed the admittance of Herman Marion Sweatt, Negro, to the law school there. At a recent meeting of the YMCA cabinet, a resolution to this effect was presented by president Don Broad, and was passed five to one.

Charles Foley, chairman of the YMCA committee on racial relations, said that through his committee a letter has been sent to the Student Christian association of the YMCA at Texas, informing such organizations of the action.

Sweatt applied for admission to the law school on the grounds that there were no equal school of that kind set up for Negroes. The University of Texas officials blocked his application. Sweatt has now appealed his case to a superior court at Austin, Texas.

Valkyries Tap Five Early this Morning

Johnston, Coleman, Barnes, Golden, Atkins Get Highest Honor for Coeds

By Barron Mills

The Valkyries, honorary coed sorority, tapped five women into the organization early this morning in secret ceremonies. The new members are Mary Helen "Jerry" Atkins, Heflin, Alabama; Fran Golden, Carthage; Elizabeth Barnes, Kingsport, Tennessee; Janet Johnston, Mooresville; and Katherine Coleman, Plant City, Florida.

Tapping of the five new members into the group brings the membership to 19. The organization's membership is limited to two per cent of the student body.

Record of Initiates

Coeds initiated into the group were selected on popularity and interest and participation in student government. "Jerry" Atkins has been speaker pro-tem of the Coed senate the past year, a member of the Student Legislature, YWCA and the Pi Phi sorority. "Liz" Barnes, a member of the Woman's Honor council, President of Carr dormitory, Interdormitory council, and Yackety Yack staff, is a member of the Alpha Gamma Delta sorority.

Fran Golden is a member of the Alpha Gamma Delta sorority, Woman's cabinet, president of the Woman's Honor council, Constitution committee and former president of Woman's Government association. Janet Johnston, "the live-wire of the YWCA," is also a member of the Tri-Delt sorority, Student Orientation committee, secretary-treasurer of the Senior class and a member of the Yackety Yack staff.

Kit Colman is active in the Woman's athletic association, publicity director of the YWCA, and a representative to the Pan-hellenic council.

Lower Classes Convene Today For Elections

Committees Selected To Make Nominations

Preparing for class elections this afternoon, the freshman and sophomore classes of the University met yesterday in two separate sessions, the first of their kind in several years to elect nominating committees to present recommendations for class officers to similar meetings today, in an attempt to organize the two classes.

Charlie Warren, vice-president of the student body and speaker of the legislature, presided over the sophomore meeting in the absence of student body president Dewey Dorsett, who arrived in time to conduct the freshman elections.

Committee Named

The sophomore class nominating committee is as follows: Ed Edgerton, Hal Morrow, Roy Lyon, Fred Fussell, and Earl Hartzell.

Members of the freshman nominating committee are: Jack Lupton, John Walters, Stan Northrup, Comest West, and Chuck Hauser.

To Reassemble

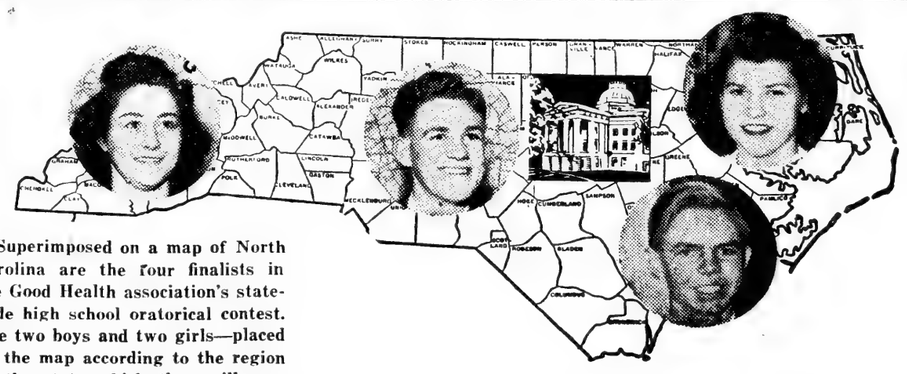
The classes will reassemble today to conduct elections—the sophomores at 3 o'clock, the freshmen at 4 o'clock. At these times the nominating committees will present their recommendations for the offices in question—president, vice-president, secretary, and treasurer. The sophomores plan to combine the offices of secretary and treasurer into one position, and in addition elect a social chairman. At each of these meetings the floor will be open for further nominations.

All freshmen and sophomores are requested to be present at their respective meetings. Freshmen comprise that group of students who do not have over 36 quarter-hours credit, and sophomores those who have attended school for more than three quarters and have between 36 and 84 quarter-hours.

Daily Tar Heel Staff Meets This Afternoon

All members of the Daily Tar Heel staff whose names appear in the masthead will meet at 5 o'clock this afternoon to endorse a candidate for editor in the spring elections. Staff Members who are unable to attend the meeting should submit a proxy to Editor Bill Woestendiek before the meeting or their vote will not be counted after the group has elected a candidate.

A picture for the Yackety Yack will also be taken at the metting.



Reservation Deadline Is Monday February 3

Men living in dormitories must make reservations by Monday if they wish to keep their room for next term. Dormitory managers have blanks in their rooms which the men must sign.

Legislature Candidates To Be Named by UP Poll

New Policy Features Dormitory Elections To Select Party Men for Spring Balloting

Alex Davis, chairman of the University party, announced that the Party will support dormitory candidates for the Student Legislature that are selected by the residents of the dormitories in the spring elections.

Superimposed on a map of North Carolina are the four finalists in the Good Health association's statewide high school oratorical contest. The two boys and two girls—placed on the map according to the region of the state which they will represent—are, left to right, Theresa Alley, of Waynesville (Haywood county), Harvey Adams, of Farmer (Randolph county), Dorothy Raynor, of Ahoskie (Hertford county) and Alton Hill, of Kinston (Lenoir county). The student speakers will compete for two $500 college scholarships given by the Good Health association in grand finals to be held in Raleigh, in the hall of the House of Representatives, State Capitol (inset) this evening at 8 o'clock, Governor Cherry will present the prizes. The public is invited to attend the exercises.

As explained by Davis the new plan calls for a poll in each dormitory that does not have a representative in the Legislature at the present time. The University party will nominate the candidates selected by the residents of the dormitories, campaign for and support each man regardless of his political affiliations.

Support of UP Not Asked

The University party will not require that the men nominated support or be responsible to or for the actions of the Party. In return the UP will not be responsible for the actions of the candidates after he is elected.

Ten vacancies for dormitory representatives will occur in the Student Legislature in the spring elections. Elections will be held in Old West, Steele, Manley, Mangum, Lewis, and combined elections will be held in Mil-

Class Spirit?

Perhaps the not-too-unbelievable fact that hardly more than half of us at Carolina seem to know whether we're juniors or freshmen or grad students or what account for it. But at any rate, less than two dozen students showed up for each of the class nominating meetings yesterday afternoon. And that's unusual—there was a time when class elections and the preliminaries aroused more excitement than three Sadie Hawkins days.

Anyway, the freshmen and sophomores are to reassemble today to elect their officers. And in case there is doubt as to who are freshmen and who are sophomores and who aren't either, we quote from the catalogue: All students who have less than 36 quarter hours are considered members of the freshmen class. Any student who has attended the University more than three quarters and has between 36 and 84 hours credits is a sophomore.

'Esse Quam Videri'....

Constitutional Perfection Would Be 'Senseless' Claim

By Al Lowesnstein

It really is not sensible for anyone ever to claim perfection for things like constitutions. To begin with, they are generally bulky and complicated, and most people's conception of "perfection" explicitly excludes both these virtues.

Then too, constitutions as a rule are born of compromises, and as a rule compromises do not cause jubilation anywhere.

Neither are constitutions sacred. The United States Constitution has been amended 21 times and the amendments themselves have amended in at least one notable case.

No one to my knowledge has ever claimed that the Constitution which was twice approved by the student body of this University is either perfect or sacrosanct. Those persons who were on the committee that wrote it know perhaps best of all the limitations and failings of the Constitution, because they know of the compromises and of the close-vote decisions which were necessary to get written any document at all. Every member of that committee found himself in the minority at some point in the group's deliberations, and the committee majority itself was frequently outvoted during the protracted debate in the Student Legislature. All members of that original committee and many other students have in mind changes they'd like to see made in the Constitution.

For several months now a Committee on Constitutional Amendments has been meeting. Its function is said to be to find those parts of the Constitution which "have not worked out in practice." This certainly is a commendable idea.

The first attempt at an American constitution failed largely because the power to collect and disburse funds was not given to the federal government. That power has not yet been given to the campus "federal" government. With this major part of the Constitution not yet in effect, and with those parts which are in effect having been so for all of one-third of a school year, the Committee is ready to report on those things which "have not worked out." This indeed seems like commendable speed!

Tonight the President of the student body will go before the Legislature to make public the report of his committee. If anyone is naive enough to suppose that what is proposed is an amendment or two to "smooth out" the "rough spots" in the Constitution, let him understand the nature of the Committee's recommendations in their entirety. The following amendments are involved:

Article I, Section 11, and three changes in Section 4.

Article II, Sections 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 8, and 9. Offhand I can't imagine what is in section 7. Maybe it repeats the Declaration of Independence. Or perhaps even that wouldn't escape the Great Reformers' scalpel.

Article III, Sections 6, 7, 9, 10, 14.

Article IV, no amendment!—And this, interestingly enough, is the part of the constitution dealing with publications, which caused most discussion when it was first proposed, and which has caused just about the most dissension ever since.

Article V, Section 2.

Article VI, Sections 4, 5.

And let's not forget the Preamble! It too, must go!

"Smooth over the rough spots"—fiddlesticks! What is proposed is a far-reaching rewriting of a document on which the ink literally is not dry.

This rewriting is, of course, a legitimate hobby for anybody so inclined. What everyone must realize, however, is that the literary efforts thus represented are not the results of a considered attempt to iron out the kinks in some phases of Constitutional machinery. They are not even straightforward attempts to give the student body an opportunity to vote pro or con on some hotly-disputed particular point within the framework of the student government ordained and approved last spring.

Proposed amendments are, of course, in order at any time. One or two changes may be necessary at this time. But let us not, with grave demeanor and lengthy reports, destroy much of a document yet to be tried, on the grounds that it has been tried and has "failed to work out."

The President would do well tonight to delay or forget his amendments, and to recommend instead some of the legislation needed to implement the Constitution as it now is. Such recommendations would be in line with an Executive function of importance, and would serve to provide leadership in a direction of immediate need.

Perhaps some of its "failures" would themselves be worked out if those persons now busily intent on finding weaknesses in the Constitution would devote their apparently inexhaustible energies to adding flesh to a sturdy skeleton instead of to picking away at individual bones.

The Searching Wind....

Universal Peacetime Draft Vital to Welfare of Nation

By Eddie Allen

Those sneezes currently drawing "gezundheits" on Capitol Hill can be traced to cautious Congressmen, now sitting in on committee hearings regarding what could be the most crucial legislation of our time. Squarely faced with the national peacetime draft, even the most asthmatic of the solons should have no doubts as to which way the wind is blowing.

Before the late great war was yet over, that wind's first gusts were felt in the form of pleas from military leaders. To a man, they asked that peace not be accompanied by relaxation of preparedness or by a return to rose-colored blinders that characterized the "It-Can't-Happen-Again" boys.

In the months since then testimony by virtually every expert worthy of the name only reiterated the central fact that now stands immovably before Congress. There can be no osciliation, procrastination or doubt.

There must be a universal national peacetime military training program.

Even the most ardent wavers of mildewed and blood-spattered palm leafs must admit that another war, if not inevitable, is certainly within the realm of probability. And when it comes they will also admit that it will not be of the type that will give the nation the months it previously has had to realize that there is a fight for survival on.

The age of long-distance warfare has indeed been pasted into history's scrapbook alongside that of the spear and cross-bow. All of which is but repetition of what has become common knowledge not only to Congress but to every literate who gets past the sports and comics in his breakfast newspaper.

The only question which should now be on the floor is not whether the training should be invoked but the plan of setting it into operation.

There will be difference of opinion on age brackets. There will be the decision of essential occupations, and dodging to contend with reminiscent of Red Grange in an open field. There will be the problems of interrupted education, especially in colleges. There will be labyrinth-like issues dwarfing those of the war years when mobilization was not a safeguard but a life-saving necessity of immediate importance.

As to age, there would seem to be no reason why the present standard of 18 should not be maintained. First to be processed should be those men freshly out of high school and those eligible older men who have not previously served in the armed forces.

There seems no call to interrupt the education of those students already well-embarked on their college careers. More logical would a substantially-increased compulsory college training plan, along the general lines of the ROTC but not necessarily of an officer-training nature. The officer-training programs should also be expanded and intensified in addition to plans preparing men to fill the ranks should M-Day come.

College students might also have the option of taking part, for instance, in a inclusive two-year program while in school or serving their one year in uniform after graduation.

Such are but a few of the worries to be faced. But they must be faced without delay. For time and the ominous spectre of another total war of horrible magnitude will await no man or nation.

Today's Question

What is the best movie you have seen during the past year?

Answers

"Henry V." Lawrence Olivier's acting was exceptional, especially the wonderful way he lifted his voice at the end of important lines. The conception, treatment, settings, and color were all so fresh and different from our sterotyped ideas of what a movie should be that it was charming.—Gay Morenus, Atlanta, Ga.

"Suspense" for the good, well developed plot and excellent acting. Bergman and Peck are among the best on my list.—John Barlow, Hamlet.

"Anna and the King of Siam." Irene Dunn's acting was fine and the novelty of the plot was a most welcome relief from the conventional ones.—Carlisle Cashion, Chapel Hill.

"The Lost Weekend." It would seem hard even for the most ardent "boozehound" to indulge so strenuously after seeing what happened to Ray Milland, who actually is a light drinker himself.—James C. Grier, Charlotte.

"Caesar and Cleopatra." It was historical and extremely interesting.—Albert F. Garrou, Valdese.

"Mildred Pierce." It was exciting and interesting. Oh that woman!—Charlie Ezell, Durham.

"Anna and the King of Siam" for the excellent acting. It was very amusing and had an unusual setting. —Pete Webb, Roeford.

I consider "Night and Day" the year's best production because musicals add more to our own enjoyment of "life."—John Brinegar, Thomasville.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Drew Pearson

ELLIS ARNALL GROWS IN STATURE DURING GEORGIA POLITICAL MESS; HIS CLAMNESS UNDER PRESSURE PREVENTED BLOODSHED; WHY NEWSPRINT IS HARD TO GET

Washington.—The one Georgian who increased his stature in the current undemocratic political tug of war now raging over the State Capitol in Atlanta is ex-Governor Ellis Arnall.

Only a handful of people know it, but Arnall was almost lynched the night Herman Talmadge staged his power "putsch." Arnall knew his life was in danger, yet he refused to call for help. For four hours he remained quietly in a tiny corner office of the Capitol, rejecting pleas that he call out the troops to protect himself. Arnall had only seven people with him in his office to ward off an angry mob of howling Talmadgites calling for his head. Once they burst in the door, got their hands on his clothes, sought to jerk him out of the room. Calmly, Arnall persuaded them to go back. Finally, Assistant Attorney General Dan Duke and State Guard Commander Collins urged Arnall to send for the troops.

"No," replied Arnall. "This thing cannot be decided by force. The people are the only ones who can decide it. It may take some time before the people learn the truth about what's happening here tonight, but learn it they will. If we use troops there'll be bloodshed and that will play into 'the pretender's' hand. It will bring shame on the people of Georgia."

Those who were with Arnall consider it a miracle that he wasn't subjected to physical violence. His own secretary wound up in the hospital after fighting off the Talmadge hoodlums. Next day, Arnall's friends tried to assign bodyguards to protect him, but he rejected the offer.

"I'll walk with the plain people on the streets of Atlanta," he said. "I've nothing to fear from them. I'm one of them. The plain people always help each other."

AMERICAN LEGION'S LOBBY

All veterans organizations are supposed to be interested in housing, but an interesting tip-off on the American Legion's position occurred the other day when Legion Lobbyist J Thomas Taylor kicked a Veteran Foreign Wars representative out of meeting while permitting real estate lobbyists to remain. The Legion lo has been accused of playing handglove with the real estate boys, especially when it came to sabotaging Wilson Wyatt's far-sighted housing program.

Latest demonstration of harmony between the Legion and the real estate interests came at a housing meeting in the Statler Hotel here Wesley Pearce, VFW housing officer, showed up at the meeting thinking it was open to the public and chatted in the corridor for a few minutes with Arthur Marcus a member of the Legion's seven-man, World War II veterans housing committee.

"Is it all right for me to come in?" asked Pearce.

"Sure, come on in and make yourself at home," replied Marcus. "I'm pretty sure the meeting is open to everybody."

Pearce explained that he might be able to pick up some new ideas to help housing; so Marcus escorted him in and the two men swapped stories about their experiences in the Navy.

Next thing Pearce knew, Legion lobbyist John Thomas Taylor was pointing in his direction and sputtering furiously.

Limited Attendance Feature Of Lower Classmen's Debut

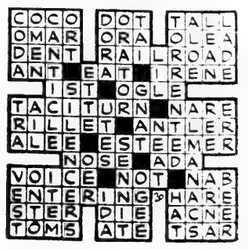
By Barron Mills

Probably one of the last of the groups to make their post-war debut in the formation of the freshman and sophomore classes which took their initial steps yesterday afternoon toward a comeback.

Evidently the lowerclassmen on campus do not understand the significance of the two classes. The meeting did not receive too much publicity and perhaps a large number of members of the two classes did not know of the meeting. Even at this the turnout was so small that little could be accomplished. Only 22 freshmen had enough interest to attend and only 32 sophomores.

There is more than just meets the eye ata meeting of its type. It isn't just a friendly get together of a bunch of wild-eyed freshmen who meet to put the finishing touches to their high school debating society or just an audience to hear the sagas of the wars. Something more prevails.

The Carolina campus was founded as a close knit organization made up of smaller units, to include all campus factions and groups. Just like anything else each unit of the campus adds a certain zest. Without these two ingredients (the freshmen and sophomore classes) the campus had lost an important part of its savour.



It is not the purpose of this column to say just that the "leaders of tomorrow are the youths of today." Screeching high school commencement orators have harped along these lines as long as there have been commencement addresses.

For several years while the University was running under the hardships of the war there was no organizing the lower classes because as soon as a freshman was accelerated through one or two terms of schooling he was called by his draft board.

The better the organization of the lower classmen on campus the nearer perfection student government will reach as these lower classmen will gain an inside picture of student government and will be better prepared to judge the idiosyncrasies of student government and weed out the weak spots.

Phants Face Deacons In Big Five Tilt Tonight

SPORT SPINS - -

with

IRWIN SMALLWOOD

THE SITUATION CONCERNING the sportsmanship in Woollen gym seems to be getting worse instead of better! In the first few games this season things were bad, but the South Carolina game was the worst yet, and that's the opinion of most of the people we have talked to who have been watching basketball in Chapel Hill for years.

About a week ago we appealed to you the student body to refrain from the inexcusable booing and hissing everytime something looked wrong. And again today we come to you, appealing anew for a little consideration for the visitors in Woollen gymnasium. In previous years Carolina has been noted for its sportsmanship, and we see no reason why this reputation should be destroyed by a few thoughtless performances at basketball games, boxing matches and the like.

What do you say we snap out of it and show that we are still good sports. Let's treat the visitors with consideration and keep our spirit as well!

Below is a statement to the student body Athletic Director Bob Fetzer ask us to print today:

"Booing at basketball games constitutes a breach of sportsmanship. Such conduct is not in keeping with the tradition and practice of the Carolina student body. Any display of this sort is much more glaring indoors than in an outdoor stadium.

"The exhibition at the South Carolina game was the worst display of sportsmanship that I can recall on a Carolina court. It is hoped that there will be no repetition of such conduct.

"We have scheduled in the next two weeks seven consecutive home games. I should like to appeal to each student in the University to take personal responsibility to assure good sportsmanship at all future athletic contests on our campus. Visiting teams are the guests of the student body of the University of North Carolina. Surely they deserve courteous treatment not only from the players on the floor, but from the spectators as well.

"You, as a spectator, are quick to condemn an unsportsmanlike act by a player. Yet, as spectators, some of you have been guilty of the poorest kind of sportsmanship. I have enough confidence in you to believe that this is due to thoughtlessness, and I believe that you will correct it.

—Coach Bob Fetzer.

You have appeals from the Daily Tar Heel sports staff, the athletic department and all coaches and participants in athletics here at Carolina, so let's try and improve, please.

There has been much said about the sportsmanship and student conduct at the basketball games of late, but one thing has failed to come to the front of the picture. That is the lack of Carolina cheer leaders. WHERE ARE THEY? That's the big question we ask. We haven't seen them since the football season, or rather the Sugar Bowl game, and we feel that if they were on hand to direct the cheering the booing and so forth would cease considerably. When and if the cheer leaders make their appearance, follow them and put all your spirit and energy together for some organized oral support of the Tar Heels.

Notes from sundry places:

It will be sort of reunion for the Carolina wrestlers when they meet State tomorrow night. Al Crawford, who was assistant coach of the Tar Heels last season and was undefeated as their heavyweight contender, is the mentor of the State grapplers. Crawford, who was twice a national champion at Appalachian before the war, made an appearance in Woollen gym last Monday night, in the capacity of referee for the Carolina-Davidson matches. . . The wrestlers, who incidentally probably have more fun and frolic at practice than any other athletic group, thought there was an orangatang loose in the wrestling room yesterday. But it turned out to be just Irv Zirpel disguised slightly. . . Final announcement of the Carolina-Georgia game plans for next year should be forthcoming Sunday. And the final slate may be in the offing by then. . .Tonight as the Tar Heels meet Wake Forest, it will be a big duel between Johnny Dillon and Doran Walters in the pivot position. Walters is the second highest Deac scorer, and Dillon is No. 1 point-getter for the Phants.

Fast Time In Track Trials

Fast perliminary time trials were run for hurdlers and sprinters yesterday afternoon at the Tin Can in preparation for the first meet with Duke on February 8.

In the sprints Ted Shultz posted a mark of 6.6 for the 60 yard distance with Al Lynn, Bucky Horton and Buddy Bell running 6.9.

In the 70 yard low hurdles Ted Shultz finished in the fine time of 8.1 with freshman Bob Morrow right behind in 8.4. Hunter Heggie and Dick Taylor mere other men who finished in good time.

The high hurdle event was paced by Morrow who broke the tape in 9.3 for the 70 yard event. One tenth of a second behind were Taylor and Heggie.

The next time trial for these events are scheduled for Saturday morning at 10:30.

Mermen Finish Preparations For VPI Meet

Crone to Be Ready For Friday Clash

The swimming team continued their long workouts yesterday with the emphasis on time trials. Coach Jamerson of the Blue Dolphins was pleased with the results of the trials and found many new potential starters for the coming meets. The tankmen will taper off their preparations today and rest up for the contest Friday night with V. P. I. in Bowman Gray Pool.

The Tech mermen are power-packed with stars who offer a serious threat to Carolina's conference winning streak of 24 victories. Swimming the 200 and 400 meter events for the Gobblers will be Leonard, who placed in the conference sprints in 1943 and in the loop distance race in 1942. Other good sprinters on the V.P.I. squad are Pierson and Rabb. They are strong in the diving department with Jarret.

Looking well in the time trials for the Tar Heels were McCoy, Sper, and Johnson in the backstroke; Perry in the 50 meter sprint moved up to the number two slot; Ficklen, Hutton, and Scheinman did well in the 220; Ficklen, McCauley, and Jenkins turned in the best times for the 440; Cook, Hexner and Breeden were the winners in the breaststroke; and Greenbaum, Bultman, and Elliot were the ones looking good in the 100 meter dash. Back to strengthen the divers was Buddy Crone, who will take part in the meet Friday night.

The meet will be the first conference contest for the Blue Dolphins, and it will test their strength for the coming duel with the Navy's Middies on Wednesday. Yesterday's drills brought out many men who will lend valuable support to the previous starters, while many of them have broken into the first string positions themselves.

Blanchard Discoverer Gets VMI Coaching Job

Baton Rouge, La., Jan. 29—(UP)—The man who is generally credited with developing the football talents of Army's Felix "Doc" Blanchard is headed for a new job today.

He is A. W. Morton, backfield coach at Louisiana State University, who has accepted a head coach's job at Virginia Military Institute. Morton had Blanchard as his star pupil in 1941 when the Bishopville, South Carolina, youngster was attending Saint Stanislaus Academy.

Morton replaces Allison "Pooley" Hubert as head coach at VMI.

Frisco Club Develops New Kind of Backstop

San Francisco, Jan. 29—(UP)—There's something new brewing on the baseball front.

The San Francisco Seals of the Pacific Coast League are going to experiment with a new type plastic glass as a possible screen protection behind home plate.

The company which developed the plastic glass say it will withstand the hardest blow from a ball or a thrown bat.

Villanova Drops Army From Unbeaten Ranks

West Point, New York, Jan. 29—(UP)—The Wildcats of Villanova got revenge today for the annual drubbings that take from the Army football team. Villanova knocked the Cadets from the ranks of the undefeated basketball teams 45 to 42. Villanova out-hustled the taller Kaydets to hand Army its first defeat in seven games.

Local Cagers Seek to Keep Home Victory Streak Intact

Contest Looms as High-Scoring Affair; Murraymen Play Finale in Preliminary

By Bob Goldwater

Their third Southern conference victory, first Big Five triumph and seventh consecutive home success will furnish the stimuli for the Carolina cagers tonight at 8 o'clock when the White Phantoms take the floor against an unpredictable Wake Forest quint in Woollen gym.

In a preliminary clash starting at 6:15 o'clock the Carolina freshman five will meet George Washington high school of Danville, Va., who handed the Tar Babies a 34-31 defeat earlier in the season. The contest will be the finale for the Murraymen, who have a record of five wins in eight games.

High Scorers

A high-scoring affair is the outlook for the feature atraction, with both teams having several leading pointmakers. Top scorers for the Phantoms are center Johnny Dillon, and forward Jim Hamilton, both with 41 points in three loop encounters, while center Doran Walters, with 76 tallies that rank him fourth in the conference scoring, and guard Will Kaylor, with 71 points for sixth place, lead the Deacons in their eight loop tusseles.

The other starters that will open for Carolina in addition to Hamilton and Dillon are rebound-artist Bob Paxton in the other forward berth and set-shot aces Norm Kohler and Jim White at the guards. Coach Tom Scott will also have available Taylor Thorne, Jim Hayworth, Sherman Nearman and Dick Hartley for relief duty.

Deac Starters

Coach Murray Greason's starting lineup is expected to include Jack Gentry and John O'Quinn at the forward positions and Eddie Henry at guard in addition to Walters and Kaylor. The Deacons have a 4-4 conference slate, their latest success having been a narrow 53-52 decision over Furman Monday evening.

Current loop standings have Carolina, with a 2-1 record, deadlocked with Richmond for fifth place while Wake Forest is in an eight-place percentage tie with Washington and Lee. The Phants will be seeking number nine of the 1947 campaign while the Deacs are after their eighth win.

In the curtain-raiser, the freshman quintet that takes the floor is expected to have Pete Peters and either Bill Childers or Junie Idol at the forward posts, Sandy Hoft at center, and two more Bills, Walker and Harrington, in the guard slots.

Hooper to Miss State Mat Clash

Laurie Hooper, captain in 1944, will be lost to the Carolina wrestling team tomorrow night when they take on State's men of the mats in Raleigh. Hooper, who was injured in the Davidson meet last Monday night, is in the infirmary with a badly sprained ankle.

Coach Chuck Quinlan expressed hope that Hooper would be back at practice by the middle of next week, and he nominated John Stoioff to replace Hooper in the lineup against State.

The heavyweight division is the only place where there will be a change, the seven other spots being held intact by the grapplers who gought against the Wildcats of Davidson.

Doug Thompson will see action at 121, Tom Urquhart at 128, Co-Captain Tom Hearn at 136, Co-Captain Dick Seaver at 145, Irv Zirpel at 155, Oscar Gupton at 165, Bill Kemp at 175 and Stoioff at heavyweight.

Carolina will be gunning for its third straight victory in as many meets tomorrow night. The meet is slated to begin at 7:30 o'clock.

Rocky Graziano Mum On Bribe Situation

New York, Jan. 29—(UP)—New York District Attorney Frank Hogan today charged that middleweight Rocky Graziano is withholding information concerning the man who offered him a 100-thousand bribe to throw a December 27th fight.

Hogan says the hard-punching Graziano knows the would-be bribers but is afraid to put the finger on them. Hogan also reveals that he has appealed through Rocky's wife, his manager and the New York fight commission in an effort to find the unknown parties.

The district attorney further charges that the reason Graziano won't reveal the names of the culprits is because he is afraid of physical violence.

Concert Pianist to Appear In Recital Monday Evening

Gilles Guilbert, Famous French Virtuoso, To Play under Auspices of Graham Memorial

By Bob Levin

Gilles Guilbert, one of the world's most noted concert pianists, will be presented by Graham Memorial on Monday evening at 8:30 in Hill Music hall. Admission is free, and all students and townspeople are invited.

The 41 year-old French virtuoso comes to the United States fresh from a prolonged tour of central and Southern Europe where he was widely acclaimed by audiences from Vienna to Paris. Before playing here, the great artist has appeared in Canada, where he played for the French Embassy, also New York, Boston, Philadelphia and Washington.

Eight Hours Daily Practice

For the last year, Guilbert, who has been acclaimed by critics throughout the world as the foremost interpretor of Ravel and Debussy, has been practicing more than eight hours daily in an effort to regain his polished inflection and tone which were so widely known and appreciated before the war. Critics' notices in all papers plus the fact that he has been called back to Canada three times this year and has been solidly booked for his concert tour next year serve notice that he has more than regained the style that was his before the war.

During the entire occupation of France, Guilbert gave up playing on the concert stage rather than collaborate with the Germans in any way. It was during this time that he played with small jazz bands to remain hidden from the Gestapo. When Paris was liberated Guilbert learned all forty pages of "Rhapsody in Blue" in one night and gave a liberation concert for the first American troops in the Capital.

Contract Bridge To Be Instructed By Noted Teacher

Famous bridge teacher and tournament director H. J. Duerr announced today that all bridge players on campus are welcomed to attend his daily lectures at 5 o'clock in the Grail Room of Graham Memorial. Brought to campus from his instructor duties at the University of Buffalo by Graham Memorial to assist intercollegiate bridge tournament hopefuls, Duerr will lecture on advanced playing techniques.

Elimination in the intercollegiate tournament will begin soon, according to Howell Peacock, student union bridge director. Carolina will be represented by eight players, none of which have definitely been chosen.

These students, who must be undergraduates, will play complicated hands sent to Graham Memorial by the Chicago officials. The bidding and playing of these hands will be graded by the officials to determine eligibility in the finals in the Windy City in April.

US Position on Russia Assailed by Republican

Washington, Jan. 29—(UP)—Republican Representative Karl Mundt of South Dakota wants to know why the United States should allow Russian officials in this country a greater amount of freedom than our officials get when they're in the Soviet Union.

Mundt's anger was aroused by the disclosure that we've been allowing Russian representatives to inspect and photograph our factories, bridges, dams, and other projects. He told the House that we should tighten our security regulations to make sure that Russian visitors have no more freedom than our officials in Russia.

Sound & Fury President Sets Casting Deadline

Final casting of principles for Sound and Fury's March offering will be completed this afternoon from 3 to 5 in the Roland Parker lounge of Graham Memorial.

All persons who have signed for the show and any others who didn't come by yesterday are asked to attend today's tryouts.

Rehearsals of the show are scheduled to begin next Monday afternoon with the chorus call set for that date.

Florida Club to Work On Laws This Evening

The Florida club will meet at 7 o'clock tonight in Roland Parker lounge of Graham Memorial. The time has been advanced 15 minutes so that the meeting will be over in time for the basketball game.

On tonight's agenda will be the approval of the constitution and by-laws which will be presented by a committee headed by Bill Sassler. The social committee, led by Bill Bell, will also report on progress made in planning a party.

Rent Increase Rumors Denied in Washington

Washington, Jan. 29—(UP)—Reports of an imminent 10 per cent rent boost were scotched tonight by a White House denial—but not until the reports had spread around Washington like wildfire. In fact, so widespread and apparently authoritative were the reports that the OPA was in the process of stencilling the final order.

OPA officials had told newsmen to stand by. Then came word from the White House stopping everything. Press Secretary Ross said flatly that President Truman had approved no rent ceiling increase—10 per cent or otherwise, as reported by CIO sources. Ross even denied that there had been a rent conference at the White House last night.

The CIO informant had reported that the decision had been made then. Ross says the President is sticking to his policy announced at last Thursday's news conference—no rent increases, except in hardship cases, and any other action is up to Congress.

Federal Tax Cut Bill Meets Defeat in Phi; New Measure Is Passed

A resolution favoring a 20 per cent reduction in federal taxes was introduced by Chseter Zum Brunnen at the Tuesday evening meeting of the Phi assembly. Professor Clarence Heer, of the commerce department, explained that this reduction would mean a 3½ billion dollars deficit in the federal budget.

He favored the present tax rates, suggesting that surplus funds be applied to the national debt. Prof. George Lent, also of the commerce school, thought it possible to lessen taxes and reduce the debt.

Professor Paul Wager favored tax relief for those people with incomes under $1000.

Dr. E. J. Woodhouse of the political science department, opposed any Federal or State tax for single men with an income of less than $1000.

The original bill was defeated, and a substitute resolution was presented. This bill, that incomes of less than $1000 be non-taxable, was passed unanimously.

Teachers Honored By Columbia Tome

Two members of the faculty of the University of North Carolina are among the 239 scholars and experts who have contributed to the writing of the "Columbia Dictionary of Modern European Literature," it was announced today by Columbia University Press, New York city, which will publish the 900-page volume on February 24.

They are Nicholson B. Adams, who wrote eight articles in the field of Spanish literature, and Ernst Morwitz, who wrote one in German liteature.

The "Dictionary" will contain nearly 1,200 articles, covering the literary activities of 31 continental European countries from about 1870 to the present. Some little known literatures are written about for the first time in English.

Weather Takes Violent Turn In South, West

Fourteen Are Dead As Result of Winds

Montgomery, Ala., Jan. 30—(UP)—The elements have given a large section of the United States a severe buffeting during the past 24 hours. Tornadoes and high winds have left a path of destruction in three Southern states—Alabama, Tennessee, and Georgia. So far, seven persons have been killed in the latest tornadoes. Seven others perished last night when violent winds ripped through Missouri and Arkansas. Property and crops have suffered considerable damage.

Freak Storm in Midwest

In the midwest, a freakish storm of rain, wind, sleet, and snow is gripping several states. Several communities in southern Wisconsin and northern Illinois are isolated tonight. Highways are blocked, and airline, railroad, and bus schedules have been scrapped.

On the west coast, another storm of fierce intensity hit Vancouver, British Columbia. Wind velocities reached 70 miles an hour. One lightship has been blown from its moorings, a tug has been sunk, and four Navy corvettes have been driven aground.

Admiral Byrd Plans Flight Across Pole

Little America, Jan. 30—(UP)—Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd landed at Little America today and immediately announced plans for a flight across the South Pole into unexplored territory to determine whether the Antarctic is a single continent or two great Island masses.

Senator Would Have States Control Rent

Washington, Jan. 30—(UP)—Republican Senator Capehart of Indiana has urged congress to turn rent control over to the states. He made his recommendation before a group of lawmakers trying to get a new rent bill written by the week end.

Legislature Hears Dorsett's Address

President Proposes Constitutional Changes; Committee Report Bill Is Hotly Contested

By Bookie Jabine

After hearing the mild-mannered recommendations of student body president Dewey Dorsett as to how and where the constitution should be amended, the student legislature last night witnessed an amazing session of verbal fisticuffs between speaker Charlie Warren and speaker pro-tem Tom Eiler over a bill requiring reports from certain student activities.

The debate was initiated when Warren, who asked for discussion of the measure and heard none, took it on his own hook to attack the proposal which Eller had introduced last week.

Warren Speaks

Warren raked the bill over the coals, preambling his remarks by saying that it was "poorly written."

He went on to point out that it required reports from groups over which the legislature had no authority, specifically mentioning the Interfraternity and Interdormitory council.

Eller then rose to his feet, and with a degree of parliamentary sophistication, defended all sections of the bill.

Following the speaker pro-tem's words, Warren again asked that the measure be "postponed for an indefinite period."

Despite Warren's vigorous objections, the bill was passed by a comfortable margin. It orders that reports shall be rendered to the legislature form such organizations as Graham Memorial, Student Entertainment committee, Interdormitory, and Interfraternity councils, etc.

Dewey Dorsett recommended to the assembly numerous amendments to the constitution, chiefly a change in the present council set-up. The president urged that the existing three council systems for trying honor and campus code cases be abolished in favor of a "more simple and efficient" two council administration.

Dorsett's Plan

He did not, however, advocate the abolishment of the Student council. But, he said, "the Student council should be maintained as a judicial body to judge the constitutionality of legislative acts."

Under Dorsett's plan (which is the recommendation of the Constitutional Committee of Revision) all honor offenses would be tried by the Men and Women's Honor councils from which there would be no appeal to the Student council.

Warren announced that a special session of the legislature would be called next week to consider the proposed changes to the document which was ratified by the student body last spring.

Freshmen Choose Officers In Wild Election Session

Sophomore Elections Run Off Smoothly; Youngblood, Nimocks Get Presidencies

By Chuck Hauser

The heretofore dormant freshman class awoke and rose to its feet yesterday afternoon to stage one of the wildest elections seen on campus in a great while.

After approximately two hours of hotly-contested debating and voting in Gerrard hall, the freshmen chose their class officers. Steve Nimocks was elected president, Ralph Lee vice-president, Stuart Bondurant secretary, and Paul Bashan treasurer.

Less than an hour before the freshman meeting was held, the sophomore class had elected their officers in a brief, orderly session conducted by Tag Montague, who also presided over the freshmen. Montague, a student legislature representative, stated that in spite of the many protests brought up against the proceedings, "This election was no different in its methods or procedure from any other election held on the campus."

The sophomore class officers were elected as follows: Curt Youngblood, president; Bob Lee, vice-president; Earl Summers, secretary-treasurer; and Jerry Pence, social chairman.

Voting Contested

The office which caused the most furore in the voting procedure was that of vice-president of the freshman class. The first vote gave the office to Ralph Lee, with 59 votes to 57 over his opponent, Paul Bashan. After much debate, a revote was taken. The count again favored Lee, 61-58.

Following this, discussion rose to a fever-pitch for the next 40 minutes on the legality of the voting, the political factions involved, the representation of the class at the meeting, and numerous other aspects of the elections.

Accepted as it Stood

After a motion was made and carried that the vote be accepted as it stood, an unknown supporter of Bashan took the floor to announce that the entire election would be contested if further voting was to be held at that time, and left Gerrard hall im-

Group Votes for Present Desk Chief By Unanimous Decision in Open Polling

By Sam Whitehall

By a unanimous decision, 56 members of the Daily Tar Heel staff yesterday afternoon nominated Barron Mills, rising senior from Laurinburg, as their choice for editor-in-chief for the coming 1947-48 school year.

Participating in the balloting held in the staff officers were al members of the news, editorial, sports, and business staffs as listed on the newspaper masthead. The traditional staff vote, taken two months earlier than customary this year due to the unusual amount of political jockeying already seen evident on the campus in preparation for the May elections, found all staff members quite happy over the election of Mills as their choice for next year's leader.

Former Managing Editor

A former managing editor of the "Tar Heel" as a semi-weekly newspaper. Mills has served under six different editors while on the staff. Since returning to school last summer, he has served as desk editor, chief assistant to the managing editor. In the past he has seen active work on the news, editorial, and sports departments.

At Laurinburg high school he was editor of the school newspaper and annual, the "Scotchman," and also sports editor and reporter on the Laurinburg Exchange before entering the Navy. Mills is a member of Alpha Tau Omega fraternity.

Woestendiek Pleased

Present editor-in-chief Bill Woestendiek expressed great satisfaction over the staff's choice. "I believe you have picked an earnest and capable man as your choice for next year's editor. I urge all of you to back him to the limit from now through the May elections period," said Woestendiek.

MARTHA GRAHAM

Martha Graham Troupe Will Appear at Duke

The Duke University All-Star series under the direction of J. Foster Barnes will present Martha Graham and her internationally famous dance company in Page auditorium, Duke university, Thursday evening, February 20 at 8:15.

One of the most widely-discussed figures in the modern dance Miss Graham was born and reared in Pittsburgh, the daughter of a physician. She started dancing with decided fervor at the age of two when she shocked both family and friends by dancing down the aisle at a Sunday church service.

For 23 years she has been creating and presenting dance which is typically American and typically modern. She has become famous for her satirical dance and colorful choreography. She has appeared all over the world and is now on her seventh transcontinental tour. This will be her first appearance at Duke.

Underground Springs Delay Opening of New Bus Station

By Walter B. Kiser

Chapel Hill will soon be enjoying the advantages of one of the finest and most modern bus stations—complete even to underground running water. This is no exaggeration, for construction on the new depot had hardly been started when seven underground springs were found undermining the whole set-up.

Although brought under control by the use of a main pipe line, the springs still caused a two months delay. Originally scheduled to be completed by November 15, the opening date has now been set for March 25.

"One reason for the delay in moving into the new station is because we have to move in completely when we do make the change," C. E. Curran, local manager said. "Even the grass will be up—we hope."

Morganton Man Elected To Head Alumni Group

Election returns, just received by mail and tabulated by the University Alumni Association, show that Samuel J. Erwin, Morganton lawyer of the class of '17, has been elected president of the organization for 1947. Other officers elected in this recently-completed balloting include: Luther H. Hodges, class of '19, first vice-president; Arch T. Allen, class of '30, second vice-president; John P. Stedman, class of '16, member of the board of directors; and Grady Pritchard, class of '21, Alumni representative on the athletic council.

Voice Tryouts Today Complete S&F Casting

Sound and Fury will complete its casting today with the holding of musical auditions this afternoon from 2 until 6 in the Roland Parker lounge of Graham Memorial.

All those who auditioned for speaking parts and who are interested in singing should drop by between these hours.

Vom Lehn to Sing Role of Marriage Broker In Comic Opera 'Bartered Bride' Tonight

By Brooksie Popkins

Edgar Vom Lehn will sing the leading role of Kezal, a marriage broker, in Smetana's colorful comic opera, "The Bartered Bride," which opens this evening in Memorial hall at 8:30 as a joint production by the Carolina Playmakers and the department of music. "The Bartered Bride," co-directed by Foster Fitz-Simons and Paul Young, will also be presented tomorrow evening.

Vom Lehn at present is a graduate assistant in the music department, filling the capacity of a voice teacher. He is a member of the Glee club, but the role of Kezal in the opera will be his first major public performance since he came to Carolina last fall.

Princeton Graduate

He was graduated from Princeton in 1939, receiving an A.B. in modern languages. While he attended Princeton he was soloist with the Princeton choir and Glee club, and a member of the Triangle Club, an organization which toured the northeast and midwest with light musical shows.

During part of his four and a half years in the Army he directed a G.I. Choir in Ireland.

Other leading roles in "The Bartered Bride" are sung by Nina Thomas as Marie, the peasant bride; Ed Easter as Jenik, her sweetheart; Harriet Keen and Rufus Norris as Ludmilla and Krushina, her parents; Sam Greene and Carl Perry as Micha and Vashek, a peasant father and son; Martha Heygel as Hata, Micha's wife; Maude Baynor Foy as Esmeralda, an acrobatic dancer; James Geiger as the Master of a troupe of comedians.

Admission is $1.00, by Playmakers season tickets or by Student Entertainment ticket. Those who have purchased both a Student Entertainment book and a Playmakers book, and who only want one reserved seat ticket, will be refunded 60 cents at the time they pick up the reserved seat, if they show both books.

State Solons Oust Proposal On Sales Tax

Revenue Stays Intact Under Present System

By United Press

Raleigh, Jan. 30—(UP)—The General Assembly's Joint Finance committee has voted down proposals to lower the State sales tax and to remove all sales tax exemptions on retail sales. Senator O. B. Moss of Spring Hope, who had proposed a one per cent tax without exemptions, this afternoon changed his proposal to a tax of one and one-half per cent. Moss says this would make the sales tax easier to collect than at present with the three per cent tax but many exemptions.

However, Revenue Commissioner Edwin Gill told the committee that such a tax would still not produce as much revenue as is now obtained under the three per cent tax, even with many exemptions.

When Gill said this, Senator W. W. Neal of Marion made another motion that the sales tax be cut to two per cent without exemptions on retail sales. Both proposals were voted down loudly when experienced legislators recalled past battles over exemptions for this and that. And the present fight pending over exemptions for restaurant meals, farm machinery and what not.

Kansas Professor To Instruct Here

Paul D. Haney of the University of Kansas has accepted an appointment as Associate professor of Sanitary Engineering in the School of Public Health and will assume his new duties here on March 15.

Since 1942 Mr. Haney has been director and chief engineer of the Division of Sanitation, Kansas State Board of Health, and Assistant Professor of Sanitary Engineering, University of Kansas. He was made an associate professor there in 1945.

Haney has also worked with the U. S. Public Health service, making a polution survey of the Ohio and Grand rivers.

Davis Clarifies Plans For Holding Primaries

Alex Davis, chairman of the University party yesterday clarified a statement concerning the UP plan to support dormitory-selected candidates for the Student Legislature in the spring elections.

It was earlier stated that the plan calls for a poll in each dormitory that does not have a representative in the Legislature at the present time.

"I meant to say that the University party will hold a poll in each dormitory that will not have a representative as of this spring," Davis said. "My apologies to John Clampitt and Charles Britt."

Clampitt now lives in Nash hall and Britt in Steele. Their terms will expire in the spring.

Charlotte Woman Dies While Watching Fire

Charlotte, Jan. 30—(UP)—A Charlotte woman died today of a heart attack as she watched firemen battle flames that gutted two-thirds of a mattress factory and cause damage estimated at from 10 to 12 thousand dollars.

The woman has been identified as Mrs. Lydia Prevett. Witnesses say she was stricken while standing in the street. She was taken to Memorial hospital, where she died a short time later.

Assistant Fire Chief Donald S. Chargles says none of the American Bedding Company's employees was injured in the fire.

Case Closed

Because a number of students have asked us, "How did you come out with the CCC?," a final word of clarification is apparently in order at this time.

We are also wondering how we came out. The latest "dope" we have received is a letter from Conservative club president Paul Mullinax stating:

"A committee was appointed on January 14 to prepare a case against The Daily Tar Heel for presentation at the next meeting. On January 21, the report of the committee was made. . .the vote was unanimous not to perfer charges against The Daily Tar Heel . . . . How The Daily Tar Heel got its "scoop" that it was being charged with anything is a mystery to club members."

There you have the crux of the matter. It puzzled us too. We only report the news as we get it.

But last Tuesday the Publications board president came to our office with a story to the effect that the CCC was to bring charges of biased reporting against us at a session of the board the next day.

And so, clad in righteous armor with a feeling of having done no wrong, we trouped down to the board meeting the next afternoon. None showed up to present the CCC's side of the case. The long silence was indeed a letdown to a few interested students who had come hoping to see some "fireworks."

Board president Morrison later stated the gentlemen who had handed him the original charges had taken them back the evening before the meeting in order "to strengthen and add" to their case. Anything they did failed to materialize the next afternoon.

What do you think? We're a little confused about the issue. Our only regret is that the whole matter took up so much space and time the paper could have used more valuable.

We trust the Conservatives hold no brief against us. We merely report the news, on pages one and four, and express our views on this page. We cannot always agree with the Conservatives' views, but they certainly cannot deny they have always been given ample opportunity to be heard.

Which, as far as we're concerned, marks the case closed.

"Brilliant Sportsmanship"

Dear Sir:

After viewing the Carolina-South Carolina foray this evening, through all its heated decisions, we wish to make the following recommendation concerning the "brilliant sportsmanship" displayed by the University of North Carolina students.

In past years, at least up to the year 1943, two or more Cheerleaders were present at each basketball game to lead the student body in cheers for their team, and further to keep the more rabid students from showing their feelings through cheering in the well known Bronx manner.

Sportsmanship, we have been told, is to give the other team a fighting chance when they are on "foreign soil" and further to spark our own team on to victory. It should not be necessary for the announcer to ask for silence when one of the opponent players has a "free shot." In all fairness he should be given his "fighting chance."

Back home at 11:05 P. M. many of our parents listen to the last half of the game over the radio. Do we want them, and our friends, to hear how grown-up we are when we can't let the other team receive the respect due to them? Further there are some students, a majority we would say, who would much rather dispense with such behavior in order to enjoy the game to its full extent.

The cheerleaders did a fine job during the football season so why not have them continue, as they once did, to make all of us unashamed and able to ask "Did you hear the game last night and wasn't the spirit fine?"

Student Body Fumes....

Ban on Smoking In Classes Should Be Left Up To Profs

By Eddie Allen

With men who know tobacco best, it's North Carolina and name your own odds. Thus the most ironic nicotinic note of the week stems from the fact that smoking in class rooms and assemblies at that state's university may soon be completely verboten.

If first student reaction to that smoke-abatement ordinance is any standard, that is one stem that will leaf (pardon the diction) even part-time weed adherents as cold as an unlit fag.

It was Thursday last that the Student Welfare board decided that it wasn't in favor of Luckies, two to one, but against the academic tobacco road, nine to two. Their recommendation was referred to the faculty administrative committee, which, reinforced by testimonials from virtually every department head, will submit the idea to Chancellor House.

At the present there looms little to keep the proposal from going through. Even what would appear to be overwhelming student disapproval —which the faculty group seemingly neither believes in nor will recognize —is no match (pardon, again) for the almost arbitrary action.

True, there are more than a few points in favor of those who would clear the hazy classrooms. In many of the buildings widespread smoking causes conditions reminiscent of a Little Pittsburgh. Smoke is hardly conducive, in fact, either to concentration or the more common mid-morning sonambulism.

In addition there is the problem of keeping classroom floors from looking like the dregs of an Elks' smoker. That situation has been accentuated by the lack of janitors which makes conditions deplorable not only in the halls of learning but more particularly in the dorms. A few advantageously-placed receptacles would do much to remedy that, but of course with the tin shortage even a few cans would be more impractical than cutting out smoking altogether.

The fire hazard contention may be a good one, but to us it seems a little vague. Might as well cut out smoking in the arboretum, a far more inflammable sector—nicotinically naturally.

As things stand, professors on the campus who do not chalk a "no smoking" sign on the board at the beginning of each term are becoming fewer and far between. This writer has two intsructors who allow no smoking. The third is a quite human philosophy specialist who daily plays ineffectually with a recalcitrant lighter then asks for a safety match from the amused audience. Why not leave the decision to the individual profs?

Student indignation over the proposed restriction comes as much from the way it has been advanced as by the rule itself. They justifiably feel that the right to smoke anything short of marijuana, in class or at the Old Well, is an only logical privilege for allegedly adult members of a liberal university.

A recent cross section of opinion published in the DTH showed those quizzed 100 per cent against the smoking ban. Of the two dissenting votes cast by the Student Welfare board, one was by a non-smoker. We can't completely agree with the feelings of the affirmative nine, and certainly believe that their stand is far from representative of the student body as a whole.

There seems to be one solution to the controversy. Before the proposal becomes law, why not call a vote of the student body? Then we at least will be able to release our "slow burn" in action, however impotent in the final decision.

I'd Rather Be Right...

Assault on DTH Is Absurd Trick for Political Fame

By Earl Heffner

When an author writes a book and wishes to attain immediate fame—or infamy, if you prefer the antonym—he prays each night that his brainchild will be "banned in Boston."

In Chapel Hill, when a neophyte of the intelligentsia wishes to emerge from the background, he apparently uses an analogous practice of assaulting the policies of the Daily Tar Heel.

The latest individual to use successfully this method of attaining notoriety is PU Secretary Tookie Hodgson, a member of the writing fraternity who sometimes adorns this page.

Mr. Hodgson accuses the DTH of "partisanship and suppression of criticism." He charges that the paper's editorials contain falsehoods, misrepresentation of facts, and personal prejudices.

With his accusations, Mr. Hodgson challenged Managing Editor Roland Giduz to an open debate before the student legislature "at the earliest possible time." In challenging Mr. Giduz, Mr. Hodgson overlooked the most pregnant of facts, namely, that editorial policy of a newspaper are determined by the editor, are not determined by any other person.

It is true that others may write editorials; the editor may accept or reject them. I understand that Mr. Hodgson has written enough to be personally acquainted with this possibility.

Since the right of rejection is vested in the editor, the challenge of Mr. Hodgson should have been directed at Editor Bill Woestendiek. Perhaps the complainant's aim is faulty as is his criticism. Certainly a review of the facts will reveal that Mr. Woestendick is undeserving of any such charges.

To Mr. Hodgson's charge of partisanship, I use the logician's answer—Define your term. With a satisfactory definition, Mr. Hodgson, I believe, would be unable to support his charge. Without a definition, the contention is pitifully humorous as well as inadequate.

The charge of suppressing criticism is so asinine that it should require no answer. However, for the pride-wounded, self-righteous columnist I list the following facts:

The Letters to the Editor column of the Daily Tar Heel is open to any person whether with or without a grievance.

The editor turned over his entire editorial column to the Publications board's views on closed meetings and other activities, only reserved for himself the right to comment on these views. Obviously, the duty of the editor is to his readers, the people who elected him to office. Woestendiek's comments fully corresponded with this duty.

Charges of editorial falsehoods, misrepresentation of facts, and personal prejudices are, to use the vernacular, blasphemous. They are a direct assault upon the personal integrity of Mr. Woestendiek as well as the columnists who grace this page. Apparently Mr. Hodgson did not realize this since his charges automatically embrace him also.

The charge itself is absurd. Perhaps the thin-skinned Mr. Hodgson is too quick to read into any article a personal assault upon himself. Also, it must be pointed out that the controversy began after a column of Mr. Hodgson's was rejected. This may be a coincidence, but in light of the infantile charges of Mr. Hodgson I feel free to question whether this is an actual coincidence.

It has been pointed out to the Daily Tar Heel, that Mr. Hodgson's challenge of "open debate" with Mr. Giduz must be as an individual rather than as a member of the Publications Board.

This being the case, we can only surmise that Mr. Hodgson has political ambitions, is desirous of maintaining his name before the student body as a prospective candidate. Since he selects the Daily Tar Heel as his target, we may wonder whether he will declare himself a candidate for editership of a campus publication. If this be true, a publication should be created that will be printed on yellow paper. Mr. Hodgson may then join with the Hearst papers in keeping "yellow sheet journalism" alive.

Case Against Franco Spain Remains Topic for Debate

By Henry C. Randall
And The International Relations Club

The case against Franco Spain does not rest. It simmers! . . .What cooks in Spain?

Franco's government was born in fascism, nurtured in fascism and lives today as a fascist black sheep in the family of nations. Hitler and Mussolini were papa and mama to Spain's dictatorship and Franco gave substantial aid during the war to Nazi Germany. Whether he is a threat to peace now is a matter for opinion and imagination.

However, there aren't many people in the world today who have any love for Franco, including probably the Spanish people themselves.

Well, what have the United Nations done to get rid of this source of future international trouble? The word "nothing" would sum it up most clearly, but that wouldn't give a realistic picture of the six months of highly diplomatic gab in the United Nations.

Here are four headlines, which you glimpsed in your newspapers over the months since last April. Here also are the stories behind these headlines:

1. SECURITY COUNCIL CONDEMNS FRANCO—(But, Russia and the western powers couldn't decide what they were going to do about the situation. So, they did nothing and Franco smirked confidently.

2. SECURITY COUNCIL DROPS SPANISH QUESTION FROM AGENDA—(Meaning: They merely passed the buck to the UN general assembly.)

3. UN ASSEMBLY DENOUNCES FRANCO—(We're back where we started.)

4. UN REQUESTS ALL NATIONS BREAK DIPLOMATIC RELATIONS WITH MADRID—(Get the word "requests." Franco didn't even cry "ouch" after this December 12th slap on the wrist.)

What is behind all this diplomatic double-talk? Why is the United States luke-warm about real intervention against Franco? Why is Russia so anxious for action?

The United States opposed the use of economic sanctions and mass diplomatic breaks. Our own Senator Tom Connally, debating the question at the UN meetings, said that such positive action would have either of two alternative effects, both opposite from each other and both bad.

We might unite the Spanish people behind a martyred Franco by intervening and thus hurt the already growing opposition to the dictator within Spain. On the other hand, Connally went on to say, action by UN might really cause a Spanish civil war "with unknown but inevitably costly consequences."

Now, don't let this get around, but the communists might win such a Spanish revolution. Aha! Europe would be caught, it has been suggested, between communist Russia on the east and communist Spain on the west with France and Italy going communist in the middle. This is evidently the heart of the strange and confusing controversy over Franco Spain.

There are three possible solutions to this situation—each one just as bad as the other:

1. Do nothing! Things might work out for the best. A bad gamble. . .

2. United Nations should continue passing resolutions, breaking diplomatic relations with Spain (that don't

Blue Dolphins Swim Against VPI In Conference Tilt Tonight

SPORT SPINS - -

with

IRWIN SMALLWOOD

DOUBTING DALE RANSON, the likeable builder of track teams at Carolina, steps into the big time with five of his Tar Heel runners Saturday. That's speaking of the Milrose games in Madison Square Garden Saturday night, when the Carolina mile race team will pit its galloping ability against the best the east can offer.

"We'll be in rough company," moaned Ranson last night as he prepared to leave with his tracksters this morning. "The three cross country teams that finished ahead of us in the IC4A championships in New York last fall will be running intact in the races, and that means NYU, Manhattan and Penn State."

Running under the banner of Blue and White will be Julian McKenzie, Jimmy Miller, Alvin Smith, Jack Milne and Sam Magill. These five were outstanding men on the Tar Heel hill-and-dale crew last fall, and they should give a good account of themselves when they compete in the classic Milrose event.

The University Athletic association will initiate the first annual Southern Interscholastic swimming championships here in Bowman Gray pool February 10. Head swimming Coach Dick Jamerson has mailed out applications to a large number of schools, and among the top teams already indicating that they will enter are Staunton Military Academy, Georgia Military Academy, Augusta Military Academy, Greensboro Senior high school and Chapel Hill high school. This is but one of the many instances where Carolina has taken a lead in building up sports participation in North Carolina .

Sundry Notes From Everywhere:

Did you know department: Most every Carolina home basketball game is broadcast over at least two stations, and sometimes as many as four. WPTF in Raleigh and WDNC carry them regular, and WRAL and WRAL (fm) feed them in on many occasions. . .Again on the radio subject, WPTF cut its basketball schedule by a fourth this week in order not to take any more time away from the collegians friend (?), Sam Beard, and the 'Moon Glow' program. . . Navy will more than likely not participate in the indoor games here March 1. They want to go to New York to defend their IC4A crown. . .That the crowds at basketball games from a student standpoint have been far below expectations, and that as a result, quite a few seats have been put on public sale. . . Navy's basketball team will be playing in the South for the first time since 1935 tomorrow night when former Carolina mentor Ben Carnevale brings his Middies to Durham to tangle with Duke. . .Dick Hartley and King Cole are the only two married basketball players.

Just Fact Department:

Mike Ronman, the Carolina boxing director, had to hand out two cigars last week instead of one. His wife presented him with twins in Watts hospital in Durham. . .Charlie Trippi and his new boss came near suffering injury yesterday when the car in which they were riding turned over twice near Athens, Ga. . .Probably the hardest Trippi has been hit since the Sugar Bowl game. . .Two former Carolina football players, "The Doc" Blanchard and Barney Poole, may be granted four-month leaves this fall in order to play pro ball. The war must be over. . .Carolina may see a record attendance at the State game here Saturday night. The largest crowd thus far was seen at last year's Duke encounter here, but with more stands now in the gym and the student body almost 2,000 larger, prospects for the record attendance are good indeed. . .If the record doesn't come Saturday, it surely will Monday night when NYU comes down for a return engagement. See you in the sardine can, lads.

Our opinion department: We see nothing wrong with the newspapers' printing of odds on athletic contests. The people who want to gamble will get them irrespective of the papers, and nothing would be gained in keeping the odds out of print. There's nothing to make a team play better than to make them underdogs by a definite margin, at least here in the South. . .We believe that with the addition of cheerleaders now that the conduct of the crowds at basketball games will be much improved. . .If you want to see what the well dressed newspaperman years, take a look at Jud Kinberg some time.

Buddy Crone Returns For Meet With Tech

Coach Dick Jamerson sends his Blue Dolphins into their third meet of the season here this evening in Bowman Gray Memorial Pool when the Carolina tankmen swim against VPI. The encounter gets under way at 8 o'clock.

The Dolphins will be seeking their second triumph of the campaign and their 25th consecutive Southern conference victory. Aiding the Jamerson crew towards this realization will be the fact that they will be on the rebound after dropping a close decision to Georgia Tech. two weeks ago.

Although the Gobblers are full of talent in all departments, the Carolina team will be at full strength with the return of Buddy Crone, conference and junior AAU champion diver. The Dolphins rate as slight favorites to cop their second meet, their first having been an impressive triumph over Bainbridge Naval mermen.

The starters will come from the following swimmers:

300 medley relay: McCoy, Breeden and Bultman.

Sprinters: Greenbaum, Perry, Ficklen and Herr.

Distance: Hutton, Norwood, McCauley and Jenkins.

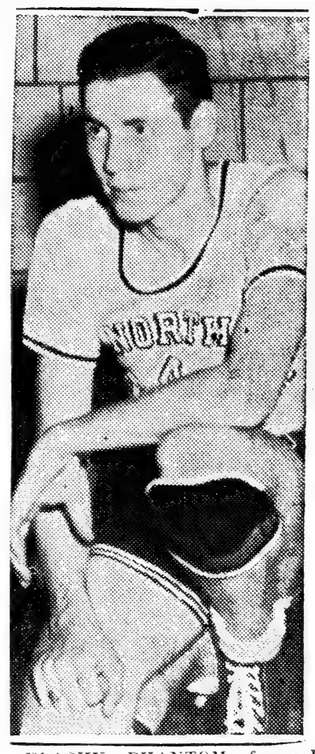
Backstroke: McCoy, Spor and Johnson.

Breast stroke: Cook, Hexner and Breeden.

Diving: Crone, Spor, Erle and Swigart.

Tar Heel Wrestlers Meet State In Raleigh Tonight

Undefeated Matmen Seek Third Victory In Row Against Crawford-Coached Crew



The undefeated Carolina wrestling team will go after its third win of the season at Raleigh tonight at 7:30 o'clock when the Tar Heels grapplers tangle with the matmen of State college.

Coach Chuck Quinlan of the local wrestlers will be sending the chargers against a team piloted by his former assistant, Al Crawford. Crawford, who was assistant last season and wrestled heavyweight at the same time, fields a young but tough squad, and his team will likely give Carolina its stiffest challenge of the young season.

Co-Captains Dick Seaver and Tommy Hearn will again lead the Tar Heels in battle, and they will be out to keep their undefeated records intact in the 145 and 136-pound divisions respectively. The other men to take part in the meet are Doug Thompson at 121, Tom Urquhart at 128, Irv Zirpel at 155, Oscar Gupton at 165, Bill Kemp at 175 and John Stoioff at heavyweight.

Stoioff will be replacing Laurie Hooper in the lineup for the State match, the latter having been injured in the Davidson matches here last Monday night. Stoioff wrestled in the opening match against VPI.

The Tar Heel men of the mats will be host to Washington and Lee here a week from Saturday night in their fourth contest of the campaign.

FLASHY PHANTOM forward Bob Paxton was one of the leading factors in last night's easy win over Wake Forest, as he tossed in thirteen tallies while playing a bangup floor game.

Tar Heel Mark High For Year

Hamilton Scores 15 For Scoring Honors

By Bob Goldwater

Coming to life midway during the first half, the White Phantom cagers put on a terriffic exhibition of scoring for the remaining 30 minutes to roll up their highest total of the campaign and give them a 70-49 triumph over Wake Forest last night in Woollen gym.

The victory was the third Southern conference win of the season for the Scottmen and pushed them up in the standings into the number three position. Carolina will attempt to take over second place tomorrow evening when N. C. State invades the local gym in an effort to put a halt to the Phantom record of seven victories and no losses at home.

Jumping Jim Hamilton, continuing his high-scoring pace in the Carolina loop clashes, poured 15 points through the cords to lead his team and move into the top scorers of the conference with a four-game total of 56 tallies. Bob Paxton, with 13 for runner-up honors, was his usual brilliant self on the rebounds. Coach Scott used 16 players before the final gun sounded.

Dillon Injured

Johnny Dillon, Carolina hook-shot artist, was injured midway during the second half and was removed from the game. It was learned after the game that the injury, a chipped tooth, would not keep the scoring ace out of the Saturday contest.

The Deacons jumped into a quick lead shortly after Dillon opened the scoring with a successful free throw. It took the Wakemen seven minutes to run up a 10-4 advantage, after which they slowed down slightly to maintain a 17-12 margin after 11 minutes. Then the Phants started moving.

With the whole team pitching in, Carolina registered 13 tallies in six minutes to assume a commanding lead that they were never in danger of losing. At intermission the Phants led by 28-21 and for the first seven minutes of the second half the two teams kept pace with each other. Dillon's hook at 7:30 was the signal to begin the final scoring splurge and the Scottmen drove to a 53-38 lead before free substitution began.

Led by reserve Sherman Nearman, Jim Hayworth and Vic Seixas the Tar Heel quintet held the Deacons to two foul shots while running up another 11 points. Coach Scott then sent in his third-stringers, who added the remaining six tallies that gave Carolina its first 70-total of the season.

Among the spectators at last night's contest were lanky Ed Koffenberger, star pivotman of the Duke Blue Devils and his coach, Jerry Gerard. Gerard does broadcasts of cage clashes for WDNC when his team is not seeing action.

Jayvees Cop Seventh in Row With Win Over High Point

By Gil McLeod

Carolina's unbeaten jayvee cagers scored their seventh victory Wednesday night in High Point when they downed the High Point College jayvees, 43-24.

Junie Bailey and Ed Wagner, steady pointmakers for the jayvee five, paced the Tar Heel attack, dropping in nine points each, while Jack Fitch, playing his usual fine defensive game, ran a close second with eight markers.

Bailey's set shot gave the Carolina five the lead after less than a minute of play, and the Tar Heels then put on an offensive display that gave them a 24 to 13 halftime advantage.

Coach Lew Hayworth substituted freely during the second half, trying out new combinations that seemed to score at will against the Panther five.

Pacing the High Point quint's attack was substitute Carl Tipton, who scored nine points and who played an outstanding defensive game.

The box score:

Carolina (43)		(24) High Point
Bailey (9)	f	(1) Tedder
Wagner (9)	f	Treachey
Nyimicz (3)	c	(6) Kupice
Stevenson (4)	g	(2) Merhig
Weinstein (4)	g	(6) Billings

Substitutes: Carolina—Fitch (8), von Bramer (3), Henson (1), Rodman (2), Mackie, Wilson. High Point—Tipton (9), Vaughn, Gunn, Gordon.

Axes, Delta Sig Take Mural Tilts

The mural sports program presented another slack afternoon yesterday with the slate being limited to six cage clashes and a brace of handball matches.

The Axes turned up with the top performance of the day as they soundly trounced Mangum, 51-40, while the Ringers were also putting on a show in downing Alexander No. 2, 40-25.

Elsewhere, BVP No. 2 topped Ruffin, 33-27; Med School defeated Aycock, 31-23; Delta Sig hammered out a 42-12 win over Phi Delt No. 1, 42-12; and Everett stopped Kappa Psi, 42-30.

ATO and TEP took the honors in the day's handball play as the former nosed the Betas, 2-1, while the latter was winning by forfeit from Chi Phi.

There are no mural contests scheduled for this afternoon, but play in both basketball and handball will continue come Monday afternoon.

SPORTS BRIEFS

Cage clippings: The season's top mixup occurred three minutes before the end of the first half when the Deacons tallied a field goal while six of their men were on the floor. The goal was thrown out and Paxton made good on a technical foul throw. . . Norm Kohler was high man in time played, playing until three minutes remained in the fray. . .Wake Forest gridder John O'Quinn was high man for the losers with 11 points, with Jack Gentry's 10 giving him second.

Di Debaters Vote Down Bill Urging Compulsory Balloting

Meeting for its first discussion session this term, the Dialectic senate Wednesday evening in the midst of heated debate turned down a bill recommending "compulsory student balloting in all campus elections," and with an over-whelming majority adopted a substitute resolution as presented by president Don Shropshire containing 10 points to be recommended to the president of the student body with the hope that "they will do much to create more interest among students in student government and in other extra-curricular activities."

The aims which made up the resolution are as follows:

(1) Handbook each year for all students with great emphasis on campus activities.

(2) More emphasis on same by Freshman Orientation committee.

(3) More funds for Daily Tar Heel—newly created space to be used for more fully covering campus organizations.

(4) Better publicity for Student Legislature.

(5) More frequent reports by student body president via the Student Legislature on conditions of campus.

(6) More of those organizations which have access to student funds to cease to meet behind "closed" doors.

(7) Introduction to campus of all candidates for major offices by Board of Elections before every election.

(8) Establishment of more polling places for scattered areas.

(9) House counselors to impress upon students within their jurisdiction the importance of their interest in all elections.

(10) Student Legislature to use constitutional power to establish class organizations and aid them in keeping alive.

Prior to the main discussion the Senate accepted the membership application of Lincoln Kan after Membership Chairman Charles O. Long presented it to the Senate with the unanimous approval of the committee. In accordance with its policy of reinstating those veterans who were members in good standing before leaving the University the body also readmitted Robert Berer. The president announced that Kan would be formally initated at next week's session.

Officers Are Searching For Armed Robbers Of Bank of Newland

Newland, Jan. 30—(UP)—Officers are searching the mountains along the Tennessee border for four armed men who held up the Avery County bank in Newland, North Carolina today and fled with $25,000. Before they left, the bandits locked five customers and the bank president's daughter in the vault.

One of the bandits covered the customers with two pistols. Another guarded the door, and a third crammed the money in a bag. Then they herded pretty 24-year-old Martha Guy—daughter of the bank president—and the customers into the vault. Outside, they left bookkeeper Georgia Stout tied loosely so she could wiggle free and open the vault after the bandits left.

The fourth robber was waiting outside in a grey 1946 Ford sedan. He drove all the holdup men away toward Tennessee.

Uncle Sam Says

One of my nephews, Assistant Secretary of the United States Treasury Edward H. Foley, made a few remarks the other day which are worth the attention and action of all my other nieces and nephews. In talking about buying Savings Bonds through the payroll savings plan, he said: "Workers are doing themselves a favor when they increase their take-home savings. The man who has saved up a reserve has a sense of security which the man who lives from hand to mouth can never know. He gets more out of life. He can take today as it comes, rather than spend it worrying about tomorrow." The same reasoning applies not only to Americans on somebody's payroll but to the millions of men and women who earn their living as doctors, lawyers and independent business men who can arrange for regular purchases of Savings Bonds at their banks.

Bold Theft of Typewriter Surprises UNC Secretary

By Sam Whitehall

Of all types of thieves, the bold, brazenly audacious type is the thief most feared, least encountered and most disconcerting. He may snatch up your false teeth when you least suspect him or he may remove a typewriter when your back is turned. The typewriter episode is not fiction, it is unadulterated fact.

Monday at one o'clock Mrs. Delanie Webb, secretary at the University Testing service in Peabody hall, returned to her office from lunch, stepped around the corner to ask her boss a question, and puff!, she had no typewriter at her desk. In fact the daring one had been so quick he had neglected to remove the office form which Mrs. Webb had been typing out.

Wouldn't Think of It!

Immediately a score or more of people were asked the question, "If you saw a person walking across the campus carrying a typewriter, would your first thought be 'Catch that man, he has stolen a typewriter?'" Each one said, "No, I would not even think of someone stealing the typewriter."

Yet the fact remains that Royal typewriter No. KMM 12-3189647, which was little over a month old, and which had just been broken in by the typist, is no longer at the desk where it belongs.

Now the question asked is, "Did your roommate happen to carry in a brand new Royal upright with Pica type?" If the answer is "Yes," let Mrs. Webb in 105 Peabody know.

Well Known Detective To Talk Here Tomorrow

The two-week School in Investigation Technique, being conducted here by the Institute of Government with the cooperation of the FBI, for members of the State Bureau of Investigation, police, and city and county sheriffs, will come to a close with "graduation" exercises here Saturday morning, February 1, at 11 o'clock.

Principal speakers will be Chief of Police Frank N. Littlejohn of Charlotte, who is often called "the best known detective in North Carolina."

Instructors at the School, which opened January 19, are Special Agent Fred MacEntyre of the FBI and Terry Sanford, assistant director of the Institute of Government.

Attending are 35 officers from towns and cities in many sections of the State, including Raleigh, Durham, Charlotte, Fayetteville, Winston-Salem, High Point, Rocky Mount, Wilmington, Elizabeth City, Wilson, Greenville, Burlington, Reidsville, Kinston, and others.

even exist and don't amount to a hill of beans when they do exist.) Russia and the U. S. and Britain should keep right on battling behind the scenes to see who will control Spain five years from now.

3. All countries should stop trading with Franco, starving Spain economically. We should bolster the existing Spanish Republican government-in-exile. Meanwhile, the UN should appeal by radio, by leaflets, by carrier pigeon—appeal to the Spanish people to oust Franco's government.

This last solution, although the most forceful, is rather unrealistic. If Russia and the western powers cannot agree now on many of the simplest problems, how can we expect to decide the future government of Spain? Another bloody revolution in Spain could precede and precipitate a third world war.

Understanding and trust is the answer. The two leading world forces, communist Russia and our own nation, must find the magic formula to disagree without being disagreeable. With the threat of war eliminated, we can solve our differences easily. This may seem to leave the Spanish situation hanging in mid-air, but it is the most practical solution to the Franco question and to most of the world's present political problems.

AFL Proposes Union Merger
Workers Divided, Green Tells Murray

Miami, Fla., Jan. 31—(UP)—Creation of one mammoth labor organization, covering all present members of the A. F. of L. and the C. I. O., was proposed today by the A.F.L.'s executive council.

A solid front would be presented to the foes of labor, A.F.L. President William Green said in a letter written to C.I.O. Chief Philip Murray. He said that proposed anti-strike legislation in Congress and many states emphasizes "the need for labor unity and labor solidarity."

"This would mean that millions of workers now represented by divided unions would stand together, speaking as one and acting as one, united solidly into a strong, united movement," Green wrote.

Murray last month proposed regular meetings between A.F.L. and C.I.O. representatives, to deal with attacks made on organized labor, but Green said this system would mean a day of cooperation followed by a day of discord.

John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers, who broke away from the A.F.L. to found the C.I.O., left that because of political disputes, and returned to the Federation just a year ago, was one of five men named to meet with Murray "at the earliest possible date."

Final Casualty List Is Released by Navy

Washington, Jan. 31—(UP)— The Navy has counted up its dead—and the final casualty list for the Navy, the Marines, and the Coast Guard now stands at 88,842 fighting men.

The latest War Department figures show 308,978 Army dead as of last June 27th. The Navy totals range from the beginning of the war to the first of this year. The casualty figures include deaths since the end of the war in plane crashes, drawnings and other accidents.

In a detailed breakdown of all casualties, the Navy says 97 men still are missing—49 overseas and 48 in this country—who disappeared since the war's end. However, all combat missing have been accounted for.

Legislator Requests Indian Citizenship

Raleigh, Jan. 31—(UP)—A proposal to give full United States citizenship to Cherokee Indians on the reservation in western North Carolina has been presented to the General Assembly. Representative Dan Tompkins of Jackson county would ask Congress through a resolution by both houses of the Assembly to remove the Indians from jurisdiction of the Federal Indian Affairs Bureau and restore them to full citizenship.

German Propagandist Sentenced to Prison

Nuernberg, Jan. 31—(UP)— Hans Fritzsche, the ace Nazi propagandist acquitted by the International War Crimes tribunal, has been sentenced to nine years imprisonment at hard labor by a German denazification court.

Representative Seeks Federal Payroll Cut

Washington, Jan. 31—(UP)—Republican Chairman John Taber of the House Appropriations committee says he will seek to chop 1,000,000 employees off the federal payroll. That way, says Taber, the nation's taxpayers would be saved $2,500,000,000.

Lecturer To Speak On Behalf Of WSSF

Henrietta Rosenberg will speak to various campus groups on behalf of the World Student Service fund next week.

Leyden Graduate Will Make Pleas In Campus Talks

By Harry Snowden

Henrietta Rosenburg, of the Netherlands, a graduate of the University of Leyden in languages, literature and history, will address various student groups on the campus in behalf of the World Student Service fund in preparation for the forthcoming drive.

Miss Rosenburg is well acquainted with the needs of students in the devastated nations of Europe. When a student herself, she was active in several student societies and is at present a member of International Student service, and is in student relief in Holland.

In Underground Movement

Early in the occupation of Holland, Henrietta Rosenburg enlisted in the underground resistance movement. Sought by the Gestapo because of her activities in helping the Jews and helping edit an underground paper, she went into hiding for a time. She then became a responsible courier, carrying military and political information into neutral and allied countries.

In March, 1944, she was arrested by the Gestapo in Belgium. After months of interrogation she was condemned to death for espionage. Her execution was stayed and she was transferred to Germany and confined to various concentration camps until liberation in May, 1945.

With Education

At present she is employed as a secretary in the Ministry of Education, Arts and Sciences. She has recently been touring university campuses over the country for the WSSF. During the past summer she attended the World Conferences of International Student service and of World Student relief.

The WSSF will conduct a drive on this campus from Feb. 10-17, and has a goal of $5,500. This money will be used to help needy students in all parts of the world.

During her stay here Miss Rosenburg will address the following student groups in addition to some of the Monday morning classes, and a meeting of the WSSF central committee at 3:30 Monday afternoon;

Sunday—Wesley foundation at 6 p. m.

Monday—Canterbury club at 6 p.m.
IRC at 7:30 p.m.
Joint Y cabinet meeting at 8:15.

Sugar Bowl Film With Sound Track To Appear Monday

Movies of the entire Sugar Bowl game, complete with sound track will be shown in the Village theatre Monday evening at eight o'clock. Sponsored by the VFW and the Legion, the films will be shown by Dean Oliver Cornwell of the physical education department.

A. R. Hollett, commander of the local unit of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, said, "All veterans on the campus are invited to attend, and may bring their wives if they wish." Afterwards, there will be an open house with refreshments at the American Legion hut.

E. Carrington Smith has granted free use of the theatre.

Dee Sweat to Talk On Weston Photos

A short gallery talk on the photographs of Edward Weston, now on exhibit in Person hall art gallery, will be given at 4:30 o'clock, tomorrow afternoon, in Person hall. Dee Sweat, art major, will present the discussion. Various points of interest on Weston's technique and approach to art through photography will be presented.

The public is cordially invited and urged to attend as it is the last day the exhibit will be on view. It is felt that photography enthusiasts as well as art-lovers will enjoy the exhibit and discussion.

Explorer Tells Mystery Of 'Headless Valley'

Vancouver, B. C. (UP)—W. J. Tullet, 29-year-old explorer and adventurer, said the so-called "Headless Valley" of the Nahanni River country is no mystery to him and that he had been in the region, 200 miles northeast of Whitehorse, Yukon Territory.

He said the valley received its name from the fact that three headless bodies were found there.

Tullet and two companions discovered one of the bodies minus a head. Tullet said this was caused because the man was in a sleeping bag and coyotes ate his head. The animals couldn't get to the rest of his body. Tullet said the man probably had died from hunger.

Sulphur springs account for tales of tropical vegetation and warm tempratures in the valley, Tullet said. There is a 2,500-foot waterfall at one end of the valley.

PiKA PLEDGE DANCE

A dance will be held tonight at Carolina inn in honor of the Pi Kappa Alpha pledge class, Charley Smith, pledge president announced. There are 35 pledges in the class. Music for the dance will be furnished by the 'Carolinians.'

Moffitt Sherard, ATO who was selected for the vocalist spot with the "Dream Serenaders" from more than a dozen hopefuls, was featured with the Graham Memorial dance band at the Kappa Sigma house last night.

Singer Moffitt Sherard Gains Wide Following With Local Dance Band

By Dave Owens

Featured vocalist with the high-flying "Dream Serenaders" is Moffitt Sherard, who was featured with Ned Reap's Graham Memorial dance orchestra last evening at the Kappa Sigma fraternity's pledge banquet-dance. Sherard gained a wide following on campus while singing with Freddy Johnson's band while a student under the Navy Pre-Flight program.

The "Dream Serenaders" were organized just before Christmas of 1946 by Graham Memorial student union, to provide music for campus dances. Leader Reap and his band made an early start before the holidays began and met with repeated success in playing for campus dances.

Brightest feather in the cap of the "Dream Serenaders" was the selection of the band to play for the recent March of Dimes dance at Woollen gym. The rapidly-filling date book of the student union band indicates that the campus has recognized a hit orchestra.

Ned Reap, leader of the band, has many years of experience at giving the down-beat to his own orchestras. At State college in the Army Reserves and in Europe, where he played for the Bob Hope show touring army camps, Reap has gained for himself a firm foundation on the road to success.

May Queen to Be Chosen By Coed Voters Monday
CICA, Pan-Hellenic Council Sponsor Pageant: Identity of Queen, Court Will Remain Secret

Elections for the 1947 Carolina May Queen and her court will be held Monday night in dormitory house meetings at 11 o'clock. Town girls will vote in the Town Student's room at 7:30 o'clock.

Under the sponsorship of the CICA and the Pan-Hellenic council, the May Day activities will take place in the Arboretum on May 5.

Seniors Are Candidates

All senior coeds will be candidates and each woman student is eligible to vote for the selection of the queen, maid of honor, and 12 attendants.

Following the procedure of last year the identity of the court and the theme of the pageant will remain a secret until May Day.

Harry Last Year's Queen

Revival of the May Day festivities was held last year for the first time since 1942. Patty Harry was elected queen and Anne Geoghegan, maid of honor. The program was staged in the Forest theater, with Dr. Frank Graham crowning the queen.

In last year's pageant, written by the Chi Delta Phi literary society, a scene of Rip Van Winkle's dream portrayed the Spirit of May.

Rent Control Director Tells Increase Story

Washington, Jan. 31 — (UP) — Philip Fleming, the director of the Office of Rent Controls, has told the full story on the rent increase rumor.

In giving the facts to a Senate committee this afternoon, Fleming said he didn't know that a flat rent boost was contrary to President Truman's policies.

Fleming explained that he gave the green light for a 10 per cent increase chiefly because the move would make it easier for him to do the administrative work that goes with his agency . . . because a flat boost would make it unnecessary for him to deal with the flood of relief requests from landlords . . . requests which Fleming says now are pouring in at the rate of 25,000 a month.

Fleming was called before the Senate Banking committee to explain what its chairman, Senator Tobey of New Hampshire, referred to as Wednesday night's "comedy of errors." He admitted under questioning that he didn't know the President's policies on rent control when he told a subordinate to prepare the order. It was run off on the mimeograph machines of the OPA, one of the agencies under Fleming's catch-all office. But at the last moment, word came from the White House that the President had killed the order.

Ross E. Scroggs, resident of Chapel Hill and graduate of the University has taken over his new job as director of the still photo laboratory of the Communications center, Earl Wynn, [illegible] Center announced today.

Scroggs graduated from the University in 1942 as a chemistry major, and worked in the physics department photo laboratory as an assistant to Dr. Shearin while he was an undergraduate. Since leaving the University he has been employed at the Eastman company in Rochester, N. Y., engaged in color photography research.

The laboratory that Scroggs is to direct has just been organized to coordinate the various University photographic jobs that are done on the campus. As Director Wynn puts it: "The still photo laboratory is a part of the Communication Center set up to provide photo services to all the Departments of the University."

Special functions that will fall into this general classification will include all the I.D. card photos, film strips and slides for teaching purposes in all classes that desire them, and publicity work for the athletic department.

Laundries Promise Better Equipment Will Improve Work

Durham, Jan. 31—(UP)—There's some hope for those new white shirts—once you get them—in the word from the North Carolina Association of Launderers and Cleaners meeting in Durham.

The men who used to cause those rips and tears in your antiquated shirts promise they are getting a new type of equipment which presses and squeezes the dirt out without using the old sloshing and rubbing methods. They aren't sure when all the laundries will have the new equipment, however.

For those getting down to the last of their shirts, the cleaners have a few words of wisdom. The life of garments depends on the quality of the goods, the laundry service, and the physique of the wearer. That physique business is a new slant—coming from the men who clean your clothes. A heavy beard, the launders say, is like sandpaper on the collar. Large biceps are a terrific strain in the wrong places—especially about the shoulders. And perspiration—or sweat—why it's just like pouring acid on your clothes. So—if you want to make your shirts last longer—get an office job, with air-conditioning.

Eddie Allen, DTH Jester, Bathroom Tenor, Began Getting By-Lines at Early Age of 14

By Tomie Cates

A yellow sheet of copy paper rolled in a typewriter upon the table in the outer office of the Daily Tar Heel Office moves quickly as Eddie Allen, associate editor and self-styled court jester of the Daily Tar Heel office, types out the words to his next column while eager readers peer over his shoulder. Stopping at intervals, Eddie shifts his pipe to the opposite side of his mouth, fits it in the groove of his teeth, which he denies were broken off while biting the cap off a beer bottle, and makes remarks which immediately stop all typewriters as reporters yell, "Hey louder, I didn't get that." Even the sports editors have been known to come over and say, "Let's have that one again."

Covered Carolina Game

Known by most readers as the correspondent of the Charlotte Observer who covered Carolina football games last fall, Eddie began writing for that distinguished paper at the age of 14 when he got his first "by line" on a story. At 16 he became a member of the sports staff of the Observer, a job which he retained until just eight hours before entering the University in September, 1945.

EDDIE ALLEN

He was associate editor of the Tar Heel under Morrison, campaign manager for Editor Woestendiek, and is assocate editor of the current Daily Tar Heel. Last spring he was director of sports publicity of the University News Bureau. In the summer of last year he again was on the sports staff of the Charlotte Observer.

The 19-year-old sophomore from Charlotte, not only writes sports but is also the worst left-handed shot in the 2 p.m. hand-ball class and a pugilist of little or no merit. He is a member of the Pi Kappa Alpha fraternity, however, as of a recent Friday night is minus a fraternity pin. The last time it was seen it was not pinned to Eddie's sweater but to soft pink satin material worn by a little gal in Alderman.

Playmakers' Scripts Available in Library

Scripts for the Playmakers' next major production, a new play by Cid Ricketts Sumner based on her recent novel "Quality," are now in the reserve room in the library. Those who plan to attend tryouts in the Playmakers theatre next Thursday and Friday are advised to read the script before trying out for parts in the play.

Military Court Renders Trial Dismissal Verdict

Tokyo, Jan. 31—(UP)—The international military tribunal in Tokyo—trying former Japanese Premier Tojo and 25 co-defendants on alleged war crimes charges—says it will render a decision next Monday on the defense motion to dismiss the charges.

Best Interests

(Ed. note—The following editorial was prepared by the Men's Council.)

It becomes more evident to anyone who stands back and looks at our student government that it is made up of many little points. These points are defined through the use of two terms. They are the honor code and the campus code. In order for both codes to operate effectively under student government, the four components—the trustees, the administration, the faculty, and the students—must accept and carry out their proportionate share of the responsibility and participation. From time to time it may appear to us as students that the balance we like to see in responsibility goes a bit off center.

One of the little points which we should like to elaborate on centers around the methology utilized by the library and the integrity exercised by the student in the use of library books. Not so long ago the library had its reserve rooms rearranged so that the students would find the books needed more accessible, and at the same time give individual students the opportunity of browsing among the books before selecting the one to be checked out.

The students have obviously seen the advantage of such a plan and have utilized the system to their advantage. However, there have been a small number of students who have been abusing the plan as it has been set up. A small number of students began taking books out of the reserve room without actually checking them out with the attendant. This naturally lifts some of the compulsion from the student to return the book within a definite time period.

The detrimental effect such action has on the services of the library is very discouraging to both the library staff and to your fellow students. There is more involved than just the unwarranted taking of a book without going through the accepted check-out procedure. Often the student who fails to check out the book keeps the book out for several days or sometimes for a quarter. The purpose in having the reserve room is defeated in this way. T he fact that there is at the present time an acute book shortage further exaggerates the problem created by the keeping out of books longer than the regular time.

In an effort to curb the practice, which had grown to alarming proportions in the reserve room, the library officials decided to ask all students to have all their books checked as they left the reserve room. This move was taken to protect the best interests of the students and of the library staff in its efforts to give good service. Some few students may look at such a request as an attack on the general acceptance of the honor system. Nothing is further from the truth. As it is with the request for identification when you cash a check, this check is designed to protect the best interest of the overwhelming majority of the students from the thoughtless action of the few.

We are sure that all students want to cooperate with the library in its efforts to help all students in their textbook needs. Show this desire by helping in the exercising of the few simple rules which make their work better for all.

"Some of us who say we are 'standing back of others' are so far behind that when needed, we're not even within call."

"Devotion to task is a better measure of success than dollars."

"People are like elevators. We lift or lower others to the level we are on."

"Too many judge right from wrong on the basis of which pays best."

Move to Eliminate Student Council Considered Alarming

By Jud Kinberg

Evidently the burst of spring weather currently pervading the campus has brought political blossoms long before their usual time. Not content with a month or so before election time to get their politikin done, campus bigwigs have started the partisan ball rolling before February's first day.

Yesterday and today's Daily Tar Heel's had such pre-election headlines as "DTH Staff Endorses Barron Mills For Next Editor," "Legislature Candidates To Be Named by UP Poll." Usually, that sort of thing is reserved for mid-March, April. Coming now, it merely seems like the saps rising too early.

But far more alarming are the moves and machinations centering in the Student Legislature. In all fairness to the local solons, we must forget the regrettable Hodgson affair, but there is much greater danger in the proposed changes to the Student Constitution.

If recommendations already made are fully implemented the very commendable innovation of an appeal court will be stricken from the campus law long before it has had an ample opportunity to prove its value or lack of value. Many criticisms of the finality of a one-court Honor Code judiciary system have been raised in the years that I have been here. Probably in answer to those cries, the appeal court—known as the Student Council—was set up when the recent Constitution was adopted.

Sitting one notch above the men's and women's courts of original trial, the Student Council added the great power of double consideration to all Code violation cases tried. Although none of us forsee even an initial clash with the courts, introduction of the appeal setup, embodied in the Student Council, promised greater surety that final decisions would be wise and just.

In present discussion about abolition of the appeal powers of the Student Council, the main argument for it has been the cumbersomeness of the trial machinery. While I do not accept this charge completely, it seems to me that cumbersomeness is little enough to pay for greater surety of justice.

That dismissal from school because of an Honor Code violation can have great effect upon the future of men "shipped" is a truism. Such power, willingly delegated to courts by the UNC student body, is one of academic life and death. Although there can be no reason for crying "foul play" in any known decisions, we must realize that any group of jurors or judges can make mistakes. Many an interesting historical tale has been fashioned from such miscarriages of justice among men who occupied judicial benches for years.

Certainly then, students inexperienced in jurisprudence are also capable of unwitting inequities. It was just that human frailty, the so-called human factor, that the Student Council with its power to review Honor Council cases was established to guard against.

Operating for only a few months on an abnormal campus slowly adjusting itself to a massive jump in enrollment, the Student Council has not been truly tested. Operating with many people new to such duties it has not been truly tested. If it is abolished after so short an opportunity to prove itself, many students may mistake the move as a raid on power by those who control the lower—men's and women's—Honor Code courts.

No Endorsement

Dear Bill:

Concerning Thursday's Daily Tar Heel article of Tookie Hodgson's accusations of DTH "partisanship and suppression of criticism," there is a misleading implication that should be cleared immediately.

Although there has been some controversy in the past two weeks between the Publications Board and the school paper, Hodgson is not making his accusations in capacity of PB secretary as the DTH story seems to indicate. His charges come only as an interested individual and have no official endorsement of the board.

I would appreciate publication of this letter as clarification of the matter.

Sincerely,
Howard Merry

A Few Questions

Dear Bill,

In Thursday's Daily Tar Heel, columnist Eddie Allen urged the need for a universal peacetime draft to prepare this country against the threat of another war. He offers universal military training as our only defense against war, saying that the only alternative to military preparedness is to return to the rose-colored glasses of the "It-Can't-Happen-Here" boys. I disagree with his position, and in reply would like to ask, and try to answer, a few basic questions.

First, can we expect peacetime conscription to prevent another war? No — we cannot. Building big armies serves to create a false sense of security within a nation while creating fear and suspicion outside it. The history of France, Russia, and other nations in the last war should be sufficient warning that military preparedness does not make a nation secure against attack.

Second, would peacetime conscription insure at least that we would be able to win a war once it started? No —it would not. Mr. Allen says himself that another war would not be "of the type that will give the nation the months it previously has had to realize there is a fight for survical on"—which is to say that it would be jet-propulsion, push-button, atomic warefare. What, then, would be the security value of a large army, navy, and air-force if forty million people, according to Einstein, can be killed in a single night by the pushing of a button?

Third, can we expect the peace to be kept by supporting fully the United Nations as it is now organized? Unfortunately, we cannot. The General Assembly lacks the power of a true World Congress to pass world laws applying to individual world citizens—just as our own Congress passes national laws applying to national citizens. The Security Council is ham-strung by the big five veto. The International Court of Justice lacks a world police force to back its decisions. The present United Nations lacks the necessary power to keep the peace.

The only alternative to World War Three is to give the United Nations the true powers of government—legislative, executive, and judicial. The General Assembly must be changed into a representative World Congress, with the voting power of each nation alloted according to such factors as population, industrial development, world trade, and educational advancement. The veto power must go. World courts must be empowered to enforce their decisions.

Now is the time to act. "For," as Mr. Allen rightly says, "Time and the ominous spectre of another total war of horrible magnitude will await no man or nation."

Sincerely yours,
DAVID ANDREWS

Among the Catacombs

In regard to Mr. Heffner's article of Tuesday of this week, we are glad to hear of his liberal and popular ideas. Out of the fog of the article comes one shining revelation, and we quote, "As I recall our nation recently finished waging a war to right the wrongs of the oppressed" (of cource, we are not sure from Mr. Heffner's sentence whether the "oppresse" were wrong or right). "This thing" which most amazes us is that he is so naive as to hope that we share the idea that World War II was fought to relieve the oppressed. We hope that the fiery traits which cause Mr. Heffner to sop up such sentimental rot will not cause the dye from his red sport shirt to mar the fairness of his epidermis.

Those of us that live among the catacombs of this honored and liberal campus and still consider ourselves somewhat "conservative" find difficulty in evaluating the worth of Mr. Heffner's word to the benighted.

Today, we of the Old South fear not social and economic reforms; but we abhor the tactics employed by "carpetbaggers," "scallawags," the P. A. C., and communists. We believe that Mr. Heffner will share our views that it is better to work as a unit in uniting the Southerners rather than working as small groups to agitate a situation where so much progress has been made.

By Bob Jones and Bill Robertson

Dr. Sarah Gibson Blanding, president of Vassar College, has stated in a recent speech given before a group of educators and adults that there is growing pessimism among the youth of our country. In addition, she has presented a suggestion as to how this "pessimism" may be counter-acted. We quote her in part:

If our young people are to help us out of the abyss (!) there is no room for this negative outlook and it is up to the older generation to equip young people for leadership.

It is true that there is a negative outlook among youth of our country. But it is also true that there is a negative outlook among the older people in our country. The problem therefore is one that embraces the whole of our society—and it is a problem that may be presented more concretely than Dr. Blanding has done.

Our country emerged from World War II with a greater capacity to produce the good things of life than any other country. A year or so ago many of our leaders were asserting that we were ready to assume the moral and political leadership of the world. Today we hear lamentations from our intellectual leaders.

What has happened? Simply this—our tremendous technical and industrial resources which grew enormously during the war are no longer being fully utilized. This affects the plans of everyone of us. Our future appears uncertain because there is no basis for a perspective of a life of expanding productive activities.

The youth of our country is perfectly capable of developing its own leadership, given the incentive for a program of practical action. This incentive will be developed on the basis of a more complete understanding of the causes of the present mess—an understanding which is obviously not being given us by the older generation in our country today.

Another article that catches our eye is one informing us that Paul Robeson intends to give up his career as a singer and an actor for the next two years in order to conduct an active campaign against prejudice. The student body of the University of North Carolina has more than once expressed itself on this question through its various campus organizations. Under the circumstances it appears that it would be appropriate to extend an invitation to him to speak here.

Paul Robeson is a great athlete and a great artist. He is also a great fighter for freedom. The University of North Carolina has an outstanding record in athletics and in cultural achievements—and there is no reason why it should lag behind in the fight for freedom.

What Do YOU Say?

Today's Question

Do you believe the honor system works effectively on this campus?

The Answers

Yes. Although it doesn't work perfectly it works as well as any system would.—D. L. Johnson, Jr., Bailey.

No. A person's character cannot be determined by a code of honor. If he is dishonest he will cheat, no matter what.—Jack McDuffie, Miami.

In my experience at the University I have never seen the honor system violated. I believe that the honor system teaches young men a certain amount of responsibility.—Julius Fallick, Poughkeepsie, N. Y.

The honor system is the only respectable way to treat adult students. It has, nevertheless, many loopholes. —J. Bell, Concord.

It works effectively, but in some cases is only a farce. By this I mean being watched by the professor during the entire quizz and then having to sign a pledge.—J. C. Beagle, Jr., Charlotte.

I believe the honor system is still holding its own. It almost toppled during the war but with better understanding and fuller instruction it shouldn't fail now.—Carl Rhinegardt, Asheville.

As far as I'm concerned I haven't broken the system, but I'm afraid I have too little faith in human nature to think it works.—Alan Smith, Caldwell, N. J.

I believe it works up to a point in the classrooms but falls down deplorably in the labs.—G. W. Ziska, Wilmington.

I think the honor system here at Carolina is a good thing and should be carried on because a person generally feels confident and more at ease under this type of system. I do think it could be improved by every student conscientiously cooperating. — Betty Tucker, Asheville.

So long as human nature remains what it is we will always have imperfections in an honor system; however, the system seems to work fairly well on this campus. What we need to stress is the idea of everyone cooperating for the common good.—Don Kearney, Rocky Mount.

Phants Face Stiff Test Against State Tonight

STOCK IN THE White Phantom company has gone up considerably during the past week, especially from a conference standpoint. And tonight the Tar Heel hardwood cavorters will be trying to keep that value up and even raise it when they defend Fort Woollen against the invading Red Terrors from West Raleigh college.

It is a big order ahead of them, the biggest of the season as far as home and loop competition is concerned, and they will be playing with the powerful visiting State five in the favored position. However, looking at recent performances, on the home floor mainly, the local basketballers will be very much in the ball game.

Although they have lost several games already in the campaign, the Phantoms have time and again showed that they have stamina and the will to win, and we count them in definitely tonight and the rest of the season in the conference. Things are just about as unpredictable in the basketball world this season as they were in the 1946 football season, and we believe the Tar Heels are going to be the surprise in the SC from here on out.

On the credit side for the Scottmen, Tom Scottmen that is, are several major figures. There is, for instance the case of All-American Johnny Dillon. Dillon, who had a hard time hitting his scoring pace early in the season because of injuries and various other difficulties, has tallied 58 points in the last four games and judging from his three out of seven shots Thursday night against Wake Forest, he should keep up the pace the rest of the route . . . Dillon, incidentally was injured in Thursday's Deacon scrap and spent the night in the infirmary nursing his bad cold and sore jaw (with part of a molar missing). He will be ready for action tonight.

In addition to the coming through of Dillon, the guards, Norm Kohler and Jim White, have started hitting their shots more consistently, "Daddy" Jim Hamilton and Bob Paxton have continued their all-around leadership, the reserves have proved their mettle, and the overall condition of the team has been improved almost a hundred per cent.

Speaking of the reserves, Nemo Nearman, the lofty pivot freshman, did all right in his first long relief role against the Deacs, and he should be counted on more and more as the season progresses. Tee Thorne, a veteran from last year's club, and Jim Hayworth, ditto, are both doing a bangup job as subs for the guards. And it all adds up to an improving Tar Heel basketball team, one which is in there plugging from beginning to end, and one which will win plenty of ball games before this season is out.

DID YOU KNOW? That the boxing team has received a handsome trophy from the Sugar Bowl committee for participation in their Midwinter sports carnival. The Blue Thunder lads lost a match to Syracuse in the classic event, and their trophy is a silver sugar bowl about eight inches high with a miniature statue of a boxer on the top . . . That one of the most loyal fans of the Phantoms is Stan Kohler, twin brother of our "Kokey." Stan played for State last season . . . That Duke has installed new backboards in their indoor stadium for the SC tournament. They have put up glass boards in order to keep the people from sitting behind the backboards from having "blind" seats . . . That the first Southern conference wrestling tournament since 1942 will be held this winter at Lexington, Va., under the auspices of VMI.

IT'S A FACT! That the cheerleaders helped considerably Thursday night at the Wake Forest game. The sportsmanship was much improved, and the work of Devan Barbour, head shouter, and his assistants was very creditable. Let's have them for the rest of the games, okeh? . . . That Carolina is rated seventh this week among Southern basketball teams. They dropped three places from last week's rankings after the Maryland and Navy games . . . That baseball was in the air during the past few warm days. Bob Oettinger and Jim Nolan, residents of Whitehead dorm, were tossing the ball about the other day, for instance, with "BB" Pate trying his hand at a little batting.

Freshmen Drop Final Clash

A snowbird by Billy Caldwell of Danville's George Washington high school gave the Virginians a 35-33 decision over Carolina's freshmen quintet Thursday night in Woollen gym.

The frosh, who were playing their final game of the season, were seven points behind with four minutes to go, but baskets by Ken Curtis, Pete Peters, Sandy Hoft and Gordon Sauls gave the Tar Babies a one-point lead. A foul shot by Budget of the visitors tied the count, and then Caldwell's lay-up iced the game for the high school cagers.

The loss gave Coach Frank Murray's quintet a record of five wins against four defeats, two of which were inflicted by the Danville team.

The visitors, one of the best high school fives in Virginia, are coached by Al Mathes, former Carolina basketball and baseball star.

The box score:

UNC F (33)		(35)	Danville H. S.

Sauls (8)	F	(11)	Greenberg
Hoft (4)	C	(12)	Flora

Swimmers Capture First Loop Meet By Heavy Margin

By Mac Katzin

With the starting positions full of newcomers, the big Blue Dolphins of Carolina splashed to a 49-26 victory over V. P. I. last night in Bowman Gray Pool to register their first conference win of the season.

Although they did not have many first place winners on the Tar Heel squad, the Locals worked hard and consistently to record a majority of the tallies. Bo Jenkins and Ike Norwood were the only top honor winners for the Carolina tankmen, but their wins of the 300 medley and 400 free style relays proved to be a margin for victory.

In the novice lineup group placing for points were Bob Elliot in the 300 medley relay, Marvin Horton in the 200 meter freestyle, Warren Perry in the 50 meter freestyle, Tommy Scheinman in the 100 meter freestyle, Larry Johnson in the 150 meter backstroke along with Bob MacKenzie.

The win over the Techmen stretched the Dolphin's conference winning streak to 25 straight. The swimmers will meet the mermen from Navy at Annalopis on Wednesday and will return home to entertain the Tennessee swimmers next Saturday.

300 Meter Medley Relay: UNC (McCoy, Breeden, and Elliot). Time: 3:50.7.

200 Meter Free Style: Jenkins (C), Horton (C), and Berry (VPI). Time: 2:41.2.

50 Meter Free Style: Thompson (VPI), Perry (C), and Brouse (VPI). Time: [illegible].

100 Meter Free Style: Brouse (VPI), McCauley (C), and Scheinman (C). Time: 1:08.7.

150 Meter Backstroke: Bulger (VPI), Johnson (C), and MacKenzie (C). Time: 2:10.7.

200 Meter Breaststroke: Thompson (VPI), Hexner (C), and Cook (C). Time: 3:04.9.

400 Meter Free Style: Norwood (C), Hutton (C), and Leonard (VPI). Time: 5:50.7.

400 Meter Relay: UNC (Sper, Bultman, Greenbaum, Fricklen). Time: 4:26.

Diving: Swigart (C), Jerrett (VPI), Knox (C).

Lettermen Named In Cross Country

Eleven cross country letter winners and 42 award (not monogram) winners in jayvee football have been announced by the athletic department.

The trackmen, who were the best in the south in hill-and-dale competition last year, are nearly all participating in winter indoor running, and five of them are at New York today for the Millrose games. They placed fourth in the IC4A meet last fall.

A record of two victories, two ties and one loss was turned in by the JV footballers, many of whom saw some action in varsity play during the course of the season.

The cross country monogramers: John W. Bristow; Mark Burnham; Walter I. Francis; Frank W. Hardy; Rothschild H. Holden; Julian A. Mackenzie; Samuel H. Magill; James O. Miller; Jack H. Milne; Alvin H. Smith; John L. Strait.

The football award winners: Gerald Z. Allen; William Baise; Edward G. Bilpuch; Jack L. Brasington; Russell S. Carter; Max Cooke; Joseph A. Cospito; William J. Crutchfield; William Doran; Norman W. Durham; William Flamisch; James Godwin; John E. Gregory, Jr.; James P. Hendrick, Jr.; Newton H. Henry; Robert M. Kennedy; John Kinsey; Robert Koonts; Joseph S. Kosinski; C. B. Ledbetter; Daniels C. Logue; Stanley Marczyk; Richard L. McDonald; Fletcher McLane; Joseph Neikirk; Paul K. Plunkett; Jack Porterfield; Gus Purcell; Kenan W. Rand, Jr.; Robert K. Reynolds; Robert R. Rockholz; L. M. Rogers, Jr.; Peter Rywak; Christopher J. Shay, Jr.; Floyd Simmons; John E. Stillman; John M. Stoioff; Joseph C. Swicegood; Oral R. Swigart; A. J. Webb; Eugene Oscar Webster; Kenny Curtis, (Manager).

Locals Given Underdog Role Against Strong Terror Five

Carolina Cagers Seek Third Win of Week; Second Place in Loop Standings at Stake

By Bob Goldwater

Twice victorious over Southern conference quintets in Woollen gym this week, the White Phantoms will try to make it three in a row this evening when they face a strong N. C. State five in a battle for second place in the loop standings. The opening jump comes at 8 o'clock.

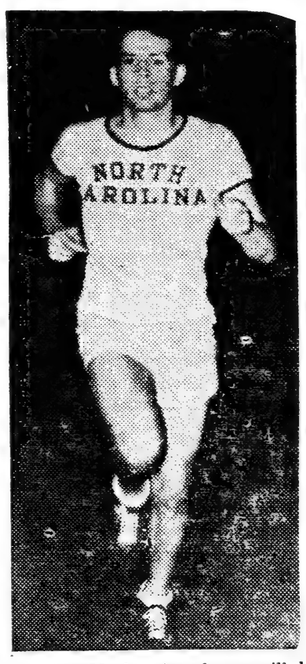
Unlike the other two encounters, the Phants will be the underdogs for tonight's tussle. The Red Terrors, triumphant in four loop tilts and emerging second best only to the league-leading Blue Devils of Duke, sport a high-powered outfit that has averaged better than 63 points in registering a 5-1 record in conference competition. Ranked fourth in the South in the Dick Dunkel ratings for the past week, the Raleigh quintet will be after its 15th victory of the campaign, against three losses.

Average 59 Points

The Carolina cagers, with a 3-1 loop record, have also fared well in conference scoring, averaging 59 points for their four contests. Coach Tom Scott's charges will be seeking to extend their home streak of seven straight wins against no setbacks and will also be gunning for their 10th success of the season.

The usual quintet of forwards Bob Paxton and Jim Hamilton, center Johnny Dillon, and guards Norm Kohler and Jim White will again open opposite the State crew. Also expected to see action are reserves Taylor Thorne, Sherman Nearman, Jim Hayworth, and Dick Hartley.

State Starters



For the Terrors, Coach Everett Case is expected to start Charlie Stine and Dick Dickey at the forward positions, Ed Bartels at center, and Captain Leo Katkavek and Bob Negley in the guard berths. Bartels, six-foot, four inch freshman, has been the leading pointmaker for his team during the campaign, having scored 73 tallies in six loop clashes and reaching a peak of 24 points against Wake Forest. State reserves will include Warren Cartier, Bob Hahn, Norm Sloan and Harold Snow.

CAGE CLIPPINGS: Hamilton tops the Carolina cagers in conference scoring with 56 tallies in four clashes . . . . Dillon is runner-up with 49 . . . . State's most recent encounter was a 55-33 triumph over Furman.

Duke Encounters Navy In Durham Tilt Tonight

Competing with the Carolina-State clash for top interest among cage fans in this section will be the battle between Duke and Navy in the Blue Devils' Indoor stadium this evening.

The contest will mark the return of Coach Ben Carnevale, who guided the White Phantoms to the NCAA finals last year, to the Carolina area. This time the former Tar Heel mentor will be directing the activities of a strong Middie quintet, unbeaten in its last six encounters including a 39-35 triumph over Carolina.

Julian Mackenzie, above, will be one of four Tar Heel milers in the mile team race tonight in the Millrose games in New York.

Milers Run Tonight In Millrose Games

New York, Jan. 31—A Carolina quartet consisting of Jimmy Miller, Julian Mackenzie, Jack Milne and Alvin Smith will be among the 16 runners in a mile team race event tomorrow evening in one of the feature attractions of the annual Millrose games at Madison Square Garden.

The Carolina team will compete against runners from NYU, Manhattan and Penn State in a cross-country style event, starting shortly after 10 o'clock.

Urguhart, Hearn, Seaver, Gupton, Zirpel Gain Wins

(Special to Daily Tar Heel)

Raleigh, Jan. 31—Carolina's wrestling crew chalked up its third straight victory of the campaign, all in conference competition, here tonight by taking a close 17-13 win over N. C. State.

The Tar Heels racked up one pin and four decisions in turning in the triumph. Irv Zirpel, 155-pounder, registered the pin by downing Max Warren in 39 seconds of the third round while Tommy Hearn, Dick Seaver, Tom Urquhart and Oscar Gupton scored the decisions.

The State team took an early lead when Joe Warren decisioned Carolina's Doug Thompson, 3-1, at the 121-pound berth. Carolina tied it up on Urquhart's win over Carlton Claylock by a 4-1 count at the 128-pound slot and then moved into a permanent lead on Hearn's victory over Ben Lewis, by a 14-9 score, at the 136-pound post.

At 145, Carolina's Dick Seaver blanked Joe Fisher, 6-0 and Oscar Gupton registered the Tar Heels' final points at 165 pounds with a 14-9 win over Don Troxler.

Wrestling Results

121—Warren (S) decisioned Thompson, 3-1.

Gilles Guilbert Wants to Play Just Like 'Great Jazz Artist'

Noted French Pianist to Give Performance Monday under Graham Memorial Sponsorship

By Bob Levin

When Gilles Guilbert, the famous French pianist thumbs the crease of his first ne wsuit in half a dozen years and sits on his adjustable stool at Hill Music hall on Monday evening, at 8:30 o'clock, sponsored by Graham Memorial, ticket holders will hear flawless playing of the masters by a musician who, by his own admission, wishes he could play "Begin the Beguine" like "your great jazz artist."

wishes he could play "Begin the Beguine" like "your great jazz adtist."

Playing in this country for the second time—the first in 1939, Guilbert, who was a student of Ricardo Vines, brings with him a purity of style highly flavored with expressive interpretation that has been extremely sensitized by five years as a resistant in his native France. His music is further enhanced by a simple personality and a deep understanding of Canadian audiences, scene of the virtuoso's first concerts a few weeks ago, repeatedly queried the 41 year old artist concerning his apparent disregard for the to-be-expected mannerisms of hair fluffing and hunchbacking at the keys. Guilbert shrugged these questions off with a laconic "no hair and la occupation."

"The former is the result of the latter," he laughs and therein is a poignant story of how a brilliant career was shattered by the Germans and is being reborn today before his many admiring audiences from Canada to

Guilbert spent the entire German occupation in Paris working against the invaders in the usual ways of resistants. This was especially difficult, the pianist hastened to point out, for "I had been in Germany many times and was well known by the officers of the Gestapo."

"But," Guilbert quipped, "I had a running hot and cold cough, which I turned off and on whenever I was asked to play over the German radio in Paris." Still more dangerous were the repeated refusals the loyal Frenchman gave Nazi leaders when requested to appear as soloist with touring German musical units.

To save his family from expected retrition by the Germans, the accomplished pianist left the concert stage to play with almost all of France's many pit and cabaret jazz groups. From one band to another he moved as soon as he was recognized by pleasure seeking Germans who were beginning to wonder why he wasn't working as a war-laborer with the many others that refused to entertain.

"I went out the back when the S. S. Troops bought tickets in the front," Guilbert said, "and finally ended up playing with a small colored band. That is where I wondered what 'Begin the Beguine' sounds like when played by a good American band.

Liberation found him weighing 107 pounds and "far from able to race along with Debussy's 'Reflections in the Water,'" a piece he plays today with remarkable nimbleness and vigor. It took more than a year to build up his strength and his nerves. Now, with full possession of his faculties, his playing enriched by suffering and experience, he has just completed a tour of Austria, Yugoslavia, Czechoslovakia, and France. From here he leaves for the mid-west and then on out to California where he plays with the Los Angeles Philharmonic followed by a tour of Mexico and the South Americas.

White Primary Measure Will Be Considered In Georgia Next Week

Atlanta, Georgia, Jan. 31—(UP)—The Georgia senate is preparing for public hearings next week on the white primary bill. . . The first on the list of "must" laws pushed by the Herman Talmadge administration.

This bill, designed to evade a United States Supreme court ruling and keep Negroes out of democratic primaries, has already been passed by the house. It would take the primary out of state control, and make it a private affair of the democratic party.

The bill throws a spotlight on a man who keeps behind the scenes in the Talmadge administration. . . A master politician who is largely responsible for Herman Talmadge's election by the Georgia legislature. He is chubby, friendly Roy Harris of Augusta, Georgia.

Roy Harris has worn many political coats in his more than quarter-century in Georgia politics. He served with Eugene Talmadge, with Governor E. D. Rivers, Governor Ellis Arnall. and now Herman Talmadge.

For 24 years Harris was a member of the State House of Representatives. For the last 10 he was speaker. But when Augusta citizens rose against the cracker party last summer, they threw Roy Harris out along with his comrades. A newspaper publisher took his place in the legislature and Harris went on the Talmadge white-supremecy bandwagon.

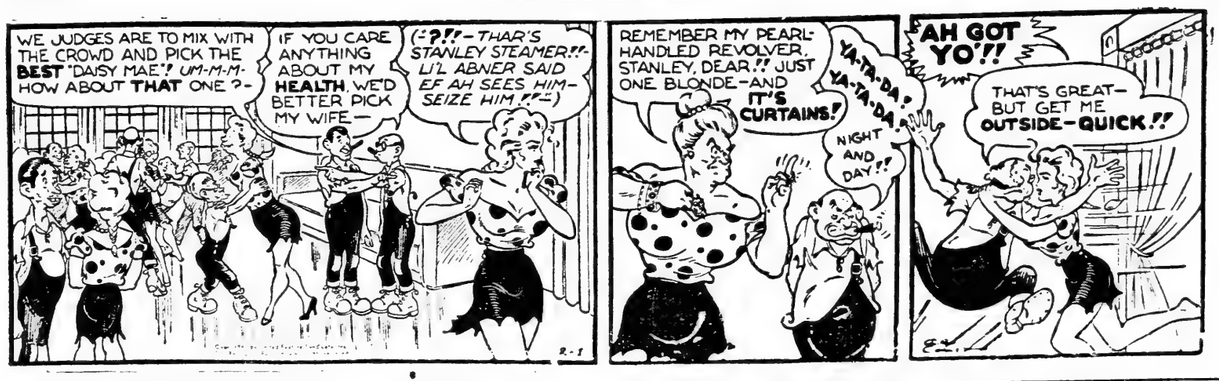
Murderers Roll Dice To See Who Dies First



Nashville, Tenn., Jan. 31—(UP)—Two young killers have decided to roll dice for position in their walk to the Tennessee electric chair.

Twenty-year-old John Kelly of Marion, Illinois, and 19-year-old James Sandusky of Nashville, Tenn., are in a Nashville jail, waiting for formal sentencing. A jury at Centerville, Tenn., needed only four minutes of deliberation yesterday to convict them of the killing of a tobacco executive, J. Edward Sprouse.

It was near Centerville on January 6 that Sprouse stopped his car to give the pair of ex-Marines a ride. They held him up, tied him to a tree, and stole his car. A few minutes later they came back with a small rifle, and Sandusky, perched on a stump, shot his human target to death.

Plane Crashes During Storm; 16 People Die

Portugal Is Scene Of Latest Crack-Up

Lisbon, Feb. 1—(UP)— Sixteen persons were killed today when an air France transport crashed at Cintra, a town 12 miles north of Lisbon, during a storm. One person survived, but is reported badly injured.

The twin-engined Dakota type plane burst into flames as soon as it hit the ground. The flames hampered the work of rescue crews that rushed through the mountainous country to the crash site from the Lisbon airport.

First Reports Sketchy

First report of ths disaster are sketchy. There's also a contradiction on the number of persons aboard. Officials at Le Bourget Field in Paris say that there were 11 passengers and five crew members aboard. This is one less than the number reported in dispatches from Lisbon.

Three fire trucks and an ambulance were rushed to the scene, but there was little they could do. Reports from the first group to reach the wreckage say that most of the bodies were badly burned. It's believed that all of the passengers were French or Portuguese. An Air France official in Paris says a passenger list will not be released until tomorrow.

The plane was the same type as the one in which Grace Moore, Prince Gustaf Adolf of Sweden and 20 others were killed last Sunday while taking off from Copenhagen.

Truman Thinks Meeting Of Big Three Needless

New York, Feb. 1—(UP)—President Truman's comment against the need for a Big Three meeting was prompted by an interview with Josef Stalin which Elliott Roosevelt published in Look magazine. In the article, Stalin was quoted as saying that frequent Big Three meetings would prove valuable.

Palestine Americans Not to Be Evacuated

Washington, Feb. 1— (UP)— A State Department spokesman says there are no plans to evacuate the some 4900 Americans in Palestine. The statement followed President Truman's dismissal of an unofficial appeal from Winston Churchill that the United States help restore peace in the Holy Land.

Laws Not Solution, Says William Green

Miami, Fla., Feb. 1—(UP)—A. F. of L. President William Green says industry-labor agreement, not legislation, is the answer to the problem of jurisdictional disputes. He says he is happy that President Truman was able to announce a no-work-stoppage agreement for the building industry.

Enlistments Signify Longer Draft Holiday

Washington, Feb. 1—(UP)— Observers report that the rate of enlistments indicates that the draft holiday will continue until March 31st when the Selective Service Act expires. Volunteers have been filling the quotas.

British Battlewagon Narrowly Misses Mine

Portsmouth, England, Feb. 1—(UP)—The British battleship, Vanguard, on which the Royal family is sailing to South Africa, was in serious trouble for a while today. A mine was reported drifting toward the ship. But a dramatic Admiralty warning sent other British warships to the scene. They located the mine and guided the Vanguard safely through the danger area.

Co-op To Sponsor New Order Meeting

By a unanimous vote, the 56 members of the Daily Tar Heel staff, Thursday afternoon nominated Barron Mills, rising senior from Laurinburg, as their choice for editor next year. At present Mills is DTH desk editor.

Club's Aims Are No Bottlenecks; More Stock Sold

By Ken Rothwell

Following an executive meeting Friday night co-op officials announced that the buying club will sponsor another order meeting on Monday, February 10 at 7:45 o'clock in 103 Bingham hall.

Main business of Friday's meeting, according to chairman Tom McDade, was the formulation of plans designed to eliminate bottlenecks which slowed down the last meeting. Included among these is a new method of ordering which will speed the process considerably. In addition it was decided, as a matter of convenience to co-op customers, to accept orders in multiples of threes rather than case lats.

Sell More Stock

Stock salesmen will again be on hand to sell shares in the organization to students and townspeople interested in joining. Membership is open to anyone who purchases one share at one dollar per share. Co-op officials stressed that this stock bears interest at 5 per cent per year in addition to permitting purchase of groceries at wholesale prices.

"While we are primarily operating for the benefit of marired veterans by the very nature of a co-operative organization membership is open to everyone. We welcome all, both veteran and non-veteran," said McDade.

Take More Orders

Orders taken at next Monday's meeting will be delivered the following Saturday, February 15. In connection with this Dr. J. M. Lear, who has been handling co-op purchases, stressed that co-operation on the part of all would be necessary.

"A co-op operates through the participation of its members. It is only in this way that we eliminate the overhead, which results in high prices. We hope that our members will be willing

Yale Professor To Give Lecture Tonight on 'Jesus'

Dr. Clarence Tucker Craig of the Yale University Divinity school will give the third in the year's series of University Sermons this evening at 8 o'clock in Hill hall, under the sponsorship of the Council for Religion in Life.

Formerly of the faculty of the Divinity school at Oberlin college, and now a professor of the New Testament, Dr. Craig, appropriately will speak on "Jesus."

In 1943 he received the high distinction of election to deliver the lectures on "Jesus" on the Shaffer foundation at Yale. He is a member of the American Theological committee of the World Conference on Faith and Order, and played an important role in the revised translation of the New Testament.

Sponsor for the talk, the CRIL, has organized the series of lectures this year around the Hazen books on religion. The Council on this campus is organized, according to president David Andrews, "to bring about greater cooperation among all the religious groups in the community."

German Judge's Home Is Bombed by Enemies

Nuernberg, Germany, Feb. 1—(UP)—The home of Camille Sacks, president of German denazification court trying Franz von Papen, was bombed tonight.

Army officials say the assailants were not identified, but that the bomb was home-made.

Early reports say no one was injured and damage consisted only of broken windows. But these could not be confirmed because military police cordoned off the entire area.

Von Papen, Nazi diplomat acquitted as a war criminal by the International Military tribunal, is on trial by the purely-German court, charged with aiding and influencing the rise of Naziism.

The same court sentenced Hans Fritzsche, who was responsible for Adolf Hitler's radio propaganda, to nine years imprisonment.

SP to Convene Today In Candlelight Room

There will be an open meeting of the Student party at 4 o'clock this afternoon in the Candlelight room of Graham Memorial. Temporary chairman Jack Booraem stressed that the meeting is open and urged all interested students, regular members or not, to attend. Nominations for the spring elections will be considered at this time.

Valkyries, highest woman's honorary society on campus, tapped five new coeds into the organization Wednesday morning. Members of the Valkyries, are selected on the basis of character, leadership, scholarship, sound judgment and unselfish service to the University and membership is limited to 2 per cent of the coed student body. The new initiates, left to right, are: Kit Coleman, Fran Golden, Liz Barnes, Jerry Atkins, and Janet Johnston.

Officers of the group are: Blanch Jacobi, president, Ann Cutts, vice-president, Carlisle Cashion, secretary, Nancy Laird, treasurer.

Other members of the organization are, Jean Dricoll, Gerry Smith, Sybil Goerch Powe, Tommie Holden, and associate member, Peggy Jurgensen.

Guilbert To Play Here Tomorrow

French Pianist Comes Direct to Carolina After Tour in Central, Southern Europe

Direct from a widely acclaimed tour of central and southern Europe comes Gilles Guilbert, one of the most noted pianists of our time. He is scheduled to appear in a free performance tomorrow evening at 8:30 o'clock in Hill music hall, under the auspices of Graham Memorial.

The French master of the ivories has a wide international reputation, having been acclaimed for performances throughout Europe, Canada, and the United States. He was recalled to Canada three times in the past year for recitals, and is solidly booked there for his next tour into the North.

Second Tour of U. S.

This is Guilbert's second tour of the U. S. The first was in 1939, shortly before he temporarily terminated his concert career in Europe to go in hiding from the Nazis. During World War II, he played with small jazz units to hide his identity from the Gestapo.

As he heads for Chapel Hill for his concert tomorrow night, the French virtuoso leaves behind him ringing acclamations of audiences in New York, Boston, Philadelphia, and Washington, D. C. From here, his tour takes him to the mid-west, California, Mexico, and South America.

Refused to Collaborate

To escape the unforgivable crime of collaboration with the German conquerors of France, who wanted him to entertain with their musical units, Guilbert went from tavern to cabaret, working with small bands—staying at one until he was recognized by the enemy, disappearing "out the back door," as he puts it, and turning up in another part of the country at a similar job.

When France was finally liberated, he weighed but 107 pounds, his strength and nerves considerably weakened. In the space of a year, however, he regained his full health, and now plays with a nimbleness and vigor that belie his wearing experiences of the war-torn years.

Thief Steals New Car One Block from Police

Raleigh, Feb. 1—(UP)— Raleigh police have discovered a new way to get a new car. A thief who knew what he wanted broke into an automobile agency in Raleigh only one block from police headquarters, picked out a shiny black two-door Buick, and calmly drove it out of the showroom. It was as easy as that, because the automobile had already been sold and was gassed up ready to go.

FLOUR GOT YOU A DIVORCE

Madison, Wis. — (UP) — Divorce cost twice as much as marriage in Wisconsin's early days. Historical records show that a trader appointed justice of the peace in Prairie du Chien in 1806 charged 100 pounds of flour for a marriage ceremony, but 200 pounds "for dissolving the marriage-relationship."

'Dear Congress' Is S&F Title

Student Drama Set To Appear March 3

Rehearsals for Sound and Fury's March production, "Dear Congress," will begin tomorrow night at 6:30 in Memorial hall. The early starting time has been fixed in order not to conflict with the NYU basketball game, Art Golby, director, announced yesterday.

The majority of the parts in the show will be assigned during the rehearsal and scripts will be distributed. All persons listed below should, without fail, attend the opening session.

There are still some openings left in the cast, and anyone interested in the production should plan to be on hond.

The show is scheduled to open March 3 and run for three days.

Those who have been cast in the show are as follows:

Sam Greene, Fran Avera, Norm Sper, Joyce Peterson, George Grizzard, Don Draper, Jim Gieger, Don Shields, Marvin Lentz, Betty Jo Blanton.

Tread Covington, John Shearin, Erwin Danziger, John MacBride, Bob Finehout, Larry Goldrich, Chris Craft, Pete Strader, Eleanor Rodd, Doris Gilliam.

Jay Franklin, Norm Kohler, Jud Kinberg, Frank Levy, Danny Daum, Marvin Wilson, Sid Epstein.

Anyone interested in technical work or in the business end of production are also asked to attend the meeting.

CPU Will Discuss Economy Measures At Session Tonight

Tonight's CPU roundtable discussion will center around the Employment act of 1946, and carry in its orbit the important economic questions of commodity prices, labor markets and other related topics. Jay Foss, senior Union member from Massachusetts, will deliver the introductory report.

Jerry Davidoff, chairman of the CPU, has been in Washington over the weekend, attempting to line up speakers and make definite dates for the remainder of the winter quarter and the early part of the spring term. Should he return in time, Davidoff will report to the Union on his interviews with leading figures on Capitol Hill.

Applications for vacancies in the CPU's charter-limited membership are still available at the YMCA information desk. The Union's membership committee will conduct interviews later in the week.

Tonight's meeting takes place at 8 in the Grail room, Graham Memorial.

GLEE CLUB MEETS EARLY

The regular rehearsal of the men's glee club is scheduled to meet at 4:30 instead of at 5 o'clock tomorrow afternoon.

YMCA's Student Directory Now Ready for Distribution

The Student Directory for 1946-47 has now been printed and is ready for distribution. The YMCA plans to have them distributed to all dormitories, sorority houses, fraternity houses, trailer camps and Victory Village. Faculty members will be able to secure copies through their departments.

The directory contains a complete list of students, faculty, administrative and clerical staffs in alphabetical order. Due to the crowded and ever-changing resident situation in Chapel Hill it is impossible to include the city directory in this publication.

Printed by the Orange Printshop and supported in part by the merchants of Chapel Hill this directory is published annually by the University YMCA.

A master directory is maintained at the YMCA office and corrected daily as addresses change. Students and faculty are asked to notify this office of any change in your address.

Issue Is Labeled As 'Diversified'

By Sam Whitehall

January's Carolina Magazine, due for distribution tomorrow will feature a survey of student government, according to a preview of the issue by Editor Fred Jacobson.

Lead article in the magazine will be an informative appraisal of the many campus organizations by writer-legislator Tom Eller. Given free rein by the editors, Eller has surveyed the many student-controlled groups at UNC, summed up their successes and failures during the fall quarter.

Stallings Satire Cartoon

In addition to the Eller article, there are pages devoted to the honorary societies and a story on Graham Memorial's latest activities in the cultural field. A satire on campus politicians and Clyde Stalling caricatures of current BMOC's provide the humor in the student government section.

Determined to raise the quality of literary content, Jacobson appointed Dick Seaver as new Literary Editor and has introduced a novel Board of Review to judge all contributions. The group, representing a cross-section of campus tastes, sat in session for several afternoons in order to choose the creative writing featured in the January issue.

Carolina magazine Editor Fred Jacobson has predicted that "winter quarter magazines will be among the best, and should prove varied enough in content to appeal to every student." February issue of the magazine is due tomorrow.

Masthead Shows Staff Shake-up

Short stories they passed on include "Golden Throat" by Magazine newcomer Bill Parker. Plot of "Golden Throat" centers on the men, women, and moods of two towns in eastern Tennessee. In addition, there are two other "Board-approved" pieces of fiction, one by Sigsbee Miller and the other by Violet Fidel.

This issue inaugurates another new Magazine policy in that one page will be devoted each month to writing from the newly-formed Writers Club. Their first offering is an impressive one,

Crux of Carolina Politics

Haggling over campus politics occupied a large part of the Freshman Class elections Thursday afternoon, when supporters of non-fraternity candidates suspended election proceedings for nearly an hour while the injustices of Carolina politics were aired.

Two points came up. One, the claim that insufficient time elapsed between the announcement and the actual election was well taken. One day is indeed a short time.

The crux of Carolina politics was the other argument: fraternities can control spot elections. It is true but no talking point that in proportion to the entire Freshman Class, an overwhelming majority of freshman fraternity supporters was present. The decision of the "independent" voter to vote lies with himself; but if fraternity supporters call out entire pledge classes, it is perfectly legal to do so.

Party politics rather than the merits of the candidates will continue to be the basis for choosing leaders, at Carolina as elsewhere. A system of proportional representation, fraternity vs. non-fraternity, under law, is hard to imagine.

Granted that the present plan is unjust, it remains for the opposition to invent some legal system of representation which will more nearly reflect the feelings of the campus. To these righteous objectors, let this be said: there is a world of difference between legality and justice; more power to you in bringing the two closer by legal means.

And it remains for the classes involved to be interested enough to turn out and vote. If they do not vote, they can have no complaint about the men elected, and we regret to say that the freshman and sophomore officers were elected by a mere handful of students—a small percentage of the actual number of people in the classes.

Intelligent Entertainment

Tropical Flowers in Winter For Cast of Bartered Bride

The Bartered Bride, an opera by Bedrich Smetana, joint effort of the Carolina Playmakers and the Department of Music; directed by Foster Fitz-Simons; music directed by Paul Young.

By Art Golby

Smetana's cue-waiting opera of unimaginative delight bowed its journeyman's cast five times to a full house at Memorial Hall last Friday night. If the performers waited shyly to sing, the audience waited sympathetically through long inactive melodies for something to happen.

Shaping an opera for presentation with 52 appearing performers, as many technicians, and a 26 piece orchestra, is an undertaking seldom understandable to the spectator. Tropical flowers in January to Paul Young, Foster Fitz-Simons, and every member of the cast, crew, and orchestra, for extracting the warmth of song, music, and dance, from our drab winter surroundings. There could have been no more wholesome start to the theatre year 1947.

The only way we can meaningfully recreate the innocuous recadance of something like "The Bartered Bride" is to attempt to make it believable in terms of the individual characterizations. If we cannot believe the line of action we can believe the human beings caught up in it. Carl Perry, as the stuttering Vashek, had the right idea closely followed by Edgar Vom Lehn, the pompous marriage broker Kezal, and Ed Easter, as the bright hero Jenik.

Easter works hard with a well-trained voice and is pleasing when he smiles. Fortunately, Nina Thomas, interpreting Marie, the bride, in terms of music far exceeded her understanding of Marie in terms of word and gesture. Vocally, Miss Thomas adequately compensates in technique what she lacks in interpretation.

It was not until Carl Perry's contemporarily human bashful boy Vashek made his entrance that the play was brought out of the stuffed-shirt category. The audience took a breath of relief and we studied the other characters through him.

The excellent highlight came late and left too early; the dancing circus troupe in the third act. Can't we get this animation throughout into individuals who are doing something?

The singing of the chorus surpassed any one feature of the opera and could walk and win a running-race against any of its kind.

Irene Smart's costumers and Wayne Bowman's lighting staff made for splendid environment. Lynn Gault, the set designer, is yet to fall short of anything he undertakes. The use of high and low area in the single setting overcame any risk of its becoming monotonous.

Two A-Bomb Drops on Japan Placed Moral Guilt on U. S.

By Manny Margolis

The grave indictment of Hiroshima and Nagasaki has placed a terrible moral guilt upon the American conscience. This indictment stands against us written indelibly in human suffering and some 150,000 snuffed-out human lives. It is an indictment in which, unfortunately, the accused are guilty until they prove themselves innocent.

An important piece of evidence for the accused was submitted this past week. It was offered by a man who was probably most directly and singularly responsible for making the momentous decision which called for our using the bombs in the manner in which we did—Mr. Henry L. Stimson, former Secretary of War.

Writing in the latest issue of Harper's magazine, the aging statesman presents a powerful case. His article is clear, informative, and unbiased. He waves no flags and beats no drum. Rather, he presents the evidence, the estimates, and the alternatives on the basis of which his Committee on Atomic Policy made their decision.

This sincere effort cannot fail to assuage much of the doubt in the minds and hearts of many of us regarding our use of the bombs. The simple and central theme is that the atomissions over Japan actually saved many more lives than they took, from a long-range point of view.

This latest "Stimson Doctrine" answers a number of questions which world and U. S. public opinion have been asking for a long while. But, at the same time, it skirts some vital questions which are equally in need of reply. As Tuesday's Christian Science Monitor points out, for example:

"Mr. Stimson does not deal with or attempt to dispose of the contention that the atomic bomb was used because the U. S. hoped to end the war against Japan before Russia could join."

The first bomb was dropped on August 6th. . .The Soviet Union entered the war on the 9th. . .Occupation and military government in Japan have been clearly unilaterally American ever sinve V-J Day.

Moreover, several glaring contradictions are apparent in the former Secretary's reasoning. On the one hand, he insists that there was "a very strong possibility that the Japanese government might decide upon resistance to the end." Then, on the other hand, quoting his own Memorandum for the President (July 2, 1945), he states:

"I believe Japan is susceptible to reason in such a crisis to a much greater extent than is indicated by our press and other current comment. . .I think the Japanese nation has the mental intelligence. . .to recognize the folly of a fight to the finish."

Another Stimson vs. Stimson contradiction is to be found in the Secretary's allusion to a poll of 150 project scientists, conducted by Dr. A. H. Compton. Mr. Stimson points to this poll as one of the concrete pieces of evidence which helped his committee to make their ultimate decision on the use of the bombs. In this poll, more than half of the scientists urged a "preliminary" demonstration on a "military" objective.

Yet, the War Secretary goes to great lengths to point out that the committee decided to use the bomb on a "dual" military and CIVILIAN target "without prior warning." Apparently, the views expressed on the atomic program were in no way to reflect the views of the sponsors!

He alludes further to a hitherto secret report by a scientific panel, composed of Drs. A. H. Compton, Fermi, Laurence, and Oppenheimer. This report, submitted June 16, 1945, stated that "the opinions of our scientific colleagues on the initial use of these weapons are not unanimous; They range from the proposal of a purely technical demonstration to that of a military application best designed to induce surrender. . ."

How such a report could have been construed to signify what the Stimson committee interpreted it as meaning is difficult for one to understand.

However, it is in Mr. Stimson's "long-range" analysis of loss of life that the testimony is probably at its weakest. The military advantages and life-saving aspects of the bomb-dropping should have been weighed against the ensuing loss of confidence and wave of horror and repulsion which would inevitably sweep over the rest of the world. Clearly, such a "long-range" approach was completely neglected and ignored.

A Committee on Social and Political Implications, made up of Project Scientists, submitted a report to this same Secretary of War Stimson on June 11, 1945, which stated the issue clearly:

"It may be very difficult to persuade the world that a nation which was capable of secretly preparing and suddenly releasing a new weapon, as indiscriminate as the rocket bomb and a thousand times more destructive, is to be trusted in its proclaimed desire of having such weapons abolished by international agreement."

And after the atomic milk had been spilled, what happened to Mr. Stimson's "long-range" plans for saving lives? Why was no tension-relieving gesture made until nearly THREE MONTHS AFTER August 6th? Why were only Great Britain and Canada invited to participate in the Atom discussions once they finally did get under way? Why were U. S.-Soviet relations permitted to drop, as a consequence, to an all-time low? Why the continued stock-piling? Long-range for WHAT?

"I woo'd thee with my sword
And won thy love doing thee injuries,
But I will wed thee in another key."

Damn Nonsense!

January 30, 1947

Dear Sir:

It seems that the time has come for you (Mr. Editor) and your illustrious colleague, Bill Carmichael, to stop all your Damn nonsense about U. N. C. being robbed by Referee Gabe Hill in the Sugar Bowl. Carolina lost 20-10 if you remember and that is the way the score will always read. Your crying about it will not remedy the situation, only make it worse by pulling the good name of U. N. C. down in the GUTTER.

You write an editorial on the sportsmanship of the students at boxing matches and basketball games, and then go back to your crying over the Sugar Bowl game. Yours and Mr. Carmichael is the worst example of sportsmanship hat I have ever seen. We LOST! Let's stop crying and forgive "Cousin Gabe" for a couple of mistakes. You might make one sometimes (or is that possible?)

If you can't find anything sensible to write about just leave your column blank so we can easily see how a childish mind looks. Dry your eyes son and look to a brighter New Year's Day in '48.

Ed's Note: Could we call this letter a "Mock-ery?"

"Rebel Ideas"

There is one practice in common usage by various campus organizations that should be altered: A majority of their statements need to be watered-down before being released for publication. It seems that every few days one reads that the students of the University are in favor of this or that issue and that they go on record as supporting some remote policy.

In the Tar Heel story January 30, the YMCA "officially approved" the actions taken by groups and organizations at the U. of Texas. How can the cabinet hand out these notices as being the faithful representation of the membership, when almost every student on the campus carries a membership card?

It seems that a portion on the campus is determined to make the citizens of the state believe that we have been inoculated with some strange serum that breeds racial tolerance.

After the campus had been cleared by draft boards and the War and Navy Departments, the remaining students merged with the northern element that flooded the V-12 and like units with strange results. Shock was the order of the day when I read in my hometown paper, several months after publication, that a petition had been circulated and adopted that was in favor of admitting Negro students to the University with no restrictions whatever.

Afterwards I found that this was only a resolution of one of the senates, but in the press it was interpreted as being the opinion of the whole student body.

It may be that my beliefs are outdated, but after close association with all races on numerous ships during the war, I am more confirmed in my rebel ideas. I would be the last one to claim that racial tolerance is not a fine thing, but when making public statements along that line, let's stay within the limits of truthful reporting.

(No, I'm not supporting Talmadge, Bilbo, or the KKK!)

JIM WILSON.

Line-Bucking Coeds

Dear Sir:

I can not, for the life of me, see why our feminine friends of the University insist on bucking the lunch lines in Lenoir hall. In the service those line "steppers" were plain heels.

As soon as a meal time comes, one does not have to be too widely awake to see these feminine species put on those superficial smiles (diabolical enough) and ignorantly and treacherously squeeze in at the front of the line.

The process is simple enough; it is the old "buddy, buddy" gag. Wake up girls. You have no special function that gives you the right to smash any line regardless of how darling you might think you are.

Sincerely,
SAM J. UNDERWOOD

THE CPU ROUNDTABLE

The Employment Act of 1946

By Jay Foss

When President Truman signed the Employment Act of 1946 on Feb. 20 he challenged the glib "what-goes-up-must-come-down" boys. His challenge is a law which has as its goal the prevention of depression or the maintenance of the up phase of the above theory of the business cycle. For the first time measures were going to be taken necessary for a healthy economy, one that provides opportunities for those able, willing, and seeking to work.

This law sets up a Council of Economic Advisers, three in number, who analyze economic trends, review government programs, and help the President prepare his Economic Report which is to be made to Congress at the beginning of each session. This report must set forth a comprehensive review of the economic scene, emphasizing the levels of employment, production, and purchasing power that should be maintained for a stable economy and presenting a program which would yield the desired levels. Following this presentation to Congress, the report is referred to the Joint Committee on the Economic Report which submits its findinsg and recommendations of the President's analysis to serve "as a guide to the several committees of Congress dealing with legislation relating to the Economic Report." The various committees may propose legislation as a result of these findings, after having examined them.

Thus for the first time in American economic history we have the opportunity to establish a stabilized economy, but there are many obstacles to be overcome before this ideal may be realized. The most important of these perils are:

1) The defective distribution of income and the growing concentration of economic power. It is futile to attempt to formulate any program designed to prevent "busts," when so much is in the hands of so few. Is it to the interest of the country that a minority, because of its economic power, endanger the majority with recessions which result from the very possession of this power? Emphatically, no! The struggle for economic democracy will be bitter, indeed, far more so than that for political democracy, and until this strife is settled justly the majority will be nothing more than riders on the minority inspired cyclical rollercoaster of boom and bust.

2) Proper administration of the law must be guaranteed so that the President and his Council can promote maximum employment, production, and purchasing power. This danger is particularly evident upon reading the Economic Report of the President and the Council. Unfortunately, nowhere in either report can the far reaching program necessary under present conditions be found. The problems and solutions are mentioned in passing, but this is not sufficient for the situation.

The Employment Act of 1946 requires a courageous approach, for the question which it attempts to solve is difficult and not presented as clearly as one might wish. Double-talk and beating one's chest to the tune of free enterprise will bring us no closer to the goal of maximum employment, production, and purchasing power. What is needed is positive forward action of the sort that will insure the country free enterprise, an enterprise that is truly free to provide adequately for its citizens and not simply dividends for its stockholders.

TIME ON SHERIFF'S HANDS

Hartford City, Ind.—(UP)—The housing shortage continues but a certain brick building here has no tenants. It's the county jail, which, according to Sheriff Isaac Cook, has not been inhabited since the middle of December.

Phantoms Drop Overtime Tilt To State, 48-46

---Bobbing in Sports---

with

BOB GOLDWATER

CAROLINA'S WINTER sports program, in full swing for the past month, reaches its zenith during the coming week when Tar Heel teams participate in 10 events. Starting with a cage contest tomorrow evening, the week of sports reaches its climax Saturday when four varsity outfits engage in five—that's right, five—events.

Opening the week's slate and definitely of primary interest will be the invasion of a revenge-bent New York University quintet, intent on snapping the spell that the name North Carolina casts over its cage teams. Behind 4-3 in the series that first began in 1935, the Violets will be seeking to break a three-game victory skein that Phantom clubs weaved over the New York school. In addition to recalling that no team save Carolina has ever downed NYU three straight times, the visitors will also remember how the Blue and White cagers fought back from a seven-point halftime deficit in last month's tussle to pull the same trick that New Yorkers usually associate with NYU—namely, to win via a last-half spurt.

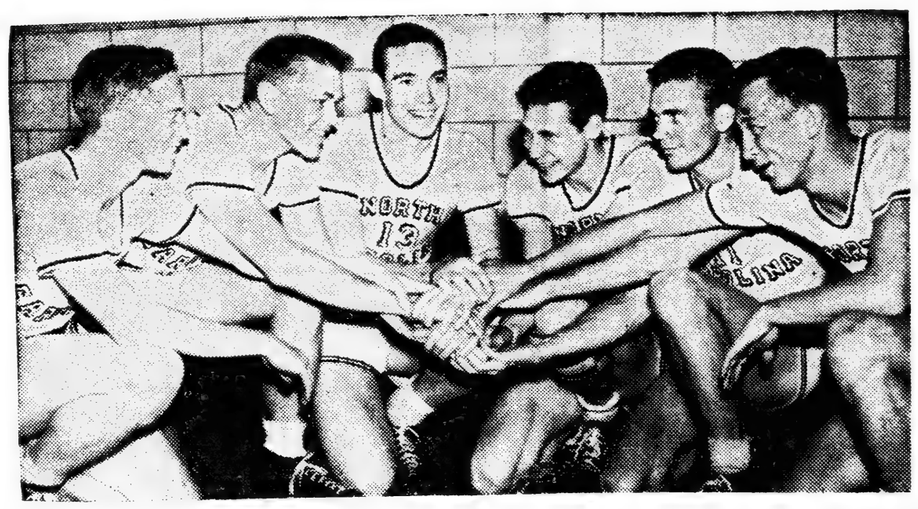
WE HAD the pleasure of viewing the Carolina victory over the Violets last January 14. And judging from the Phantoms' performance that night, we think Coach Tom Scott's boys will again give the Violets another good fight, although the visitors will be heavy favorites as before. At any rate, we're sure that there will be a capacity crowd on hand so you'd better come early and claim your spot.

FOLLOWING THE NYU encounter, the next two events on the week's list appear Wednesday when Coach Dick Jamerson's mermen journey to Annapolis to swim against the perennially-strong Navy team while Coach Lew Hayworth's junior varsity quintet performs at Fort Bragg. Basketball hogs the spotlight again on Friday when the jayvees engage the Sanford American Legion team in the preliminary tussle and the Phantoms return for their second appearance of the week in the main attraction against the VPI cagers. Which brings us up to Saturday and the Carolina Sports Carnival!

STARTING AT 2:30 p. m. and running until close to 10 o'clock, with an hour or so off for supper, Carolina athletes in four sports will play hosts to teams from four different schools. The mermen start things off at 2:30 against Tennessee. Coach Chuck Quinlan's matmen come next at 4 o'clock against Washington and Lee. Opening an evening double-header, Coach Mike Ronman's mittmen battle Maryland at 7 o'clock. And winding up the Woollen activities for the day will be the cagemen, coming back after one day's rest, to tangle with Davidson at 8:30.

In case you're wondering what the fifth event for Saturday will be, the Blue Dolphins see action again that evening in the annual C.A.A.U. meet held in Raleigh. All of which rounds out a very complete day and week for the Carolina athletes as well as the sports writers who cover these events.

ELSEWHERE IN the Carolina sports world, Coaches Bunn Hearn and John Kenfield have been putting in time at Woollen gym recently and are preparing schedules for their teams for the coming season. Coach Kenfield's netmen face one of the toughest slates that any Tar Heel team ever ran into. . . .Coach Carl Snavely starts his winter drills one week from tomorrow. . . .And still no official word on the grid schedule for next season.



ODDS AND ENDS: Doug Thompson's loss to Max Warren of State was his first defeat of the season. . .Tom Urquhart, Tommy Hearn, Dick Seaver and Oscar Gupton all copped their third decisions of the campaign in the State match. . . .Pete Hexner's false start in the 200-meter breaskstroke event in the VPI meet two nights ago was the 17th straight race in which he's jumped the gun, according to Dick Jamerson.

Dolphins Face Tough Week

Carolina's Blue Dolphins will have their hands full of hot water this week when they tangle with a host of strong swimming teams, namely Navy, Tennessee, and the CAAU meet in Raleigh.

The initial encounter will be against the mermen of the Naval Academy at Annapolis on Wednesday followed by their fourth home meet of the season with Tennessee on Saturday afternoon. The week's tank events will wind up with the CAAU tournament at Raleigh on Saturday with many powerful teams from the two Carolinas entering the event to offer strong competition to the Dolphins.

The completion of the CAAU meet will mark the halfway point in the team's 1947 schedule. Thus far the squad has a record of two wins and one loss. Victories were over Bainbridge Navy and V.P.I. while the loss came as a result of a close meet with Georgia Tech. This week's agenda will give the swimmers a chance to improve on their percentage of wins and losses.

Fifteen Mural Cage Clubs Remain on Unbeaten List

Four Quints Drop from Undefeated Ranks; Handball Competition Begins Second Week

The number of intramural cage quintets that still remain unbeaten has dwindled from last week's total of 19 to 15 for this week, according to standings released yesterday by the intramural department.

All seven dormitory teams that were undefeated last week went through this week's schedule without losing while four fraternity clubs left the unbeaten ranks leaving eight units to carry on. At least one dorm team will depart from the select list by Wednesday of this week when the Grads, with a 4-0 record, and the Locals, with 3-0, clash to see who remains on top of dormitory league one.

Dorm Leagues

In the three other dorm leagues, the Independents head loop two with a 4-0 slate, Everett and Oakwood Drive rule loop three with 3-0 records, and Emanon leads league four with 4-0, followed closely by the Med School, also unbeaten with 3-0.

In the fraternity leagues, Chi Phi No. 2 and Phi Gam No. 1 have garnered the most victories and lead loops one and two respectively with 4-0 records. Beta in league three and Sigma Chi No. 1 in league six are also alone atop their divisions with 3-0 slates. Phi Kappa Sig No. 2 and Phi Delt No. 2 both have 3-0 to lead loop four while Sigma Chi No. 3 and ATO No. 1 have 2-0 records in league five to complete undefeated list.

Handball Play

On the basis of the first week's competition in handball, Sigma Nu and Phi Delta Theta have been made co-favorites to cop the fraternity title. Kappa Alpha, DKE, Pi Lamb, TEP, Phi Kappa Sig, ATO and Kappa Sig also remain in the quarter finals of the fraternity tournament.

Dormitory competion in handball gets under way tomorrow afternoon with one dorm match slated for the day's activities, along with two fraternity matches and a total of nine basketball tilts.

Ringmen Start Heavy Practice For Next Meet

Carolina's boxing squad started heavy workouts during the past week in preparation for the conference meet here with the University of Maryland on February 8.

Coach Ronman has instituted a conditioning program, including 30 minutes of calisthenics. "I guarantee the boys will be in top shape for the Maryland encounter," Ronman stated.

A change in the boxing lineup will move Sid Varney, who lost a bout in the heavyweight division last week, over to the 175-pound class.

New Heavyweight

Bill Spiegel is expected to be the new entry in the heavyweight division, according to the latest information. Spiegel is rated as a powerful fighter who should round into shape rapidly with a little intercollegiate experience. He took the championship in the intramural boxing tournament last fall.

The 135-pound class will have either Conway Rose or Charlie Norton taking the ring next week. The only other expected change in the lineup will be in the 145-pound class, with Gilliam leading the candidates for that weight classification.

The Maryland ringmen who invade Chapel Hill next weekend boast a record of two victories and one loss thus far this season. The Old Liners scored wins over the Coast Guard Academy and Western Maryland, with their lone setback coming at the hands of the strong Virginia boxers, who also hold a decision over Carolina.

Monogram Club Meets

The Monogram Club will hold a meeting at the clubhouse Tuesday evening at 7:30 o'clock, President Jim Camp announced yesterday.

Purpose of the meeting will be to induct all varsity football and cross-country lettermen who gained their first monogram during the past quarter. All present members are asked to attend.

Baseball Night Owls

Boston, Feb. 1—(UP)—The Boston Braves are going to be night owls for almost one-fifth of their baseball schedule this year.

According to front-office announcements made today, the Beantowners will play 29 night games this season, five more than last year. The additional after-dark contests were requested by fans.

Sacrinty, Kenney Get Teague Awards

High Point, Feb. 1—Nick Sacrinty, Wake Forest's All-Southern halfback, and Frances Kenney, Raleigh swimming star, are the winners of the Teague trophies for 1946, according to an announcement made today by Lewis J. Fisher, Jr., president of the Carolina Association of the AAU.

Awarded to the outstanding male and female athletes in the two Carolinas, the trophies, given in memory of Judge Lewis E. Teague, will be presented to the two winners at a banquet at Florence, S. C., next week.

The Reidsville back edged Carolina's Charlie Justice in the male division with the Tar Heels' Johnny Dillon and Duke's Ed Koffenberger also garnering a great many votes. Sports writers from both Carolinas took part in the annual poll.

Locals Oppose NYU Quintet Here Monday

Paxton, Hamilton Pace Home Attack

By Bob Goldwater

Carolina's string of seven straight home victories came to an overtime end last night before 6,000 roaring fans when State's Red Terror five outscored the Phantoms in an extra session to capture a rough-and-tumble Southern conference clash by a 48-46 count.

Behind by eight points with five minutes remaining in the game, the Scottmen began to move on two quick goals by Johnny Dillon, discharged from the infirmary yesterday morning and a doubtful starter until just before game time, and Jim Hamilton, a ball of fire throughout the contest with 12 points to his credit. Then Norm Kohler took over and registered two long set shots to knot the count at 40-40, the second one coming with one-and-one-half minutes left and causing a tremendous din to rock the gym on its foundations. Both teams missed shots before the final gun sounded.

The Phantoms take the floor against another tough opponent tomorrow evening at 8 o'clock when New York University invades Woollen gym in an effort to halt the three-game victory streak that Carolina hold over the Violets.

In the overtime Hamilton gave the Phants an early lead with a layup but goals by Dick Dickey, Leo Katkaveck and Ed Bartels gave the visitors a lead they never relinquished. Hamilton came back with another goal which Dickey offset with what proved to be the winning shot. With a minute left Dillon hooked one through the cords but State froze until 15 seconds remained when Carolina gained possession.

After the locals started the scoring on a free throw by Dillon and one-hander by Paxton, the Terrors wasted little time in bouncing back and with Bob Negley registering five quick points, State took an 8-5 advantage. Hamilton's two goals kept the Phantoms going but Coach Everett Case's charges again moved out front and held a 16-12 lead at the 15-minute mark. Two sets by Jim White deadlocked the count and Paxton and White dropped six more tallies through the hoop to pace the Phantoms into a 23-19 halftime lead.

The State quintet started off quickly in the second half and tied up the score at 28-all after five minutes. Holding the Phantoms to foul shots for over eight minutes, the Terrors moved into 33-30 lead before Hamilton broke the spell to pull within one point. Then State scored seven points to set the stage for the final Tar Heel drive that sent the game into overtime.

ROBERT MONTGOMERY

Hodgson-Giduz Feud to Flare On Phi Floor Tuesday Night

By Robert Morrison

The termination or complication (campus political observers dare not predict which) of the Giduz-Hodgson feud will come Tuesday night when Tookie Hodgson will present charges of "unauthorized and illegal expenditures of student funds, partianship, and suppression of criticism" against Roland Giduz, DTH managing editor.

Hodgson, a member of the Publications board, asked the Phi Assembly to schedule the debate in an official meeting. The Phi has consented, and the starting gun will be fired at 7 o'clock Tuesday night in the Phi hall on the fourth floor of New East building.

Giduz and other prominent members of publications staffs have stated that they intend to be present at the Phi session and express their views.

Hodgson Changes Mind

Hodgson originally asked that the debate be held before the student legislature, but it was later felt by Hodgson that the Phi should handle the matter in the form of an open debate with all interested students present.

Also on the agenda for the Phi session is a discussion of Franco's policy in Spain, but this bill is expected to be overshadowed by the No. 1 campus controversy.

Wesleyans to Hear Roosenburg

Henrietta Roosenburg, World Student Service fund lecturer from the Netherlands, will speak to Wesley foundation tonight at 7 o'clock in the Methodist church. Miss Roosenburg, a participant in the underground movement against the Nazis during the war, is well acquainted with the needs of Europe having come recently from there.

The Wesley foundation program will begin this afternoon in the lounge on the main floor of the church building at 5 o'clock with a social hour of planned recreation.

The supper at 6 will be followed by Miss Roosenburg's talk. All students are welcome to take part in all of the Wesley foundation activities.

May Court Elections Are Set for Tomorrow

May court elections will be held tomorrow night at 11 o'clock during coed dormitory meetings. Town girls will vote at 7:30 in the Town Students' room in the Y.

A queen, maid of honor, and 12 attendants will be elected from the senior class to preside over the 1947 May day festivities.

MAGAZINE

"Kind of Circus" by Don Justice.

In line with the Carolina Magazine creed of a "well-rounded and diversified publication," poetry also has an important place in the new issue. The literary craftsmen of rhyme and meter are represented by several Vin Cassidy poems.

As usual, the writing is enhanced by good makeup, with several novel ideas used. Photography, illustration and art have been blended to give the best possible setting to features, humor, fiction and poetry.

Many New Names

The many new names on the Magazine masthead for January are evidence of the great rise in interest on the part of potential staff members. Improvement in the periodical during the fall quarter, as noticed by campus critics, seems to have definitely taken the Carolina Magazine out of its wartime doldrums at least as far as staff is concerned.

With work nearing completion on the February issue and office interest centered on the March Magazine, Jacobson predicted that the winter quarter numbers will be among the best, and "should prove varied enough in content to appeal to every student."

CO-OP

to do their share," said Dr. Lear.

Friday's meeting marked the second time this quarter that the organization has met to order. At the last meeting over 100 persons attended. The Buying club was recently incorporated under the name of the Chapel Hill Mutual Distributors, Inc. and is at present seeking to establish a permanent store in Chapel Hill modeled after the co-ops which now exist at many state universities.

Writers Club Offers Critical Discussion

Meeting at the YMCA last week the Carolina Writers club heard Ed Bowers of Atlanta, read his new short story, "Wild Wind." A general critical discussion followed in which members and guests participated.

Chairman Paul Ramsey announced that several short stories and some poetry have been submitted to the arts forum at Greensboro for criticism by Robert Penn Warren who will be there this month.

The group organized last fall to provide an outlet for students interested in creative writing. Meets every Wednesday evening in the YMCA at 7:30. Membership is open to anyone who submits a manuscript for criticism.

Around'n About Old North State

Hillsboro. . .

North Carolina's Secretary of State, Thad Eure, has predicted that North Carolina will have 50,000 miles of rural electric lines within the next five years. Eure, speaking before a meeting of the Piedmont Electric Membership Corporation in Hillsboro, said the state has only 36,000 miles of rural wiring at present.

Raleigh. . .

The state prison department reports the lowest number of escaped convicts last month since January 1944. The prison department says that in January 16 prisoners made good their tries for freedom, but 20 were recaptured during the past month.

Bunn. . .

The teacher walkout in the Bunn high school in Franklin county has entered its fourth day—and hopes for a weekend settlement are running high. The teachers reportedly struck when the school principal tried to fire one of the teachers for reprimanding his son.

The school committee, parents, officials and teachers will meet tonight and again Monday to try to iron out the difficulties.

Charlotte. . .

Two negroes, convicted yesterday of the murder of 67-year-old Thomas McClure in Charlotte, have filed notices of appeals to the State Supreme Court. The negroes, Richard McCain and Jethro Lampkin, were scheduled to be executed March 14. The appeals automatically postpone their executions in the North Carolina gas chamber until the high court rules on their cases.

Gastonia. . .

Gastonia citizens have formed a "People's Party" and have selected a slate of veterans of both world wars to run in the municipal election next May. The present five Gastonia city councilmen have not yet indicated whether they will be candidates for reelection.

Albemarle. . .

The Stanly County Superior Court at Albemarle will hear a $50,000 damage suit Monday. The damages are sought by Mrs. Agnes Crump Lawhon from the K. and F. Transportation company of Albemarle and the Johnson Motor Lines, Incorporated. Mrs. Lawhon's husband was killed last May when his car crashed into a K. and F. truck which was leaving the company depot.

Charlotte. . .

More than 300 Charlotte Shriners will board a special train May 27th to go to the annual meeting of the Imperial Council in Atlantic City, New Jersey. The trip has been planned by the Charlotte Oasis Temple.

Shelby. . .

A Spring Hope man—C. S. Bunn—has been elected president of the North Carolina Improvement Association. Other officers chosen at the annual convention in Shelby, North Carolina, were V. V. Secrest of Monroe, vice president—and Mrs. Madge Hudgins of Raleigh, secretary-treasurer.

Raleigh Men Vanish; Truck Found in River

Elizabethtown, N. C., Feb. 1—(UP)—The whereabouts of H. M. Goodwin and Jimmy Spence of Raleigh remains a mystery. Their heavy truck was found yesterday submerged in the Cape Fear river at the Tar Heel ferry crossing in Bladen county. But Coast Guardsmen, after dragging the river today, have found no trace of the Raleigh contractor and his young partner.

The two men left Raleigh for Charleston, South Carolina, Tuesday night. Their large trailer-truck was found in the river, but far off their normal route. And Sheriff John Allen of Bladen county says he is investigating possibilities that they met with foul play and that their truck was pushed into the river empty.

Allen reports that Spence was given a traffic ticket Thursday night for driving with improper lights and that the truck apparently was on its way back to Raleigh then. It was found early Friday morning, but with no sign of Goodwin or Spence.

Hillsboro. . .

A fifty seven year old man wanted in connection with a robbery-attack on his employer has surrendered to Chapel Hill police. He is Jim Willis, Senior. Orange County police are holding Wills under $3,000 bond for allegedly striking his employer—Fred Hill of Durham—with a hammer and robbing him of more than $1,000.

Success Saga: A Call for Philip Morris

Johnny Roventini started his commercial career as a bellhop in a New York hotel at the tender age of fifteen, and now, at twenty-nine, he's still a call boy but with a vengeance, and under slightly different circumstances, for Johnny Roventini is the world famous JOHNNY, the 'CALL BOY', master of ceremonies, and ambassador of goodwill on three of the PHILIP MORRIS programs.

Still in the red uniform, and heavy brass buttons, JOHNNY, has had an extremely full and exciting life since those first hotel days. Discovered one day by an "ever-searching-for-news-and-originial-ideas" advertising agency head, JOHNNY has become one of the top figures of radio, and has played a very important part in the tremendous success of his sponsor. So much of a part that he has won for himself a lifetime contract.

New York, and although his entire family is of normal size, he never grew more than his 48 inches, or his 48 pounds. Other than that, JOHNNY is just exactly like any other ambitious young man. He likes his play, too. Baseball is his favorite sport, and he roots for the Brooklyn Dodgers. He is an expert at hunting, having a specially constructed double-barreled shotgun. His pet hobby is short-wave radio, even to the point of building his own set, and taking it apart, and building a better one. He is extremely interested in photography, and it is said that he has great success in this line.

He used to have to stand on a high platform in order to reach his microphone, but now he has a special 'mike' built to his measure. It is the only one if it's kind in existence.

JOHNNY is also a Kentucky Colonel, and Admiral of the Flagship Fleet.

British Order To Be Scorned, State Sources

Ultimatum Demands Jewish Cooperation

Palestine, Feb. 3 — (UP) — Informed sources believe the National Council of Palestine Jews will reject the British ultimatum to cooperate in rounding up terrorists within seven days or accept martial law and a ruthless campaign to stamp out underground groups.

Ultimatum Unprecedented

The unprecedented ultimatum was handed to the Jewish agency today by the British High Commissioner Sir Alan Cunningham. It came as thousands of British civilians were being evacuated from Palestine and military authorities rushed every preparation to put the Holy Land under army rule.

Authorities also announced that the hanging of Dov Gruner, key figure in the underground crisis, would not take place for several weeks. Informed sources say the postponement was made to give the British time to prepare for any reprisals by the underground.

Committee Approves Amendment Resolution

Washington, Feb. 3 — (UP) — A House judiciary sub-committee has approved a resolution to amend the Constitution to put a two-term limit on Presidents. It is hoped the full judiciary committee will act on the resolution tomorrow so that the proposal can be brought to a House vote this week.

Baruch Is Disturbed Over Secrecy of Atom

Washington, Feb. 3—(UP)—Elder Statesman Bernard Baruch told a congressional committee that he is deeply disturbed over leaks of atomic secrets. He also said he is astounded that Congress passed a law keeping military men off the Federal Atomic commission.

Leak of Atom Secrets Said to Be in Canada

Ottawa, Feb. 3—(UP)—A Canadian government official who wants his name withheld says it's true that atomic energy secrets may be leaking through Canadian government channels to Russia. Asked about a statement by American Statesman Bernard Baruch, the official said, "some persons suspected of being members of the Russian spy ring, but never brought to trial, still are working for the government."

Negroes Not to Speak At Georgia Hearings

Atlanta, Feb. 3—(UP)—The Georgia State Senate judiciary committee has voted against letting Negroes speak during public hearings this week on a white primary bill. The group decided that anyone not white will have to submit testimony in writing.

Sole Alaska Hospital Destroyed by Flames

Valdez, Alaska, Feb. 3—(UP)—Flames fanned by high winds have swept through Valdez, Alaska's only hospital. First reports say that no one was killed and that the patients have been removed to the hospital at Cordova—90 miles away.

Hesse Crown Jewels Arrive in Washington

Washington, Feb. 3—(UP)—An airplane carrying the $1,500,000 Hesse crown jewels has arrived at Washington. The jewels will be used as evidence in the court martial of Colonel Jack Durant. Durant is expected to arrive in Washington from Germany tonight.

WEATHER TODAY

Fair and much colder.

Open Debate Squad Tryouts Set

Braswell Announces Competition to Be Held In Di Hall Tonight; First Meet Is Friday

MAURICE BRASWELL

Tryouts for the University debate team, open to the campus, will be held tonight at 7 o'clock in the Di Senate hall, Maurice Braswell, president of the debate council, said. In preparation for the debate with North Georgia college to be held in Hill hall Saturday evening, Braswell said that all prospective debaters should be prepared to present their views on the topic: Resolved, that labor should have a direct share in the management of industry. This is the National Collegiate debate topic for the year, Braswell explained, and will be used in all debates in which the Tar Heel squad will participate.

Radio News Tryouts

Braswell stated that tryouts for radio news will consist of reading selections from newspapers and wire reports. For the impromptu and extemporaneous speaking tryouts, topics familiar to the student body will be picked and time will be allowed for candidates to assemble their ideas.

In the line of dramatic reading, declamation, and poetry reading, candidates should bring and present their own selections.

Braswell will be in charge of the tryouts, assisted by debate council members Cleo Jones, Al Lowenstein, Bill Miller, Charlie Borton, and Jim Taylor. Dr. F. C. Erickson and Dr. H. M. Oliver, faculty advisers, are also expected to be present.

Prentice Talks HereTomorrow

World Government Is Topic of Speech

Colgate Prentice, 22-year-old president of Student Federalists, Inc., a youth movement campaigning for federal world government, will speak at Hill Music hall tomorrow night on the topic "World Government — A Challenge."

Believing that the United Nations as now set up cannot prevent another war, Prentice, a veteran of World War II, will outline world government as "a practical necessity, not a Utopian dream."

Touring Country

In an effort to present to the youth of America the immediate need for world government, he dropped his studies at Swarthmore college last October, and has been touring the United States ever since. Traveling over 5,000 miles he has made talks to more than 24,000 students, and is speaking here on his return from the West Coast.

Prentice was elected president of Student Federalists in September of 1946 at the organization's national convention at Chicago, where he introduced into the Student Federalist charter the statement of individual responsibility in creating "a world government dedicated to human rights and justice under law."

Y Forum To Probe Negro Question

Thursday evening the Town Hall series will be resumed when the Y supper forum meets at 5:45 in the Methodist church.

The question: "Should Negroes be admitted to the Graduate School?," will be discussed by Elizabeth Taylor, a graduate student, Professor Henry Brandis of the Law School, and Paul Mullinax, president of the Carolina Conservative club. Each person will make a five minute talk after which there will be questions from the floor and among the speakers.

Don Shropshire, president of the Dialectic senate will serve as master of ceremonies. Tickets can be purchased through the Y for fifty cents each.

Congregational Church Opens Student Service

The "Student Service," directed by the ladies of the Congregational Christian church, will be open this afternoon from 2 until 5 to receive any mending, alteration, or repair work needed on clothes. The sewing will be received in the hut which is located at the rear of the church on Cameron avenue. Students having socks with holes, shirts without buttons, trousers or dresses needing alterations, may take advantage of having this work done at very reasonable prices.

Bill of Experimental Plays To Be Staged by Playmakers

Drama Group to Present Three One-Act Works Beginning Tomorrow in Playmakers Theatre

Two evening performances of the 114th bill of experimental productions will be given by the Carolina Playmakers, tomorrow and Thursday evenings at 7:30 in the Playmakers theatre. The public is invited to see these three original one-act plays that are produced by dramatic art students under the general supervision of Kai Jurgensen, assistant director on the Playmakers staff.

The first play on the program is a serious drama, "To Them in Darkness," by Charles Brockman and directed by Eleanor Ringer. In the cast are: Mary Jo Cain as Anna Stiegel, Mac Shaw as Paul, Quentin Brown as Dr. Ross, Hannah Davis as Hilda, Reggie Kachigian as Marian Wilson. James Byrd is stage manager and scenery is designed by Arthur Solomon.

'Black Piet' by Schenkkan

"Black Piet," a tragedy of the Boer War by Robert Schenkkan, directed by Winford Logan, is the second production on the bill. In the cast are: Sam Hirsch as Piet, Lillian Prince as Martha, Edsel Hughes as Mac MacGovern, Robert Gutknecht as Ryk. Porter Van Zandt as Bothe, Don Vincent as Paul, Josephine Sharkey as Henriette, Frederick Johnson, Richard Katzin, Colbert Leonard, Frank Echols as soldiers. Setting is by Gorden Bennett, lighting by John Wills and stage manager is Robert Eberle.

The last play on the program is "Subway Rhapsody," a fantasy by

Walter Spearman New Head of Country Club

Prof. Walter Spearman of the University journalism department was elected president of the Chapel Hill Country club for 1947 at the annual business meeting held at the clubhouse last night.

He succeeds R. W. Madry, University News bureau director and mayor.

John Foushee, insurance and real estate executive, was elected vice-president and will automatically be elevated to the presidency next year.

Mrs. John Manning was named secretary, succeeding Mrs. P. Y. Matthews, and Dudley Cowden was named treasurer, succeeding Otto Stuhlman.

Mrs. John Couch was elected to the Board of Governors for a three-year term, succeeding Mrs. E. B. Crawford, whose term expires. The other members of the Board are the officers and two carry-over members, J. C. Lyons and Mrs. P. Y. Matthews.

The nominating committee was composed of J. C. Lyons, chairman; Sterling Stoudemire, and Mrs. Ernest Mackie.

Hodgson to Air Charges Against Giduz Tonight

Humorist to Accuse DTH Managing Editor On Several Counts at Meeting of Phi

By Sam Whitehall

Charges of discrimination, partisanship, and misuse of student funds will be made against Daily Tar Heel Managing Editor Roland Giduz tonight by humor writer Tookie Hodgson in the Phi hall, beginning at 7 o'clock. The meeting will be open to all students and the floor will be open for all speeches and comments. Phi Sergeant-at-Arms Les Sneed will enforce parliamentary procedure.

The current campus controversy has been raging for several weeks. Many issues of student government and publications have entered the picture, which becomes more muddled daily.

Hodgson stated yesterday that he plans to read excerpts from editorials, "prove their falsity and partisanship" and also to "recount the sub rosa financial activities of certain DTH editors."

"I invite all students to be present," Hodgson said.

Statement from Woestendiek

DTH Editor Bill Woestendiek issued a brief but emphatic statement, saying:

"The whole thing makes me sick. Hodgson makes all these charges and then has the nerve to come up to my office and tell me I'm not invited! It's all absurd, but if Hodgson wants to criticize the DTH, he'll have to argue with me."

CCC to Meet Tonight To Conduct Elections

The Carolina Conservative club will meet tonight at 8 o'clock in Roland Parker Lounge, Graham Memorial for the election of new officers.

Positions to be filled are president, first vice-president, second vice-president, treasurer, and secretary. All members and others interested are urged to attend.

CLASS RINGS FOR SALE

Class rings will be sold today in the YMCA lobby between the hours of 9-1 and 2-5, under the auspices of the Grail.

UVA Will Give Valentine Hop Friday Night

Will Select One Coed As 'Vet's Valentine'

Highlighting the social events at the UVA clubhouse for the winter quarter will be a semi-formal Valentine dance to be held this Friday night from 9 until 1 o'clock. Music for the occasion will be furnished by the Carolinians, popular campus dance band that is rapidly becoming famed throughout the state.

Select 'Vets' Valentine'

In announcing the dance, UVA President Roy Moose stated that the outstanding event of the evening will be the selection of a "Vet's Valentine" girl by a group of judges yet to be named. Winner of the "Vet's Valentine" crown is to be the recipient of a variety of presents and will reign as queen of the ball.

The entire clubhouse is being used as a dance floor, and all the furniture will be removed for the evening. A special Valentine decoration will be used for the occasion.

The semi-formal affair is open to all UVA members and their dates.

WNC Club Will Meet In Gerrard Tonight

There will be a meeting of the WNC club tonight at 7:30 o'clock in Gerrard hall. Members are urged to attend this meeting for the purpose of electing new officers. The social committee will make a report on plans for a party sometime this month.

Herbert Aptheker to Speak In Gerrard Hall Thursday

Dr. Herbert Aptheker, well-known historian, scholar, and writer will speak in Gerrard hall Thursday evening at 8 o'clock on the subject of "The Negro in American History." Speaking under the co-sponsorship of the local chapter of the Southern Conference for Human Welfare, the Carolina Political union, and the Wesley foundation, Dr. Aptheker's talk promises to be highly informative for all those interested in Negro life and history. He belongs to the new school of white historians who have interested themselves in the history of the Negro, and which hopes to correct the multitude of erroneous concepts which prevail in American thinking on the Negro question.

Nationwide Reputation

At the present time he is a member of the graduate faculty at Columbia university and a Guggenheim fellow in history and has gained reputation throughout the nation as a student and teacher of Negro history.

During the war, as one of the few white commanders of Negro troops, Dr. Aptheker was afforded the opportunity to study and observe Negroes who helped in the making of current history. He is well-known as one of the outstanding speakers on this vital subject and has impressed a wide number of audiences throughout the nation with his lectures.

Always at Danziger's, Loves It. . .

Violet Fidel, Brooklyn's Gift to Carolina, Assumes Role of 'Small Sad Slav' on Campus

By Dave Owens

Violet Fidel bummed a cigarette.

"I'd always wanted a nickname all my life and it took UNC to give it to me," she said through a maze of smoke.

It seems that Violet left Brooklyn to enroll at Carolina because of three things. She wanted a mild climate (she didn't know about the rainy seasons), a state university, and study with the Playmakers. When she hit Chapel Hill she found herself rooming with two very southern southern girls just about the time Betty Smith hit paydirt with her botanical marvel.

'Tree' Name Grows

"Well, you can imagine how nerve-wracking it became with southern accents calling 'Vi-o-let' all the time. So, they named me 'Tree' because I grew in Brooklyn, too."

"Tree" ducked her cigarette and went on talking, rapidly, as usual.

"I'm always in Danziger's; I love it! If you ever see a small, sad, Slavic person playing very slow, sad, Slavic songs there, it'll be me," she laughed. "It's sort of a habit, I guess—the nearest thing to a home I've ever had."

And most of Violet's friends are Danzigerites, too, but about them she had one strict order: "Don't dare put their names in the Tar Heel. They will have to get their own publicity."

VIOLET FIDEL

Won Koch Scholarship

Although "Tree" thinks of herself as "small, sad and Slavic," you'll find her three and a half inches above five feet with grey eyes and a brown Joan of Arc haircut. She thinks of herself in a serious light as far as writing is concerned, and that others agree with her is evidenced by the fact that she was awarded the Koch Playwriting scholarship last year.

In the next book of folk plays published by the University Press, Violet Fidel will appear among the authors, her one-act play "Wherefore Is This Night" being selected. "Wherefore, etc.," as well as two other of "Tree's" plays, "Niobe in Darkness," and Hunter from the Hill," were performed by the Playmakers. She is currently represented in the January Carolina Magazine by a short story and an article.

"On the side," said she, "I'm writing some radio scripts!"

But dramatic writing is her favorite. She's working on a three-act play now . . . called "Wake to Weep."

"The title? That comes from Shelley."

Desert Danziger's

June will see Violet deserting Danziger's with a degree in Comparative Literature. And then what?

"Tree" bummed another cigarette and spouted forth smoke and words.

"This idea of bringing 'Broadway' to 'Tobacco Road' is all wrong. If I were doing community theater work," she sighed a small, sad, Slavic sigh, "I'd work on the principle that Broadway and the imitation of Broadway is not the only sort of theater we can have in this country. It's just the folk play idea again. But I believe in it."

"You know," she was saying about

UVA Will Entertain Spencer Hall Coeds

Residents of Spencer dormitory will be guests at tomorrow evening's UVA open house, Roy Moose, president, stated yesterday.

Music, a floorshow, and cigarettes will be part of the entertainment.

Moose announced that the escort committee will call at Spencer for the coeds and squire them to the clubhouse. All veterans are invited to attend.

No Constitutional Changes!

For over twenty minutes at last Thursday evening's Student Legislature session, the proposed student constitution amendments of President Dewey Dorsett's constitutional revision committee were droned out to the weary scholar solons.

And after hearing these suggested changes, which would completely strike out nearly one-third of the present constitution, we are more convinced than ever, that this document should be immediately adopted, as it is, without any amendments!

Perhaps some of the amendments are good—the majority of them are relatively unimportant petty matters even to the extent of revising the preamble—but we say, as we have maintained ever since this Constitution was first approved by the Student Legislature nine months ago, that the entire document should be put into effect for an ample trial period before making any amendments. Granted, it can't be perfect—but amendments should be made only after observing for an ample period of time, how it works. It will take just as much process and hard parliamentary labor to change one comma in this bill, as it will to change 10,000 words. And it seems as though Mr. Dorsett's committee is trying to do the latter now even before this constitution is fully in effect!

Every amendment proposed by this committee was debated for months in the original group, headed by Douglass Hunt, which drew up the Constitution a year ago. For weeks last spring the Student Legislature, sitting as a constitutional convention, battled over the same points which Dorsett's committee has now put up as amendments, and every one of these proposals was rejected! Are we to go through this procedure again?

Every major student governmental change which the student body's acceptance of the constitution brought about last spring, would be nullified by these amendments. That is, if these amendments are passed now, student governmental machinery will revert to its pre-Constitution days set-up. And we cannot advocate junking of these changes before having had adequate time to see them work.

Therefore we urge the Student Legislature to vote down or table all of these amendments in their special session Thursday evening. Then, the section on the proposed fee structure, the only part which prevents this document from being completely in effect at this time, should immediately be sent to the trustees for their approval.

First let's cross this bridge we've built—then remodel it!

Listen Students....

Legislature Is Wasting Time Discussing Constitution Now

By Jimmy Wallace

This is the last time that I shall ever write a column—called Listen Students. Hereafter, it will be called by another name. This column has been appearing in the Daily Tar Heel on and off for about four years, and I thought that I should officially sign off before the name disappeared. So, that's that.

* * * *

Colgate Prentice, the president of Student Federalists, will speak in Hill Hall tomorrow night at 8:30 on the subject of World Government, and the immediate necessity thereof. Everyone is cordially invited to attend. That includes those who feel that all is right with the world as well as those who feel that all is wrong. And especially those who believe that the Atomic Bomb is "just another weapon," and that what we should do is merely outlaw its use.

A young gent I know said the other day that:

"It is my fervent hope that when the whole works goes up in smoke, I will be allowed about 10 seconds of life after the last gasps of those around me in order that I may get off one huge horselaugh, just loud enough so that the dying multitude can hear it echoing in their ears." Oh, cruelty, cruelty, wherefore art thou?

The biggest bust in campus politics since the ratifying of the Constitution will take place on Thursday night within the historic confines of Gerrard Hall, when the Student Legislature, under the sluggish chairmanship of Speaker Charles Warren, begins discussion of the Dorsett amendments to the Constitution. It promises to be a juvenile mess, with much ranting and panting. It is my personal belief that there should be no amendments at this time. I think that the current discussion is decidedly premature, and is a waste of the Student Legislature's time and energy.

Student Government is overlooking its primary duty; to wit, of doing something which is concretely beneficial to the Student Body. Until Student Government begins to perform that function, and begins to speak for and on behalf of the Student Body, it deserves nothing but what it is getting—the brushoff.

Bring your cross-word puzzles to the meeting.

And so, as the natives line up on the beach and sing their haunting love-song, Talullah Lula, we leave the beautiful isle, and sail away into the golden sunset, etc., munching our ear of golden bantam corn.

I'd Rather Be Right...

Physicians' Contradictory Opinions Hard to Fathom

By Earl Heffner

Since psychologists have made lifetime studies of the esoteric workings of Mankind's Mind, no man should feel ashamed of his inability to fathom the contradictory opinions of some North Carolina physicians who, in a secret ballot, favored "the good health program" and opposed "the establishment of a third four-year medical school at this time in Chapel Hill."

The affirmative vote, released by the 'fact finding committee of North Carolina physicians" is an admirable thing. The Good Health program is an excellent venture deserving of full praise and cooperation.

But to favor the health program on one hand and oppose the establishment of a medical school on the other is analagous to the praising of justice while participating in a lynching.

A third question voted on by the 2,088 physicians was "if one (a medical school) is to be established, but not in Chapel Hill, where do you think it should be located?" The answer overwhelmingly favored Charlotte.

Two outstanding criticisms came to my mind when I read the story as released by the Associated Press, source of my information.

Statistics have been revealed countless times showing the serious medical deficiencies of North Carolina. There have been no denials of these statistics.

While the establishment of another medical school would not correct all the physical ills of the state's medical system, it certainly would be a major step in that direction.

It was comforting to note that 418 of the questioned physicians favored the establishment of the medical school at Chapel Hill. Conversely it is discouraging to note that almost twice as many, 781 to be exact, registered a negative vote.

Perhaps these men have adequate reasons for their votes. It would be interesting—to say the least—to learn of these reasons. Under close analysis they could be revealing.

The second thought that came to mind when reading the story was that the wording of the questions apparently contain political significance. I refer to the ". . .establishment of a third. . .medical school at Chapel Hill. . ." as well as the question "if one is to be established, but not in Chapel Hill, where do you think it should be located?"

For some time there has been a strong movement centering around Charlotte for the establishment of a medical school in the Queen City.

I do not question that Charlotte would be an ideal cite for a medical school. With the facilities of its many hospitals, the city would be able to offer students all necessary equipment and tutelage.

However, it is no more appropriate to remove an arm from the rest of the body, than it would be to place a medical school in Charlotte with the remainder of the University here at Chapel Hill. Certainly the University possesses adequate facilities for a medical school. Not the least of these is the modern infirmary.

Politics should not be merged with educational legislation. When it is the resultant is odorous.

Literary Review....

Improved January Magazine Called Best of School Year

By R. Haskell Hamilton

It's a good mag! There's a lot in it that's first rate and there's some that isn't so first rate. But, on the whole the January issue which hit the campus last night, is the best of the school year. The current edition is a definite improvement over the previous issues and represents advancements in the calibre of make-up, fiction, poetry and all around campus appeal. In spite of some of the rough spots that need ironing out, the first issue of 1947 should appeal to almost every element on the campus, except the most fanatic advocates of a two-line joke type, humor magazine.

The most impressive feature of the magazine is its lay-out which is as well balanced an assortment of eye catching features as can be expected on current Mag budgets. The drawings, sillouhettes and cartoons are top drawer stuff.

For a change, the fiction is something that can be understood by the ordinary reader without taking a course in the modern short story. Violet Fidel's "The Very Young Lady of Shalott" is a well written, intensely drawn characterization. However, it could have been improved had Miss Fidel not fallen heir to the hack-writer-like over-done hyphening of adjective-words. I also liked Sigsbee Miller's "Everything is Just Lovely," and Don Justice's "A Kind of Circus." I got tired of waiting for something to happen in Bill Parker's "Golden Throat," and much of the shouting about it, it seems to me, is about nothing exceptional as far as fiction stories go.

I don't know why I waited this long to praise Tom Eller for his informative, authoritative, clear insight into the Carolina political scene. Eller looks at the scene with the eye of a man who knows his way around, and his analysis of the situation is required reading for anyone who's interested in what's happening in the student's Chapel Hill. We need more authenticated studies courageously printed, to clear up some of the misconceptions about Tarheelia.

I got a couple of chuckles out of Stalling's center spread cartoon, but then I've been a fan of his for many years; and this is the kind of thing he does best. However, one notable omission is that of Mag bigwig and Tar Heel columnist Jud Kidoodleberger. I wonder why his smiling face is missing from the "campus aristocracy?"

Editorially, the mag is well done, with only a few glaring errors. Jacobson is doing a fine job and improving with each issue, but such stuff as the misnumbering of the pages on which stories are continued is inexcustable. There's nothing more irritating to a reader than to follow the directions about "continued on page 32" and then not find the story on that page. Also, such juvenile insults to the reader's intelligence as putting an asterisk next to a word like "necrology" with a dictionary definition of it at the bottom of the page is not in keeping with good editorial practice.

When Jacobson realizes that we are all big college girls and boys, I'm sure he'll cut out such practices, and the Magazine will go rolling on to better issues, and higher praise.

WARREN AUSTIN REALISTIC ABOUT U. S. JOB IN KEEPING WORLD AT PEACE; IS OPTIMISTIC ATOMIC WORLD WAR CAN BE AVERTED; FARLEY SPURNED G. O. P. REQUEST FOR FUNDS

Washington.—Not all of what ex-Senator Austin told the Senate and House Armed Forces Committees leaked to the press when he gave them a closed-door account of his work as U. S. delegate to the United Nations.

Most important thing Austin said was that he was highly optimistic that an atomic world war can be averted. But he was equally realistic about what the United States must do to keep the world at peace. Three main policies must be followed to avoid what he called "Old Man War":

1. Keep the atomic-bomb secret until we have complete assurances of international peace.

2. Maintain a strong military force through universal training.

3. Retain control of Pacific island bases.

The former Vermont Senator told the two Armed Service Committees that unless we are strong ourselves and safe from attack, we cannot effectively prosecute and enforce international amity. He also warned that Congress should not be too hasty in criticizing seeming inaction of the United Nations government since a plan to outlaw war cannot be accomplished overnight.

"It will take a lot of patience," Austin emphasized. "Patience and negotiation.

"By that I do not mean telling the other fellow what to do. I mean continued discussion of differences between nations until we have reached a common ground of understanding."

OUR ACE TRADING POINT

Austin described the atomic-bomb secret as our ace "trading" advantage at the peace table.

"It would be most unwise to give it up at this time," he declared. "Nobody would pay any attention to us afterward if we did."

Senator Austin applied the same principle to our war-won Pacific bases, which, while bolstering our security, he said, also strengthen our hand in UN negotiations.

"We must remember that the attack that plunged us into the last war stemmed from those islands," Austin told the Senators and Congressmen. "Now that we have possession of them, we must never give them up to anybody."

Austin's major talking point, however, was not the atomic bomb or the Pacific islands, but the need for a strong universal training program—a large and well-equipped armed force until we have safely closed the door on future wars.

"It is the responsibility of Congress, not our United Nations representatives, to keep the nation strong," he emphasized. "You cannot escape that responsibility."

Austin dwelt at such length on the need for universal training that he apologized for his verbosity.

"Maybe it sounds to some of you like I'm lobbying," he said.

Note—Despite Senator Austin's plea, enlistments have been so large that the Army, of its own volition, has suspended use of the draft.

Justice

The YMCA would like publicly to admit the justice of Mr. Jim Wilson's letter in the Sunday Daily Tar Heel. He is all too correct when he says the Cabinet is not the faithful representation of the membership. The present Cabinet was elected by a very small portion of the total membership. We hope that when we hold our elections next quatrer there will be enough members present to elect a more representative body. Mr. Wilson's letter is one of the few indications we have had of any interest in our program, and, though it is justly critical, we are delighted to see it. While we cannot undo what has been done, we would ilke to justify it. Realizing that the Cabinet is not a representative body, we acted on the basis of the national policy of the Student Christian Association Movement as it was passed at the National Assembly last December. While the national policy is in no way binding to the local associations, it might interest Mr. Wilson to know that it supports the stand the Cabinet has taken. However, we would like more accurate criteria to judge by. The national policy embraces more present-day issues than merely race, and we are extremely anxious to get the views of our membership on all these policies. To this end we shall conduct an opinion poll in the Y lobby within the next few weeks. This poll will include questions on our policies regarding religion, economics, and world order as well as the race policy for which we have just been criticized.

We now have approximately 2,000 members. We hope we can get enough participation from the membership so that we will not again be found guilty of the error Mr. Wilson has called to our attention.

DON BROAD, President,
YMCA.

Potent New Yorkers Down Phantoms, 60-47

SPORTS LANTS

with

JIM PHARR

AFTER A LONG weekend in New York with Coach Dale Ranson's Tar Heel runners, Morty Schaap and yours truly returned to The Hill Sunday night, still rather stunned by the terrific times turned in Saturday night at the Millrose Athletic Association games in Madison Square Garden.

Carolina's milers came home fourth in the mile race, behind Penn State, Manhattan, and N. Y. U. The Penn State runners copped the race with 21 points, with Manhattan and N. Y. U. tied for second with 34 points. The Carolinians had 47 points.

The winning time for the event was rather slow, a 4:23.8 turned in by Frank Dixon of N. Y. U. John Flinter of Manhattan took second, and Gerry Karver of Penn State came in third.

Jimmy Miller, who scored second in the Sugar Bowl two-mile, paced the Tar Heels, coming home in seventh place. The Carolina trackmen rounded out their scoring with Jack Milne in 11th place, Julian Mackenzie in 14th place, and Alvin Smith in 15th position, out of 16 places in the event.

For the first three laps, the Tar Heels were lagging, and the pace on the final laps became a little too hot and the Ransonmen never could get out of their boxed-in position in the center of the pack.

Now, back at home, Coach Ranson is digging in to get his boys in top shape for the indoor meet with Duke here this weekend. The teams are expected to be evenly matched and the event should be a corker.

Outside of the Carolina battle, the event in the Garden that interested us most was the publicized duel between "Parson" Gil Dodds and Leslie MacMitchell. Well, Mr. MacMitchell tried valiantly the first lap and Dodds let him go. About the third lap the flying Parson took off and that was all. He was all by his lonesome as he breezed across the finish line in 4:09.2. It looks from here like Dodds just manages to scare the coordination out of MacMitchell and runs him to death in the early laps.

The Millrose meet sparkled with noteworthy competition. It was called by Jesse Abrahamson of the Herald-Tribune, "the best since 1942 and all the performances came up to pre-war standards."

Barney Ewell tied the world record of 6.1 in the 60-yard dashes and Harrison Dillard tied the world record of 7.2 seconds for the 60-yard high hurdles. All the relays were terrific and all events in the meet, in fact, were outstanding. It was a great honor for the Tar Heels to participate in the meet and we hope our trackmen will go back next year and take a few first places.

Seen among the visitors at the Paramount Hotel, track headquarters for the weekend, were former Carolina track greats Harry Williamson, Tar Heel Olympic representative, Dick Van Wagoner, and Jimmy Davis, who holds the 4:12.5 mile record for the South.

Browning Ross, who copped the Invitation Mile at the indoor games here last year, ran anchor leg on the Villanova two-mile relay team that won Saturday night in the Garden. He took the baton with about a 20-yard gap deficit and managed to pull into the lead and take the event by the same margin.

It's something when you beat Duke and Carolina both in the same season, and his Middies turned just that trick . . . While Carnevale was showing off his Annapolis kids at Duke, two of his former commanding officers were on hand to watch, two men who were seeing their alma mater give Duke its worst licking of the season. They were Captains Hazlett and Loomis Hazlett was formerly professor of Naval Science and tactics here in the NROTC program, and Loomis holds that position now. Carnevale served in the capacity of athletic officer. . .Coach Jamerson's swimmers face a busy week. Wednesday they hit Navy at Annapolis. It will be Tennessee here on Saturday afternoon. And Saturday night—the CAAU tourney at Raleigh . . . Some week for the mermen! . . .

Dolphins Leave For Meet With Navy At Annapolis

Middie Tankmen Rated Heavy Favorites; Teams Tied in Series Standings, 3-3

Carolina's swimming team left this morning for Annapolis, Md., where the Tar Heel mermen will meet the Naval Academy tankmen tomorrow afternoon.

The Navy swimmers are rated heavy favorites in tomorrow's meet, according to the latest information from Annapolis. The results of the Carolina-Navy swimming series stands 3-3 thus far and both teams will be out to take the lead in the contests.

Carolina has a traveling squad of 13 men for the Navy meet. Coach Jamerson announced yesterday. Co-Captain Ficklen will lead the Tar Heel swimmers, with Mike Morrow out of competition because of scholastic difficulties.

The Tar Heel lineup in the different events follows:

Medley relay: McCoy, Hexner, and McCauley.
220: Hutton.
50: Greenbaum, Baultman.
Diving: Sper, Crone.
100: Greenbaum, Baultman.
Backstroke: McCoy, Sper.
Breaststroke: Breeden, Cook.
440: Jenkins, Norwood.

The meet with Navy opens a heavy week of tank meets for the local swimmers. On Saturday afternoon the mermen will meet Tennessee in the local pool. On Saturday night the Tar Heels move over to Raleigh to the AAU swim meet.

Mittmen Begin Week Of Sparring Drills

Coach Mike Ronman's mittmen began a long week of conditioning drills and sparring sessions yesterday leading up to the Blue Bombers' fourth encounter of the campaign Saturday against Maryland.

Stating that "the boys will be in better shape than in any of the previous meets," the boxing mentor expects a tough battle from the Terrapins, whose lone setback came at the hands of a strong Virginia team which also holds a decision over the Carolina outfit.

Next match for the Tar Heels following the Maryland clash will come the following Saturday when the local boxers travel to South Carolina to oppose the Citadel ringmen.

Jayvees Face Week Of Tough Clashes

Coach Lew Hayworth's Jayvees will swing back into action this Wednesday night when they journey to Fort Bragg to take on the strong quintet of the camp.

The Jayvees will put their unblemished season's record on the line, and the soldiers are expected to give their visitors an interesting evening.

Friday night the Sanford American Legion All Stars will come to Chapel Hill to face the Hayworthmen in the first half of a twin bill. The Jayvees beat the Stars by four points in an earlier game.

Matmen Start Work For Saturday Clash

Unbeaten in their three meets so far this season, Carolina's men of the mats began pointing for their fourth match here Saturday against Washington and Lee.

In yesterday's drill, Coach Chuck Quinlan pointed out mistakes that the individual men made in the matches with State last Friday night. The team went through routine conditioning drills along with their practice on offensive and defensive tactics.

The wrestlers will be in action next Saturday afternoon as a part of the busiest sports weekend at Carolina in years.

Tanenbaum, Lumpp Stars In Rough Tilt Before 6,400

Paxton, Hamilton Lead Locals With 14; Scottmen Falter After Opening Flourish

By Irwin Smallwood

The Violets of New York University were in full bloom in Chapel Hill last night, and as a result the visiting lads from Gotham dumped the White Phantoms of Carolina, 60-47, evening the UNC-NYU series at four-all. A capacity crowd of 6,400 witnessed the intersectional clash.

The victory for the Howard Cann-coached crew broke a Carolina winning streak over the top-ranking New Yorkers which had been run to three games in a row by virtue of two triumphs last year and one earlier in the current season.

NYU jumped to an early lead in the first period, pulling four points out in front at the end of five minutes. But by the end of seven minutes Carolina had gone ahead 11-9 by virtue of a Johnny Dillon hook—his first and only one of the night—plus two free shots by the same Dillon. The Tar Heel club went on to lead NYU 14-10 at the 10-minute mark and 19-13 at the end of 15 minutes of play.

In the final five minutes in the first half, NYU put on a quick spurt and came out at intermission with a three-point advantage, 26-23.

It took the Phantoms eight minutes of the second half to score a field goal, and it was Norm Kohler's bucket then, with the Violets already pulling away from the Tar Heel basketballers. NYU led by six points with 10 minutes gone in the second half, and by the end of five more minutes of play had managed to gain a 51-37 lead over the waning Phants.

Carolina pulled back to within 10 points of the hot New Yorkers with four minutes to play, but the sharp-shooting NYU quint was in to stay and coasted on in to a 60-47 victory.

The game was won for NYU with good shooting, for the Violet-clad hardwood cavorters bucketed 42 percent of their shots during the first half and 36 percent of them in the second period for an over-all average of 39 percent. In the meantime, the Tar Heels managed to shoot at only a .216 clip, which proved to be the deciding factor in the encounter.

Ham-handed Bob Paxton and Jim "Daddy" Hamilton were again the big offensive guns for Carolina, the "fast break twins" dropping in 14 points apiece to tie Ray Lumpp of NYU for high scoring honors. Sidney Tanenbaum, an All-American guard, was No. 2 man in the night's scoring column with 11 markers.

Carolina's Jim White had seven points and All-American Dillon, whose hook shot failed to drop, accounted for only five points, all of them coming early in the first half. He took 15 shots from the floor and connected for only one.

Lumpp, the scoring star for NYU, bucketed seven baskets in 12 shots from the floor, and Tom Kelly, who subbed for Adolph Shayes, star NYU center who fouled out early in the second half, connected for four out of seven shots in the second half to aid the hard-driving winners.

Carolina kept good control of the backboards throughout most of the game with the finesse of Paxton standing out, but the failure of Tar Heel shots to find their marked spelled defeat. NYU took a total of 59 shots and made 23 and Carolina tried 75 and made only 16.

Tanenbaum, the NYU star, won the respect of the crowd when he waited for White to return to the playing field after a rough out-of-bounds play before continuing play.

The Violets move to to Raleigh Thursday night for a game with the Red Hot Terrors of State. This is their first Southern trip in several years.

Carolina will have a three-day rest before returning to action on the Woollen gymnasium court Friday night against VPI. The Phants also play Davidson here Saturday night.

Fetzer, Erickson To Speak At Monogram Club Tonight

Coach Bob Fetzer, director of University athletics, and Charles "Chuck" Erickson, assistant director, are slated to appear as guest speakers at a meeting of the Carolina Monogram club here tonight.

The meeting, to be held at the new Navy hall clubhouse at 7:30 o'clock, will feature the initiation of new lettermen. Included in this group are those who recently won letters in football and cross country.

Last week the Monogram club sponsored a social gathering for all University lettermen and their dates. Football movies featuring the Carolina team were shown.

Jim Camp, president of the organization, announced that many interesting events are planned by the club this year. These events will include social and entertaining functions.

The group is made up of all men who are entitled to wear the coveted North Carolina emblem for service in a major or minor sport. The group was disbanded during the war, but through efforts of several coaches and lettermen, it was reorganized about a year and a half ago. Since that time, the club has gained importance and promises to continue to grow in importance and prestige on the Carolina campus.

Four New Members Elected to CPU

Following Sunday evening's roundtable at the Carolina Political union, four new members, Margaret Healy, Langly Field, Va., Peter Gerns, Canton, Ohio, Ken Cruse, Concord, and George Williams, Snow Hill, were elected to the organization. These are the first new members of 1947.

Jay Foss, membership chairman, announced that vacancies in the Union's membership still existed, and that interested parties were urged to pick up application blanks at the YMCA information desk.

Chairman Jerry Davidoff reported that his trip to Washington over the weekend, the purpose of which was to line-up speakers for the remainder of the school year, was successful, and that details would be released later.

W. Carson Ryan, head of the Education department, will be the Union's guest next Sunday evening, discussing his recent trip to China, his second tour of that nation in the past two years.

Jimmy Wallace Flays Constitutional Changes

By Bettie Washburn

Jimmy Wallace, member of the committee which composed the campus constitution last year, spoke heatedly to the Student Party Sunday afternoon on the "sheer idiocy" of amending the disputed document which has been tossed back and forth since its ratification by the student body last spring.

JIMMY WALLACE

"Student government is doing nothing for the student body," Wallace stated. "It is lamentable that student government is in the hands of sluggish leaders who seem to think that they were elected merely to tear down what it has taken years to build up."

Debated Last Spring

Wallace also stated that the amendments proposed by the President and Vice-President of the student body had been debated at length last spring in the Student Legislature and had been tossed out. The fiery-tongued speaker asserted that the leading officers were not curtailing their own powers but the power of other agencies of student government."

"It is not the constitution, but the leaders in student government themselves who are at fault," Wallace said. "Until we can cite the exact failings of the document, let us keep it without changing one comma!"

Sponsor Roundtable

Following Wallace's tirade the Student Party voted to sponsor a roundtable discussion of the proposed constitutional amendments. The discussion, which will be held on a date designated by Party Chairman Jack Booraem, will be open to all students.

Ed York, defeated Student Party candidate for the Student Council, told members of the political organization that the party must "stick together" in both nominating conventions and campaigning in the spring elections because, York said, "The University Party already has most of its spring candidates picked and we've got a hard fight ahead."

Forty Attend French Club

Thursday night saw the first meeting of the newly formed Cercle Francais. The meeting, attended by some 40 people, was under the guidance of A. H. Yarrow of the French department, faculty adviser to the club. Temporary officers were chosen and tentative plans for the future meetings were laid.

Permanent officers will be elected within the next two weeks.

"The Cercle Francais will be conducted in French, but not, as in former days, with a class-room atmosphere," said Yarrow. "It's primary purpose is to create a friendly atmosphere where members will meet every week to play bridge, listen to concerts, and improve their French."

All interested persons are invited to attend the next meeting Thursday evening at 7:30 in the main lounge of Graham Memorial.

Publications Board Approves Printing of DTH Style Book

At a recent meeting of the Publications board, which is scheduled to convene again this afternoon, final approval was given to DTH managing editor Roland Giduz to publish a style book, and to Carolina Magazine editor Fred Jacobson to copyright the publication, announced Board president Robert Morrison.

The DTH style book, which is expected to be of use to staffs for many years to come, is to consist of 20 or more pages and is not to exceed 70 dollars in cost.

No Keys for Staff

In addition to his approved recommendation for a magazine copyright, Fred Jacobson asked for publication keys for his staff, but was refused. He was instructed to appoint a temporary circulation manager for the present issue, and to present a permanent nomination later along with salary recommendations.

Giduz and DTH editor Bill Woestendiek appeared before the Board to request a clarification of its position on closed meetings. Woestendiek stated that only an amendment to the student constitution would improve the present situation, while Giduz expressed the opinion that no person should be discussed by the Board unless he had an opportunity to be present, if he so desired, throughout the discussion, except when the actual vote was taken.

Victory Village Circulation

The Board also approved a request by DTH circulation manager Burton Myers to alter the circulation plan of Victory Village during inclement weather, to the effect that papers delivered to the veterans' housing project on Mason road will be placed throughout the area when weather conditions permit.

PHILOLOGICAL CLUB

The Philological club will meet at 7:30 this evening in the small lounge of Graham Memorial. W. P. Friederich will read a paper on "The Chief Traits of Swiss Literature from Rousseau to Spitteler." Graduate students and all members of the departments of languages and literature are invited to attend.

Solons Refuse Trip to Moscow

Senators Turn Down Truman Invitation

Washington, Feb. 4—(UP)—The Senate's two top spokesmen of foreign affairs have turned down President Truman's invitation to attend the Moscow conference—but with reservations

Both Senators Arthur Vandenburg and Tom Connally state that they are too busy with their work in the senate to serve as full-time delegates, but they will join the meeting later, when they may be needed to demonstrate the senate's bi-partisan support of our foreign policy.

Both Vandenberg and Connally were the main welders of that bi-partisan policy. Both served as advisers to former Secretary of State Byrnes in meetings of the UN and the foreign ministers. Connally had indicated he planned to accompany Secretary Marshall to Moscow and remain throughout the conference, but the Texas Democrat apparently followed Vandenberg's lead in turning down the invitation.

In refusing, Vandenberg made it clear that his action has nothing to do with our foreign policy.

Said he "It should be distinctly stated that this implies no breach in our unpartisan pursuit of United American foreign policy. I expect it to continue. I shall be in constant touch with the Secretary and I shall join him when required."

Red Delegate Prevents Disarmament Solution

Lake Success, Feb. 4—(UP)—Russia has rejected this country's latest effort to break the United Nations deadlock over disarmament. U. S. delegate Warren Austin proposed that the Security Council first take up atomic control and then work out a plan to control other weapons. Soviet Delegate Gromyko objected, saying this would lead to unnecessary delays.

House Proposes Limit To Presidential Term

Washington, Feb. 4—(UP)— The House Judiciary Committee has approved a proposed constitutional amendment limiting any president to two terms. The vote was 20 to six. Republican leaders say they will try to get the measure to the House floor by Friday.

Communist Head Held As Undesirable Alien

New York, Feb. 4—(UP)—Federal agents have arrested Gerhard Eisler—the alleged leader of the Communist party in this country—as an undesirable alien. Eisler—said to use the name Hans Berger—was taken to Ellis Island, for probable deportation.

Wild-Cat Strike Ends In Pennsylvania Plant

Aliquippa, Penn., Feb. 4—(UP)—The wild-cat strike of 18 railroad workers at the Jones and Laughlin Steel plant has been settled. The walkout had made 3500 workers idle, and had disrupted contract negotiations between the CIO United Steelworkers and the company.

Boston Mayor's Appeal Denied by High Court

Boston, Feb. 4—(UP)—The U. S. Court of Appeals has denied the appeal of Mayor James Curley of Boston from his conviction for mail fraud. Curley now is expected to take his appeal on to the Supreme Court.

World Government Advocate to Speak

Colgate Prentice Will Plead Cause For Lasting Peace in Hill Tonight

By Joy Blumenthal

"World Government—A Challenge," is the topic of the tolk to be given tonight in Hill hall at 8:30 by Colgate Prentice, president of Student Federalists, Inc. Prentice has been touring the country since October in an effort to arouse interest in this student movement which is campaigning for federal world government.

COLGATE PRENTICE

Traveling more than 5,000 miles he has carried the arguments for world federation across the nation to California and back and is speaking here on his return trip. His message, to the more than 24,000 students to whom he has spoken, is: "Because youth alone will furnish the vision and leadership to bring about changes necessary for a permanent peace, students must accept their responsibility in the world government movement."

Prentice, who as central fire control operator on a B-29, was awarded the Air Medal with two Oak Leaf Clusters, organized the Swarthmore Chapter of Student Federalists. He was elected president of Student Federalists at the organization's national convention in Chicago, where he introduced into the Student Federalists Charter the statement of individual responisbility in creating "a world government dedicated to human rights and justice under law."

Student Federalists is a non-partisan student movement organized and directed entirely by students. It is not affiliated with any group, party, or organization. Its 4,000 members, ranging in age from 15 to 25, have just one aim: campaigning for federal world government in our time.

Di Will Discuss Communism

With "Is Communism a menace to the independence of the United States," as the question for debate, the Di senate will meet this evening at 9 o'clock in Di hall.

Russell H. Johnson, prominent member of the Carolina Conservative club, is expected to take the affirmative of the question, and Senator John Brock has been appointed by the Senate Ways and Means committee to lead the negative forces. The many supporters of these two views are expected to be present for a debate which is likely to be one of the most lively of the term.

Prior to the evening's main discussion, initiation ceremonies will be conducted for Lincoln Kan, a former resident of Shanghai, China, who was accepted for Senate membership last week by the unanimous consent of the body. Kan is a political science major, and has been active in other discussion groups on the campus.

An executive session has also been called for 8:30, by President Don Shropshire, to act on confidential Senate business. The attendance of all members of the body to this meeting is compulsory.

Friendship Council Plans Greensboro Hop At Meeting Tonight

Last night the Freshmen Friendship council met in Gerrard hall at 7 o'clock to discuss tentative plans for a Freshman dance at Woman's college February 8th. This dance will be sponsored by the Freshmen girls of Woman's college for the Friendship council of the University.

All Freshmen who would like to attend are requested to meet in the Alumni house, College road, Woman's campus, Greensboro at 3 o'clock, Saturday.

There will be a supper given in honor of the Freshmen guests by the Y.W.C.A. of Greensboro in the Y hut. This supper will be held at 6 o'clock.

Following the supper there will be an informal dance held in South Spencer game room. Every Freshman is urged to attend as there will be an overwhelming majority of girls present.

There will be no charge for the supper or the dance, as this is an opportunity to promote better relations between the two campuses.

Everyone is requested to furnish his own transportation. This is the first of a series of socials which are being sponsored by the Freshmen Friendship council for the benefit of the lowerclassmen. The council is planning further dances, a smoker, and some movies of past football games.

Every freshman is asked to attend the future meetings in order to acquaint himself with his fellow classmates.

SCHW to Push Medical Bill

Stewart Submits Four-Fold Plan

At its last meeting, the Southern Conference for Human Welfare laid plans for the launching of a gigantic campaign in support of the Medical Care bill now pending before the State Legislature in Raleigh.

Perrell Payne Jr., chairman of the local chapter stated:

"The Chapter considers the Health Program to be one of the most vital pieces of legislation. . .we intend to go all-out in its support. There are numerous organizations which are already hard at work to secure passage for the program. We intend to work with them. . .and individual students on campus in a drive to gain a real Medical Care bill and not some watered-down version."

Four-Fold Plan

Blount Stewart, chairman of a special committee set up for the purpose of studying most effective means for setting this drive into motion, submitted a four-fold plan, which included the following:

(1) To enlist the aid of all interested campus organizations in a combined effort to gain active campus-wide support for the bill.

(2) To print and distribute an informative pamphlet which will include present health conditions and facilities in North Carolina, the provisions of the suggested Medical Care bill.

(3) To launch a letter-writing campaign, on a county basis, in an effort to impress the legislators in Raleigh with the mass support which the Medical Care bill enjoys.

(4) To organize a "caravan," at an expedient and propitious time, to go over to Raleigh while the bill is in debate, as a representative group of interested voters and citizens.

Committees are being formed to carry forward these plans and to get the program under way.

Veterans Book Law Will Be Enforced More Rigorously

As a result of recent discovery of flagrant abuse in other sections of the country it is expected that the regulations governing issuance of books and supplies to veterans will be more strictly enforced. This does not mean that there will be any change in the laws, but that more safeguard will be required to see that the intent of the laws is carried out.

At a recent conference at Winston-Salem with the Veterans administration officials, which was attended by Mr. J. A. Williams, Mr H. R. Ritchie, and F. C. Shepard, it was pointed out that only a small percentage of the violations so far discovered were malicious. The great majority were due to a misunderstanding of the institutions as to their responsibilities in issuing the books.

Attention was called to the regulation which states the "books, equipment and or supplies will be furnished outright to the veteran if and as needed and will consist of those items required, but in no instance greater in variety, quality, or amount than are required by the institution to be provided personally by other students pursuing the same or similar course.

Items classified as "desirable" but not required are not legitimate charges against the veterans' account and will not be paid by the Veterans administration. In case any supplies or books of an unusual nature are needed by the veteran "for the proper pursuit of his course," as occurs at the graduate level, it will be necessary to secure a specific ruling from the Veterans administration to insure that such items are legitimate charges against the veterans account.

It was further pointed out that the institution must certify that the account of each veteran is true and correct, and conforms with the existing regulations. It is, therefore, the responsibility of the institution to install and maintain proper safeguards to see that only authorized items are issued to veterans.

The Veterans Administration will not and cannot attempt to police the

DTH Heads Upheld By Phi Assembly

Popular Vote Favors Hodgson, 52-35; Fund Misappropriations Are Charged

By Jimmy Wallace

The Phi Hall, packed to the rafters, was the scene last night of what had promised to be the biggest knock down, drag out fight in this year's turbulent series of extra-curricular eruptions.

The subject: A debate between Tookie Hodgson, Publications Board Member, and Foo Giduz, Managing Editor of the Daily Tar Heel.

The question: resolved the DTH was unfair, unethical, and untrue in its condemnation of the Publications Board, and that Giduz was same for his participation therein. Also Woestendiek and Giduz were sloppy and unbusinesslike in their management of some items of finance. The latter were: 1. unauthorized debt of $8.05 incurred by Giduz (for office items), and purchase of syndicated features (Mauldin's cartoons and Pearson's column) by Giduz and Woestendiek without PB authorization.

Phi Vote

Hodgson won. The score was 52 to 34, with everyone voting. The Phi vote: three for: six against.

There was tremendous and sustained applause after Hodgson spoke (there were approximately 35 members of his fraternity in the audience) (Phi Gams).

It developed that:

Woestendiek: The Daily Tar Heel is not run in accordance with any political party's platform, but is the expression of the student body. The syndicated features were contracted for personally, and would have been paid for out of the pockets of the Editor and the Managing Editor had the PB not ratified the purchases. The PB did ratify them, it developed.

Editor of Mag

Jacobson (editor of Mag): The PB has one of its members sign every check. It is impossible for expenditures to be made without the knowledge of the Board.

It also developed that the PB has open meetings, but reserves the right to close them when it wishes to do so.

Giduz: Asked how many Phi Gams were in the audience. About half the audience stood.

Hodgson: Asked if anyone present could prove any MISAPPROPRIATION. No one could.

Giduz: Said that he had said that there was OPPORTUNITY to have ignorant and unfair faculty members on the PB. He said that he had not said that there were such at the present time.

Hodgson: Any further unauthorized purchases will not be paid for by PB.

Gene Aenchbacher

Gene Aenchbacher (candidate for Editor of DTH in last election): questioned Morrison, the president of the PB, as to the possibility of the PB's affecting editorial policy by withholding funds. Answer: Yes, it could, but doesn't.

Aenchbacher: If editors were allowed to regularly attend PB meetings, all the facts could be argued and there would be no ground for attack on either side.

Al Lowenstein: (after stating that he was not a member of any of the fraternities present and not a candidate for editor) said that editors should have more voice in the distribution of funds; that mere charges on both sides rendered the situation a mockery. The mere changing of funds from one legitimate purpose to another legitimate purpose should be O.K. Yielded to.

Hodgson: When editors want more monies, they should come to the PB.

Irwin Smallwood

Irwin Smallwood: When the decision was made to purchase the syndicated features, the editors were in New York, and the PB was unavailable. That there was the intention to reduce the engraving expenses by an amount equal to the amount expended for the features. Editors should have a general fund in the budget.

Hodgson: Editors must adhere to the budget, once it is prepared.

Giduz: alleged that PB had entertained a motion by Hodgson to fire Giduz.

Hodgson: denied it.

Morrison: denied it.

It apparently stood denied.

Tom Eller: Said that argument that editors misused money was not valid, since PB later ratified the use of the money. Said that this was an ex post factor accusation. Promiscuously used the word "promiscuously." Stated that Stacy dorm had not received the DTH today, and many other days. Said that circulation manager was a Phi Gam, a fraternity brother of Hodgson's. He stated that there was no valid evidence to substantiate allegations. Introduced substitute motion to effect that Ecitors should be commended for action in obtaining new features. This was defeated, by something to 30.

Martin Carmichael: Pleaded for more maturity in Student Government if it expects to command the respect of the campus.

Hodgson: stated that Eller wants anarchy, and that the present circulation manager was elected without his brothers' participation.

Bill Lane: (former member of the student legislature) Hodgson's charges are unfair, and his motives questionable.

PURSE THIEF TAKES IT ON CHIN

College Campus Is Setting For Sound and Fury Comedy

By Sandy Minnix

After a long search and an infinite number of suggestions Sound and Fury has dubbed its new show "Dear Congress." Already Director Art Golby has been bombarded by questions concerning its meaning. Though he would not reveal the significance of the name at this time, he wanted it understood that it had no political significance. "It is not a play concerning Bilbo. It has nothing to do with Georgia's two governors. It is a comedy about a college campus," asserted Golby.

Juvenile Leads

The juvenile leads have been given to Fran Avera, Joyce Corbet and Ben Kistler. Don Draper, George Grizzard, John Scherin, Norman Sper and Don Shields have important parts as faculty members. With over 50 members in the entire production the show will be produced on a grand scale. A 15 piece band will furnish the music and a large dancing and singing chorus will execute five songs and two dances. Rehearsals have already begun and the play will be performed on March 3, 4, 5.

Sound and Fury now has new offices on the third ffoor of Memorial hall. Hours are from 2-5 every afternoon Monday through Friday.

"Lots of help is still needed and we would like to see the students in back of this effort. If anyone is interested please see me as soon as possible," said President Bill Carmichael.

State Episcopal Students Will Hold Conference Here

The North Carolina Episcopal College Student conference will meet this week-end, at the Chapel of the Cross for its Tenth Anniversary conference marking the first time that the Conference has convened in Chapel Hill. The UNC Canterbury club will act as host.

Principal speaker for the conference will be the Rev. Thomas V. Barrett, General Secretary of the Church Society for College Work, New York City. Mr. Barrett will address the Conference Friday evening for its opening session, twice on Saturday and will deliver a sermon Sunday morning at the regular 11 o'clock service which will close the Conference.

Main Topic of Conference

The main topic chosen for the conference will be, "The Field of the Cloth of Gold." Following Barrett's Saturday talks, the conference will divide into discussion groups with the following ministers of the Diocese of North Carolina as discussion leaders: The Rev. Messrs. George Henry; Ray Holder Roscoe Hauser. Chaplain Clarence Hobgood and Dr. John H. Franklin.

The closing banquet of the Conference will be held Saturday evening with the Rev. George Henry as banquet speaker. Fred Ferris, Duke student and president of the conference will preside over the business meeting Sunday morning when officers for the ensuing year will be elected.

Colleges to be represented at the Conference are UNC, WCUNC, NC State, Duke, Wake Forest, St. Augustine, St. Mary's, ECTC, ORMI, and Davidson.

Official delegates from UNC will be Charles Vache, Gay Morenus, John Patterson, Earle Page, Dorothy Hart, David Whittier, Paul Harmon, and Marian Stoudemire.

Support Good Health

A chain is no stronger than its weakest link—so goes an old saying.

Possibly we shouldn't say a state is no stronger than its weakest citizen, but the analogy is not inconceivable.

And the state of North Carolina's number one need is Good Health. North Carolina's number one plan is the good health plan. North Carolina's number one job is to back the good health plan.

Why do we need the good health plan? Just glancing at the facts more than proves the need.

North Carolina led the nation in draft rejections. North Carolina is 41st in maternal mortality. There are only 144 Negro doctors to serve a million Negro people. Only 38.1 per cent of our babies are delivered in hospitals. Six per cent of the white babies and 54 per cent of our Negro babies do not have a doctor attendant at birth. In this respect the state ranks 40th.

These facts are not new. But they are increasingly important. North Carolina needs more physicians for rural districts and smaller towns. It needs more district health centers and comprehensive health services. The crying need in North Carolina at the present time is for a health program that will reach out to all of the people of the state. Doctors, nurses and technicians must be trained.

The North Carolina medical care commission has proposed a five-year plan for building new general hospitals and medical centers throughout the state and for enlarging existing hospital facilities all over the state.

The state legislature in Raleigh now has a medical care bill before it for consideration. It must act favorably on the bill at this session. We cannot afford to waste anymore time.

It is the responsibility of every citizen of North Carolina to let his feelings on the matter be known. The SCHW is sponsoring the campus movement to get behind the campaign. Every interested student (and every student shoud be interested in his most priceless possession—good health) should let the legislators in Raleigh know that he wants action taken on the matter quickly. Write your representative, talk up the Good Health program.

Remember, a man is no better than his health permits. Provide for the health and safety of North Carolina's future citizenry by getting behind the good health movement now!

On World Government

An evening could be well spent tonight by listening to a speech on world government in Hill music hall.

The speaker is Colgate Prentice, 22-year-old president of Student Federalists, Inc., a youth movement campaigning for federal world government.

Many students are ignorant of just what the principles involved in world government are. Here is your chance to get an interesting, authoritative insight into the program by listening to Prentice speak. "World Government—a Challenge" is the title of Prentice's speech. Students have a wonderful opportunity to learn about the challenge tonight.

Daily Newspaper

Today, marks one year of publication of the Daily Tar Heel since our resumption of daily publication after the end of the war.

During the war years a semi-weekly, and later, a weekly newspaper, The Tar Heel similar to this publication, appeared from 1943-46. But on the evening of February 4 the first newspaper in four years with the name Daily Tar Heel, rolled off the presses.

Yes, it's the Daily Tar Heel now! But every day we are referred to as the Tar Heel, the Dirty Tar Heel, the Damn Tar Heel, or even a few more superlative phrases! We take a great deal of pride on being the oldest college daily in the south and we'd like to be recognized as such.

Just like a certain brand of aspirin, please always ask for the Daily Tar Heel, not simply the Tar Heel alone.

The Daily Tar Heel

The official newspaper of the Publications Board of the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, where it is published daily, except Mondays, examination and vacation periods; during the official summer terms, it is published semi-weekly on Wednesdays and Saturdays. Entered as second-class matter at the post office at Chapel Hill, N. C., under the act of March 3, 1879. Subscription price: $8.00 per college year; $3.00 per quarter.

Facts on Health in State Paint Frightening Picture

By Jud Kinberg

About the fourth time in one day that I heard the catchy Good Health song, it set my curiosity on edge. I determined to find out just WHAT "Is Up To Me."

After a minimum of columnistic snooping, I realized that North Carolina has primed a movement designed to eradicate a scourge upon the state. It is nothing less than an all-out fight against Death, with all the modern campaign weapons on the firing line. If you've ever seen what a bright hospital ward can do for the spirits of a person critically ill, you'll agree that adequate medical facilities are a dirt-cheap insurance policy on the future of the people and their community.

But I don't have to paint word-pictures, there are some figures that speak language far incisive than any grand generalities. The press release, from the North Carolina Good Health Association, tells the user not to "scare your readers." I wish it were possible to follow that advice, but it's like asking you to publish casualty lists and not disturb the mothers of the dead. The facts are cold, hard and frightening. Put them together and they complete a maddening jigsaw puzzle of inadequate facilities resulting in inadequate health throughout the state. The facts scared me, I'm afraid they'll scare you. I've tried to add them up and get a different answer, but the same one comes out everytime. It's that this campaign for Good Health in North Carolina isn't a luxury item, it's bare necessity. Any improvements made in the next five years, no matter how great, will also be necessity.

Let's get rid of a specious argument first. "Why can't we depend upon private facilities," is the usual hue and cry. Most people in this state cannot pay for modern medical care. In 1940, North Carolina ranked 44th in net income per capita. The average was $317. That's average, the lows are way below that.

Then there's the prime matter of hospital beds. We don't look so good there, either. North Carolina is 42nd among the states in hospital beds per thousand population. The generally accepted bare minimum is four beds per thousand people. Only a few of North Carolina's counties approach that number. In all, we are 6,000 beds below the average.

That's just the beginning of blackness. Just about every statistic you turn to, from infant mortality to old deaths is just the same. You have to go way down the list before you find North Carolina.

Those are some of the figures that aren't supposed to scare you. I guess if you're calloused enough you can read the full report and then dash off to Aggie's for a brew without a thought about what those statistics mean. The answer is that right now the North Carolina citizen has a better chance than his neighbor at one thing: Death.

The hopeful part of the report is that it doesn't have to remain that way. One of the bright spots in the record in tuberculosis control. That's because state authorities assumed responsibility for this phase of good health a number of years ago.

Today, through the high-powered Good Health Association, the plan is to bring the government in on the many other phases of maintaining life. This Association is giving all of us the opportunity to participate in the campaign in a manner guaranteed to cause no pain. The kind of support they want is vocal and not financial. For the paltry price of enthusiasm we can help buy good health throughout this state.

Since they ask so little, I think we ought to give them more. Student discussion groups have been looking for momentous issues. Certainly this one is big enough for a series of forums. Student leaders should take action to see that the entire campus knows just what the Good Health Association intends doing.

This chance to fight for a better chance at life for everyone in North Carolina is one that every student—Tar Heel born or just Tar Heel breeding—should actively champion. It is one way of proving that we're not here to hide from life's realities.

Letters To The Editor

All letters must be typewritten, double-spaced, under 300 words in length, and signed by the writer. Writer's name will be withheld on request, but letters must be signed. The Daily Tar Heel reserves the right to present the letters as it wishes and to delete all matter it considers libelous.

Rebuttal

(Ed. note—the following letter was given up by Charles Warren, speaker of the student legislature, following yesterday's editorial against constitutional changes.)

Mr. Woestendiek:

I asked editor Woestendiek to explain few of the 16 amendments which he vigorously opposed in yesterday's editorial. Greatly to my surprise, the editor was unable to explain many of them; yet, he had the audacity to publicly oppose all amendments. Could it be that the editor is regrettably many times used as political implement?

Mr. Wallace:

I harbor no resentment against Jimmy Wallace for his contemptible statement directed against me yesterday. My job doesn't include personal name-calling feuds with those opposed to my leadership.

I regret that there are those who feel my leadership is sluggish; and, if in the performance of my duties I have hurt anyone—I am sorry! However, I would like to point out that any manifestation of lethargy on my part is mainly due to biased, uncooperative elements which I believe the majority of the legislature members would like to see resigned.

Mr. Eller:

Your article on Student Government in the Carolina Mag represents a good effort to indoctrinate the student body in:re Student Government. Contrarily, your effort was partly obstructed by misrepresentation of the facts. I have never stated that the Constitution was void. (Upon mandate of the administration.)

I disagree with you also in saying that the St. Legislature has only accomplished a set of by-laws. Space doesn't permit detail; however, I favor less critical analysis and more actual work.

Mr. Dorsett:

Dewey Dorsett is one of the finest and most outstanding presidents this student body has ever had. He has my definite backing. We are confident that members of the Legislature will attend this week's session receptive to both pros and cons on the proposed amendments. There is no desire on our part to hastily consider these measures.

Respectfully,
CHARLES WARREN
Vice President

The Third Part....

Needed from Legislature--- 'Little Beneficial Action'

By Jimmy Wallace

The name of this column is derived from my conclusion that a University is composed, like Gaul, of three parts. Each of these bears a definite relationship to the other, and, upon mature reflection, I have concluded that a University cannot successfully exist without cooperation between the three components. They are: the Faculty, the Administration, and the students. The students are the third, and often forgotten part of the University.

So this column will be about students, and things that affect students, be these things local, national or international. It will not be surprising therefore, if I talk about high prices, government inefficiency, or Atomic Bombs. For the nonce, then, the local scene needs a lettle surveying. Yesterday, I wrote a column in which I deplored the cold molasses similarity to the speed and efficiency of the Student Legislature leadership. Chas. Warren, the speaker, is currently wrought up about it. It appears that, of all things, criticism is what he likes least. He has, therefore, written a little letter to the Daily Tar Heel, and he sez that my attack was "contemptible," or so I understand. Surely Chas. knows better than that.

Surely his pal Dewey Dorsett knows better than that. I have nothing against the boys. All I want is a little action; not even on any particular thing. Just a little action on something which might benefit the student body.

I am glad about one thing. The column yesterday moved Chas. to write a letter to the Editor. Which is just charming. I hope that Chas. will write a letter every time I write a column. Then we will have genuine freedom of the press and interchange of ideas. But I have a feeling that Chas. will run out of gas.

There are two items of interest in the current Legislative mill in Raleigh. One of them is the little matter of placing a tax on cooperatives. I'm agin it. The reason is veddy simple. Cooperatives don't make profits, at least theoretically, and therefore, should not pay taxes. Cooperatives are merely groups of people who organize for their benefit; sort of a mutual organization.

The very delicious grade "A" milk which Chapel Hillians are now drinking is the product of the Farmer's Dairy Cooperative. Before that Cooperative came into existence, we were getting grade "C" milk. I can't see why such enterprises should be put out of business through being forced to pay a tax.

I can see why, however, that many corporate interests would like to scuttle the co-ops. They DO cut into profits occasionally. In fact, that is exactly the reason given by the propounders of the bill in Raleigh. So write yore representative, or you'll be drinking third-rate cow juice.

The other item which will soon be socking the headlines is: Should Chapel Hill get a hospital and Med School? Many people think not. Many think that we should. It appears that a poll of many of the state's doctors yielded, through the use of leading questions, an answer which seemed to indicate that Charlotte was the logical place.

We have a two-year Med school here. It was built at the expense of several hundred thousands dollars. To let the Med school stay here and die (two-year Med schools are obsolescent) would mean a great waste of the state's money. If, however, the school were enlarged to a four-year school, it could be done at less expense to the state.

Either way, there is going to be a big fight.

CAROLINA SPORTS HEADING into the most active weekend in years. That's the story of this week's doings around Woollen gym, where winter sports athletes are hard at the task of preparing for tough battles.

The White Phantoms, who have played six games in the past 11 days and who just Monday night lost their first game in two years to New York University, have probably the biggest test in store—that being games with VPI and Davidson in Southern conference competition.

Coach Tom Scott's hardwood performers, who have a record of three wins and two losses in loop play, have a tough road ahead in conference play and are in bad need for the victories over the Virginia Tech lads and Davidson. And both games promise to be close indeed, what with Davidson defeating South Carolina twice during the past week and VPI doing some good playing up in the Cavalier state. Following the battles this weekend, Carolina will have to face Duke twice, State once, Davidson once, and Georgia Tech.

Glancing back for a minute to the NYU encounter Monday night, and giving credit where credit is due, lanky Bob Paxton, the veteran of two years of Phantoming with the best of them, deserves more praise than we are ableto hand out. Jim Hamilton and Jim White along with him, too, deserve thanks for their play. Paxton, who for the past two years and even now is as good a rebound man as there is in the nation, has been one of the main things holding the Tar Heel quint together this season. He has played without relief twice in one week, and his job will continue the same from here on out, only harder.

Scott's Phants played their hearts out against the tough invaders from New York, and even in loss the entire bunch deserves plenty of credit. They were out there sweating and playing with all their might, even in losing. And they will be doing just the same thing—trying with all their might—in the rest of their games this year, and unless we miss our guess, they will walk into the conference tournament and make their presence known in no uncertain terms.

Come Saturday, there will be a full afternoon and night program, the Blue Dolphins swimming against Tennessee and the wrestlers meeting Washington and Lee in the afternoon; and the Phants facing Davidson and the boxers fighting Maryland at night. This marks the first time in years that all winter varsity sports have been scheduled for local competition on the same day, and it offers local sports enthusiasts a real day of thrilling entertainment. The swimmers even top off the afternoon meet by going to Raleigh that night to swim in the Carolinas AAU meet.

IT'S A FACT DEPT. NYU's powerful basketball team was feted en masse at the TEP fraternity house following the game here Monday night. All the visiting basketballers praised the Carolina hospitality and thoroughly enjoyed themselves with the refreshments at the frat house reception. . .The outlawing of the shift from football competition in the NCAA will not affect the Tar Heels to any great extent. Carl Snavely has not had much to say about the shift as yet, but from our observations it will not mean any too drastic changes in Carolina formations. Practice, incidentally, begins next Monday for Tar Heel newcomers and all those regulars who plan to take part in varsity sports during the spring quarter. . .A note following up the Navy-Duke game. We had lunch Saturday with former Carolina Coach Ben Carnevale, and he asked that he be remembered to all his friends in Chapel Hill. We pass this along with a reciprocal greeting to "Coach Ben" and congratulations to him for his success at Navy this year. . .Tickets go on sale today for the Southern Invitational indoor track meet to be held in Woollen gym March 1. There will be available seats only for about 2,500 spectators, and student pass books are not good for admittance. Students will be admitted for 75 cents and outsiders for $1.50. Ducats are good for both afternoon and evening competition.

Mermen Meet Navy In Annapolis Today

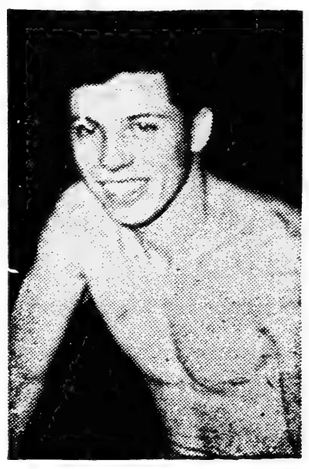
Tankmen Seek Third Victory

Meet Series Tied At Three Wins Each

Special to Daily Tar Heel

Annapolis, Md. Feb. 4—The Tar Heel swimming team will meet the Naval Academy tankmen here this afternoon in an intersectional meet between the two teams. Carolina will be out to win its third tilt out of four starts.

Navy's mermen will be strongly favored to defeat the local swimmers for the second straight year. The Annapolis crew has a well-balanced team and will have the psychological advantage of swimming in its home pool.



Carolina will be out to gain revenge for the loss hung on the squad last year by the Middies, ruining a Tar Heel victory streak of 21 consecutive meets. In a triangular meet at Annapolis last year, Navy snapped two victory strings—a skein of 25 straight for Carolina, in addition to blotting the local meremen's record.

Tied for Series

The two tank squads are tied up 3-3 for their swimming series thus far. The Middies took the meets in 1941, 1943, and 1946. The Carolina swimmers scuttled the Midshipmen in 1942, 1944, and 1945.

Carolina will have the following lineup for the meet.

440: Jenkins, Norwood.
220: Hutton.
Diving: Sper, Crone.
100: Greenbaum, Baultman.
50: Greenbaum, Baultman.
Backstroke: McCoy, Sper.
Breaststroke: Breeden, Cook.
Medley relay: McCoy, Hexner, and McCauley.

TWO OF THE mainstays on the Carolina swimming team this season have been Jesse Greenbaum, left above, free-style artist, and Buddy Crone, right, diving star. Both men are lettermen.

Pi Phi Defeats Tri Delt Team

Captures Loop Lead In Coed Basketball

The Pi Beta Phi basketball team took undisputed leadership of the sorority league last night as they swept the Tri Delt cage sextet from the ranks of the unbeaten in a hard-fought, 22-16 win. It was the winners' second victory in a like number of starts.

Helen Barnes was high scorer for the Pi Phis, scoring 10 tallies, while Judy Swain paced the losers with 12 points. The Tri Delts had previously defeated the Chi Omegas and the Alpha Gams, with the Pi Phis having also defeated the latter in their other win.

NO MURAL RESULTS

There were no results of yesterday's mural contests available when the paper went to press due to the late starting times of several contests.

Play in both mural basketball and handball events will continue this afternoon with only a few contests scheduled.

In the handball tourney, several teams have already been eliminated, and the field is gradually narrowing. Play will continue until a winner emerges. For the remainder of the tournament teams will be notified by phone when their matches are scheduled.

Mural Schedule

BASKETBALL

Wednesday, 4:00—court 5: Locals vs Grads; court 7: Zeta Psi No. 3 vs PiKA No. 2.

5:00—court 5: Stacy vs BVP No. 1; court 7: Pi Lam No. 1 vs Sig Chi No. 1.

6:00—court 5: DKE No. 2 vs SAE No. 2; court 7: Chi Psi vs Kap Sig No. 1.

HANDBALL

Wednesday, 4:00—To be announced by phone; 5:00—Field House vs Med School; 6:00—To be announced by phone.

WRESTLING PICTURES

The Yackety Yack picture of the wrestling team will be taken this afternoon at 4:30 o'clock in the wrestling room. All wrestlers are asked to be in the wrestling room dressed at 4:15 o'clock in preparation for the picture taking.

Cagers Get Day of Rest Before Weekend Contests

Phantoms to Encounter VPI, Davidson; Hamilton Leads Outfit in Loop Scoring

Carolina's varsity cagers received a day of rest yesterday afternoon as Coach Tom Scott began pointing the team for the two Southern conference tilts coming up over the weekend.

After pictures for the Yackety-Yack had been taken, Coach Scott dismissed the varsity players and most of the remaining practice time was devoted to a scrimmage between the varsity reserves and Coach Lew Hayworth's jayvee outfit. The rest came as a welcome relief to the courtmen, who have just completed a tough card of six games in 11 days.

Play VPI

Next clash for the Phantoms will be Friday evening when the locals face VPI in their sixth loop encounter. The Scottmen return Saturday to engage Davidson, twice conquerors of a South Carolina quintet that gave the Phantoms a terrific struggle before losing by a 50-49 count.

Carolina is currently in a triple tie for fifth place in the conference, possessing a 3-2 loop record along with Davidson and Richmond. Ahead of the trio in the standing are Duke, in first place with a 5-0 slate, N. C. State, with 6-1, Maryland, with 6-2, and South Carolina with 5-3.

In individual scoring, Jim Hamilton tops the Carolina team in conference competition with a 68-point total for five games that puts the Tar Heel forward in a tie for 11th place.

Jayvee Tilt Cancelled; Team to Play Friday

Word was received by the athletic department yesterday that the jayvee-Fort Bragg basketball game scheduled for tonight has been cancelled due to a schedule mixup by the service quint, and the encounter has been set for a later date.

Meanwhile, the unbeaten Hayworthmen set their sights on the first half of Friday night's twin bill in Woollen gym, when they face the Sanford American Legion All Stars in a return engagement.

Rejoin Team

Marks Nathan and Fred Swartzburg rejoined the practice sessions yesterday after having been on the injured list for a week.

The jayvees will put an unbeaten record on the line Friday night, having scored wins in seven previous encounters.

Carolina Trackmen Schedule Informal Contest With Duke

In preparation for the indoor games to be held here on March 1, the Tar Heel track team will run an informal meet with the Duke tracksters in the Tin Can Saturday.

Duke was the winner of the Southern conference outdoor track title last year and has a strong team returning. The events will be similar to those to be run in the championship meet, except that the circular events will be run at odd distances.

The feature of the day will be the 1000 yard run, which will pit Duke's Roger Neighborgal, conference 880 champ, against Carolina's Jimmy Miller. Neighborgal has been invited to run in the special 1000 yard run in the New York Athletic club meet in Madison Square Garden of February 15.

Coach Dale Ranson said yesterday that with the nearness of the big meet in Woollen gym March 1, he has been very disappointed with the turnout of the squad. There will be a time trial for all hurdlers and sprinters at six o'clock this afternoon and all men out for these events are asked to be on time. Ranson further added that he wished to see all members of the track squad in the Tin Can sometime this afternoon.

The events set for the meet this weekend have not been definitely assigned times yet, but they will be 60-yard dash, 70-yard high and low hurdles, 330, 660, and 100-yard runs, 3-4 mile and one and a half mile runs, sprint medley relay, one mile relay, broad jump, high jump, pole vault and shot put.

issuance of books and supplies. This will be left entirely with the institutions, and if an audit of the institutions' books discloses that any unauthorized items have been issued, whether in quantity or quality, those items will be charged back to the institutions. It is the responsibility of the institution to determine whether the veteran receives only authorized books or equipment.

The chief source of misunderstanding on the part of the veterans and the institutions is the assumption that the veteran may purchase any books or supplies so long as the total amount does not exceed the $500.00 per school year allowance. This misunderstanding has arisen in spite of the much publicized regulations that only required books or equipment are legitimate charges against the Veterans Adinistration.

The University was commended of the manner in which the accounts of the veterans were kept, but no comment was made on the present method of handling the checking of authorized books.

UN Delegates Agree on Plan

U. S., Russia Adopt Atom Compromise

New York, Feb. 5—(UP)— The United States and Russia seem to have found a working basis on which to proceed with atomic energy and disarmament.

Late yesterday, the two countries—and four other nations as well—tentatively adopted a French compromise proposal on procedure in atomic and disarmament discussions. Apparently the way has been cleared for the UN Security Council to get to work on both problems.

Russia's Andrei Gromyko made the first conciliatory gesture as the Security Council's sub-committee met today. He suddenly dropped his insistence on the Russian plan for disarmament and atomic discussions, a plan that would consider atom control only as part of the over-all problem of disarmament. This is a stand that has been vigorously opposed by U. S. delegate Warren Austin. He has insisted that machinery for control of the atom must be worked out before anything is done about general disarmament.

Gromyko started things moving towards a compromise when he moved for adoption of the French compromise proposal. The French compromise meets American objections to the Russian plan part way by separating atomic energy from the general disarmament problem—by providing that the two are to be taken up separately. And it meets Russian objections to the American plan by providing that discussion of disarmament begin at once.

Labor Leader Against Closed Shop Measure

Wilmington, Feb. 5—(UP)—C. B. Kornegay, a Wilmington labor leader, has criticized a bill to outlaw the closed shop in North Carolina. The bill was introduced today in the General Assembly in Raleigh. Kornegay, who is president of the Wilmington Central Labor union, says the bill looks like an effort to disturb the peaceful relations between labor and management in North Carolina.

Portal Pay Case May Go to Supreme Court

Detroit, Feb. 5—(UP)—Assistant Attorney General Joan Sonnett says he has President Truman's permission to carry the portal pay test case to the Supreme court—no matter what the outcome in Detroit. Sonnett has petitioned Federal Judge Picard to let the Government enter the test case.

Talmadge Says Negroes Not to Vote in Georgia

Atlanta, Feb. 5—(UP)—Governor Talmadge told a state senate committee that the people of Georgia have given the legislators a mandate to keep Negroes from voting in Democratic primaries. The Georgia House already has passed the white primary bill, which also has the support of rival Governor Thompson.

March Of Dimes Campaign Nets $1,629.53

Phi Delts Lead All Other Groups In Donations

The campus March of Dimes campaign netted a total of $1,629.53, according to a report released yesterday by the committee in charge of campus collections.

Phi Delta Theta fraternity led all participants in the drive with a contribution of $175. Sigma Chi and the SAE's placed second with $120. Beta Theta Pi contributed $75 to place third.

Fraternities were the most generous contributors to the drive, which sought to include all campus organizations and dormitories.

McIver Leads Coeds

McIver dormitory paced the coed dormitories by donating over $50. Alderman was second and Pi Beta Phi and Chi Omega were the leading sorority contributors.

Stacy led the men's dormitories with a contribution of $26—equal to the amount contributed by the entire lower quadrangle. Other dormitories gave varying amounts.

Contributions from fraternities, mainstays of the drive, follow: Phi Delta Theta $175; Sigma Chi $120, SAE $120, Beta $75, Phi Gamma Delta $68, TEP $62, ZBT $60, Kappa Sigma $50, Pi Lambda Phi $40, St. Anthony's $30, KA $12, Zeta Psi $5, Pi Kappa Alpha $5. Other fraternities failed to contribute.

The University Veterans association contributed $50, but was the only campus organization, aside from fraternal groups, to do so.

Noted Historian To Speak Tonight

Speaking under the sponsorship of three campus organizations, Dr. Herbert Aptheker, noted historian and lecturer, will speak in Gerrard hall this evening at 8 o'clock. Dr. Aptheker, author of many monographs on pre-Civil War South, will discuss the stimulating topic of "The Negro in American History."

Dr. Lee M. Brooks, professor of sociology at the University, will introduce the speaker, whose talk is being sponsored by the Southern Conference for Human Welfare, the Wesley foundation, and the Carolina Political union.

This afternoon, from 2 to 4 o'clock, Dr. Aptheker will conduct a seminar in the Baby lounge of Graham Memorial, the topic to be chosen by those present.

Speedy Charley Justice Goes Just Too Fast!

Charley Justice—who last fall ran circles around such football stars as All-American Dick Huffman, Teague award winner Nick Sacrinty, and Navy's Dick Scott—felt a touch of the choo-choo spirit yesterday afternoon while driving toward Chapel Hill, but what Scott, Huffman, Sacrinty, and dozens of other would-be tacklers hadn't been able to accomplish was easy for State Highway Patrolman Robert R. Thomas.

Charley, in his own car, and Joseph W. Harrar, who was driving just ahead of Justice in a pickup truck, both hit 60 miles per hour in a 30 m.p.h. zone, according to Thomas, who stopped the pair. Harrar wasn't sure just how fast he had been going. But Justice, who was following the truck closely, had kept one eye on the speedometer, and had no doubts.

Both got pinched.

Forensic Tourney Squad Completed with Baldwin

Debating Team Clashes with North Georgia; Coed Participation Needed in Coming Events

A small but spirited turnout marked the debate squad tryouts Tuesday night as members were tentatively chosen to fill positions needed in coming debate tournaments. Selections were made by Maurice Braswell, president of the Debate council, and his co-worker, Jim Taylor.

First on the agenda was the choice of a debator to fill out the team which will participate in the meet with North Georgia college next Saturday. Herb Porter, James Hall, and John Ehle, who represented the University in the Sugar Bowl debates, were already slated to appear. Newcomer Russell Baldwin was chosen to be the fourth man.

Others who tried their hand on the topic: Resolved, that labor should have a direct share in the management of industry, were Roy Lyon and Richard Mottsman. Lyon took the affirmative, while Mottsman presented negative views.

Good Health Plan

In tryouts for extemporaneous speaking, Don Shields, on last year's squad, led off with a talk on the Good Health Plan. The Australian ballot was the subject on which Robert Andrew spoke, while Baldwin and Mottsman orated on the abolition of the UNO veto. These candidates were given the subject and allowed one-half hour to prepare it.

Braswell also wished to announce that the meet with North Georgia college scheduled to be held in Hill hall Saturday, will take place in the Di Senate hall instead, at 3 p.m. on that day.

Athletic Group To Meet Here

WAA Directs Session; Five Schools Coming

The Executive Council of the North Carolina Athletic Federation of College Women will meet tomorrow evening at 7 o'clock in the Women's gymnasium for a business meeting through Saturday morning.

The delegates will consist of 12 representatives each from Meredith, Salem, Duke, Woman's college, and UNC, and will discuss means of furthering athletic interests and activities for women through the highest standards of sports and other recreational activities at present, and after college life.

Basketball Play-Day

Teams from Meredith, Salem, Duke, Woman's College, and UNC will assemble Saturday for a basketball play-day, under the sponsorship of the Woman's Athletic association, Basketball Club, and Physical Education majors.

Saturday's schedule will be: 10:00, welcome to visitors by Mrs. Beard, head of the Womens Physical Education department; 10:30-10:50, Salem vs UNC; 10:50-11:10, Meredith vs Duke; 11:10-11:30, Woman's college vs Salem; 11:30-11:50, UNC vs Meredith; 11:50-12:10, Duke vs Woman's college; 12:30-2:00, Lunch; 2:00-2:20, Woman's college vs UNC; 2:20-2:40, Meredith vs Salem; 2:40-3:00, Duke vs UNC; 3:00-3:20, Woman's college vs Meredith; 3:20-3:40, Duke vs Salem; 4:00, Party for guests.

Committees in Charges

Committees in charge of the meeting are: Marshall Spears, chairman; Nina Mosely, Janet Crinkley, Jean Roddey, programs; Jeanne Driscoll, invitations; Marty Martin, K. D. Durham, schedule; Bill Noyde, officials; Kit Coleman, equipment; Judy Swain, hostess for lunch; and Pat Anderson, Ruth Evans, registration.

Y SUPPER FORUM

The Y Supper forum will meet in the Methodist church this evening at 5:45 to discuss the problem, "Should Negroes be admitted to the Graduate School?" Tickets are on sale at the YMCA office.

University Quota For Student Relief Is Set at $5,500

The annual World Student Service fund campaign for the University will begin Monday, February 10, Gay Morenus, co-chairman for the campaign, announced yesterday.

Students are to be solicited in their dormitory and fraternity house rooms by solicitors who were appointed some time ago. The quota for the University has been set at $5,500 and Miss Morenus has pointed out that an average of one dollar per student contacted must be collected, since many of the students who live in private homes and other places away from the campus cannot be reached by solicitors. There will be, however, a place at the YMCA for all town students to contribute, and student solicitors are to canvass the homes of the faculty members.

Student relief did not have its beginning in the Second World War, for during 1916-17 American students and professors contributed to overseas relief for students who were prisoners in belligerent countries and who were affected in other ways by the war. Later the European Student Relief and the Student Friendship fund worked together in raising $2,500,000 in money and relief for 70,000 European students. Then in 1925 the International Student Service was established with the purpose of promoting understanding and to provide for mutual aid. The World Student Relief was organized in 1943 to raise funds and use them for a world-wide program of student relief, rehabilitation and reconstruction.

This Student Relief is working through the WSSF now to aid students and teachers in the post-war

Legislature Will Discuss Constitution

To Debate Measures Proposed by Dorsett

The Student Legislature will meet at 7:30 this evening in Gerrard hall to discuss the proposed constitutional amendments recommended last week by Student Body President Dewey Dorsett.

The recommendations were drawn up by the Committee on Revision which was appointed by Dorsett last year.

Tonight's meeting, although not on the schedule, will be conducted as a regular session and not as a special session.

Referred to Committee

The proposed changes were put into the form of a bill read by Bob Stockton a week ago, and was referred to Bill Miller's Ways and Means committee.

The committee has been considering the measure throughout the week and Miller said, "We will report neither favorably nor unfavorably, and by reporting the bill out, we merely want the assembly to discuss it."

"The committee feels," Miller continued, "that the proposals concerning the changes in present student council set-up and the amending of the legislature's power to categorize offenses should not be taken up tonight. It is of the opinion that both the student body and the assembly should have more time to consider changes of such importance."

Opposition Expected

In all probability the only portions of the bill to be debated tonight will be of a mechanical nature. Opposition is expected, however, on the recommendation to appoint two faculty members to the Student Audit board.

Another item to be introduced will be that section which would reduce student fees from $20 to $12. Observers believe that the constitution will not be passed by the trustees unless this part of fee structure is changed.

Other measures which will be brought on the floor tonight include: changing of elections date, dance committee amendment, elimination of the House Privileges board and University club from the document.

Another bill due for debate is the measure to create a post office here on the campus. Miller said this proposal will again be reported unfavorably.

Carolina Playmakers Present Final Experimentals Tonight

Tonight in the Playmakers Theatre at 7:30 the Carolina Playmakers will give their second and final performance of the 114th Bill of Experimental productions. The public is invited to see these three original one-act plays that are produced by dramatic art students under the general supervision of Ka Jurgensen, assistant director on the Playmakers staff.

"To Them in Darkness," a serious drama about a woman who knows she soon will be blind, is the first play on the program. Charles Brockman is the author. Eleanor Ringer is the director.

'Black Piet' by Schenkkan

"Black Piet" by Robert Schenkkan and directed by Winford Logan is the second production on the bill. The play is a tragedy of the Boer war, telling the story of a man who is obsessed with a stubborn desire to keep fighting no matter what the cost.

The last play on the program is "Subway Rhapsody," a fantasy by Sam Hirsch, directed by Carlson Thomas. The scene is laid on a New York subway car where Sophie the Subway peers into the lives of her passengers to discover that everybody has his own private conflict to solve, no matter how commonplace people may appear on the surface.

UVA to Entertain At Valentine Hop

The University Veterans association will be host to the ex-G.I.'s on the campus at a Valentine dance tomorrow night at their clubhouse, announced UVA President Roy Moose. Highlight of the dance will be the selection of a Valentine queen who will reign for the evening at the club. A group of three judges will select the queen from the girls present at the dance.

The decorations will follow the traditional hearts and arrow theme of an old-fashioned Valentine party. Music will be furnished by Jimmy Marshall and his Carolinians. The dance which begins at 9 o'clock will be semi-formal.

Tryouts for New Play Begin This Afternoon

Tryouts for the Playmakers fourth major production, a new play by Cid Ricketts Sumner based on her recent novel "Quality," will be held in the Playmakers theatre this afternoon at 4 o'clock, and tomorrow evening at 7:30. Kai Jurgensen, who will direct this production, invites all interested to attend tryouts.

Florida Club to Make Final Hayride Plans

Final plans for a Florida club picnic and hayride to be held February 14 will be concluded at tonight's meeting at 7:15 in Roland Parker lounge.

UNC Needs More Cute Girls, Says Dillon; Ace Cageman Thinks Coeds Too Independent

By Tomie Cates

"What this University needs now that it is slowly getting brick walks is more cute girls who aren't always dated up," said Johnny (Hook) Dillon, 1946 All-American basketball player, as he leaned an elbow on one of the tables in the library. Putting down his pencil and pushing aside his Spanish book, Johnny further expostulated, "I think Carolina is a very friendly place but the coeds are too independent."

The 23-year-old, 6'2", 190-pound lad from Savannah, Ga., who won the hearts of basketball fans in Madison Square Garden last year when the White Phantoms took the victory over the favored NYU team, has a record of being one of the highest scorers on the basketball team this season. Last year he tallied 453 points, one of the highest totals in the country. Most were made by his famous hook shot which he says he started using when he was in high school.

Transfer from Tech

Johnny is a transfer student from Georgia Tech which he attended on a scholarship. He came to Carolina in November of 1944 and is now a Junior majoring in physical education. When asked his objective after college, Dillon grinned, simply stating, "I want to be a big success."

He says he doesn't like publicity, and that it is not true that he has a warehouse in Georgia to file his clippings.

A member of the Sigma Chi fraternity, Johnny is known by his buddies around the campus as "Hook" and "Squirrel." His self-styled jitterbugging is surpassed only by his hook shot!

Besides Basketball

Besides the basketball court or the field house, the latter of which is his residence, or at Mrs. Burks where he gets his home-cooked meals, in the evenings you can usually find him in the library (somewhere near the newspaper rack) studying a little red book entitled "Brief Spanish Review Grammar." Johnny says this is the second copy of the book he's bought. He says he wore out the first one.

"I think the football team did a good job down in New Orleans," he said. Then when he was asked what he thought of the political situation in his home state, Johnny grinned and said in his typical Georgia drawl, "I think Gabe Hill oughta' run for governor of Georgia."

This Is What Student Legislature Can Do For UNC!

Tonight the Student Legislature of the University of North Carolina will consider a series of amendments to the Campus Constitution.

These amendments were written by the president of the student body in collaboration with a committee appointed by him. This committee has been meeting erratically since last summer. Few of the students on the committee have expressed any enthusiasm about the changes. The Daily Tar Heel is not enthusiastic about the amendments. We are not in favor of any amendments at the present time, because we do not believe that the Constitution has functioned long enough yet for any adequate appraisal of its defects to be made.

The DTH does not say that the Constitution is perfect. However, it should be changed only when it is proven necessary that it be changed. No such proof has yet been offered. Much talk has been heard. For instance, it is undeniable that the present system of appeal to the Student Council is in need of study. The current procedure does not appear to be working satisfactorily.

The DTH's stand on this issue is very simple: we do not think that the fact that the proper procedure has not yet been worked out is any indication that the PRINCIPLE of having an appeal court is invalid.

Constitutional changes should be approached cautiously.

Upon looking over the activities of the Student Legislature during the past four months, we find that there is little concrete which has been accomplished by that august body. Committees have been appointed, yes; but until one of them does something, we will have to say that nothing concrete has been accomplished. We were also thinking today about some of the things which the legislature SHOULD be doing in the interests of the Student Body. Here are just a few that the DTH thinks would be beneficial.

1. There should be a social room in every dormitory. This is particularly addressed to the men living in dormitories. The coeds have rather large and expensively furnished social rooms. The men in dormitories have nothing. In fact, the dormitories have many of the aspects of a well-built barn. Now the DTH could come out with a big blast about social rooms, but it would not be as impressive as a resolution from the Legislature, which we would gladly support. We need representatives directly from the students to support such a measure. We know one thing. There will never be any social rooms until such concerted effort is realized.

A brief description is in order. In the dormitory halls, a telephone is tacked to the wall. There is no booth around the phone because there is no room for it. The post offiice also is in the hall. If ONE room were set aside as a social room, both the post office and the telephone could be housed in the space for closets. A few chairs could be scattered about; and perhaps a record player.

There are currently three students to a room. There are about 18 men's dormitories. So, that would make about 54 students who would lose space if social rooms were installed. That does not mean that these 54 students would necessarily be denied coming to school. New dormitories are being built. We do not think that the comfort of several hundred students already here should be sacrificed for 54 students getting dorm space. There is no need to make things miserable for everybody.

There USED to be social rooms, but now the University apparently has gone all out to provide for every possible student that it can cram in a corner. We do not entirely sympathize with this University policy. In fact, we feel that educational standards are being sacrificed, that comfort is being sacrificed; all for the sake of packing a few more people in. We feel that the University, if it really cared to, could provide the social rooms. We feel that it will not get around to so providing until the student body gets behind the proposal 100 per cent. Therefore, we think that the Legislature, the representative body of the students, should busy itself in this particular.

2. We feel that the Legislature should lodge official protests with the Trustees and the General Assembly relative to the Umstead law which prohibits the Book Ex from selling items of over $.15 in value, unless they are school supplies and books. This is an unfair law, and appears to have been directed at the Book Exchange here and other similar enterprises which cut into the profits of various private businesses.

This is a State University. It is supported by the people of the State. The students here are largely those of North Carolina heritage. We cannot see, therefore, why the parents of the students here should have to bear the burden of higher prices brought about through discriminatory legislation such as the so-called Umstead Act. Mr. Ritchie, manager of the Book Ex, can't sell most items because of the law. And some of the ones that he does sell are sold at prices higher than some on Franklin Street.

This does not prove that the so-called Umstead Act is a benefit since it makes students have to trade at stores with lower prices. On the contrary. The Book Ex helps pay for the operation of the University. That is to say, Ritchie actually makes no profit as such. The proceeds of the Book Ex go into the general fund for operating expenses. THUS THE MONEY WHICH THE STUDENTS HERE PAY TO THE BOOK EX IS USED TO HELP IN THE FINANCING OF THE UNIVERSITY. THIS IS NECESSARY BECAUSE THE LEGISLATURE IN RALEIGH DOES NOT APPROPRIATE A SUFFICIENT AMOUNT. THEREFORE, THE PARENTS (OR THE GOVERNMENT AS THE CASE MAY BE) ARE FOOTING THE BILL.

We do not think that parents who are able to send their offspring to this University in the first place should have the added burden of contributing specially to the operation of the University. This burden should be distributed evenly among the people of the state. The student legislature should bring this to the attention of the General Assembly in the name of the Student Body.

3. There should be some immediate action on the proposed National Student Organization. The student body sent three represetnatives to Chicago during the Christmas holidays. Hearings should be held toute de suite with those representatives in attendance for the purpose of ascertaining what part we will play in the organization.

The DTH is in favor of participating, at least until something is ascertained, one way or the other, regarding the representative nature of the proposed organization. We should take the lead in the matter. The time has come to stop the ya ta ta te ya ta ta and have a little action.

4. There would certainly be no harm in sending a delegation to Raleigh for the hearings on the Medical School proposition in the Good Health program.

5. The Student Legislature should (and we hear that it is considering it) elect an Attorney-General for the purpose of prodding the various agencies of Student Government in the performance of their duties.

The Daily Tar Heel submits merely a FEW of the many things which the Legislature could do for the benefit of the students here and for the University. They cannot be accomplished without the wholehearted support of the student body, and therefore, we submit that the proposals should come from the student body—or its representative, the Student Legislature.

We are hereby promising to be more aggressive in the future on such matters as these. We welcome student comment on them. We welcome any additional suggestions along this line. We believe that student government leaders cannot adequately discharge the responsibility placed upon their shoulders by working entirely within the strict, official framework of student government. We think that the time has come to get busy, and we spank ourselves for inaction at the same time as we issue this statement to prod others to action.

Letters To The Editor

All letters must be typewritten, double-spaced, under 300 words in length, and signed by the writer. Writer's name will be withheld on request, but letters must be signed. The Daily Tar Heel reserves the right to present the letters as it wishes and to delete all matter it considers libelous.

No Moral Guilt

To The Editor:

In reference to the article by Mr. Margolis on America's use of the Atom Bomb, I wish to state that my conscience holds no such feeling of moral guilt as does that of your humanitarian columnist. I'm sure that my feeling is shared by millions of other Americans.

It seems that Mr. Margolis has not become cognizant of the fact that in warfare the principle objective is to completely defeat the enemy with a minimum loss to your country. When a nation is fighting for it's very existence against a race of people who torture, and even eat, it's prisoners all feeling of humanitarianism must be forgotten. For the War Department to have recommended any course of action, other than the one used, would have been a horrible injustice to the fighting on the islands of the Pacific, and to those who would have had to die assulting the beaches of Japan.

I, personally, would have preferred that the entire Japanese race be exterminated by any method, regardless of it's inhumanness, than to have had one American killed needlessly. I think a five minute conversation with a survivor of the "Death March" would do Mr. Margolis a great deal more good than the Christian Science Monitor, also his conscience might have some of the moral guilt lifted from it.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Drew Pearson

Washington.—Today, ex-governor O. Max Gardner of North Carolina sail for his new post as American Ambassador to the Court of St. James. A bassador Gardner has done a lot of varied and diffcult things in his life, from hoeing corn to running the United States Treasury, but this is the first tim he has tried his hand at diplomacy.

It is not, however, the first time he has visited England. Exactly 42 year ago, Max landed in England under somewhat different circumstances. He had crossed on a cattle boat as "nurse-maid" to 500 sea-sick steers. (His old friend, Bob Reynolds, later senator from North Carolina, had recruited Max as a cattle hand and then bossed the job.)

Arriving in London on the day the British were holding Memorial services for the late U. S. Ambassador John Hay, Gardner hailed a hansom cab and drove out to St. Paul's cathedral to attend the ceremony. En route he got into conversation with the cab driver who inquired regarding the identity of John Hay.

Gardner might have explained that Hay was former secretary of state and former ambassador to Great Britain. Instead, he replied:

"Hay is the man who wrote 'Little Breeches'."

LOAFING AROUND THRONE

Then the future U. S. ambassador to Great Britain recited from memory John Hay's famous poem, "Little Breeches," the story of an Indiana youngster who got lost in a snowstorm when his team stampeded and was finally found asleep in a haymow. The last stanza concludes:

"How did he get thar? Angels.
He could never have walked in that storm;
They jest scooped down and toted him
To whar it was safe and warm.
And I think that saving a little child,
And fotching him to his own,
Is a darned sight better business
Than loafing around the throne."

Little did the 23-year-old Gardner dream, as he recited "Little Breeches" to that London hansom driver, that 42 years later he was to be selected, as he now describes it, to "loaf around the throne."

The fact that Ambassador Gardner has the sense of humor to tell this story on himself, however, indicates that he will come close to being another John Hay at the Court of St. James.

Born in the same general backbone part of the nation as John Hay, Ambassador Gardner probably would prefer to sit on his front porch at Shelby, N. C. in the old rocking chair given him by the Negroes of the town 35 years ago when they contributed 20 cents each to buy him a wedding present. Or he would prefer working on his farm or supervising the school he has endowed in western North Carolina.

Max Gardner, however, will do a great job. When the luxury liner SS America docks with him aboard, the white-spatted British diplomats who meet him will not know that the first time he touched the soil of England was from a cattle boat. And when he talks to Prime Ministers and potentates on Anglo-American problems, they won't know that his favorite lecture topic at the University of North Carolina was on the science of picking fertilizer for corn and tobacco.

They won't know this. But Max won't hesitate to tell them.

For the new Ambassador is proud of his background. And while he already has received 2,600 applications from American society matrons asking that their daughters be presented at the Court of St. James, it is a 100-to-1 bet that Max will get a more fun entertaining old friend from North Carolina than "loafing around the throne."

What Do YOU Say?

Today's Question

Do you think Carolina students show good sportsmanship at local athletic contests?

Answers

The overall picture isn't alarming but at several recent basketball games the sportsmanship shown by a great many enthusiastic Carolina fans has been deplorable. At times we appear to regard the opposing team as the enemy rather than as invited guests. —Dick Mottsman, Hendersonville.

No, I definitely don't. We invariably boo any decision made against us by the referees and never think that our team can make mistakes. Neither do we give our opponents the peace they deserve by remaining fairly quiet during certain plays.—Suzanne Barclay Newport News, Va.

At the events I have seen there has not been any really bad sportsmanship. Besides, I think it is often necessary to holler good and loud to root for the team.—Carlos E. Rico, Columbia, S. A.

I think they show pretty good sportsmanship except when they boo once in a while.—Richard Jewell, Sanford.

I think that Carolina students, on the whole, show good sportsmanship at local contests. They always applaud opposing players who play a good game and I believe that the hoots are more or less evidences of righteous indignation.—Herbert Hendricks, Dallas.

No. I think it is very poor sportsmanship for the students to boo the referees and the players on the opposing team. I think it shows ignorance.—Jeanne Basnight, Chapel Hill.

The current showing of bad sportsmanship at our athletic contests is undoubtedly a result of the disputed plays in the Sugar Bowl football game. We, as students and grown men and women, should endeavor to see both sides of the decisions the referees make. They can't possibly see all of the fouls committed.—Leonard Hampton, Kannapolis.

Yes. I think Carolina students are good sports at the local contests. Very few times have they shown any strong resentment to referees' decisions as to plays, and they do cheer when an opponent makes an especially good play.—Strowd Ward, Pittsboro.

What do you believe is the reason behind the lack of student interest in campus elections?

CAMPUS ORGANIZATIONS come and ago, rise and fall. One year they will be popular, and the next year they will sink into near obscurity. But there's one that, although forced out of activity because of the war, always keeps its same high place among the college student groups.

We're speaking of the Monogram club, the club made up of the lettermen from all the varsity sports here at Carolina. For years before the war, this select group held its place of high esteem and importance on the campus, but due to a lack of manpower during the war years, the club had to deactivate. However, since the cessation of hostilities, the club has been reorganized, and today it is rising back to the former level of importance it once held.

With membership probably harder to attain than in any other club on the campus, the Monogram club boasts of a roster of boys bound together with ties of mutual effort. No matter through what sport they gained admittance into the club, they all have experienced the constant grind of practice, victory and defeat, and they are all bound together by a reciprocal respect for the accomplishments of each other.

Just last Tuesday night President Jim Camp (starting wingback of the 1946 Tar Heel gridders) directed the initiation of a group of new members, those who won their letters in football and cross country last fall. Athletic Director Bob Fetzer and his assistant, Chuck Erickson, were on hand as guest speakers, and the solemn inductive program was one of significant importance to those present.

Following initiation each member signs a Monogram "code," and being a proud member of the organization and having read the document, we thought it something that every student should read and understand. It is a code of good sportsmanship and conduct which befits the non-athlete as well as the athlete in many respects. Read it, and see if you don't agree that it is a code well worth following.

The Monogram Club Code

I believe in the University, her traditions, her standards of scholarship, her devotion to sound, clean manhood.

I believe in the team. We are all for one and one for all. The failure of my teammate is my failure and his power is my power. I do not wish to be a star, but I will give all I have for the team.

I believe in the game. It challenges my courage, and tests my skill. It teaches me patience and self-control. It requires me at times to "take it on the chin" and get up with a smile, ready and eager for more. It does not tolerate wrangling or jealousies or alibis. It expects me to be fit in body and mind, and to keep fit by building sound and efficient mental and physical habits. It rewards intelligent and unwearied drive and condemns sloppiness, haphazardness, laxness, and loafing. It is a man's game, built solely for courageous, clean, and intelligent men.

I realize and assume my duty as a monogram man. The University has trained me and built its schedules counting on me. I pledge my best to stay in school, to continue participation in the game, to keep in training, to give my best, to work always for greater excellence. I will strive to be a better athlete each successive year.

I realize my personal responsibility for the attitude and the standards of the successive generations of athletes who are coming up at Carolina, for the standards of sportsmanship among all students and not just among athletes, for the good or bad repute in which the people on the outside hold Carolina athletes. As a wearer of the "N" I will at all times remember and fulfill my duties in keeping our standards and reputation high and spotless.

I want to be deserving, not asking hand-outs. I want to win my place because I am the best man, not by waiting until a better man graduates and I attain it by right of succession. I want to meet non-athletes in the classroom on even terms without thought of favors, for after all I am at college to get an education and make a man of myself. I engage in sports for the love of the game and the glory of the school, and if I have a job on the outside, I want to secure it because I am a good workman.

I believe in victory. The scoreboard is an incident. Victory is in the heart. It is born in the hard, clean fight. It is the consciousness that I have done my best.

I will fight for the University glory until the last sound of the whistle.

Signed:

The Monogram Winner.

Boxing Squad Continues Practice Sessions

Continuing workouts for their coming match with Maryland, Coach Mike Ronman's Tar Heel ring squad was very much improved with the addition of two new men in the 175 and heavyweight divisions.

Assistant Coach Farris stated that heavyweight Bill Spiegel and 175-pounder Bob Bragaw added a needed depth to the squad and he expects a great deal from both of these promising prospects. Each of these men looked impressive as they went through their preparatory workouts.

Scottmen Prep For VPI Tilt

Jayvees to Battle All-Stars Friday

Hard at work as part of their "return-to-the-victory column" campaign, the Carolina cagers ran through their paces in a long drill yesterday in preparation for their encounter with VPI tomorrow evening.

Coach Tom Scott had the seven guards on the team practicing set shots for most of the afternoon while the forwards drilled on prospective plays and follow-up shots. Drill sessions will taper off with this afternoon's practice.

The VPI quintet has a season's record of nine victories in 15 games, including one triumph and four defeats in conference competition. The tussle with Carolina will wind up a two-game excursion for the Gobblers, who take on Duke in the latter's gym this evening.

Jayvee Drill

Over in the Tin Can, Coach Lew Hayworth was grooming his junior varsity team for its clash with the Sanford American Legion quintet tomorrow evening in the preliminary contest to the Carolina-VPI game.

The jayvees will be seeking their eighth win against the Sanford five, being unbeaten in their previous seven clashes.

Duke Track Meet Two-Day Affair

Due to the extra heavy load of athletic events scheduled for Saturday, the informal track meet with Duke has been split in a two-day affair. The first half of the meet will be run off Friday and the second half Saturday.

All members of the track squad are set to take part in the competition, according to Dale Ranson, the Tar Heel mentor, who also stated that this was a preliminary to the Southern Invitational indoor games slated for March 1. This is the first time his season that the Carolina runners have been in collegiate competition.

The high jump, shot put, 330-yard run, 660-yard run, 1000-yard run, the three-fourths-mile run and the one and a half-mile run are all on deck for Friday, and then Saturday afternoon the pole vault, broad jump, 70-yard high hurdles, 60-yard dash, 70-yard low hurdles, mile relay, and medley relay will be run off.

Carolina's trackmen went through routine drills yesterday afternoon, and State College ran time trials on the Tar Heel track in the Tin Can. State is entering a team in the indoor games and was getting its first feel of the Carolina boards.

A pair of lightweight fighters Charlie Norton and Gillam, both of whom were late starters, are rapidly coming into shape and Coach Ronman is undecided as to who will start on Saturday.

Sigma Chi, SAE Score Easy Mural Cage Wins

Grads, Stacy, Chi Psi Also Triumph; Racketeers To Face Raleigh Next Week

Wide-open and high scoring cage clashes highlighted yesterday's mural play as two league leaders, Sig Chi No. 1 and SAE No. 2 turned in rousing wins.

The Sigma Chis took the measure of the previously potent Pi Lam No. 1 by a 54-9 count, while the SAE's were trouncing DKE No. 2, 63-10.

In other games, the Grads topped the Locals, 47-31; Stacy rolled over BVP No. 1, 49-30; PiKA No. 2 edged Zeta Psi No. 3, 27-21, and Chi Psi beat Kap Sig No. 1, 28-16.

In the handball tourney, Med School won from the Field House in the only match scheduled.

Badminton Tourney

Play in the badminton tournament was continued last night, as the field began to narrow in preparation for the final weeks of play.

Carolina's top badminton players will be pitted against Raleigh's aces next Wednesday night in what is expected to be one of the top matches of the season. Further news on the contest will be supplied by the mural department at the close of the week.

Exhibition Matches With W. and L. Set

Coach Chuck Quinlan of the undefeated Tar Heel wrestling team sent his charges through next to their last heavy workout yesterday afternoon before the scheduled meet here Saturday afternoon with Washington and Lee.

There will be a total of something like 11 matches run off in all with Washington and Lee, with exhibition bouts coming more than likely in the 136, 175 and 165 pound divisions.

Yesterday Coaches Quinlan and Hobie McKeever worked the first stringers for about 15 minutes apiece, sending them against new men every six minutes. Condition has been stressed all week, and indications are that it may play a major role in the match with the Generals from W. and L. Saturday.

Carolina's grapplers will be seeking their fourth dual meet win in a row, and after Washington and Lee they will have four more meets before the Southern conference tournament, which is to be held in Lexington, Va., March 7 and 8.

Locals Suffer Second Defeat

Ficklen, Crone Cop Firsts for Carolina

(Special to the Daily Tar Heel)

Annapolis, Feb. 5—A strong Navy tank squad inflicted a 50-25 setback to North Carolina's swimmers here today in a dual meet that was much closer than the score indicated.

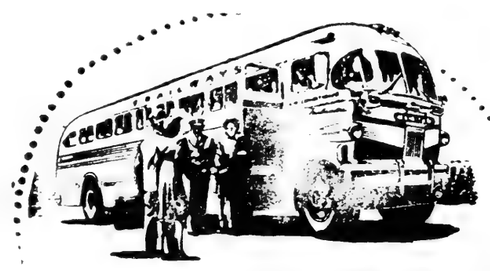
It was the Blue Dolphins' second defeat of the season and the second year in a row that the Middies have defeated the boys from Chapel Hill.

Coach Dick Jamerson's crew just missed getting off to a good start when Jesse Greenbaum lost by inches in the 50 yard free style and in the following event when the Carolinians took the free-style relay only to be disqualified on a point of technicality.

Carolina Stars

From then on the Dolphins never seemed to be able to get back into the meet, notwithstanding the efforts of mermen Buddy Crone, Warren Ficklen, Norman Sper and Greenbaum, the Carolina stars.

Crone and Sper took first and second in the diving with the latter also adding a second in the 150-yard backstroke. Ficklen captured the top honors in the 220 yard free-style, while Greenbaum was contributing seconds in the 50 and 100-yard free-style.



Weekend Events

The mermen will return home today to begin preparations for a rather hectic weekend, with meets scheduled for both Saturday afternoon and evening.

Tennessee will be the first opponent of the Dolphins on the big day, and the Volunteers are reported to be coming east loaded to the gills. The evening affair will be the Carolina AAU event in Raleigh.

BOXING PICTURES

The Yackety Yack pictures of the boxing team will be taken this afternoon at 4:30 o'clock in the boxing room. All members of the ring squad are asked to be in the boxing room dressed at 4:15 o'clock in preparation for the picture taking.

Prospective Members Of Naval Reserve Unit Asked to Contact Few

University of North Carolina students who are planning to become associated with Durham's Naval Reserve Unit are requested by Lt. Randolph Few, Sixth Naval District Commandant's representative in Durham, to contact him as soon as possible in his offices at Room 262, Postoffice building, Durham.

Veterans of all branches of the service are eligible for the Naval Reserve, including the Army, Marine Corps, Coast Guard, and Merchant Marine, as well as the Navy. Also eligible are non-veterans in the age groups of 17-18½ and 30-40.

"I know of no better way for North Carolina students to pick up a little extra change," Lt. Few said. "There are four meetings each month and the pay for each of these meetings runs from $2.50 per drill for an apprentice seaman to $5.50 a drill for a chief petty officer. Thus, a man can make from $10 to $22 per month by spending a couple hours with the Navy each Monday night."

Weekly meetings are being held at the Carr Junior High school in Durham.

French Club Meeting Will Be Held Tonight

"Le Cercle Francais" will meet tonight in the main lounge of Graham Memorial at 7:30 for a short business meeting to be followed by games including bridge and chess. Mr. E. W. Brockman of the French department, will be at the piano. Anyone who is interested in speaking French is urged to attend.

world. The entire goal of the WSSF has been set at $2,000,000 for all the countries associated with the fund, although it has been estimated that $5,000,000 is needed to complete work which has been tentatively planned for the coming year. The goal of $1,000,000 for the United States has been set by WSSF officials who feel that, in material means, at least, American students are the best able to help.

Money contributed to the fund will go directly to the needy countries in Europe and Asia. A great number of students on both these continents sometimes do not have as much food in a day as Americans have for breakfast. They work eight hours a day and go to school at night. Their equipment is meager, plants have been partially or wholly destroyed, textbooks are unobtainable, pencils, paper and other essentials for classroom work are almost unheard of, students are living in crowded railroad stations, under bridges and in other dirty, unsanitary places.

This money will help send food to emergency kitchens and canteens, it will help set up medical centers for tubercular students and help buy medicine for the sick, it will help build living quarters and buy beds and clothes.

As Earle Page told the WSSF solicitors for the University last week, "We must not only give, but give sacrificially."

Hannegan Says Party Wishes Truman to Run

Truman Consulted Prior to Statement

Washington, Feb. 6—(UP)— The national spokesman for the Democrats has announced formally that they want President Truman to run again in 1948. The announcement by National Democratic Chairman Bob Hannegan came dramatically and without advance warning at the end of a formal speech in New York hailing advancements in the postal service.

The Postmaster General conferred with Mr. Truman before going to the postal employees' dinner. But the White House says the president was not consulted in a way on the surprise political announcement.

However, Democratic leaders greeted Hannegan's announcement with a great deal of enthusiasm. House Minority Leader Rayburn comments that he has already said 100 times that President Truman will be the Democratic nominee for 1948.

Most Republican leaders have nothing to say on the boom for Mr. Truman. But Chairman Clarence Brown of the Republican National Executive committee quipped: — "Fortunately, the final decision will rest with the people in November, 1948."

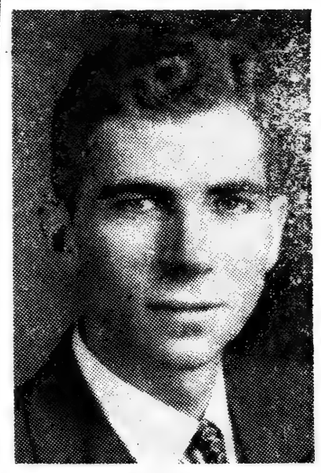
Fee Structure Amendment Defeated By Legislature in Close Balloting

Dorsett Fights For Fee Structure Bill

By Bookie Jabine

Split down the middle like an axe-hewn log, the Student Legislature last night argued loud and long over a constitutional amendment to change the fee structure, finally spurning it by a vote of 20-18.

Meeting in the Di hall before an unusually large turnout, the assembly witnessed a drawn-out argument between Dewey Dorsett, who last week had recommended that student fees be reduced from $20 to $12, and Jimmy Wallace, who defended the original sum.



Dorsett Explains

At the request of numerous legislators, Dorsett explained how the figure of $12 was reached. Said the student body president, "It is a logical figure, that will satisfy both the students and the administration."

Under the proposed amendment, the Graham Memorial fee would be a separate levy. This was the chief bone of contention in the debate.

Dorsett defended the new fee structure, saying that it was not a "helter-skelter figure picked out of the sky, but one that will be ample to meet the students needs."

Referring to the constitutional figure of $20, the chief executive explained, "It's not that easy, we've got to work with the administration."

DEWEY DORSETT

Wallace Speaks

Then Jimmy Wallace jumped to his feet, requesting that Dorsett answer "a few questions."

Wallace asked, "Do the publications (who get part of the assigned fees) object to the twenty dollar sum?"

Bill Woestendiek, Editor of the Daily Tar Heel, said, "The existing publications group does not object."

Wallace questioned the reason for Graham Memorial's being included in a separate fund under the amendment. Dorsett answered, "Graham Memorial must have a guarantee of a separate income."

With legislators popping up like jumping beans, Bob Stockton was recognized by the chair and called for the assembly "to consider the practical side of the fee structure."

"If the administration is opposed to a $20 fee," Stockton reiterated, "Why not be practical and amend it?"

Tempers Rise

With tempers and anticipation reaching a fever pitch, Tom Eller rose and defended Wallace's stand on the present fee. Said Eller, "The $20 fee is the maximum, it can be cut. What the administration will do is confusing."

The legislature passed a resolution that the following note be sent to the family of the late O. Max Gardner:

"On behalf of the student body of the University of North Carolina it is with deepest regret that we extend our most heartfelt sympathy over the untimely passing of our great alumnus, friend, and statesman, Governor Gardner.

"We are not without full realization of the service which he has rendered for our University, for the State of North Carolina, and for the country in which we live.

"His name will long live in honor and esteem among his fellow countrymen, and will always be associated with those things which we cherish in our American way of life.

"J. Dewey Dorsett,
"Charles E. Warren,
"Johnny Jones."

Increased Funds for Two Years Requested of General Assembly

By United Press

University President Frank Graham appeared before the Appropriations Committee of the General Assembly this afternoon to ask for more money for the next two-year fiscal period.

The Budget Appropriation bill does not give the University all it wants and what Graham says it can use. The University President re-asserted the request made last fall. But—as he said—he "left it to the wisdom of the Appropriations Committee to do the best it can in relation to all the other state agencies."

Return on Investment

Graham did say the State could get a return on its investment by pouring more money into the Greater University. He pointed out that during the war the Advisory Budget Commission spent 200-thousand dollars at State college to house a Naval Diesel Training School. In return, he said, the State received—free of charge—more than two and a half million dollars worth of diesel equipment and "the finest diesel engineering school in the world."

Chancellor Robert House at Chapel Hill said the University now hopes to continue two special research projects turned down by the Advisory Budget Commission. One would provide nuclear research and the other would establish a Marine Fisheries Research Laboratory at Morehead City. House said private funds and profits were expected to help to get this work underway.

Dr. Frank Graham, president of the Greater University of North Carolina, yesterday asked the appropriations committee of the General Assembly for more money for the University to cover the next two-year fiscal period.

O. Max Gardner Dies Shortly Before Trip

Famed Alumnus Suffers Attack Few Hours Before Sailing to Take Diplomatic Post

O. Max Gardner, United States ambassador to Great Britain and famed alumnus of the University, died at the age of 64 yesterday, a few hours before he was scheduled to sail for London.

Gardner, who has held the posts of governor of North Carolina and U. S. Undersecretary of the Treasury, visited the University last November to see the Carolina-Duke game. He had played for Carolina himself, back in 1906 as the captain of the Tar Heel eleven.

Born in Shelby

The noted Shelby-born statesman died of coronary thrombosis on the eve of what President Truman spoke of as "a career of distinction and further usefulness in the field of diplomacy."

As flags were flown in Raleigh at half mast yesterday, a blanket of gloom was cast over the General Assembly, and all branches of the state and national government acutely felt the loss of one of America's greatest statesmen.

Announcement by Ross

Gardner's death was first announced by presidential secretary Charles G. Ross, who stated that the President was "deeply grieved and shocked."

"I have lost a loyal and devoted personal friend, and the country has lost a great American," Truman said in a statement.

New Umstead Bill Would Consolidate Two Police Forces

Raleigh, Feb. 6—A bill virtually consolidating the Chapel Hill and Carrboro police departments and extending their jurisdictional throughout Chapel Hill townsnip was introduced before the State Legislature today.

Submitted by Rep. John Umstead of Orange county, the measure would grant Chapel Hill and Carrboro officers full authority in both towns.

Umstead's bill also specifies "the same jurisdiction and power. . .in Chapel Hill township" as the officers now exercise within the corporate limits. In addition the measure confers the full authority of the county sheriff on the two departments within the township.

A second bill introduced yesterday by Umstead would transfer all jury trials from Chapel Hill recorder's court to Orange county superior court in Hillsboro. Under the provisions of the bill defendants requesting jury trials would be given hearings in the Chapel Hill courts to determine if "probable cause" for prosecution exists. If probable cause is found, defendants would be bound over to the superior court as in felony cases.

Both bills are to become effective on passage by the General Assembly.

SHOCKING!

Hannah Beard, secretary to University Business Manager C. E. Teague, has gone on a stand-up strike against the shocking conditions existing in her office.

An electric typewriter has charged her metal desk and chair with so much electricity that Hannah is afraid to sit down.

PARENTS AND CHILDREN DANCE

Munster, Ind.—(UP)—A "teenage-middleage" dancing session has been introduced in the town's Community hall. Parents and their offspring dance to juke box recordings once a month under police department sponsorship.

Students May Apply For Summer Conference

Carolina students interested in attending the summer institute of the Students International union to be held at Salisbury, Conn., July 16 to August 27, are asked to contact Dean Fred Weaver in South building.

This conference on international affairs will be under the direction of Dr. J. Martin Klotsche of State Teachers college of Wisconsin, Dr. William Y. Elliott of Harvard university and Dr. Wing Tsit Chan of Dartmouth college. The total cost for the institute will be $250 but scholarships can be arranged for students in insufficient funds.

YWCA Council Meets For Indoctrination

The YWCA Junior Council will meet this evening at 7:00 o'clock in the Grail Room at Graham Memorial. The outgoing committee chairmen, who have served since last April, will be present to tell the incoming officers about the program they have planned this year and to make suggestions for additional points of emphasis for next year's program.

WSSF Drive Thermometers To Be Set-Up

The World Student Service fund drive for Duke university is scheduled to begin next Monday the same day the UNC drive opens.

According to Gay Morenus, co-chairman for the UNC campaign, the Duke goal has been set at $5,000, $500 less than the Carolina goal. The campaign is to continue for the full week and twin thermometers are to be set up somewhere on Duke campus to record the contributions of the two schools. Carolina, also, will have twin record thermometers, to be placed just outside the YMCA.

Committee Members

Members of the campaign committee for the Carolina campus, include Gay Morenus and Walt Stuart, co-chairmen; Charlie Britt and Ben Perlmutter, men's dormitories, Fran Golden, women students; Julia Ross, publicity; Jack Johnson, treasurer; Bill Woestendiek; Dean Fred Weaver and Dr. Helmut Kuhn, faculty; Dave Andrews and Anne Rogers, YMCA booth; Jesse Wilson, Mrs. Betty Rose Dowden and Bill Poteat.

Local Buying Club Will Meet Monday To Hold Election

The Chapel Hill Buying club's second winter quarter meeting set next Monday evening at 7:45 in 103 Bingham hall. Co-op officials announced yesterday that in addition to accepting grocery orders at that time there will also be an election of a new board of directors.

Chairman Tom McDade emphasized that the election would take only a few minutes time as printed ballots have been prepared.

"With our new grocery order blanks we can promise that even with the election the meeting will not take nearly as long as previous ones," said McDade.

Co-op officials announced previously that the organization is prepared at Monday's meeting to accept orders for canned goods in any multiple of three rather than in case lots as was the case at the January meeting.

Blood Needed!

Anyone who has blood type AB is urged to call Bill Tillman at 9481 between 9 and 12 o'clock this morning. His mother needs the rare blood type immediately at Greensboro Hospital and none can be found in this vicinity.

Veterans who are acquainted with their blood types are especially asked to check to see if they have type AB to help out in this emergency.

Carolinians to Play for Veterans' Dance

The band, which made its appearance on campus last year, has played for many dances here and in other towns. Jimmy Marshall fronts the band with his clarinet, Dave Lineberger takes care of the ballads and Chick Burroughs sings an occasional blues number from his spot behind the piano.

A Great Loss

The campus and the nation were saddened yesterday by the news that O. Max Gardner, one of North Carolina's most illustrious sons and one of the world's leading citizens, had died suddenly on the threshhold of his latest diplomatic venture.

An alumnus of the University who went on to become governor of the state and thence to Washington where he became Undersecretary of the Treasury, Gardner was recently appointed ambassador to Britain.

Always active in political and diplomatic affairs and vitally interested in the growth and progress of North Carolina, Gardner was in Chapel Hill this past fall for the Carolina-Duke game. At that time, he cheerfully joked about remaining at Chapel Hill and recalled his days on the Tar Heel football team.

In the words of Governor Cherry, "Gardner has long reflected credit on the state that produced him. We can ill afford to lose such leaders in a day and age when unselfish public service is so acutely needed."

The state, nation, and world has indeed suffered a great loss. On behalf of the student body of the University the Daily Tar Heel wants to express sincere regret at the death of one of the state's most brilliant native sons.

Time Has Come for Students To Shoulder Responsibilities

By Betty Anne Green

There was a time when students could sit back in detached intellectual circles and discuss the international affairs of the world. The majority, however, never bothered themselves with a consideration of anything which did not directly and immediately concern them. The time for change has come.

The number of persons whom the affairs of other nations do not affect is becoming increasingly smaller, as the world itself becomes smaller. The very oceans have become "back fences" of a world community in which all people are inhabitants. Modern airplanes, and highly developed means of communication have thrown people together in a fashion that demands that they co-operate and understand or perish in senseless slaughter.

It has become a truism that the scientists who unlocked the atomic bomb secret confronted our society with a choice between integration and disintegration. What is now urgently required is insurance that the new tools of science will be used boldly and constructively to link mankind ina harmonious relationship.

"Nothing can distort the true picture of conditions and events in this world more than to regard one's own country as the center of the universe and to view all things solely in their relationship to this fixed point." The universal failures should be treated from the approach of religion, economics, and politics.

The solution for bringing reason out of this confused state is in the form of a challenge to the people to wage this stupendous struggle and involve themselves in the "science of human relationship." Doing this they can prove that world government is not merely an "ultimate goal" but an immediate necessity. It should not be disregarded that "what two thousand million men and women really want on this earth is enough food, better housing and clothing, medical care and education, more enjoyment of culture and a little leisure." With these as the real goals and ultimate needs of human society, it is not understandable that civilized people should take a detached attitude toward a world of need in which they are so immediately involved.

As atomic energy is released by what is called a chain reaction, so must the force of ideas of all the peoples of all the world explode in the form of a chain reaction and free mankind from political enslavement to economic aggressors.

International intercourse no longer lies wholly within the province of the foreign offices. Foreign policy is becoming increasingly the personal concern of the humblest citizen. Students filling the crowded class rooms should take upon themselves a responsibility more serious than they readily imagine. This is the responsibility of understanding, of knowing, and of learning. Perhaps it is through students that understanding and learning must reach the world.

It is imperative that understanding reach beyond the few to the many, lest the many, through ignorance, undo the labors of the few. Undoubtedly, students at Carolina and those of Europe and Asia share a common responsibility—that of challenging a world to progress with a knowledge of human aims in order that the world's people might truly inherit the earth.

The Editorial Cycle....

So Much Could Be Done Were Time Not Wasted Like This

By Sam Daniels

The editorial cycle is much too difficult a concept to be explained in words, but I believe that the following sequence of material will illustrate the cycle which appears so often on the second page of the DTH.

STUDENT CRIMES

By Percival Prudence

Students at UNC are rapidly turning into gangsters and morally decrepit morons. Flagrant violations of necessary rules and regulations occur everyday.

Yesterday while walking to the library, I saw one of our uncouth hoodlum thugs jump the wire at the edge of the walk and brazenly walk on the grass with complete disregard for the rules of the Campus Code. Students who can't obey these simple rules should be expelled; they are an insult to our glorious Institution, and they will certainly be a liability on the ledger of society.

Percival is a Prude

Editor of the DTH,

In yesterday's issue of the DTH a completely inhumane and prudish article was written by Percival Prudence. I will be the first to admit that a crime was committed, but I don't feel that the moral fortitude of students should be questioned because of the actions of one man. I also feel that Percy has made a mountain out of a molehill.

In law there is such a thing as justifiable homicide and by the same reasoning the student committing the crime might have had a very good reason for walking on the grass. He might be suffering from claustrophobia and been afraid of the crowd on the sidewalk; he might have been a vegetarian and felt that grass eating was in order.

In short I feel that Percival is wrong since he bases the character of the entire student body on the action of one man; he makes the crime seem greater than it actually is; and he fails to see that the poor student might have had a reason for walking on the grass—the walks might have been muddy and we are all getting tired of the use of tradition (muddy walks) by the Zoo department to experiment in order to determine how long it will take students to grow webbed-feet.

Yours sincerely,
Hal A. Tosis

Zoo Prof Denies Rumor

Mr. Editor,

I am Dr. Phill Phylum, research associate of the Zoology department. For the past several years I have been conducting experiments with the aves anatidae, known to some people as "ducks." I have been especially interested in the webbed-footed characteristics of my avian friends. Wild accusations have been made that I have been conducting experiments with homo sapiens, man, in an attempt to grow the webbed-feet that are characteristic of the anatidae. This misconstrual of information is the result of my breeding anatidae with extra-large webbed-feet. On rainy days I have conducted experiments on the muddy paths with my webbed-footed friends. At times these animals resemble wet and bedraggled Carolina students. This erroneous identification of my specimens as Carolina students has caused the widespread misunderstanding.

Yours truly,
Dr. Phill Phylum

NOTICE

There will be a debate in the Phielectic Senate at 7:30 tonight so that the participants may argue this important issue.

Playmakers Review....

Two Superior Plays Feature Experimental Productions

The 114th series of Experimental Productions of New Plays. Directed and staged by students in the University courese in Dramatic Art. Written by students in the University course in Playwriting. Playmakers Theatre February 5, 6. Under the general supervision of Kai Jurgensen, Lynn Gault and Irene Smart.

By R. H. Hamilton

Two out of three is a good percentage in any league. And the 114th bill of Playmaker experimentals presented to the campus two productions which were superior student plays. Robert Schenkkan's "Black Piet" was decidedly the best all-around play of the evening. Sam Hirsch's "Subway Rhapsody" was good entertainment and a unique approach to a rather worn theme which provided a good number of laughs and snickers. Unfortunately, Charles Brockman's "To Them in Darkness" couldn't quite stand the pace of the evening and ran a poor third to the aforementioned plays.

Appearing first on the bill "To Them in Darkness" was the story of the effect of a singularly overwhelming tragic shock on a stoic and strong character. As a character study it has its good points but as a play it falls dangerously close to the trite category. Moving too slowly, even for the avowed purpose of setting the mood, the play soon becomes boring as two people sit and play "now I say a line;" "now you say a line," through ten minutes of non-action.

The mood and character is good, but the play is ordinary, slow, and contrived. Mary Jo Cain was convincing in the lead as "Anna Steigel," and she was well supported by Mac Shaw as her son "Paul" and Quentin Brown as "Dr. Ross." Hannah Davis and Reggie Kachigian completed the cast, which was ably directed by Eleanor Ringer amid sets by Arthur Solomon.

"Black Piet," a story of brave Boers in their fight for the freedom of Africa was gripping, intense and exceedingly well written. The play was convincing and the dialog sounded authentic. Unquestionably, the performance was helped by Sam Hirsch's portrayal in the title role. Mr. Hirsch gave a moving performance and maintained proper balance between realism and histrionic flourishes which can best be described as "ham."

Josephine Sharkey as "Henriette" and Robert Gutnecht as "Ryk" displayed admirable talents which helped to make the show the best of the evening's bill. Miscast Lillian Prince failed to live up to her usually able performances. Winford Logan's direction did much to keep the show moving and well-paced. Gordon Bennett's set and John Wills' lighting caught the milieu of the play. The remainder of the cast included Edsel Hughes, Porter Van Zandt, Don Vincent, Frederick Johnson, Richard Katzen, Robert Eberle and Frank Echols.

Climaxing the Experimentals was "Subway Rhapsody" a fantasy of the citizens who make their home in the "City of Homes and Churches" Brooklyn—U.S.A. Not as well written as Mr. Hirsch's previous plays "Subway Rhapsody" was ably assisted by an unusually fine cast which evoked the best audience reaction of the evening.

Gloria Gunn as "Sophie the Subway" was authentic and animatedly dumb enough to be William Bendix's Flatbush Avenue femme fatale. Barbara Bramble's voice quality and ability impressed me in her portrayal of "Honey, a soldier's wife." Max Paul was superior as "Morris," as was Gordon Bennett as a "Drunk." Sidney Shertzer's interpretation of a jazz musician was top-rate. Arnold Schulman, Eileen Smith, Mary Wolfowitz, Henrietta Cooper and Arthur Solomon completed the list of convincing performers. The direction of Carlson Thomas was well planned and authoritative. James Riley's set was far and away the best of the evening. Reminiscent of the set in "On the Town," Riley's subway made the Brooklynites in the audience feel right at home.

Accentuating the Positive....

Temperance Movement Will Never Solve Liquor Issue

By Eddie Allen

It is difficult to imagine two groups more distantly situated in the social and moral strata than the clergy and the bootleggers, yet with all respect to the men of God it is all too often that the two find themselves nudging elbows in common goal if not in common ideals.

The liquor issue, that pyrotechnic, multi-faceted battle which perennially of we speak. It is an ancient, sarcastic, but nevertheless partly true wheeze reverberates from the pulpit and rostrum alike, is the meeting ground wherethat anytime a community votes "dry" one can thank the men of the church and the representatives of illicit booze.

There is nothing particularly unique about even a state-wide temperance movement, such as the one an organization known as the Allied Church League for the Abolition of Alcohol sought to give impetus in Raleigh last week. Even the backers of the nobly-conceived crusade admitted that they have but little chance of getting their bill for a statewide referendum out of the legislature committee.

The churchmen, backed by Rep. Mull of Cleveland, who 40 years ago was instrumental in North Carolina's first "bone dry" legislation, believe that by putting the issue up to the people the Demon Rum would again be wiped—legally, that is— from the state.

The fact which these gentlemen—like so many others before them—lose sight of is that by merely banning the sale of alcohol the problem is not solved but accentuated. Thus has ended and will end any attempt to legislate personal morals. The preachers' means of combatting what—in excess—is a true evil might more advantageously be limited to the true Book as differentiated from the books of law.

At present North Carolina is legally but only technically dry west of Durham. It is paradoxical but logical that in the western counties liquor is far more a community problem than in the eastern counties where there is not the added incentive of eluding the authorities. In Charlotte, a prime example, where liquor traffic flourishes almost in open defiance of the law, there is quite likely more imbibing to excess than in the areas where there are alcohol beverage control stores.

The answer may well be a statewide referendum, but not on the issue of temperance alone. Control, through extension of legal stores with strict state supervision, along with an all-out crackdown on bootleggers who owe their living to the dry laws, is considered by many to be the most logical panacea to a problem which always will be with us. It will always be with us, and therefore it must be recognized and so treated.

Phantoms Seek Loop Win Against VPI Tonight

SPORT SPINS - -

with

IRWIN SMALLWOOD

THINGS WILL BE popping and how in Carolina sports circles this weekend, but out of all the events on deck, the basketball game tomorrow night with Davidson promises to draw more attention than any of the rest. That's because it will be a big conference test for the White Phantoms, who are currently tied with Davidson and Richmond in loop competition.

Tonight the Scottmen battle an underdog VPI five in another conference encounter, and a double win today and tomorrow would send the Tar Heels high in the conference ratings.

Getting back to that Davidson skirmish slated for Woollen gym Saturday night, the Phants will be up against the surprise team of the conference. All along the Wildcats have been rated a good chance to do some loop damage, and although they had bad luck in the beginning, the Davidsonians dumped highly-touted South Carolina twice last week. It was the same South Carolina team that Carolina had to battle into the final minute to defeat.

Right now the Davidson quint would like nothing better than to knock the Phantoms back on their heels, and the visitors tomorrow night will be trying hard to do just that—thinking especially of the shellackings they have suffered at the hands of the Tar Heels during the past two seasons. (The Phantoms set a scoring record in beating the Wildcats 89-20 here year before last.)

Davidson is coached by veteran Norman Shepard, the man who built quite a few fine Davidson teams before the war, and this season he again shows signs of having a good team in the making. Just as a note in passing, Coach Shepard is the brother of Bo Shepard, the former Carolina coach who is now a member of the physical education staff. The Wildcat mentor is also a member of the NCAA basketball committee, representing this district.

Duke and State are the teams that have turned back the 'Cats in conference play, and neither team had an easy time in doing it. Therefore, it all adds up to one of the best games of the year for the Phantoms here in Woollen gym.

WE HAVE BEEN approached of late on the subject of whether Carolina will field a lacrosse team this spring, and those talking to us about it have been very much in favor of having the sport back on the spring agenda again this season. Duke plans to field a team again—with Ed Koffenberger the star—and promoters of the game here seem to think that the Tar Heels ought to be represented in lacrosse circles come spring.

Most of the equipment necessary is already on hand, and if the added expense of adding the sport to the program isn't too great, we believe it would be a commendable move on the part of the athletic department to revive the game. It would provide more chance for more students to get a taste of some kind of varsity sports competition.

While on the subject of spring sports, it is worthy of note that several of them will be going before too many more weeks. Coach Bunn Hearn of the baseballers is expected in Chapel Hill today or tomorrow to take care of some final plans for the diamond schedule, and Coach Chuck Erickson has announced that golf plans will be forthcoming shortly. Coach John Kenfield, the Carolina tennis tutor, also has been getting his program ready to start functioning.

JUST SPORTS. The NYU basketball team has been making quite a trip of this week's southern jaunt. The Violets, after playing Carolina here Monday night, have been spending their time in Durham, working out in the Duke gym and enjoying themselves in general. They concluded their stay in the sunny (?) south last night by meeting the potent State Red Terrors in Raleigh. . . Coach Dick Jamerson's swimmers lost a tough battle to Navy Wednesday. Several of the events were won by virtually inches, knocking the Blue Dolphins out of points that could have easily sent the meet soaring in the other direction. It put Navy out in front in the Carolina series, 4-3. . . Watch the Carolina jayvee basketballers tonight as they return to action after about a week's layoff. . . After this weekend's game, Carolina fans will have a chance to see the Tar Heels in action only two more time in Woollen gym.

The remaining games are with Duke (Tuesday) and Georgia Tech (Friday).

Tracksters Face Duke This Afternoon

Scottmen Seek Tenth Triumph

Local Five Favored Over Gobbler Team

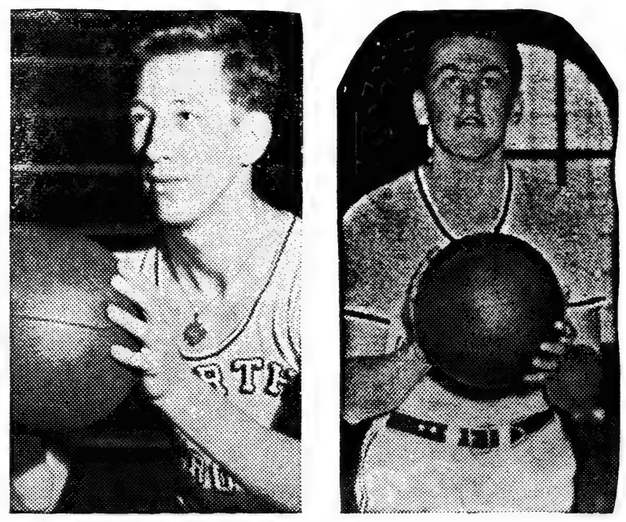
By Bob Goldwater

Carolina's White Phantoms will seek to put an end to a two-game losing streak this evening in Woollen gym when they take on VPI in a Southern conference clash slated for an 8 o'clock jump.

Gunning for their fourth loop victory and tenth of the campaign, the Phants are favored to topple the Gobblers and take over undisputed possession of fifth place, a position for which they are currently deadlocked with Davidson and Richmond. Coach Tom Scott's charges have dropped two loop encounters.

Opening in their usual starting berths will be the regular quintet of Bob Paxton and Jim Hamilton at the forward posts, Johnny Dillon at center, and Norm Kohler and Jim White in the guard slots. On hand for substitute assignments will be Taylor Thorne, Lew Hayworth, Sherman Nearman, Roger Scholbe, Dick Hartley, Coy Carson, Freddy Ryan, Vic Seixas and King Cole.

Top Scorers



Hamilton leads the Scottmen in conference scoring with a five-game total of 68 points, with Dillon in the runner-up spot with 53 tallies.

VPI has a 9-6 record so far this season, excluding the contest with Duke last night. In loop play, the Gobblers have one victory and four losses, their lone win being a 53-52 decision over VMI. Directed by Coach George Proctor, the visitors average slightly better than six feet, with the tallest starter being Bob Dickson, six-foot, seven-inch center.

VPI Starters

The rest of the Gobblers' starting lineup will have Joe Ruddell and Hank Caravati at forwards and Jack Chambers and Charlie Harris at the guards. Reserves include Bill Andrews, Jim Ashburner and Crennie Reed.

The local cagers follow up their appearance tonight with another circuit clash tomorrow, this one against Davidson's high-riding quintet.

Jayvee Quintet Encounters Sanford All Stars Tonight

Hayworth Team Seeks Eighth Straight Win Against Legion Cagers in Return Contest

By Gil McLeod

Carolina's jayvee cagers held final workouts yesterday in preparation for tonight's preliminary game with the Sanford American Legion All Stars, starting at 6:15 o'clock in Woollen gym.

It will be the second encounter between the two teams, the Hayworthmen having won the first game, 43-38. The Carolina team will be after its eighth straight win.

The starting lineup for the unbeaten Jayvees will place Fred Swartzburg and Dan Nyimicz at the forward posts, Junie Bailey at center, and Ed Wagner and Harvey Weinstein at the guard positions. Backing them will be Buster Stevenson, Jack Fitch, Bill von Bramer, John Wilson, Dave Mackie, Marks Nathan, Bill Henson, and Cam Rodman.

Jayvee Statistics

Looking back over the Jayvees' unblemished record, the statistics show that they have amassed a total of 348 points, while their opponents have tallied 204.

Individual scoring honors go to Junie Bailey, who has racked up a total of 56 points in the seven jayvee wins. Running second is Ed Wagner, with 43 points, while Fred Swartzburg is in the third slot with 33. Dan Nyimicz, who missed one of the games, is right behind Swartzburg with a total of 31 points.

Carolina-Tennessee Tank Meet Cancelled At Request of Vols

The Carolina-Tennessee swimming meet scheduled for Saturday afternoon has been cancelled at the request of the Vols due to illness and bad travelling conditions, it was announced late last night.

Coach Jamerson said that the Carolina swimmers turned in the best times of the season against Navy in their meet Wednesday. McCoy excelled on the backstroke with Breeden, Cook, and Hexner showing up well in the breast-stroke. Even though the relay team was disqualified their time was very encouraging for future meets.

All members of the squad will compete in the AAU meet to be held in Raleigh Saturday night.

Jamerson said, "We still are not ready for our next big objective, the North Carolina State meet which will virtually determine the conference dual meet title. The actual team championship will be determined on March 7-8 at the 14th Annual Southern conference meet. A three way battle looms between Duke, State and Carolina at the present time."

Bixler Succeeds Kerr As Colgate Head Coach

Columbus, Ohio, Feb. 6—(UP)—The East cornered one of the nation's top collegiate coaches today when Paul Bixler resigned at Ohio State University to accept a head coaching job at Colgate University.

Bixler replaces Andy Kerr who retires June 30, after 18 years as head coach of the Red Riders.

Wes Fesler, head coach at Pittsburgh, is being mentioned as a possible successor to Bixler at Ohio State but Buckeye officials have offered no confirmation to this report.

Event Begins Indoor Season

Meet Gets Underway In Tin Can at 3:30

By Morty Schaap

The Tar Heel tracksters open their indoor campaign this afternoon, meeting Duke in an informal meet in the Tin Can at 3:30 o'clock.

All of the individual circular events will be run this afternoon, plus the shot put and high jump. The rest of the events will be run off starting at 2:30 tomorrow.

The feature of today's program will be the 1000 yard run at 4:30, pitting Duke's Roger Neighborgal against Jimmy Miller, Carolina's leading distance man.

Quarter-Mile Star

Don Nelson, past conference 440 champion, will toe the mark for the men of Ranson in the 330 yard run. Julian Mackenzie and Sam Magill will carry the load in the 3-4 mile run with Jack Milne and Alvin Smith leading the entries in the 1 1-2 mile race. The field in the 660 is paced by Mark Burnham and Tommy Turner.

The field events have Bob Seligman, Jim Hendricks, Chunk Simmons and Jack Ross in the shot put. Joe Corpening and Billy Joyner are top entrants in the high jump.

Fencing Leaders Plan Meeting Next Tuesday

All students interested in fencing are requested to meet with instructors Roberto Baessa and John Elmendorf next Tuesday afternoon at 4 o'clock in 304 Woollen gym, the Physical Education department announced yesterday.

Dean O. K. Cornwell, of the Psysical Education department, has obtained 20 sets of fencing eqiupment, including masks and blades, and fencing instruction will start in the near future.

BVP Cagers Hand Oakwood Drive First Loss; Phi Delts, Phi Kaps, Nash Also Victorious

In yesterday's feature mural game, BVP No. 2 upset the previously unbeaten Oakwood Drive Team, 37-34.

The highest score of the day was turned in by Phi Delt No. 1 as they overwhelmed ZBT No. 2, 62-17. Other leading games saw Nash beat Med School, 37-26, and Phi Kap No. 1 down Lambda Chi, 32-27.

Law School bested Agony, 45-30, and Chi Phi routed Delta Sig No. 1, 31-13.

On the handball courts, Phi Delt beat DKE, 2-1, Aycock won the dormitory championship by dropping Med School, 2-1, and Kappa Sig took the measure of Pi Lamb, 2-1.

An addition to the mural schedule in handball pits ATO vs Kappa Sig in the semi-finals of fraternity competition.

Former Underground Member Tells of European Scarcities

By Harriette Clarke

"To be always hungry, to be always cold, to have often no roof over our heads, to have memories of concentration camps, of seeing people explode in the streets from bombs, of seeing parents and relatives taken by the Gestapo." This is the student of Holland, as pictured by Miss Henrietta Roosenburg, a native of Holland, who spoke to members of several organizations Monday night at the opening meeting of the World Student Service fund campaigners.

HENRIETTA ROOSENBERG

Active in the European underground resistance movement during the war, Miss Roosenburg aided Allied airmen in escaping the enemy and helped edit an underground newspaper.

She explained that in Holland everyone is allowed 200 calories a day, and one pair of shoes a year, eggs are scarce, and, three in a month there is a luxury. The schools are open she declared, but the shortage in books, housing and clothing is terrific.

Sleep Anywhere

"Students have already become leaders in Europe in underground movements. They are more serious about their work now. They are willing to sleep in a railroad station to be near the University, they are willing to starve, willing to copy text books by hand," said Miss Roosenburg.

"Why should Americans feel solidarity with these students? . . . . We have shown solidarity with you in war. We had a ghost army but a strong one. There were many casualties. The help we gave to Allied flyers—many of these fell in Holland. Those that fell in secluded spots were hidden by the population. We found ways and means of getting them back to their bases in England across the channel. You could always find the 40 people which were usually necessary to get one man back to his base."

What of Germany

"What of the occupied countries—Germany? The German student has been completely brought up in Nazi surroundings," the speaker tried to explain. "They were taught that they were the master race. Their libraries have been burned by the Nazis; they try to lose themselves in studying; they don't want to speak about the future of Germany.

"You have been far from all this," she continued. "Hatred that has been in our hearts through four long years cannot vanish overnight just because a war is over. You as Americans can be a mediator between the countries like Germany and Holland. The WSSF is a practical step toward peace."

Kattsoff Opposes Culturized Trend In Modern School

Dr. L. O. Kattsoff, associate professor of phisosophy, addressed a group of students and faculty members at the Woman's college in Greensboro last night, under the sponsorship of the Psychology club of the college. Dr. Kattsoff was asked to speak on "Social Implications of Modern Science."

Well known at Carolina as a proponent of liberalized education, Dr. Kattsoff recently created considerable discussion in academic circles because of the publication of his article "Reaction in the Colleges" in the latest number of the Journal of Higher Education. The article elaborated upon the professor's opinion that present educational practices are not keeping pace with the times.

Recent regulations by Harvard university and other large institutions have increased language requirements for admission, and have "cultivated" education to conform with ideas of the past century. Dr. Kattsoff believes that this trend is reactionary and unhealthy; he feels that higher educations should be more designed to prepare the student for a more practical career.

James C. Williams, Jr. Wins Croix de Guerre

James C. Williams, Jr., Sophomore, has been notified by the War Department that the French government has awarded him the Croix de Guerre with Etoille Bronze.

Williams, who formerly resided in Raleigh, served with the 75th Infantry division in France and other European countries for 15 months of the 40 months he spent in the service. During the fighting in Germany he was wounded and received the Purple Heart.

He also has the Silver Star, the Oak Leaf Cluster in lieu of a second Silver Star, and the Combat Infantryman's Badge. For participating in three campaigns he received three battle stars.

The letter from the War department, which was dated Jan. 31, 1947, stated the medal would be presented as soon as it was received from the French government.

Veterans Legislation Approved by Committee

Washington, Feb. 6—(UP)—The Senate Finance Committee has approved a House-passed bill which abolishes the time limit for veterans to reinstate their national life insurance policies.

Government Announces Civil Service Exams

A civil service examination for the positions of Engineering Aid, Scientific, and Biological Aid in the Federal Government is now open. Positions requiring similar qualifications, including Technical Aid, Computer, Laboratory Technician, and Laboratory, Horticultural and Agricultural Aids will be filled by successful competitors in this examination. A general clerical examination for filling government positions will also be given upon request.

Information and application blanks may be obtained at door 113 of the local post office.

Forensic Squad Will Debate North Georgia College Today

The Carolina Debate team goes into action against the forensic squad of North Georgia college at 3 o'clock this afternoon in Di hall. Many interesting arguments promise to be raised on the topic: Resolved, that labor should have a direct share in the management of industry.

Representing Carolina will be Herb Porter, James Hall, John Ehle, and Russell Baldwin. Baldwin was selected to join the three experienced debators at tryouts conducted by the debate council Tuesday night.

Room Yet for Newcomers

Council President Maurice Braswell expressed disappointment at the small turnout Tuesday night. He pointed out that with a full schedule of tournaments coming up, there is plenty of room for newcomers interested in forensics. Especially is there a need for more coed participation, for many events are strictly limited to women.

Further tryouts will be held at a future date to be announced, and Braswell encourages all who are interested to attend. Experience is not necessarily imperative, he said.

The Carolina team will compete in the South Atlantic Forensic Tournament at Hickory, March 6-8. Carolina has been invited to send 8 delegates, and up to 28 men and women to take part in other speech activities.

Art Exhibit to Open Sunday

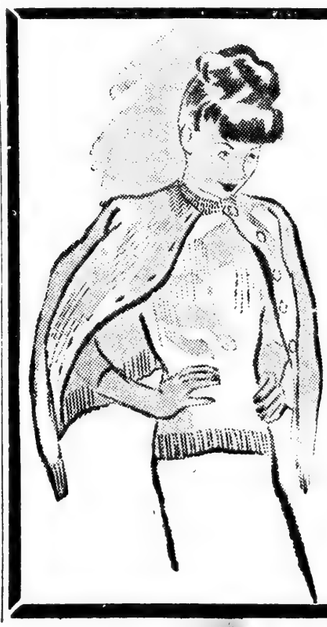
A formal opening of the North Carolina artist exhibit will be held in Person Hall Art gallery Sunday afternoon at 4:30, sponsored by the Friends of Person hall. John V. Alcott, head of the art department, will introduce at that time officers of the organization and students working on art projects in connection with the organization.

Refreshments will be served and the public is cordially invited to attend.

Recently on view in Raleigh, the same exhibit will be shown here with the addition of several pictures. The display will appear here from today through March 2.

All pictures in the exhibit are products of North Carolina talent and include the works of such prominent artists as Hobson Pittman, Nell Booker, Kenneth Evett, Murray Jones, Donald Mattison, and Francis Speight.

Russell Will Address Hillel Group Tonight



Professor Phillips Russell of the journalism and creative writing departments of the University will speak this evening at 7:30 at Hillel Sabbath services.

Services will be held in the Roland Parker lounge and they will be conducted by Daniel Daum in the absence of the Rabbi Strumpf.

Veterans Must Return Compensation Report

Vetrenas who were in school during the fall term and have not sent in form 7-1963, report of compensation from productive labor, must come by room 111 Peabody to get this form and send it in at once, E. G. Bourne, training officer, announced yesterday. Veterans who entered school January 3 are not to send in this report until the end of the winter term.

Tryouts for New Play Will Be Held Monday By Laboratory Theatre

Tryouts for the Laboratory theatre production of Moliere's "The Imiginary Invalid" will be held Monday afternoon at 4 o'clock in the Playmakers theatre. The play, directed by David Hooks and Lynn Leonard, will be presented in Graham Memorial on Sunday evening, March 9.

"The Imiginary Invalid" will be produced in an experimental form: in modern dress, arena-style staging (audience on four sides), with somewhat stylized acting. The farcical elements of Moliere's play will be emphasized.

The directors wish to to point out to all interested students and townspeople that the only requirement for casting is an ample amount of time in the individual's schedule to attend diligent rehearsals; no previous acting or technical experience is necessary. Aside from twelve acting roles, numerous technical positions are available.

Underground Leaders Escape Prison Camp

Jerusalem, Feb. 6—(UP)—Five ranking underground leaders reportedly have escaped from a detention camp in Eritrea. They included a former treasurer of the Stern gang and an American who was arrested soon after his arrival in Palestine in 1941.

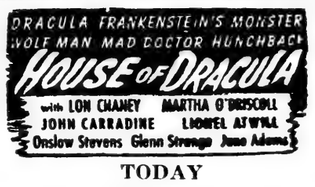
Prentice Requests Individual Action

"The youth of this country is in the position of deciding whether to let the world take the road to lasting peace or to destruction," said Colgate Prentice, 22-year-old president of Student Federalists, Inc., in his talk here Wednesday night. "We are asking you which choice you will take."

Prentice has been touring the country since late last fall in an effort to rouse the students of the United States to fight for world government. He attempted to show the necessity for the immediate organization of a federal world government, and stated a few of his ideas as how to it might be set up. His main point was made in the last few minutes of his talk when he said, "If we will, in our every day life, think of every possible way to serve our cause of world government—then I think there is a chance of our succeeding. Individual action is the vital thing."

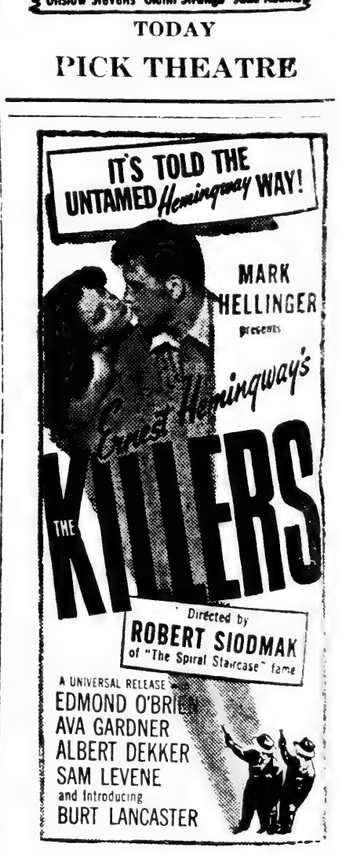
Church Conference To Start Tonight



The Rev. Thomas V. Barrett, executive secretary of the Church Society for College Work will address the opening session of the North Carolina Episcopal College Student conference in the old church of the Chapel of the Cross, this evening at 8 o'clock.

This address will be the first of three Barrett will make on the theme "The Field of the Cross of Gold." The other address will be given at 10 a.m. and 2 p.m. tomorrow.

Following the Saturday addresses, the conference will divide into five discussion groups, with the following topics up for discussion: The Canterbury club—What is it?; The Church and the Negro: Personal Religion Today; The Work of the Christian outside the Church; Lay-reading and the Vocation of the Ministry.



All Episcopal students who possibly can, are urged to attend the addresses and discussions of the conference.

NEWS BRIEFS

Eisler Freed By Court Writ

Federal Judge Signs Habeus Corpus Order

Washington, Feb. 7—(UP)—The latest on the Eisler case is that the government has been given one week to produce its case against the alleged boss of American Communists.

Federal Judge John Bright signed a writ of habeus corpus for the release of Gerhart Eisler from immigration authorities. But the writ will not be returnable until February 14, thus giving the government seven days to show why Eisler should not be set free.

Demanded Release

Eisler's attorney, Carol King, demanded the release of the reputed Soviet agent on the grounds that he was being detained on Ellis Island illegally. It is believed the Justice department is deciding now on just what other counts to prosecute Eisler.

Gen. Marshall States Disarmament Policy

Washington, Feb. 7—(UP)—Secretary Marshall says it's difficult to see how there can be any disarmament until the problems of international peace are solved. He also told his first news conference that he believes a hemispheric peace pact included Argentina can be framed this year.

Palestine Compromise Adopted by Britain

London, Feb. 7—(UP)—The British government has adopted a Palestine compromise relaxing the rules on Jewish immigration. The plan also shelves any idea of partitioning the Holy Land now or in the near future. The new proposals will be distributed to Arab and Jewish leaders tonight or tomorrow.

East, Midwest Expect Weekend Cold Front

Chicago, Feb. 7—(UP)—The weather bureau says the midwest and east is in for the coldest week-end of the winter. The mercury already has hit below freezing in Alabama and Mississippi. And gale-like winds have whipped up snow and dust storms across the North Central states. But it's still 80 degrees in Califorina.

Portal Pay Suits May Hit 40 Billion Mark

Washington, Feb. 7—(UP)—A National Coal association attorney has predicted that portal pay suits may hit a total of 40 billion dollars. Lawyer James Haley says not one company in 100 would be able to meet its bill.

Gardner's Body Taken To Shelby for Burial

Shelby, Feb. 7—(UP)—The body of the late Ambassador O. Max Gardner is back in his beloved home town of Shelby for funeral services and burial. The Gardner funeral train arrived in Kings Mountain this morning and the body was taken by car to Shelby. Funeral services for the 64-year-old former Governor will be held tomorrow afternoon at the first Baptist church in Shelby.

Stassen, Ball Fight Over Labor Question

Washington, Feb. 7—(UP)— GOP presidential aspirant Stassen and his former hight-hand man, Senator Ball, have accused one another of backing too-drastic labor reforms. And another White House aspirant, Senator Taft, also took issue with Stassen's opposition to a ban on the closed shop.

Truman Will Address Jackson Day Dinner

Washington, Feb. 7—(UP)—National Party Chairman Hannegan announces that President Truman will address the annual Jackson Day dinner in Washington April 5th.

National Symphony to Play For Entertainment Series

Orchestra Gives Concert Here February 18; Is One of Nation's Leading Orchestras

By Lawrence Clements

The National Symphony orchestra of Washington, D. C., one of the foremost symphonies in the world today, will be presented February 18 in Memorial hall under the sponsorship of the Student Entertainment series committee, J. Penrose Harland, SES chairman, announced.

Orgainzed in 1931, the National Symphony orchestra, under the guiding hand of its founder and permanent conductor, Hans Kindler, has developed into one of the six leading orchestras in the United States. Its music has been heard by countless thousands of visitors ao the nation's capital.

Special Concert, Festivals

Each winter the Symphony presents two series of concerts to ever-growing audiences in Constitution hall, its home in Washington. A regular concert series is presented in Baltimore and Richmond, besides the student concerts for the capital's colleges. Special music "festivals" honoring the great composers, and special performances with ballet and opera companies are included in the repertoire.

Since the National Symphony receives no federal aid in any form, the National Symphony association was formed to sustain the orchestra and govern its policies. Since its initiation, the orchestra has received its support wholly from ticket sales and the sustaining fund, provided by members of the association and their friends.

Holders of season tickets for the Student Entertainment series will be admitted. Others may obtain tickets at Swain hall or at Ledbetter-Pickard's.

Carolina Debate Team To Meet North Georgia On Labor Query Today

North Georgia college will furnish the opposition to the Carolina Debate team today when the two forensic squads argue the topic: Resolved, that labor should have a direct share in the management of industry. The debate will take place this afternoon at 3 o'clock in Di hall, although it was previously announced for yesterday afternoon.

Herb Porter, James Hall, John Ehle, and Russell Baldwin will represent Carolina in the debate. Baldwin was selected to the debate team following tryouts last Tuesday night.

Further tryouts will be held at a date to be announced later, and Debate council President Maurice Braswell urges all interested persons to attend.

Thompson Declared Governor By Superior Court Decision

Judge Porter Says Talmadge Claim Illegal; Case Will Go to Supreme Court of Georgia

McDonough, Georgia, February 7—(UP)—The trial that will eventually give Georgia one governor instead of two has been adjourned until Monday morning.

The little red brick court house in McDonough, Georgia was jammed to the rafters with spectators today. All of them were there to hear arguments on a declaratory judgment on just who is governor of the Peach state.

One of the contending governors—M. E. Thompson—petitioned the court to rule on the existing law. He wants judicial officials to determine whether he, as Lieutenant-governor under the elder Talmadge of the red galluses, or the opponent, Herman Talmadge elected by the state legislature, has a legal right to the gubernatorial position.

The attorneys of Herman Talmadge, who siezed the office of Governor Arnall in Atlanta last month, maintain that the language of the constitution gives the legislature both the power and the duty to select a governor as it did.

Today's hearing for the most part was devoted to the presentation of Thompson's case. But the court was thrown off balance by Talmadge's attorneys when they introduced a motion to have State Attorney General Cook barred from representing Thompson.

While this all-important suit was being argued, another judge handed down a ruling which named Thompson as the legal governor of Georgia.

A superior court judge in Rome, Georgia, ruled that Herman Talmadge is holding his office illegally. Judge C. H. Porter granted a writ of mandamus sought by Thompson to force members of the State Pardon Parole board to submit their budget to him rather than Talmadge. This is the first clear cut judicial ruling in the gubernatorial mixup which evolved when Eugene Talmadge died before taking office. But this decision too will be superseded by an eventual state supreme court ruling.

UNC Administration Satisfied With Cherry Budget Proposals

Central Agency To Be Delayed

YWCA to Continue Scheduling Affairs

A special committee called by Dean Ernest Mackie to consider the recommendation from the Student Welfare board that a centralized scheduling agency for campus affairs be established in the dean of students office today suggested that the YWCA office continue in its scheduling activities until the dean of student's office was equipped to handle the job.

"This is not a substitute for the Student Welfare board recommendation but only a stop gap until their suggestion can be put into effect," Dean Mackie said. He requested that all organizations scheduling campus events register them at the Y office so that conflicts between various activities could be avoided.

Reserve at Y, Graham Memorial

All meeting rooms, auditoriums, and ball rooms with the exception of those in Graham Memorial must be reserved through the Y office in order to be official. Graham Memorial rooms still may be reserved at the Student Union office.

All campus organizations planning parties, meetings, or any other activity are requested to inform the Y office of the affair whether or not University buildings need to be reserved.

Laboratory Group Will Stage Drama In Student Union

The Laboratory theatre of the Carolina Playmakers will present its second production, Edna St. Vincent Millay's "Aria da Capo," in the main lounge of Graham Memorial tomorrow night. There will be three performances, 8, 9, and 10 o'clock, with free admission.

"Aria da Capo" is a satire on war. It is written in verse with stylized characters presenting Miss Millay's thesis. The author has taken the Pierrot and Columbine from the Commedia dell'arte and contrasted these light characters with two shepherds from the pastoral drama. The production is designed to heighten the effect of unreality.

Lois Warnshuis is directing the production, which was designed by John McKinney. In the cast will be Madeline Cooley, David Hooks, James Reilly, Mac Shaw and Blanton Miller. Betty Young will act as stage manager.

Hearn in Hospital With Heart Attack

Baseball Coach Bunn Hearn has suffered a heart atack near his home in Wilson and is confined to a hospital there.

Athletic Director Bob Fetzer says Intramural director Walter Rabb will pinch-hit for Hearn until his recovery.

Hearn, a member of the troupe that carried baseball to Japan in 1912-13, once pitched for New York Giants, St. Louis Cardinals, and Boston Braves. He has coached baseball at Carolina for 15 years.

Student Party Slates Nominating Convention

The first in a series of nominating conventions for Student party candidates in the spring election will be held tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock in the Candlelight room of Graham Memorial.

Also on the agenda will be the formulation of a party platform for the elections as well as general party policies. The party members will also discuss a set of by-laws proposed by John Clampitt and referred to a committee for clarification and improvements last week.

Legislature Appropriations Committee Urged to Approve Suggested Measure

By Bill Sexton

Representatives of the Consolidated University of North Carolina told the joint appropriations committee of the state legislature Thursday afternoon that they were satisfied with Gov. Cherry's budget recommendations for the University, and urged complete aproval of the suggested appropriations.

It was the first time in the memory of many veteran legislators that the University had not asked the committee to make specific increases over the appropriations recommended by the governor and the advisory budget commission.

Thriftily-Drawn

Led by President Frank P. Graham, University officials, members of the board of trustees, and private citizens held a two and one-half hour session in the capital's revenue building. Comptroller W. D. Carmichael, Jr., described the budget as "thriftily-drawn" but sufficient "to make ends meet." The administration emphasized that there was ample need, nevertheless, for more funds at each of the University's three units, and asked the legislators to consider the recommendations which they endorsed as nothing more than a minimum.

The chancellors of the three units, Douglas Jackson of Woman's college, J. W. Harrelson of State college, and R. B. House of the University at Chapel Hill, defended the budget as a final line that must be held if the institutions are to maintain any standard. But Dr. Graham, summarizing the University's position, not only bolstered the chancellors' position against cutting but urged increased appropriations during the coming years as a source of "immeasurable dividends."

"You write up or down the welfare of the state of North Carolina," said President Graham, "as you write up or down this budget."

Aimed at Future Budgets

The University's strategy—accepting the governor's recommendations as satisfactory and workable yet emphasizing the need for more funds—was well-planned, probably aimed at future budgets as well as that for the approaching biennium. Continual reminder of the admitted deficiency of appropriations in the past, of a "falling behind" for lack of funds, was a major part of that strategy.

At Chapel Hill, expansion of the library and utilities, aid in financing dormitory construction, and—with particular emphasis—the 400-bed teaching hospital were listed as primary needs by Chancellor House, though he said, "every dollar we have requested is more than necessary."

Only Room for 900

"We have 7000 students and 900 places in our library for studying," House declared. He added that the present building of dormitories could not be self-financed without increasing rents. "We are committed against that," he said. As for utilities, he declared that "we cannot build another foot without expanding an already overworked system."

"Item Six" in the permanent improvements requests for Chapel Hill—the teaching hospital—is "second to none" in urgency, House said.

(Dr. Graham did not comment on the medical school expansion other than to say that he would correct "much misinformation" at a later hearing on the health program.)

This evaluation of Chapel Hill's essential needs was in reply to Sen. R. N. Simms of Wake County, who asked the relative importance of the Chapel Hill requests.

Must Hear Entire Report

Since the committee must hear testimony on the entire biennium budget before taking action on any part of it, there is no official indication of the committee members' reaction to the hearing. But two legislators, in remarks following the reports of the University officials, commented favorably on the proposals.

The first was Sen. George Penney of Guilford county, who asked Chancellor J. W. Harrelson of State college if it were true as a result of a $200,000 building investment the Navy had given the college over $2,000,000 worth of Diesel equipment. Harrelson replied that this was correct.

"If the University can achieve anywhere near such a return on its investment," said Penney, "I think you'll get your budget."

And Rep. Bruce Elmore, youngest legislator and a law student at Chapel Hill, in a closing statement asked for "serious" cooperation by the committee. "I plead that we give each and every one of these requests serious consideration."

No members of the committee entered adverse comment at the time of the meeting.

Among the citizens appearing in behalf of the University's requests were George Coble of Burlington, dairy operator; T. M. Renshaw, president of the Blue Ridge Apple Growers association; and Mrs. Laura Weil Cone, Women's college alumna and trustee.

Chapel Hill Extension Plan Reported by Planning Board

Increased financial support from the University, annexation of over a thousand acres of outlying land to the corporate limits, and study of merger with Carrboro were recommended to Chapel Hill town officials this week by the State Planning board.

Felix Grisette, managing director of the board, reported to the town's planning committee and other officers on the results of a six-month survey of Chapel Hill's civic problems.

Under Financial Strain

The state board found that loss of revenue due to University ownership of much of the property within the town limits plus competition with tax-paying merchants caused undue financial strain on the tax-payers of the town and is preventing adequate expansion of the town's services. To alleviate the problem, it was recommended that the Board of Trustees of the University donate approximately 38 per cent of Chapel Hill's operating expenses.

Last week Rep. John Umstead of Orange county introduced in the state legislature a bill to allow the trustees to aid the town as recommended.

The board also recommended that settled land bordering the present town limits be absorbed by Chapel Hill. The proposed change would take in Westwood, Forest Hills, Chase avenue, the Country club community, Greenwood, Davie Woods, Davie Circle, and other areas adjoining the northeast border of the town.

The planning board, after a "cursory" study, found no reason against merging the adjoining towns of Chapel Hill and Carrboro, and asked town authorities to consider joining them.

Cooperative Benefits

It was with profound interest we recently perused a feature story in the Raleigh News and Observer about the grocery co-op at State college.

The following excerpts are from the article:

"The high price of food, particularly food at the Trailwood grocery store, gave rise to such hot and furious discussion over a period of months that quite recently it was taken over as a commercial enterprise by the community. . . . . Trailwoodites have taken enthusiastically to the idea of a store and at 15 dollars per person over 2000 dollars has been collected. . . . the co-op is managed by a board of directors elected by the members. . . . . college authorities are watching the progress of the new cooperative with keen interest."

And the cooperative progress is not limited to State college. In a letter received from the assistant business manager at the University of Florida, the following information is extracted:

"The student cooperative grocery on the Florida campus is cooperative in every sense of the word. The state furnished the building and the site. The store is conveniently located adjacent to the veterans housing project. . . . The store is open to all married students attending the University upon payment of a $15 fee. On leaving, he may sell his share back to the cooperative for $12. The cooperative declares dividends each quarter, based on the profit made and the amount of purchases by each member. . . .

"Due to the low overhead and the large turnover of stock, the Cooperative has been able to sell groceries at a markup of only 10 per cent above cost. . . . The state government and school administration are very much in favor of the cooperative organization, and have done everything possible to assist in its establishment and operation."

Which should indicate that the veterans co-op on this campus has infinite possibilities. It has met with considerable opposition here from certain elements, but none can argue its value now —and in the future. It is a blessing to the married students struggling to make ends meet. It has already paid dividends.

Its success on other campuses proves the value of a grocery co-op. Those who can do so here should get behind the local group. Shares of stock can be procured very reasonably. With less selfish opposition and more support from the right groups, a successful grocery cooperative will rightfully thrive here and benefit many students.

For Better Government

Certainly noteworthy amidst the rumbling of the spring political cauldron that is already starting to boil is the recent announcement by the University party that the party will support dormitory candidates selected by representatives of the dormitories for the student legislature in the spring elections.

This is a progressive step in the right direction. Who is better qualified to know the man they desire to represent them in the student government body than the members of each dormitory. Surely, it is better than having the party blindly nominate someone for the job just because he is in the right fraternity and lives in the correct dormitory.

By letting the dorm residents select the men they want for their legislative representatives and then backing them without demanding any all out support of party principles from the candidates, UP is taking one of its biggest strides out of the darkened inner-circle of political intrigue that has often characterized its past activities.

Student government taken out of the hands of party politics and put in the hands of the students is better student government.

Credit to WNC Club

Although no mention was made of the fact in our final tabulation of donations to the March of Dimes, great deal of credit for much of the drive's success must be given to the Western North Carolina club.

The WNC group sponsored the charity ball without receiving any profit and worked hard to make it a success. It turned into the biggest single money-raising factor, totalling aproximately $400. Their work and contribution did not go unappreciated.

Only So Much Blood Can Be Squeezed From Any Turnip

By Jud Kinberg

Headlines in Thursday's DTH reminded me of the ancient proverb dealing with blood and turnips. In bold type there was the news that "WSSF Drive Will be Initiated Monday," and right below was "March of Dimes Campaign Nets $1,629.53."

I don't know whether it was just coincidence that ran the stories on the same day, but it seems that they're really stacking the fund pleas. A student doesn't even have time to button his beaded coin purse when a second collector pops in the door. No matter how generous a man is—or wants to be—such shock tactics must stagger his charitable instincts just a bit.

Just as in many other phases of public and political life at Carolina, this is the result of faulty coordination. Mangling another proverb, it's a case of doing the right thing at the wrong time.

The answer to this 6,400 dollar question is a simple and not very original idea. With the possible exception of the March of Dimes campaign, all fund drives throughout the year should be coordinated into one all-out effort limited to one week of intensive door-knocking. Cities have adopted this plan thoughout the United States, using the usual appellation of "Treasure Chest." Those who plot the fortunes of such campaigns on campus need go no farther than Durham to see just how such a scheme works.

True, such a plan would call for a little work at the beginning of each school year. All charities and causes would have to be considered, evaluated and figures set. Then, with the composite total decided upon, it would be possible to plot the one-week campaign designed to raise the amount decided upon.

During the week decided on—it seems to me that seven days in spring would be best—all efforts could be consolidated for this one drive. The many workers who are spread thin over the numerous campaigns now scheduled could be welded into an effective canvassing team capable of reaching every student. From what I've seen of the helter-skelter collections now being run, not one of them has ever gotten to each man and woman at Carolina.

Knowing that they wouldn't be approached every two days, the students would probably make lump sum contributions larger than the total of the separate ones they now donate. It's simplicity and chances for success proven in large cities, the Treasure Chest idea certainly deserves a trial at Carolina.

Amid the welter of editorial page brickbats, the calm and interesting course of Sports Page columnists is a marvelous thing to behold. The boys who write the dope behind third page headlines have managed to turn out consistently interesting copy. Smallwood, Carmichael, et al have come up with hot poop on the players.

By the way, in a little poll I recently conducted, Smallwood and Carmichael were tied for the title of "Best Undressed Man on Publications." Amazing men they have in that Department.

Carolina Merry-Go-Round

By Bob Jones and Bill Robertson

For some time now complaints have been made by various campus political leaders about the apathy shown by the student body toward campus politics. Yesterday, for the first time, we have read something in The Daily Tar Heel which goes to the heart of the matter. It is to be found in a paragraph of the valedictory article of Jimmy Wallace's column, "Listen Students." We quote the paragraph in full:

Student Government is overlooking its primary duty; to wit, of doing something which is concretely beneficial to the Student Body. Until Student Government begins to perform this function, and begins to speak for and in behalf of the Student Body, it deserves nothing but what it is getting —the brush-off.

At the present time entirely too much time is being given to the formal aspects of Student Government. While precise phrases are being formulated for sections, and amendments to the constitution itself, there are real problems springing from the economic, social, and cultural needs of the Student Body which are being ignored.

In this connection, it must be remembered that our problems of the present are inextricably bound up with our problems of the future. Our stay here at the University is a temporary one. In a short time we shall be adjusting ourselves to a society creaking at the hinges—a society which allows an ordinary cut-throat to quietly pass away in a palatial mansion in Florida.

A few days ago the students of the University of Georgia showed a heartening consciousness of the problems of the real world when they burned Herman Talmadge in effigy.

A few days ago the students of the University of Texas showed a heartening consciousness of the problems of the real world when they demonstrated against the refusal to admit a Negro to that educational institution.

At the present time we have student leaders with real talents and capacities. It remains to be seen whether they will apply them to the deadly serious problems of real life—both on and off campus.

What Do YOU Say?

By Harry Snowden

Today's Question

What do you believe is the reason behind the lack of student interest in campus elections?

Answers

I think there should be more publicity before the elections take place. Some students do not even know who is running. The candidates should show more interest in finding out what the students desire.—C. N. Chestnutt, Clinton.

I believe the reason that so few students vote in elections is that it seems to make no difference which party or candidate holds office. It seems to me to be a debating society rather than a form of government.—Alex Lassiter, Weldon.

I believe that the majority of the veteran students are more interested in their studies, and they are also more or less ignorant of the real functions of campus elections.—H. D. Coulter, Newton.

I think the reason for the lack of student interest in campus elections is the student body not knowing the candidates for the various offices, and also the way some of the parties go about securing men for their party to run.—James B. Hauser, Winston-Salem.

The reason may be that only a few students feel that the elections results affect them. Student government by and large has little influence on the student body.—Kermit Albertson, High Point.

In my case, and probably many others, it is because I don't know what's going on. I do not have much interest because there seems to be a great deal of corruption in campus politics, which makes me feel that my vote would not count much anyway.—Steve Parrott, Kinston.

The various candidates and parties seem to have no concrete programs that really hold a great deal of interest for the students, whether individually or as a body.—Merritt Brown, Nathalie, Va.

I think the publicity is good enough but there are so many elections at different times that most of the students have lost interest and do not fully understand what the elections are all about.—Tip Summers, Rogersville, Tenn.

Not Enough Time

February 4

Dear Sir:

Concerning Carolina politics (specifically, the Freshman Elections), I wish to correct the DTH editorial of Sunday, Feb. 2, on one of its two points.

The first: ". . .the claim that insufficient time elapsed between the announcement and actual elections was well taken." Decidedly correct! Election rules provide a minimum of six days between nominations and elections.

The second argument, according to the editorial, was that "fraternities can control spot elections." This and the supporting statements of the editorial furnish an inference which should be corrected.

The entire dissension over the elections was caused by: (1) The amount of time between nominations and elections; (2) the methods of voting, as well as the methods of counting votes, (3) the small amount of publicity given the elections (they were announced in Thursday's Tar Heel and held that afternoon), and, (4) the irrational ratio of freshmen present (about 120 out of approximately 1500), which I prefer to believe was due to a lack of publicity. At no time was any group criticized.

Fraternities are fine, character-building organizations, and at no time were the arguments vs. anything except the system (or lack of it) with which the class was organized. The present system of representation is just; it only needs just application. When it is justly applied and duly publicized I think that much more interest will be shown in every campus election.

Drawn and Quartered

Dear Sir:

A lot of Pacific veterans feel that Manny Margolis should be drawn and quartered after reading his authoritative article on world affairs in the Sunday Tar Heel. No doubt they are wondering how Margolis would feel if he had been riding picket-station destroyers over a year prior to the A-bomb dropping or if he knew the thrill of living close to nature in the exotic jungles of New Guinea. So I hasten to defend the stand of Margolis.

The fact that the bombs were dropped in 1945 after four years of war and that the article was written in 1947, has nothing to do with the issue at stake. If we had to drop the a-bomb on the Japs, I agree with Manny that we should have warned the people in Hiroshima ahead of time so they could all get out of town. Something like two small atom bombs, dropped a day before the big one would have been appropriate. Just because they forgot to warn us when they hit Pearl Harbor was no reason why we should go and drop some nasty old atom bombs on them without warning, really I mean well after all.

I agree with Margolis that Mr. Stimson's "long-range life-saving" reason might have been studied more carefully. The hourly loss of American men and ships every day the war continued was a small thing compared to the 200,000 Japs who were rubbed out by one of those horrible old bombs. Obviously we had too many men and ships anyway, judging from the thousands unemployed today and the vast number of ships being decommissioned.

I also agree with Manny the wave of horror and repulsion which swept across the world after the bombing was perfectly awful. In New York and other cities millions of people threw tons of confetti out their windows and left work to get drunk in protest.

Freshman Elections

February 4

Dear Sir:

How about an accurate account on the Freshman Class elections? So far all reports have deviated from the point. All emphasis is on the vice-president in the true account which follows!

Candidates — Paul Baschon and Ralph Lee.

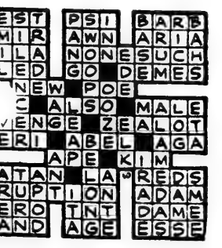
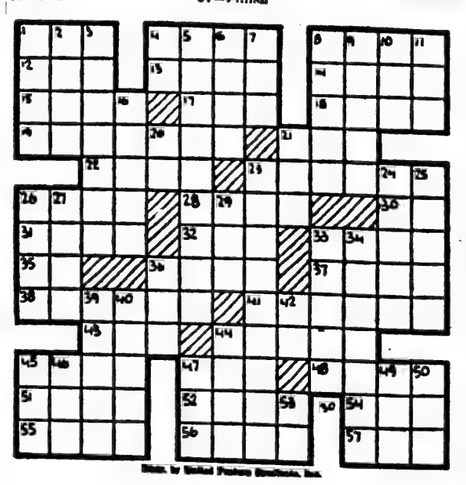
On the first round Lee pulled down 57 votes, and Paul Baschon rolled up a one-point victory—58. Looked like Paul Baschon for vice-president! But wait a minute — President Nimocks and the chairman of the nominating committee were on the stage and had not voted. Their two votes tagged in after the two counts were taken and that gave Lee the one-point victory. Objection! Irregular voting! Recount! A recount was agreed to.

On the recount, ardent supporters began upping the oral count if they could. That called for a more rigid method of voting. Several methods were suggested. The accepted method would continue the oral count-off under the supervision of presiding chairman Montague, President Nimocks and the chairman of the committee who were to be in the aisle. Even with supervision, the counting was upped occasionally; so someone hastily suggested a silent count by the three supervisors, and this method was carried out without approval. When the three counters returned to the stage, there was nearly a minute of silent deliberation in each case before announcing the number of votes. Ralph Lee rolled up 61 votes on the silent vote taken, and Paul Baschon maintained 58 votes.



I do not make any accusations, but it must be remembered that the silent votes were counted by supporters of Lee.

If all campus elections are held in a silent count by partial men, and if this be a form of our self-government—called democracy—then count me out!!! I'll have no part in dealing a joker.



Names withheld by request.

Wrestlers Battle W and L Grapplers In Conference Tilt

Carolina's undefeated wrestling team will be host to Washington and Lee here in Woollen gym this afternoon at 4 o'clock in what promises to be the biggest test of the season for the local grapplers.

"Washington and Lee has the toughest team we have met so far," opined Coach Chuck Quinlan yesterday. "They are about the second best team in the loop, VMI rating slightly ahead of the Generals."

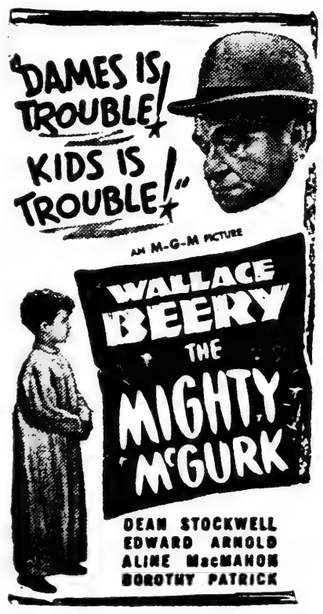
Heavyweights Injured

The Tar Heel matmen will be handicapped in the heavyweight division, where the two regular contenders, Laurie Hooper and John Stoioff, have been pushed to the sidelines by injuries. Wrestling in their place will be either Dick Lewis or Carl Simpson.

The remaining seven positions on the team will be filled with the same men who competed against State last Friday night. Doug Thompson will be at 121, Tom Urquhart at 128, Co-Captain Tommy Hearn at 136, Co-Captain Dick Seaver at 145, Irv Zirpel at 155, Oscar Gupton at 165 and Bill Kemp at 175.

Four of the grapplers will be out to protect their individual unbeaten records, including Hearn, who will be trying to extend his current win streak to 10 in a row over a two-year period. Seaver, Urquhart and Gupton have not been defeated in three meets this year.

Exhibition Matches



In addition to the regularly scheduled eight-match card, two and possibly three exhibition matches will be run off during the course of the meet. These matches will be held between W. and L.'s utility men and Carolina wrestlers, the contestants coming from the 136, 165 and 175 pound divisions. In the event a Carolina 136-pounder fights, it will be F. O. Bowman, and Frank Williams will compete at 165 in the exhibitions. Coach Quinlan declined to name a definite contestant in the 175-pound class for the extra match.

The meet today will be the fourth conference bout the Tar Heels have had, and two more—with Duke and VMI—remain on the 1947 slate. Carolina has a perfect 3-0 record in loop competition to date.

Following meets with Duke, VMI, Navy and Virgina, Carolina's wrestlers will get set for the Southern conference tournament, which will be held the first week in March. VMI will be defending its crown in the loop tourney, a crown which the Cadets won in 1942 by edging out the Tar Heels, 33-32.

Track Team Shows Power In Practice With Duke

Milne, Nelson, Miller, Seligman Shine; Meet Slated to Continue this Afternoon

The Carolina track team showed plenty of potentialities in the practice meet run with Duke yesterday afternoon.

The finest performance of the day was in the 1½ mile run, which saw Jack Milne negotiate the distance in 7:01.5 with Alvin Smith running second.

The 330-yard run saw Don Nelson hook up with Duke's Young in a nip-and-tuck battle with Nelson hitting the tape several yards ahead of the Duke boy.

Big Bob Seligman won the shot put with a heave of 47 feet, one inch, with Gardinier of Duke second.

The 1000-yard special saw Jimmy Miller catch Roger Neighborgal of Duke in the last lap and hit the finish in 2:19. The Duke runner was clocked in 2:01 at the half-mile mark.

The results:

Shot put: Seligman (C), 47 ft. 1 in, Gardinier (D), Ross (C).

High jump—Simmons (C), 5 ft. 10 in., Joyner (C), Colvin (D).

3-4 mile run: Magill and Mackenzie (C) 3:16.1, Ellsworth (D).

330-yard run: Nelson (C), 38:2, Young (D), Turner (C).

Special 330: Lentz (C), 39:2, Hunter (C), Wilson (C).

660-yard run: Burnham (C), 1:26.8, Hollander (C), Francis (C).

1½-mile run: Milne (C), 7:01.5, Smith (C), Gardner (D).

1000-yard run: Miller (C), 2:19, Neighborgal (D), Mackenzie (C).

The meet will come to a finish this afternoon starting at 2:30 o'clock when the pole vault, broad jump, hurdles, dashes, and relay events will be held.

ONE OF CAROLINA'S outstanding boxers, Dick Young, above, will battle in the 155-pound class against Maryland's Rieder in Woollen gym tonight. Hailing from Asheville, Young has had a long career of interscholastic and service fighting, in addition to his collegiate experience.

Jayvees Outscore Sanford, 61-39

Carolina's Junior Varsity romped to its eighth straight triumph of the season last night when the Hayworthmen scored a 61-39 victory over the Sanford American Legion All Stars in Woollen gym.

Led by substitutes Jick Fitch, with a 16-point total, and Bill von Bramer, with 11 points, the jayvees kept the advantage all the way and were never hard pressed. Starting forward Fred Swartzburg also contributed 10 tallies in the fast-moving encounter.

The jayvees started their scoring spurt when Junie Bailey tied the score, 2-2, on a long set shot after four minutes of play, and the intermission saw them holding a 24 to 13 advantage.

Jack Fitch led the scoring for the Hayworthmen in the opening minutes of the second half, scoring eight points in a row before the Sanford cagers were able to talley.

Both coaches substituted freely during the game, sending in whole new teams several times during the contest.

The box score:

Sanford (39)	Jayvees (61)
Clark, 10	Nyimicz, 0
Gurley, 6	Swartzberg, 10
Kohler, 8	Bailey, 8
Johnson, 8	Weinstein, 3
Richman, 5	Wagner, 4

Reserves: Sanford—Spurlock, 2. Jayvees—von Bramer, 11; Fitch, 16; Henson, 1; Nathan, 5; Curtis, 3.

Mittmen Encounter Maryland Outfit In Fourth Battle

By Roy Holsten

With the first bout scheduled to begin at seven o'clock, Coach Mike Ronman's Tar Heel mittmen will square off against Maryland tonight in what promises to be one of the most exciting contests of the season.

Both teams met and lost to a powerful Virginia squad earlier this season but each has shown considerable improvement in its recent bouts. Carolina has a record of one victory and two losses while the Liners boast four wins and only one setback. They are meeting for the first time this year.

The condition of the squad is reported as excellent and with the addition of two able newcomers, Bill Speigel and Bill Bragraw, in the heavyweight and 175-pound divisions, the strengthened Blue Bombers present a formidable team for this evening's tilt.

In Coach Ronman's opinion the most improved boxer on the team is Bill Sunas, 125 pounder who was discovered in intramurals last quarter. He added that regulars Dick Young, 155-pounder, and Leonard Green at 165 pounds, had done well in this week's preliminary drills.

First Season

In the 145 division, tonight's probable starter will be Charlie Norton, who in his initial season has more than made up in ability for his lack of experience. Norton has been battling for a starting berth with Bill Gilliam, another classy scrapper.

The feature bout of the evening will bring together Carolina's Charlie Lambeth and Andy Quattrochi, the Liners' sensational puncher. The two 130-pounders have built up excellent records. Quattrochi has won all of his bouts handily, having three TKO's to his credit, all in the first round. Lambeth may be remembered for his excellent scrap with Virginia's ace, Basil Miragliottia.

Blue Dolphin Team Favored To Cop Carolina AAU Event

Coach Dick Jamerson's Blue Dolphins are rated as favorites in the 10th annual Carolinas AAU indoor open swimming meet tonight, swimming against VMI, Emory, and N. C. State in Raleigh's spacious Frank Thompson pool.

The local mermen have clinched the title each year since the inaugural meet. This year Coach Jamerson has entered 37 swimmers and is expected to capitalize on secondary positions in addition to several first places, according to meet authorities.

Medley Team

Carolina will enter a medley team of Norm Sper, Warren Ficklen, and either Pete Hexner, Dan Breeden, or Gerry Cook in the National junior AAU 300 yard championship. The junior relay is open to all swimmers who never have won an AAU race. Carolina and VMI teams will be favored in this race.

Favorites in the meet tonight are Carolina's diving stars, Buddy Crone and Norman Sper, and State's Bill Kelly in the 200-yard breast-stroke race. Kelly is a former AAU champion and thus far this season has set a new pool record at State and has broken the Southern conference mark.

State has filed entries for 22 swimmers and Coach Willis Casey's club is expected to push the Dolphins throughout the meet. Ralph Casey, VMI coach, is bringing a squad of 17 mermen.

Kap Sigs Nose Fijis

Two undefeated aggregations battled it out for top standing in the frat section of the mural cage league yesterday afternoon and when the smoke cleared Kap Sig No. 3 had edged Phi Gam No. 1 by a 19-17 count, in a game that was close all the way.

In other games, Lewis topped Locals, 31-21; the Ringers defeated PBC, 32-23; and Sigma Chi No. 2 beat ZBT No. 1, 12-8 in a free-scoring contest. Zete No. 2, Steele, Whitehead, and SAE No. 1, all won by forfeits.

Results of the handball tourney were not available at press time.

Gobbler Rally Falls Short In Wild Second Half Tussle

Hamilton, Paxton Pace Tar Heel Attack; Local Cagemen To Meet Davidson Tonight

By Bob Goldwater

What started as a first-half rout turned into a second-half dogfight here last night when Carolina's White Phantoms quelled a VPI uprising to register a 57-51 verdict over the Gobblers and tally their fourth Southern conference victory.

The triumph, the tenth of the season, enabled the Carolina crew to take over undisputed possession of fifth place in the circuit. The locals now have a loop slate of four wins and two losses.

"Daddy" Jim Hamilton, playing another of his bang-up games, paced the Carolina attack, dropping in a total of 19 points to run his conference total to 87 in six tussles. The Weir, Kansas, forward tallied almost half of the Phantoms' first-half total with 15 points made on a .600 average. Bob Paxton, with 13, and Norm Kohler, with 12, were also hot for the Scottmen.

The Phantoms go after their fifth conference success in Woollen gym this evening when they oppose a strong Davidson quintet starting at 8 o'clock.

Carolina will field the usual starting five while the Wildcats will probably open with Ed White, their high-scoring ace, and George Peters at the forwards, Malcolm Earp at center, and Pat Williams and Buddy Cheek at the guards.

Carolina started off quickly, with only three seconds elapsing before Jim White opened the scoring with a layup. Driving to an 11-2 lead in less than five minutes, the Tar Heel combination tallied 13 consecutive points shortly after word to take a 26-6 advantage. Hamilton scored eight of his first-half total during this spurt with Paxton, White and Sherman Nearman, a surprise starter, contributing.

Returning from an intermission count of 31-16, VPI found the range early and soon began to whittle the Tar Heel margin down. Holding Carolina to two foul points over an eight-minute period, the visitors ran their total from 24 to 41 to pull into a two-point deficit. The two quintets matched baskets for two minutes, after which the Phantoms took control for good.

Victory actually came at the foul line, where the Phantoms outscored the Gobblers, 17 to 5. VPI had a 28-20 lead in field goals.

Johnny Dillon saw limited action in the contest, playing less than 12 minutes in the second half due to a cold. His replacement, Nearman, played an outstanding game, giving the locals the necessary control of the boards along with "Mr. Rebound" Paxton.

Joe Ruddell, hitting consistently with long set shots, was high for the Gobblers, with a total of 13.

Di Senate Adopts Measure Condemning American Reds

After an hour and a half of lively debate, the Dialectic senate Wednesday night turned down a bill stating, "Communism is a menace to the independence of the United States," and adopted instead a substitute resolution presented by Senator Al Lowenstein to the effect that "American Communists constitute an active threat to the progress and democratic ideals in the United States."

Lowenstein, before presenting the resolution, attacked the main bill for its "vagueness," and urged the adoption of the new resolution. He added that the word "Communism" currently has numerous definitions and that no satisfactory discussion could be maintained until everyone was considering the same angle.

Beat with a Better System

Manny Margolis, DTH columnist and special guest of the Senate, previously asserted that "the way to beat a bad system is to beat it with a better system." He further stated that "Communism has a distinct function in our society in that it "jolts our self-assurance and conceit and stops us from living on our past laurels." He urged that it be fought with a "positive" program.

Recently elected CCC President Russell H. Johnson, however, attacked them as a definite menace and maintained that their influence should be checked. This viewpoint was challenged by Senator John Brock. He stated that although he could not agree with their ideas, he would stand up for their right to have them. He added that the Constitution guaranteed that right to every person under its jurisdiction.

Admit Chuck Heath

Prior to the main discussion, the membership application of Chuck Heath was accepted by unanimous consent of the body.

In presenting the applicant, Membership Chairman Charles Long stated that Heath's excellent record on the campus stood for itself, and the committee wholeheartedly approved his application. Initiation ceremonies are to be conducted next week it was announced.

Little to Say on Dorsey Suit...

Grail Delegata George Whitner Emphasizes Group Is Not Just Dance Sponsoring Society

By Bookie Jabine

"The Order of the Grail has been known too long only as a dance-giving organization," spoke blond George Whitner, new delegata, who was elected to that post earlier this quarter.

George and other members of the campus honorary group which was founded in 1921, are a mite concerned over the misconception that has arisen about Grail activities. When students think of the Grail these days, they usually think of an informal script dance in Woollen gymnasium. And more recently, they think of trouble with Tommy Dorsey, only big name band ever contracted by the Grail.

To Promote Good Will

But the Grail was originally founded to promote good will between different campus groups. In the roaring twenties there was a great deal of ill-feeling between fraternity students and men living in dormitories. The Grail was organized to cure this situation, and accomplished a great deal in cementing campus unity.

It was in this period that the "dance club" reputation grew. Grail officials at that time thought the best way to bring Greeks and dormitory men together was to give informal dances open to all at a price that everyone could pay. The success of this venture speaks for itself.

Offering six $75 scholarships to students is another function of the society which is modeled on the story of King Arthur and the Knights of the Round Table. These stipends are awarded on the basis of need rather than academic excellence. Said Whitner, "A student doesn't have to be a Phi Bete to be eligible for a Grail scholarship."

Helps Other Groups

When other organizations are in need the Grail often steps into the breach and finances some kind of activity for the benefit of the financially destitute group.

Two loan funds are maintained by the Grail, the first run on a similar plane with the University loan system for larger sums, while the second, called student character loans, are for spot cash of a smaller denomination.

GEORGE WHITNER

The Grail takes in 13 new members a year. Initiations held each spring quarter are among the most colorful and hilarious spectacles to be seen on the campus. Seven fraternity men, and six non-fraternity are taken in one year, while the next year the numbers are reversed.

Qualifications for Grail membership are not easily defined. However Whitner explained, "The Grail doesn't necessarily want big campus wheels. We are more interested in men who show a co-operative spirit and a willingness to work for the good of the University."

Officers elected by members are: delegata, exchequer, and scribe. None of these leaders receives a salary.

Whitner, the delegata, who will be at the helm until May, is a senior from Jacksonville, Florida, who entered here in 1941. During his first year, he made quite a name for himself as a record breaking breaststroker on Dick Jamerson's freshman swimming team.

Active in CPU

George was also active in the Carolina Political union before he left for the service. He was in the navy during the war and spent most of his time as a deck officer on the USS Alaska.

The new delegata has very little, as a matter of fact, almost nothing to say on the widely-publicized Dorsey suit. All George says is "the case comes before the bench this spring."

Booze Flows Like Milk As Two Trucks Collide In Wreck Near Concord

Concord, N. C.—(UP)—Liquor was being given away at the rate of almost one case a minute today on Highway 29-A near Concord.

Truck driver Pickens Godfrey of Charlotte handed his load to all takers as fast as they came after his truck was wrecked this morning. But apparently traffic wasn't heavy enough because he still had 45 cases of liquor left when police arrived. So the 28-year-old trucker is under $3,000 bond in Concord jail charged with transporting, possession and reckless driving.

The driver of the other truck involved in the accident, DeWitt Shifty of Charlotte, is free after posting $100 bond on a counter-charge of reckless driving.

Police say that Godfrey's truck was loaded with 80 cases of whiskey in Washington, D. C. last night. But they say when they arrived 45 minutes after the accident this morning 45 cases remained.

They said the owner of the truck is listed as C. F. Monteith of Charlotte but they haven't been able to reach him yet.

HOW STEADY ON THE TARGET?

If you've ever done any shooting, you know that lining up the target in your sights isn't too hard.

What is tough is keeping your aim steady until the trigger is squeezed, and the bullet starts for the bull's-eye.

Saving money is a lot like that for most of us. It isn't too hard to save a little every once in a while. But to keep our aim steadily on the target of financial security—to save, regularly, some part of everything we earn—has always been a really tough job!

Yet today it needn't be! There's a new, easy, automatic way to save and to keep on saving until you hit the mark you're shooting for. It's buying U. S. Savings Bonds on the Payroll Savings Plan!

What's more, every dollar you put into Savings Bonds does two extra jobs. It helps keep your country strong and financially sound. And it makes more money for you—for the $75 you save today will grow to $100 in just 10 years!

So keep on buying every bond you can afford. You can get them at any bank or post office. But the best way to buy is the steady way—the automatic way—on the Payroll Savings Plan!

SAVE THE EASY WAY... BUY YOUR BONDS THROUGH PAYROLL SAVINGS

NEWS BRIEFS

Bridges Warns Agency Chiefs

Says Officials Must Spurn Budget Order

Washington, Feb. 8—(UP)—The chairman of the Senate Appropriations committee has issued an ultimatum to cabinet officers and agency chiefs.

Senator Styles Bridges warned tonight that they must disregard President Truman's order to support his budget figures or run the risk of a boycott by the committee.

Refers to Order

The New Hampshire Republican was referring to a White House order that all heads of administration agencies are expected to back the President's budget estimates in expressing their views on Capitol Hill.

"We'll insist that department and agency heads speak their own minds on their spending needs," says Bridges. "We'll swear them in as witnesses, and we won't hear them unless they are ready to speak independently."

Funeral Rites Held For O. Max Gardner

Shelby, Feb. 8 — (UP) — North Carolina and the nation paid final tribute this afternoon to Ambassador and former Governor O. Max Gardner. Funeral services were held in the First Baptist church at Shelby for the 64-year-old Democratic leader who died Thursday in New York just a few hours before sailing to England as the U. S. ambassador. High officials from Washington and the state government were in the big funeral crowd.

Fuel Crisis Threatens End to Laborite Rule

London, Feb. 8—(UP)—Conservative leaders charge that the Labor government will fall unless it solves the fuel crisis. Opposition groups are expected to confer during the weekend on plans for urgent debate in Commons on Monday. Some think they might ask for a motion of non-confidence.

Weather Man Promises Warm Weather Monday

Chicago, Feb. 8 — (UP) — The weather man holds out a promise of warmer weather by Monday. Meanwhile, most of the nation east of the Rockies is suffering from the winter's worst cold wave. The cold also has extended into the deep South. The New England states and Mid-Atlantic are blanketed in snow.

Workers Face Lay-Off By Detroit Companies

Detroit, Feb. 8—(UP)—Two Detroit companies say they will lay off more than 18,000 auto workers Monday because of the lack of industrial gas. They are the Briggs Manufacturing and the Lincoln division of Ford.

Army Corporal Admits 'Black Dahlia' Murder

Fort Dix, N. J., Feb. 8—(UP)—Army Corporal Joseph Dumais has admitted that he believes that he killed 22-year-old Elizabeth Short, the girl called the "Black Dahlia" in Los Angeles last January 15. Army Captain William Florence says: "I am definitely convinced that this man the murderer."

Judge Porter Defends Governorship Decision

Rome, Ga., Feb. 8—(UP)—Superior Court Judge Claude Porter has defended his decision recognizing M. E. Thompson as the legal governor of Georgia. But he has no comment on whether Governor Talmadge will be cited for contempt for calling the ruling, in effect, a frame-up.

University to Hold Religion Week, February 23-28; Dr. Scherer Addresses Planning Committee Today

Group Will Plan Week of Events

Dr. Paul Scherer, pastor of the Lutheran church of The Trinity in New York City and one of the outstanding religious leaders of the United States, will speak at 7 o'clock tonight to Wesley foundation and members of the committees planning Religion in Life week, February 23-28. The meeting will be held at the Methodist church.

Dr. Scherer is the author of many outstanding religious books, the latest of which is "For We Have This Treasure," a collection of the sermons he delivered at Yale university in 1943 when he was chosen to deliver the famous Beecher lectures. He is a featured speaker on the Lutheran hour each Sunday which is broadcast over a nation-wide hookup.

Now at Union Seminary

Now professor of practical theology at Union Theological seminary in New York city, Dr. Scherer is delivering guest lectures at Duke Theological school this week. He is speaking in Duke chapel this morning and at the United church in Raleigh tomorrow night.

All students are invited to the social hour at 5 o'clock which begins the Wesley Foundation Sunday evening program. This will be followed by a supper at 6. Bill Sexton, chairman of the Religion in Life publicity committee, has called a special meeting of that group at the church at 5:30 o'clock.

KAY KYSER

Kay Kyser Visits Hill While Going to Shelby For Max Gardner Rites

Kay Kyser, famed Carolina alumnus from Rocky Mount paid an unexpected visit to Chapel Hill Friday night.

The popular entertainer spent Friday night in the Carolina Inn and traveled to Shelby with Comptroller W. D. Carmichael, Jr., to attend the funeral of O. Max Gardner, an old friend and fraternity brother, yesterday. He was expected to return here late last night.

Kyser, his wife, the former Georgia Carroll, and their eight-months-old daughter, Kimberly Ann, arrived in Rocky Mount Thursday from New York to visit the bandleader's mother, Mrs. P. B. Kyser.

The "Ole Professor" has recently been active in the North Carolina Good Health campaign and has been instrumental in enlisting numbers of Hollywood stars to make recordings for use in his home state's drive to enlighten the people of their health needs.

Kyser will return to New York this weekend for his Wednesday night radio program which last week was shifted east from Hollywood for an indefinite period.

Time For Action

The time has come for action!

Last summer, when the constitution bubble burst all over a group of confused students and administrative heads, hasty meetings and hurried conferences resulted in the information that the constitution was in effect except for the fees structure. It was stated that the fees structure would have to be worked out, but that it would probably go before the trustees for approval before fall.

Fall turned into winter, and winter is now approaching that first breath of spring.

Now after much committee and legislative bickering, the article concerning the fee structure stands as it was: "The student legislature shall have power to levy and collect all student fees except athletic fees, but total fees shall not exceed $20 per student per calendar year, unless the total amount of fees levied is changed by a majority vote of at least 50 per cent of the student body."

Student government heads in conjunction with the administration held out for an amendment changing $20 to $12. In essence, they wasted much time arguing about no real change. Look at the following figures:

As the amendment seekers wanted the fee structure, students would pay $12 for three quarters. An additional fee of one dollar per quarter for Graham Memorial would be added. From those going to summer school, an additional four dollar payment would be forthcoming. If a student went to school the year around under this plan, his total amount of fees paid would be 12 plus 4 plus 4, which equals $20. Ergo, as concerns the controversy, much ado about nothing.

To make it even simpler a committee presented the bill to Dean Weaver, representing the administration, broken down as follows. Under the constitution, each student would pay a maximum of five dollars per quarter, one dollar of which would go to Graham Memorial. The rest would be allocated by the student legislature. Figuring on a basis of three quarters only, therefore, the student would be paying $15. Subtract the three dollars going to GM, and again you have $12.

The plan is amazingly simple. No more time should be wasted debating it.

Time has become precious. Unless the new fees system can go into effect before April first, it will have to wait another year—and another year of the present confusion would drive even some of the most persistent workers for a better student government into a state of don't-give-a-damness.

Tomorrow the Board of Trustees of the University meets. The fee structure plan, simplified into terms of quarters, can be presented to them TOMORROW. The plan has received the approval of Student Body President Dewey Dorsett and other student leaders. Yet the administration, while noting nothing wrong with the plan, doesn't think it can be presented tomorrow. They claim they haven't studied it enough.

For more than seven confused months, the constitution has been picked over like a chicken bone. In seven months, the administration has had time to consider all of its aspects. The time for consideration is long past. Immediate action is necessary.

If the fees section is not presented to the Board of Trustees tomorrow, its chance of being in effect by April will be slim. And if it is not presented to the trustees and made ready for operation by April, a crime of negligence will have been perpetrated against the student body.

In spite of numerous requests for earlier agitation on the subject from many irked students, we have waited patiently for something to happen.

Now we believe the time has come for something to happen.

To paraphrase a popular expression, it is time to act, or get off the stage.

Ruby James Picked As Queen Of Veterans' Valentine Hop

Ruby James, smiling brunette beauty from Lenoir, reigned as queen of the University Veterans association Valentine dance held in the clubhouse Friday evening. President Roy Moose placed a red and silver crown on the queen's head and presented her with a large Valentine box of candy and a gold compact. Jim Chesnutt, former UVA president was the queen's escort.

Judges for the contest were Mrs Victor Humphreys, hostess of Kenan dormitory, Dean Fred Weaver, and Mr. and Mrs. Roy Armstrong.

Judge Armstrong, who is University admissions officer, commented after the queen was crowned, "I thought I had a hard job with thousands of students trying to get into the University, but picking the most beautiful of all those pretty girls was even harder."

Runners up for the queenship were Marian Parker, Gail Griffith, Nina Thomas and Emily Von Borries. The clubhouse was decorated in the Valentine motif with large red crepe paper hearts festooned with red crepe paper nosegays embellished on the two white brick chimneys. The motif was repeated with smaller hearts placed between the windows which were festooned with greenery.

The Carolinians played for the affair.

Noted Churchmen Will Lead Groups

By Darley Lochner

Fourteen outstanding Catholic, Jewish and Protestant churchmen will lead Religion in Life week here from February 23 to 28. Over 60 students and 20 faculty advisers, members of committees appointed by the Council of Religion in Life which is sponsoring the week, are now making final plans for a complete week centered around religious activities.

Dr. Elton Trueblood, professor of philosophy at Earlham college in Richmond, Ind., and widely known author, will address the first session of Religion in Life week Sunday night, February 23.

Talks Each Evening

Special talks are planned in Hill hall at 8:30 each evening of the conference. Kenneth J. Foreman, professor of Bible and philosophy at Davidson, will be the speaker Monday night. Tuesday night Dr. W. R. Barnhart, Head of the department of religion at Hood college in Frederick, Md., will address the group.

The topic for Wednesday night's meeting will be "Religion and World Order." Rabbi Abraham Feinstein of Chattanooga, Tenn., member of the Central conference of American Rabbis, will represent the Jewish faith; John G. Ramsay, community relations representative of the CIO organizing committee, the Protestants. The Catholic leader is yet to be chosen.

W. CARSON RYAN

Ryan Will Discuss Chinese Situation At CPU Roundtable

W. Carson Ryan, head of the University's department of education, will address the Carolina Political union's meeting tonight on the subject of China.

Dr. Ryan, who has just returned from his second trip to that nation in as many years, will discuss China, especially in relation to the changes which have occurred there recently. During his two trips Dr. Ryan has conferred with Madame Chaing Kai-shek, as well as many other Chinese leaders.

It is expected that tonight he will comment upon Secretary of State Marshall's recent order withdrawing troops from China.

As usual, an open discussion and question period will follow the informal talk, which takes place in the Grail room, Graham Memorial, at 8 o'clock.

GLEE CLUB

The Men's Glee club will meet at 4:30 tomorrow afternoon instead of 5:00.

Eateries to Help Make Collections For Funds Drive

By Ed Long

Carolina students will have an opportunity this week to share food with fellow students in universities in Europe and Asia. In connection with the World Student Service fund campaign, which starts tomorrow, students will be asked to pay double for at least one meal Wednesday and Thursday of this week.

Extra money collected from eating places cooperating with the campaign will be taken by WSSF and sent directly overseas to feed hungry students. Members of the central committee for the campus feel that this will not be a sacrifice for students since the average American student has sometimes more than four times as much food in a day than a central European student. "Take a fellow student to dinner" cards will be distributed at eating places by members of various religious groups on the campus.

Advance Pledges Made

Advance pledges have already been made by members of the central committee of the WSSF, the solicitors, YMCA cabinet and some church groups. Various special projects, also, have been planned by groups on the campus. Religious groups are taking charge of visiting faculty members for the campaign, and the Canterbury club voted last week to have the offering taken at its corporate communion next Sunday, given to WSSF.

Walt Stuart and Gay Morenus, co-chairmen for the drive, pointed out that this is to be the only fund raising program for students and faculties of devastated countries supported entirely by students and faculty members in colleges of the United States and other countries.

Town Students' Booth in Y

Special emphasis is placed on the fact that all dormitories, fraternity and sorority houses, Victory Village, Swain hall and Pittsboro road trailer camps will be solicited, and that the booth which is to be in the lobby of the YMCA is for contributions by town students and others who will not be canvassed by solicitors.

Laboratory Theatre To Give Performance In Union This Evening

Edna St. Vincent Millay's original play "Aria da Capo" will be presented in three performances by the Laboratory theater of the Carolina Playmakers in the main lounge of Graham Memorial tonight at 8, 9 and 10 o'clock. Sponsored by the student union, the production will be free to all students and townspeople.

Madeline Cooley and David Hooks will head the cast of Miss Millay's satire on war. Written in verse with stylized characters presenting the author's thesis, Cooley and Hooks will assume the light roles of Columbine and Pierrot from the Commeria de l'arte to be contrasted to the pictoral drama of two shepherds. James Reilly and Mac Shaw will be seen as the shepherds. Blanton Miller will represent the Masque of Tragedy.

The technical staff will be headed by Lois Warnshuis, who directed the production. John McKinney designed the set and costumes while Betty Young will be stage manager. Serving on the staff are James Reilly, Eleanor Ringer, Terell Everett and Bill Ayers.

The Laboratory Theater, under Foster Fitzsimons' supervision, meets each Sunday night at 8 o'clock in Murphey Hall for play readings. Harry Thomas is in charge of the group.

TVA Attorneys Charges Atom Commission Head

Washington, Feb. 8—(UP)—A discharged TVA attorney has charged that David Lilienthal tried to get senators to lobby for Lilienthal's confirmation as head of the Federal Atomic commission. He was lawyer L. B. Bolt.

Faux Pas

"If that's the way politics and student government are run at Carolina, I want no part of any of it."

We have heard that statement altogether too often in the past week from members of the freshman class, speaking in reference to the freshman and sophomore elections held last week.

After talking to them, and studying what went on, we agree that the freshman and sophomore elections were nothing short of a joke—and a very unfunny one at that.

Not only was the whole procedure announced, held, and finished in two days time, but some reports hold that even the manner in which the votes were counted was slightly tainted.

This is no reflection on the candidates for office, who were probably only slightly less confused than the other members of the class.

But it is a reflection on the people responsible for calling and holding the elections. Their actions were unfortunate in that they created a distinctly bad general impression of the manner in which the election was conducted and of Carolina student government as a whole among the new men.

Considerable question exists in our mind as to the constitutionality of the elections. Certainly, one day's time was far from adequate preparation and publicity for the election.

We cannot afford to leave a bad taste in the political mouths of our future campus leaders. They have a very legitimate gripe concerning the freshman and sophomore elections. Months of progress can be lost by one such faux pas by our student leaders.

There Is A Cure

It is interesting, to say the least, to study the replies received by the Daily Tar Heel from representative students as to why the student body lacked interest in campus elections.

All of the answers seem to boil down to one hard, startling, but true, fact. They just don't give a damn.

Lethargy—the most overused word on this campus at the present time. Lethargy implies a state, marked by an aversion to activity, which has been induced by disease.

There is a cure for lethargy. It is interest. The trouble with our national government today could also be said to be that it makes no difference to too many people which party or candidate holds office—as long as their way of living isn't changed greatly and they continue to be comfortable. As long as they can still get beer at Jeff's they don't care who is president of the student body or what amendment the student legislature is fighting over.

We wonder if these students who claim that student government doesn't affect them would have anything to say were this cherished possession taken away. Perhaps torpor would be a better word to express the current student body reaction—one of mental sluggishness and apathy.

But if students are not interested in their own student government and leadership, we have reached an impasse. Student government is government of, for, and by the students. If we reach the point where the students feel that the "of" and "for" are negligible and the "by" limited to a few, student government is failing.

It is time to come out of your shells. Look around and see what your student leaders are doing. Make your opinions heard and felt. If you don't like something, let your representatives know. Anything beneficial for the students must originate and be campaigned for by the students themselves. You can make your University a better place to live through your interest in its government.

Many students are vitally inteersted in campus aaffirs and government. But they remain in the minority. We don't ask you to get involved in power politics. We only seek your interest in providing for a better Carolina. The voice of the students will always be heard—provided it's loud enough.

Independence Movement Is Natural, Healthy Symptom

By Manny Margolis

How contagious an independence movement is! What a fortunate political and economic disease! It grows like a cancer on the body of empire and there is no stopping it. It has no prevention, no cure. And yet it is a healthy and natural symptom for a world which is constantly shrinking.

Colonial Asia offers a perfect example of how chronic this condition can become. There, the people's struggle for national recognition and liberation from exploitation is in its early stages. They are tired of bearing the white man's burdens, tired of unrepaid toil, tired of the chronic injustices of colonial rule. The peoples of China, India, Indonesia, Burma, French Indo-China—half of the world's population—are rattling their chains.

French Indo-China or, to be realistically correct, the Viet Nam Republic, offers a case in point. An editorial in the January 22nd issue of the "New York Times" held this truth to be self-evident, stating:

"The struggle in Indo-China remains a violently inflamed symptom of the eagerness of all former colonial peoples of the Far East for national independence."

The editorial candidly stated further, in words of practically one syllable, "The colonial system is dead in the Orient."

The Annamites (Indo-Chinese nationalists) are fighting for freedom. This is their 1776. They've had their Boston Massacre—ten-fold worse!—in the little village of Co-am. Their Lexington and Concord are a pair of cities called Saigon and Hanoi. Their Declaration of Independence reads:

"They (the French) have deprived us of all liberties. They have imposed upon us inhuman laws. . . They have built more prisons than schools. . .They have despoiled our ricelands, our mines, our forests."

Based on official French statistics, the French "cultural" and "civilizing" mission in Indo-China has compiled the following dismal record (quoted in the Feb. 3rd issue of the "New Republic"):

"In their time, the French built 31 hospitals in the colony and 81 prisons, not including concentration camps. . .Forty years after the conquest, there was elementary education of a crude kind available for 2 per cent of the population and secondary education available for 0.5 per cent. . .Three libraries and one so-called 'university' were established in the country."

Like the peoples of continental Europe, the peoples of Asia are facing a clear choice between two types of "democracy." They are impatient from centuries of physical and mental bondage. They will accept friendship and support wherever they can find it. The 24 million people of Indo-China are merely the armed vanguard of some 600,000,000 forcibly colonized peoples. Think of it—more than four times the population of the United States!

And every time French troops win another "battle" with U. S. lend-lease guns and planes, this country loses another sphere of democratic influence.

Fortunately for us, Communist prestige among the Viet Namese has not been reaching any zenyths either, with the exception of the influence of a number of the partisan leaders who are Communists. Harold R. Isaacs, staff correspondent for "Newsweek," points this out in his soon-to-be-published book, "No Peace for Asia." Says Mr. Isaacs:

"The Annamite communists, like all their fellow nationalists, suffered from a terrifying sense of their isolation. . .Even the most orthodox among them, like shaggy-haired Dran van Giau, the partisan organizer, granted that the Russians went in for 'an excess of ideological compromise,' and said he expected no help from that quarter. . ."

France, meanwhile, has remained a veritable political violin—held in the left hand and played by the right. Francois Billoux, a Communist, heads the ministry for National Defense (War). Georges Bidault, of the M. R. P., heads the Foreign Affairs Ministry. Socialists head the Cabinet and the Assembly. But no party has as yet led any strong opposition movement to the die-hard imperialist policy which their coalition government has formulated with regard to their precious "real estate" which was lost during the war.

And yet, the following editorial bull's-eye by C. L. Sulzberger in the January 4th issue of the "New York Times" is prophetically illuminating:

"Whether France will be able to hang on to her empire under an economic guise, as Britain has done with her possessions in the Far East—and the United States has emphatically done in its own quiet way with the Philippines —remains to be seen."

'Esse Quam Videri'....

Debate Over Constitutional Provisions Has Progressed

By Al Lowenstein

Debate over the suggested revisions to the Constitution has come along lot, at last.

It wasn't very long ago that the President's committee which wrote, a therefore might understandably favor, all the amendments was deman that the Legislature approve its work en toto. There were angry mutter to the effect that the Legislature would pass the amendments, by gum, or committee (through "recourse to Initiative") would by-pass the Legislature.

And, on the other hand, there was the very vocal group which threw up its voice in alarm every time anyone dared suggest even discussing the amendments. Both sides managed to upearth all kinds of generalized principles and cheerfully, almost carefully, ignored questions of the value of each individual alteration.

Some of us, who could adhere to neither extreme position, sought to regard each proposed change as an entity. We soon discovered there were other confusing and misleading factors. The trivial nature of some of the amendments, and the just plain number of amendments, was impressive. Or perhaps depressive.

And it soon became apparent that in the two most important revisions, at least, the amendment as offered could not conceivably serve the purpose it presumably was intended to serve.

So, with extraneous "principles" being used on all sides to cloud brickbats with haloes—and with amendments not actually amending what they seemed at first glance to amend—confusion was perhaps the first outstanding feature of the Constitutional debate. Happily, "both sides" either have run out of brickbats or have gotten tired of-throwing them, and the week-end has seen the virtual end of the "All amendments as proposed" and "No amendments on (general) principles" schools of thought.

Debate over the revisions would logically center on these points: (1) Is the change directed toward a meritorious end? (2) Is it important enough to warrant an amendment now? (3) Would the amendment, if passed, actually accomplish what it purportedly would?

Agreement on the fee structure now appears imminent, largely because, applying these criteria, seemingly insuperable differences of opinion were proven more apparent than real.

The same treatment should be applied to the Student Council question.

The President's committee professes to be primarily concerned with doing away with the "Appeal" features of the Constitutionally-created judiciary. And many of us agree that the right to appeal from one student court to another, though theoretically justifiable, has not worked out as its authors had hoped it would. Indeed, after a flurry of protests against eliminating the "inalienable right of appeal" had subsided under rather weighty evidence of the speciousness of this argument, almost everyone could agree that the Constitutional set-up needed amending.

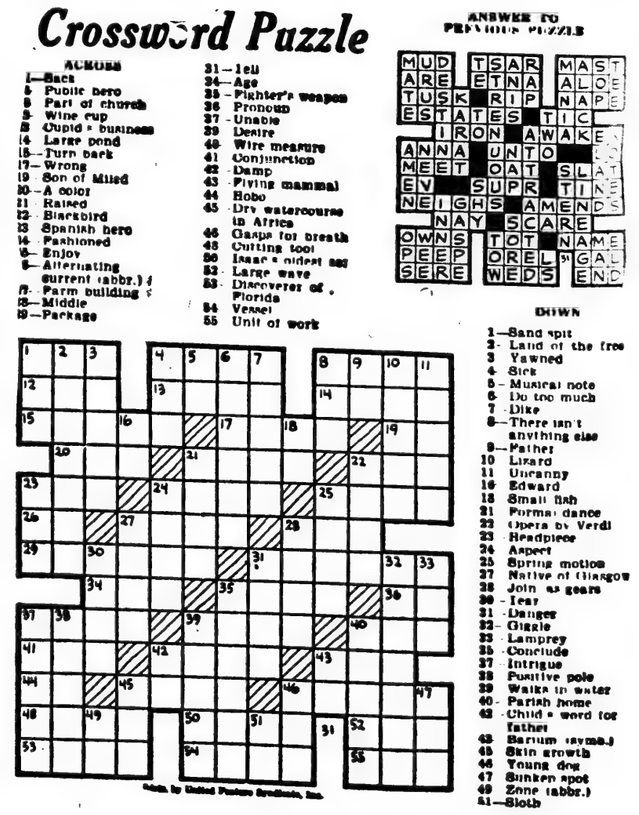
The proposals of the Dorsett group struck out the right of appeal, to be sure. But this was accomplished by striking at the very roots of the Constitution itself; and, confronted with a choice between No Appeal and Constitution on the one hand, and status quo (for the time being the other—I'll confess it took something less than a personal Armageddon to decide.

At least one attempt at writing constitution for this student body abandoned when it became appare that attitudes then prevalent in some circles would make amalgamation o woman's and men's government possible to any appreciable degree Rather than have a constitution around in those circles, the whole id was abandoned for the nonce. A this Constitution—if it accomplishe nothing else—established a supreme legislative group for the campus, with the Coed Senate subordinate to it created a bisexual supreme court. I short, it made one in government t physical unity of this campus.

No one has forthrightly suggeste tearing down this structure; but con sider the proposed Council amen ments—realize the effect of separate courts enforcing laws passe by one legislature, carried out by executive! The appeal goes, sure, bu so does the amalgamation—and with it much of the Constitution! It would be sensible simply to throw in a second constitution for Woman's Coequa Government, if you throw out the core of the one we now have!

The reason for Women's and Men's Councils in the first place is fairly obvious: Certain types of offenses, it is felt, should be handled by courts of the same sex as is the accused. And that this should be true of violations of the Campus Code seems logical and certainly is presently unavoidable But in cases involving cheating, lying, stealing—the Honor Code—in cases involving violations of the Constitution or of acts of the Legislature, what valid objection can there be to men and women being tried by men and women?

Eliminate the appeal, but preserve to students the right to expect equal justice, regardless of sex, in those cases where social offenses are not at all involved!



This can be done simply; and once the principle underlying this plan is accepted the difficulties which inevitably appear in any constitutional prattle can be ironed out. And then once again, seemingly insuperable differences of opinion shall be proven more apparent than real.

Then the Constitutional debate will have come all the way, and something constructive will have been accomplished by all this, if it be nothing more than the discovery—startling though it be to some—of ways in which student leaders can function effectively together!

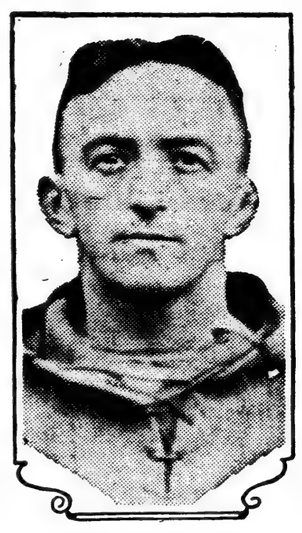
Grapplers Capture Fourth Loop Match Via Shutout Route

By Bob Goldwater

Carolina's powerful mat crew turned in its most impressive performance of the season in Woollen gym yesterday afternoon by scoring a 28-0 shutout over Washington and Lee for the Tar Heels' fourth straight Southern conference victory.

By winning, Coach Chuck Quinlan's charges assured themselves of at least a tie for the loop leadership come nightfall, the final disposition depending on the outcome of the VMI-Duke mat clash. A Cadet triumph would pull VMI into a first-place deadlock with the Tar Heels while the Blue Devils will take over second place should they win.



Lone Pin of Meet

Carolina's Bill Kemp turned in the lone pin of the afternoon in the 175-pound division by flooring Ken Lindell in 2:14 of the first round. The remaining points were scored on six decisions and a forfeit to Carl Simpson in the heavyweight class.

Tom Urquhart, Oscar Gupton, and Co-Captains Tommy Hearn and Dick Seaver all maintained their undefeated slates by posting victories via the decision route. Hearn gained a two-point time advantage to defeat Charlie Stieff in the 136-pound class for his 10th straight triumph over a two-year span. Seaver rolled up the high score of the match by downing Ed Shelmerdine, 10-2, at 145 pounds. Gupton registered an 8-0 shutout over Bill Metzel at 165 pounds while Urquhart blanked Jim Connelly, 4-0, in the 128-pound division.

In the closest battle of the afternoon, Irv Zirpel turned in a 7-6 decision over Bob Crockett at 165 pounds, winning by virtue of a time advantage. Doug Thompson won the opening match of the meet with a 6-0 triumph over Bill Townsend in the 121-pound group.

Next encounter for the local grapplers will be Wednesday when the Tar Heels journey to Duke to oppose the Blue Devil team.

COACH QUINLAN

. . . his boys won fourth straight . . .

Trackmen Off To Fast Start

Tar Heel track hopes rose to a new high yesterday when the squad showed good all around strength in their informal competition with Duke.

Ted Shultz showed his old form that crowned him conference sprint champion in 1943 by copping the 60 yard dash in 6.7. Roger Neighborgal, Duke star, finished second with Bucky Horton in third spot.

The mile relay saw Duke nip the Carolina team in a close finish. Neighborgal, running the anchor leg for the Blue Devils, beat off the challenge of Don Nelson in the last lap and crossed the line about five yards ahead.

Chunk Simmons captured both hurdle events in fine time with freshman Bob Morrow taking seconds in both runs.

Coach Dale Ranson said, "The team showed up well in its first competition and with some more work and experience we can have a fine team this year." The track mentor added that, "We still can use any boys in school with talent for help in not only the board season but the forthcoming outdoor meets."

Locals Quell Late Uprising To Register 55-46 Victory

By Jim Pharr

Carolina's potent White Phantoms topped a last-half Wildcat surge to defeat the Davidson five, 55-46, to give the local cagers their fifth conference victory here last night.

Norm Kohler had 13 points to lead the Phants for the evening. Bob Paxton took second place in the scoring with 12 points. Tommy Peters and Ed White paced the Davidsonians with 10 points each.

The Phantoms took a lead during the first half and led 20-16 at intermission. The Cats came back to come within four points of tieing the local cagemen, but the Phantoms zoomed into the lead with several field goals and were never headed from that point on.

Davidson took an early lead in the opening moments of the game when diminutive Ed White tossed in a lay-up and followed it wit ha foul shot. George Peters dropped in a foul shot nad the Wildcats led, 4-0.

A little later Norm Kohler got hot for the Tar Heels, pumping in several long set shots that played a big part in tying the game, 7-7, with seven minutes gone in the first period. Paxton and Ed White matched shots and then Hamilton dropped in a layup to put the Tar Heels out in front, 11-9.

With Carolina leading 14-12 with about five minutes to go in the first half, Pat Williams and Malcolm Earp sunk fouls to tie the ball game at 14-14. Lanky John Dillon put the White Phantoms out in front with a foul shot, only to have Earp sink another lang one to make it 16-15, Davidson.

Then Bob "Mr. Rebound" Paxton got hot. The Spokane, Wash., forward shot a couple long ones and it was 19-16, Carolina. Kohler dumped in a foul shot and Carolina led, 20-16, as the intermission gun went off.

Kohler put the Phants out in front in the early minutes of the second half with two foul shots to make the count 22-16. Peters sunk a field goal and White contributed a foul shot to make it 22-19. Then Pat Williams sunk one from center court to make it 22-22, Carolina.

Paxton and Hamilton matched shots with Mike Williams and Ed White a few moments later and the score was 30-26, with the White Phantoms out in front.

With five minutes gone in the second half, Kohler pumped in a long one and the Phants led, 40-30. Mike Williams shot from the outside to narrow the margin to 41-32. Kohler made a foul shot good and Jim Hamilton dropped one to make it 44-32, Carolina. Earp and Dillon matched foul shots to make the count 46-33 midway in the final period.

Dillon hooked one of his famous shots to give the Phants two more points. Pat Williams sunk a long shot to bring the count to 48-34, Carolina.

Kohler sunk a foul shot, which the Wildcats matched with two free throws by Cobb and Ed White. Then George Peters made a long shot to make it 49-38, with five minutes remaining in the game.

Cheek, Peters, and Cobb fired away to narrow the margin to 49-46, Carolina. And then the Phants turned on the steam. Sherman Nearman and Jim Hamilton each sunk a field goal and it was 52-46, with Carolina leading. Several foul shots and it was all over.

Swimming Bulletin!

At press time last night, Carolina's Blue Dolphin swimming team closely trailed State college's mermen at the end of four events in the Carolina AAU meet in Raleigh. Emory was in third position.

The Tar Heel swimmers suffered a disheartening loss in the all-important national junior AAU 300 yard medley relay when the Emory aggregation nosed them out by three feet.

Dolphins strutted their stuff in the diving event, taking all three places. Winner was Norman Sper, followed by Buddy Crone and Erle.

Bill Kelly of State took the 220 yard freestyle; Ward of State and Harrington of VMI tied in the 50 yard freestyle event.

Winter Football Starts Tomorrow

The winter term of off-season football practice will get under way tomorrow afternoon with over 100 candidates expected to report to Coach Carl Snavely.

The exact length of the winter drills has not been decided on as yet, and it will probably depend on how well the gridders show up in the first weeks of workouts. In the spring there will be a second series of practices which Coach Snavely has labeled as the principal working period. The winter drills are primarily for men who missed last season's spring practice, new men, and those who feel the need of extra work on their respective talents.

The majority of men who have seen action with either the varsity or junior varsity in the past years now in school have been notified by letter of the drills. Any other potential gridders who have not received word of the workouts are still cordially invited to take part.

Drills will be held on Monday through Friday beginning each day promptly at four. During the latter part of the session scrimmages will probably be held on Saturday mornings.

Old Liner Outfit Hands 6-2 Defeat To Local Ringmen

By Morty Schaap

The Maryland Terrapin ringmen proved too much for the men of Ronman as they walked off with a 6-2 win in Woollen gym last night.

In the 145 pound class undefeated Dick Young fought to a draw with Oldliner Ed Reider. Young showed plenty of boxing finesse and cleverly outpointed his slugging opponent. The decision was very questionable and the crowd of approximately 4,000 voiced their sentiments on the matter.

Bill Sunas opened the evening's festivities in dropping a close decision to visitor Dan McLaughlin. Both boys showed potent right hands and threw plenty of leather with neither doing much damage.

In the heavyweight division a newcomer to ring circles "Walloping Bill" Spiegel fought a slugging bee with Maryland's Ken Malone. The two boys hit hard and fought cautiously with the decision being a draw.

Coach Ronman stopped the bout in the 145 pound class when Charlie Norton was being hit at will by his more experienced opponent, John Albarano. The first two rounds were fairly even with both fighters throwing all their clothes from the basement. The TKO came was 1:50 of the third round.

Conway Rose [illegible] him to a vicious right hook thrown by Andy Quattrocchi of Maryland in 1:50 of the third round, in the 135 pound class. Quattrocchi billed as one of the hardest hitters in collegiate circles, showed his abilities by throwing a series of right and left hand bolo punches. The first round saw Rose weather the hard punches of his opponent. The second round wrote finis as Rose partially blocked a left hook and fell off balance and there and then it was all over as the kayo punch came up from the floor.

The 130 pound class ended in Tar Heel Charlie Lambeth fighting a draw with the visiting Al Salkowski. Lambeth used his reach to good advantage, but could not entirely hold off his smaller opponent.

Netters Meet Tuesday

There will be a meeting of all candidates for the 1947 varsity tennis squad Tuesday afternoon at 3 o'clock in 207 Woollen, Coach John Kenfield announced yesterday.

Ten Mural Quintets Remain Unbeaten

Five intramural cage quintets left the undefeated ranks during the past week, leaving 10 still on the list, according to figures released yesterday by Intramural Director Walter Rabb.

Two fraternities dropped off the select list while three dormitories suffered their initial setbacks. Unbeaten units top every league, with the exception of fraternity circuit two, where SAE No. 1, Phi Gam No. 1 and Kappa Sig No. 3 are deadlocked with 4-1 records. Fraternity loop four is the lone league having two teams with perfect slates, PiKA No. 1 and Phi Delt still tied with 4-0.

In the other fraternity leagues, Chi Phi No. 2 leads loop one with 5-0, followed by Phi Kappa Sig No. 1 with 4-1. Beta tops circuit three with 4-0, with Pi Lamb No. 2 and Kappa Psi tied for second with 3-1. ATO No. 1, with 4-0, rules loop five and Sigma Chi No. 1 tops league six with the same record, pursued by Chi Psi and SAE No. 2 with 3-1 slates.

In the dormitory leagues, the closest race is in loop four, where unbeaten Emanon rules the roost with 4-0 and Med School and Nash are deadlocked for the runner-up post with 3-1. Everett, with 3-0, is closely pursued in league three by BVP No. 2 while the Grads, with a 5-0 record, are followed by Lewis in circuit one. The Independents complete the undefeated list with a 4-0 record in league two, where Stacy is in second place with 3-1.

In the handball competition, the Phi Delts and Kappa Sigs have reached the finals of the fraternity division and will battle for the championship tomorrow afternoon. Phi Delt downed DKE to gain one final berth while Kappa Sig defeated Pi Lamb to move into the final round.

In the dormitory league, the Med School has entered a protest regarding its championship match with Aycock, held last Thursday. As soon as a decision is reached by the Protest committee, the match will either be rescheduled or Aycock will be declared the dormitory champion.

Tomorrow's schedule:

BASKETBALL

4:00—court 5: KA No. 3 vs Phi Kap No. 2; court 7: Sigma Nu No. 2 vs Beta No. 2.

5:00—court 5: Graham vs Delancy Maulers; court 7: Chi Phi No. 1 vs St. Anthony.

6:00—court 5: Sigma Nu No. 1 vs Phi Kap No. 3; court 7: Phi Delt No. 3 vs Pi Lamb No. 2.

HANDBALL

5:00—Phi Delt vs Kappa Sig.

North Georgia Forensic Squad Takes Double Win in Debates

Displaying experienced finesse in place of oratorical polish, a strong North Georgia college forensic team swept both ends of yesterday's debate in Di hall on the query: Resolved, that labor should have a direct share in the management of industry.

The Peach state debaters took the first debate in which they argued the negative by a 2-1 decision, and taking the affirmative, won the second by 2-0, one judge voting for a tie.

Georgians Win

In the first debate, Gene Wood and Helen Pierce of North Georgia effectively tore down the arguments of Russell Baldwin and John Ehle of Carolina.

North Georgia's Quinlan Coker and H. J. Miller won the second argument from Richard Mottsman and John Hall of the local squad.

Judges for the contest were: Frank Kottke, George Lent, and Rev. J. G. Herrin.

Phi Assembly Will Consider Changes in Student Council

By John Giles

Opposition to the proposed Student council Constitutional amendments is expected to come to a head tomorrow night at 7:30 in the Phi hall at a special session of the Philanthropic assembly called to consider the Dorsett revisions to the campus judiciary system. The President of the Student body, Dewey Dorsett will defend his proposals before the Assembly.

The controversy which flared in the Student Legislature last Thursday night was postponed in that body, when the Student council resolutions were tabled, until its session this week. Three points of view on the proposals have come to the fore. One faction, led by President Dorsett, maintains that the Student council setup should retain jurisdiction only in those cases involving questions of constitutionality.

Second Faction

A second group, supported by Jimmy Wallace and Jim Taylor, maintains that the present structure has no grave defect, that the system as it now stands has not been given an adequate opportunity to prove its merits or demerits and that the right of appeal should be inviolate.

The third faction, and so called middle-of-the-roaders, has rallied behind the Lowenstein plan which maintains that the right of appeal to the Student council is not the main cause for argument but that the fundamental structure of the campus government is at stake. They argue that the Council is a prime necessity to maintain the present amalgamation of men's and women's student government.

Others Invited

In addition to Dorsett, Taylor, Wallace, and Lowenstein, Charlie Warren, Joe Byrd, and Tom Eller have been invited to speak on the issue. Debate over the amendments, which has already become heated in private circles, is expected to be hot from the beginning.

Negro Student Gets AVC Aid

Group Donates $17 For Admission Fight

Members of the Chapel Hill chapter of the American Veterans committee have donated seventeen dollars to the AVC chapter at the University of Texas to aid in the fight to obtain admission to the Texas law school of Negro Marion Sweat, according to an announcement by Chairman Ben Rouzie.

Local veterans became interested in the case when it was learned that Sweat had been refused admission despite a ruling by the Supreme court that his application could not be denied unless the state made suitable arrangements for him elsewhere.

Consider Matter Further

The local AVC chapter will meet Tuesday evening at 7:30 o'clock in the Presbyterian church for further consideration of this matter and others. Top item on Tuesday's agenda will be the consideration of a new army court-martial bill introduced by representative Durham of North Carolina to the congress. This bill provides for the seating of enlisted men on courts-martial.

Meeting Scheduled By Student Party

Members of the Student party will convene this afternoon at 4 o'clock in the Candlelight room of Graham Memorial to discuss candidates for student government offices in the spring elections. Also in order will be the discussion of party candidates for the editorship of the campus publications.

Chairman Jack Booraem stated that the party will also elect a new chairman, the election of which was postponed several weeks ago because of a tying vote between Johnny Clampitt and Johnny Jones.

Party members will also discuss and vote on a set of by-laws for the political organization which will be reported on by the committee to which they were referred last week.

Booraem also said that ideas for party platform planks would be discussed and urged that all members be present.

Andrews to Be Speaker At IRC Forum Meeting

"World Government or World Destruction?" is the topic for discussion at the weekly meeting of the International Relations club, which will be held in the Roland Parker lounge in Graham Memorial tomorrow night at 7:30. John Bristow will conduct the informal discussion, and David Andrews, Student Federalist group chairman, will be guest speaker.

Connor to Address Group On Public Health Plan

Campus Leaders Urged to Attend Session Tomorrow Afternoon in Graham Memorial

Louis M. Connor, Jr., will discuss the North Carolina State Public Health bill, its legislative status, and make suggestions as to ways students can aid in its adoption before a group of campus leaders tomorrow afternoon in the Horace Williams lounge of Graham Memorial. Connor is public relations director for the Hospital Saving association of North Carolina and an alumnus of the University.

Statement by Conner

With regard to students working for a better health program in North Carolina, Connor said:

"The promotion of better health for the people of North Carolina offers a challenge to the younger generation in our effort to make a contribution to the welfare of the state.

"Through the student press and student organizations much has been contributed to the plan of the Medical Care commission, the March of Dimes, the program of the Cancer society, and other similar health movements.

"There are many deevlopments such as government hospital building programs, our own Good Health plan, and voluntary prepayment health plans that merit the careful study of students interested in the problems of health and economics."

Leaders Urged to Attend

Blount Stewart, local chairman of public health committee for the Committee of North Carolina will preside. All campus leaders are urged to attend in order that plans can get under way to crystallize efforts for the passage of this bill.

Carolina Artists Open Exhibit Here

Formal opening of the North Carolina Artists exhibit will take place this afternoon at 4:30 o'clock in Person Hall Art gallery. Refreshments will be served and the public is cordially invited to attend.

On view in the exhibit will be paintings by such prominent North Carolina artists as Hobson Pittman, Nell Booker, Kenneth Evett, Murray Jones, Donald Mattison and Francis Speight.

The exhibit is being sponsored by the Friends of Person Hall and officers of the organization and students working on art projects in connection with it will be introduced by John V. Alcott, head of the Art Department, at the opening.

S & F REHEARSALS

Sound and Fury rehearsals for both chorus and principals will be held tomorrow night starting promptly at 7 o'clock.

All persons concerned by this announcement are requested to be on hand without fail.

Co-op Buying Club To Meet Tomorrow In Bingham Hall

Chapel Hill buying club officials are expecting the largest turnout in the organization's brief history when co-op members assemble in 103 Bingham hall at 7:45 o'clock tomorrow evening for the second buying meeting of the winter quarter.

In announcing tomorrow's meeting chairman Tom McDade emphasized that orders for canned goods will be accepted in lots of three rather than only by the case as was necessary at January's meeting.

Organized last fall by a group of veterans faced with the problem of supporting a family on $90 per month amidst rising prices the co-op has expanded to the point where it has now been incorporated as the Chapel Hill Mutual Distributors, Inc., with the number one objective of establishing a permanent store in Chapel Hill.

Membership in the co-op is open to anyone who purchases one share of stock at one dollar per share. Co-op officials point out that this stock bears interest at five per cent per year in addition to permitting purchase of groceries at wholesale prices.

Orders taken at tomorrow's meeting will be delivered Saturday, February 15 through neighborhood chairmen located in town, at the trailer camp, and in Victory Village.

Georgia Judge To Decide Suit

Governor's Chair Still Not Filled

McDonough, Ga., Feb. 10—(UP)—A Georgia judge will make an all-important ruling tomorrow morning on the state's tangled governorship question.

Superior Judge Walter Hendrix heard the closing arguments late yesterday in the suit of acting Governor M. E. Thompson to oust his rival, Herman Talmadge, from the governor's chair.

The judge will read his decision in open court at McDonough at 10 o'clock Wednesday morning. He must first dispose of three motions filed by Talmadge in an effort to either stymie the suit or throw it out of court entirely. In case he rules against the Talmadge motions, Judge Hendrix then will decide who is the legal governor of Georgia and the tangle will be one step nearer a solution.

Thompson already has won one suit, which was filed in Rome, Georgia, and which is to go before the State Supreme court on the 10th of March.

Trustee Quibble Centers Around Racial Issues

Raleigh, Feb. 10—(UP)—The Board of Trustees of the University got into a stormy debate over racial issues today when John W. Clark of Greensboro sought to bar the return of a University professor on leave as director of the Southern Regional Council in Atlanta, Ga.

Editor Josephus Daniels of the Raleigh News and Observer told the trustees that if they barred Dr. Guy B. Johnson from returning to Chapel Hill, "every man will say North Carolina is following Theodore Bilbo of Mississippi."

Former Senator and Governor Cameron Morrison sought to quell the debate by pleading that "this question must not be discussed in North Carolina." Before the debate could be halted, Clark had charged that Professor Johnson's work on the Southern Regional Council was being financed by the Julius Rosenwald fund. Clark said this group was "an advocate of racial amalgamation."

Charges Minutes Stricken

Clark charged that minutes of a trustees executive committee meeting when racial matters were discussed had been stricken from the records. He also charged that Johnson had urged Greensboro citizens to write Georgia voters praising opponents of the late Eugene Talmadge and that he was "trying to run Georgia politics."

Editor Daniels rose to his feet and declared that he never expected to hear "in a North Carolina assembly" anyone praising Eugene Talmadge.

Charlotte textile manufacturer David Clark then turned on Daniels and said, "If more publicity were given to activities in the state institutions, you'd see more trouble raised than in Georgia."

Inter-Racial Services

Meanwhile, students of the University, Duke and North Carolina college for Negroes have held an inter-racial worship service . They heard Ray Schort of the Duke university Divinity school declare, "Getting to know one another is the only means by which all Americans can achieve a common denominator of good will."

A special committee of trustees recommended a night school be established as part of the Woman's college at Greensboro to be financed up to $20,000 by Greensboro residents. It

Athletic Office Gives Ticket Information For Duke-Carolina Conflict

Student admissions for the Duke-Carolina basketball game to be held here tonight will be handled just as they were during the past football season, the Athletic office announced last night. Doors will open at 6:45 o'clock. The student will not exchange his coupon until he is ready to be admitted to the floor tonight.

At the time of entrance to the game a coupon will be detached from the student's athletic book and he will receive a half ticket which will designate a reserved seat space.

Students who wish to sit in the South stands will enter from the pool promenade and tickets for the North stands, East and West stands will enter from the Main lobby.

All ushers and gatemen for the game are asked to meet in the Athletic office at 3 o'clock this afternoon.

All students have been urged by the Athletic department to cooperate with the ushers and gatemen in order that a maximum number of seats may be utilized. No sales will be made to the general public.

Faculty members may exchange their coupons for reserve seat tickets at the Athletic office today.

AVC to Consider Court Martial Bill

The Chapel Hill chapter of the Americans Veterans committee will discuss the new Army court-martial bill at a meeting this evening at 7:30 o'clock in the Presbyterian church.

The bill under consideration was introduced to Congress by Representative Durham of North Carolina. It provides for enlisted men on courts, among other things.

Also on the night's agenda is a continuance of the discussion of the proposed campaign to raise the amount of veterans subsistence. AVC Chairman Ben Rouzie urges "a turn-out of new men who are interested in a progressive program of action."

Piggie Bank Contents To Go to WSSF Drive

By Ed Long

Gustavus Adolphus is a pig—a pig, and a bank. Nancy Murphey, his owner, has had Gustavus about three years, filling his innards with coins all the while.

He is filled with money—no one knows how much—but Nancy has decided to raffle the contents of the bank among all the coed dormitory students. Tickets sell for 10c each, and the winner is to donate the prize to the World Student Service fund under her name. Money collected for the tickets, also, will be given to the Service fund.

Total advance pledges of the WSSF central council, solicitors, YMCA cabinet and some religious groups which were announced today by Gay Morenus and Walt Stuart amount to $335, an average of $3.80 per person giving. The chairman stated the hope that these pledges will set a standard of giving for all the campus towards reaching the $5,500 goal for the University.

UN Council Empowers Attempt to Reprieve

Lake Success, New York, Feb. 10—(UP)—The United Nations Security Council has empowered the Balkan investigating commission to seek reprieves for condemned men who could help in the study of border trouble in the Balkans. The resolution was made at an emergency meeting on Greek complaints that the commission has been interfering in Greek internal affairs.

Sophomore Voting Also Thrown Out By Judiciaries

By Barron Mills

Acting on the request of two petitions one of which was filed by 85 members of the Freshman class, the Student council kicked out the final leg of the freshman class officers declaring the election invalid.

Discussing the freshman petition which went into a three page dicussion of the invalidity of the election, the Council went into deep discussion of all questions as to the constitutional rights for holding a class without it being first cleared through the Board of Elections. The petition also stated that "no list of expenditures" was filed before the election took place and that neither party acted in accordance with constitutional provisions.

Following is the final decision of the council received as this paper went to press last night.

It is the opinion of the student council that the freshman and sophomores past elections of January 30 are in conflict with Article One Section six, and Article five Section two of the Student Constitution and are thereby null and void; and the offices declared vacant.

Great Deal

One of the signers of the freshman petition, B. F. Wood went into great detail stating that from all indications of the election rules the election must be held by secret balloting. This was not done and the tabulation of votes was done in "silence" instead of a "check-off" method that the freshmen had previously voted to use.

Wood also charged that "an upperclassman conducting the meeting voted." Chairman Ray Jeffries asked the name of the upperclassman conducting the meeting. The reply was "Tag Montague." Jeffries asked Montague if he voted. He answered "no."

Before the Council asked all outsiders to leave the meeting so that they could reach a final decision Dewey Dorsett, president of the Student Body stated that in the light of all the facts "I agree that since Board of Elections did not hold the election it was a mistake."

Warren Agrees

Speaker of the Legislature Charlie Warren added that "In my mind it is out of order since it did not go through the Board of Elections."

Sound and Fury Show Is Postponed

The new Sound and Fury show, "Dear Congress," has been postponed until the third week in April, due to unexpected difficulty in securing necessary technical equipment. Several conflicts in the use of Memorial hall have also made the step most expeditious. However rehearsals which have already begun will continue four days a week until the beginning of the spring term.

"Sound and Fury is a club as well as an organization," said President Bill Carmichael when the postponement was announced. "We are interested in acquiring members to the organization as well as workers on a show. Under our new setup there will be certain social functions as an intregal part of the group."

"Our office is open from 2 to 5 o'clock every afternoon on the third floor of Memorial hall, Monday through Friday. Anyone interested in joining Sound and Fury can call there any afternoon and get full information about becoming a member."

Legislature Pro-Tem to Run For Student Body President

DTH Desk Editor Is Given Endorsement; Political Aspirants Present Statements

By Bettie Washburn

The Student party started the May election ball rolling Sunday afternoon in the Candlelight room when nominating Tom Eller and Barron Mills as candidates for the offices of president of the student body and editor of the Daily Tar Heel, respectively.

Eller, a native of Salisbury, has long been recognized as an outstanding student leader, having served as chairman of the rules committee and speaker pro-tempore in the Student Legislature for the past year. A former member of the tank corps and the present manager of Stacy dormitory, Eller has participated in the Carolina State Student Legislature, the Chicago Conference for College Students, the Dialectic senate and the constitutional revisory committee.

Statement by Eller

Upon receiving the Student party nomination for the student body presidency, Eller said, "I am well aware that with the honor there comes an humbling responsibility to support those things in student government which will preserve and enhance its future."

Barron Mills, who received the Student party nomination for the editorship of the Daily Tar Heel by acclamation, is a rising senior from Laurinburg where he worked as sports editor and reporter on the Laurinburg Exchange before entering the Navy. Mills, who was unanimously endorsed by the DTH staff as its choice for editor, formerly served as managing editor of the Tar Heel as a semi-weekly publication in 1944.

Serving as Desk Editor

Since his return to school last summer, he has served as desk editor of the newspaper and chief assistant to the managing editor. A member of Alpha Tau Omega fraternity, Mills has seen active work on the news, editorial, and sports sections of the campus paper.

On receiving the nomination Mills stated, "I appreciate the confidence shown in me by the Student party nomination, and pledge that if I am elected I will strive to continually keep the campus foremost in presenting the campus news and editorial policies."

Barron Mills (above) with Tom Eller, received Student party nominations for DTH editor and Student body president respectively.

UVA Fetes Carr Coeds At Weekly Open House

Tomorrow night the University Veterans association will entertain Carr dormitory at an open house. Jim Farlow, club manager, has announced that Pinky Barnes will act as master of ceremonies for the floor show.

Inez Isenhour will sing and Bob MacDonald will accompany on the piano. The Glen Penland trio will do a humorous skit and Niel Creighton will be on hand with his drums.

The escort committee is requested to be at the club by 8:15 so that they may call at the dormitory by 8:30. President Roy Moose re-issued the invitation to all veterans to come.

UVA Petition to Cash Bonds Received by Tar Heel Solons

By Johnnie Clampitt

In answer to their petition regarding the possibility of cashing enlisted men's terminal leave bonds, the University Veterans association has received encouraging letters from several senators and representatives from North Carolina.

Senator Clyde R. Hoey stated, "I think that the bonds should be paid in cash and I am supporting a measure looking to the accomplishment of that result." He went on to say, "I believe it will be more for the benefit than the detriment of our country to pay the bonds in cash."

Folger will Consider

More conservative, Representative John H. Folger said that he would give the subject every possible consideration, but made no definite affirmation of his support. He did say, however, that "Rep. Wright Patman of Texas has introduced such a bill in Congress."

"I am in favor of providing some way for cashing these bonds due to the fact that officers were paid in cash for their terminal leave," said Rep. Carl T. Durham. "All personnel should be treated alike."

A concise statement by Senator William B. Umstead assured the UVA that he was in favor of the payment of the bonds.

Others Endorse Bill

Other North Carolina congressmen, including Representatives Herbert C. Bonner, Hamilton C. Jones, A. L. Bulwinkle, Graham A. Barden, Monroe M. Redden, Harold D. Cooley, and John H. Kerr informed the UVA that the matter would receive their careful thought and consideration.

Return to Favor Of Zhukov Seen

Moscow, Feb. 10—(UP)— A hint that Russian Marshal Zhukov may be winning his way back into favor with the Kremlin appeared in the Moscow press.

Zhukov was quietly removed from his post as Commander of the Russian Ground forces last summer, and was sent to comand a minor Soviet garrison. Since then the Russian press has never mentioned his ouster.

Helping Fellow Students

Everyone is aware that the WSSF campaign drive started yesterday on this campus.

But we wonder if everyone is aware of the principles and purposes of the World Student Service Fund. Student relief and rehabilitation are essential the world over to help restore students to health, to self-assurance, and to their long-interrupted studies.

WSSF principles include emergency food and warmth relief, and long-range physical and intellectual rehabilitation to students and professors of war-devastated countries of Europe and Asia on a basis of need, without respect to race, religion, or country.

The WSSF provides emergency supplementary feeding, student tuberculosis stanitoria, student rest and rehabilitation centers, clothing, books, and school supplies.

Now the immediate reaction of the average American student is, "Why should that concern us?"

In brief, there are four immediate answers to that question. First, as a matter of conscience in the name of sheer humanity. Secondly, in obedience to the Judaic-Christian ethics and religion they profess. Thirdly, as a part of the education of American students in enlightened world-mindedness and responsible world citizenship. Finally, as an investment in the rational, humane, moral society.

In simple terms, the need is great. Many universities in Europe were destroyed during the war. Students and professors were deported, exiled, persecuted, imprisoned, executed and driven into active resistance movements. In many coutries, such as Czechoslovakia, students and professors were cut off and isolated completely from the intellectual and scientific life of the world for years. Many of them contracted tuberculosis, become mentally unstable, depressed and despondent.

Today the living, health, and study conditions of these students are really bad. It is difficult to exaggerate them and it is still difficult for American students to comprehend them.

One half of the University of Oslo's 6,000 students are unable to find satisfactory lodging. In France, 40,000 students are enrolled at the University of Paris. Some of these live in underground shelters provided by the city. A medical examination revealed they are 17-20 pounds lighter than the pre-war average. The percentage of tuberculosis in France has multiplied by 10 since the war. Malnutrition and fatigue are general among the students and one-third of them suffer from nervous disorders.

These are the people the WSSF is trying to help—through your donations. Men and women who gave up their educations to fight against the axis via the underground, in concentration camps, in numerous active resistance movements are trying to resume their education today. They are sick and weak, poor and unhealthy. They have no GI bill to help them through college—in many cases they have no college.

The WSSF drive will last only one week. During this week, solicitors will approach you for contributions. Money booths are set up in the Y. We know that many drives continue to tax students' pocketbooks, but the WSSF is in need of money to continue its great work. Only through your donations can they continue to help others.

We students who are fortunate to be attending the great American universities without fear as to where our food and lodging are to come can do much for our less fortunate neighbors in other parts of this ever-closer world.

Remember that this week when you get a chance to contribute to another student's future in the WSSF campaign.

Truth from a friend is tonic. The same words spoken bitterly are poison.

Playmakers Review....

Laboratory Theater Shines In Presenting 'Aria Da Capo'

By R. H. Hamilton

The Laboratory Theater of the Carolina Playmakers production of Edna St. Vincent-Millay's Aria da Capo, a satire on war. Directed by Lois Warshuis; costumes, properties and set by John McKinney; stage manager Betty Young, under the supervision of Foster Fitz-Simmons.

One of the more useful functions of Graham Memorial has developed in the past three months. It is to provide acting space for the alert, vital, energetic Laboratory Theater of the Playmakers. This group, in the second presentation of their career, "Aria da Capo" by Edna St. Vincent-Millay more than lived up to the promise shown in their initial offering two months ago, "Pierre Patelin." The performance on Sunday night was an outstanding success and the audience was unanimous in their approval of the intimacy, skill and charm with which this satire on war was performed.

The cast was more than adequate as the players moved deftly through parts which called for a high degree of fantasy and lightness to make them believable. Madeline Cooley was perfect as "Columbine," and her performance was evenly matched by David Hooks as a superb "Pierrot." Blanton Miller as Cothurnus, the Masque of Tragedy was impressive. James Reilley as "Tyrsis" and dependable Mac Shaw as "Corydon" played with aptitude and skill, as they created a delicate mood for the ofttimes intricate moral fable.

Bouquets are in order all around for the actors, stage crew and technical assistants for providing an extraordinarily enjoyable performance. I, for one, am anxiously looking forward to more productions by this able group.

Letters To The Editor

Difficulties Over-Simplified

Dear Bill:

Referring to your editorial of Sunday, February 9, I would like to say that I believe it to be an over-simplification of the difficulties involved in the constitutional proposal for a block Student Activities Fee of $20 per annum.

The University has, for a long time, tried to establish a block fee combining all present student activity fees and equalizing collections from all classes of students. The advantages of such a block fee from the standpoint of bookkeeping and collection are plain. However, it has not been possible to do this because so many of the fees apply only to special groups in the student body. For example, until it was eliminated this summer, the Student Entertainment Fee was charged to students in the General College, the College of Arts and Sciences, and the School of Commerce, only. The Law Association Fee is paid by law students, the Medical Association Fee by medical students, Pharmacy Association Fee by phramacy students, Women's Association Fee by women students. Class fees of varying amounts have been paid by the various classes. To this must be added the fact that the budget and the administration of the Summer School are entirely separate from the regular academic year. The only Student Activities fee which applies to summer school students at all is a fee of $2.00. The constitution proposes a fee based on the calendar year.

The difficulties attending a conscientious recommendation to the Trustees for adoption of the constitutional provision just as it is are not a reluctance to turn over the money to the Legislature for expenditure or unwillingness to recommend a reasonable increase in the amount. In fact, any time that in joint consultations with students we can arrive at an acceptable proposal for a block fee, I am sure Chancellor House will transmit it to the Trustees. However, the proposal which goes before the Trustees must not be one which is based on an over-simplified view of the problem. Before we can recommend the "amazingly simple" plan of a block fee of $20.00 per annum for all students, somehow the divergent interests of various classes of students and the separate summer session must be pulled together. If ratification of the constitutional plan by the students assured a harmonizing of all these divergent interests, we would have no problem. We would recommend it immediately. But it does not. Hence we must work on it.

Your writer concludes that there is no difference between the $20.00 per calendar year as proposed in the constitution and the latter proposal of $12.00 per year, plus a pro-rata appropriation to Graham Memorial. There is a difference because the $12.00 was for the calendar year too and not for "three quarters." Also, there is no summer school payment to the Graham Memorial as reckoned by the writer. The statement that "under the constitution, each student would pay a maximum of $5.00 per quarter, $1.00 of which would go to Graham Memorial" is an inconsistent one, for the constitution does not provide that $1.00 will go to Graham Memorial, and the proposal for it has only recently come forward.

I would like to point now to the statement: "the administration, while noting nothing wrong with the plan, does not think it can be presented tomorrow." It is not that there is anything "wrong with" the plan. It just hasn't been worked out carefully enough or with enough regard for complexities involved in the student fees structure to be ready for submission to the Trustees for adoption.

I assure you that just as soon as the difficulties attached to the block fee can be ironed out to the satisfaction of all legitimate interests, including students who have studied the problem, the "Administration" will willingly submit it to the Trustees. And I do not believe that it will be necessary "to wait another year."

Open Letter to Campus

The first Carolina Magazine of the new year has hit the campus, been discussed and criticized, and been moved into the annals of past issues.

Reaction was varied: good, bad and indifferent, as is usually the case, although the "good" seemed more prevalent than in previous issues.

Perhaps the biggest gripe concerning the earlier issues was the quality of the fiction, and this is yet probably the biggest single headache to be aspirined out. But there are some factors apparently unknown to the campus at large: first, it may generally be believed that the literary staff of the Magazine is a highly overworked group who have such a deluge of submitted manuscripts to read and discuss that they can never read slowly or carefully enough to make a fair selection of material. Perhaps that is laying it on a little thick, but the situation is, at the present, so diametric to that misconception, that it would appear just as exaggerated to print the truth.

Again, the campus at large may think that there is no chance of anything they write being printed, by virtue of their not having written anything previously for publication, or because they feel that only the personal friends of the editor or business manager could get anything printed.

Perish these thoughts! While both the quality and quantity of the manuscripts submitted in recent weeks have been increasing, we are far from even a safe or secure point of normalcy. It is and will continue to be impossible to raise the standards for fiction until that point is reached, and until we have a much wider range of material from which to select. It seems a veritable crime that with the enrollment this school now boasts, we get as little material each month.

The literary staff of the Magazine at present, I feel, comprises a fair cross-section of campus opinion and interests. Each story submitted is read and criticized by this impartial board, and at a general meeting at which the stories are chosen, are openly discussed.

We of the literary staff appreciate and take to heart the criticism of our efforts, but by far the most valuable criticism we could ask is the actual submitting of prose or poetry which the author feels to be superior to our present output.

Unless this new material is forthcoming, the upward literary movement will be a slow and arduous one. I feel that this campus, this town, is a potential hotbed for good literature. Only through your efforts, however, can we realize these potentialities.

AMBASSADOR MAX GARDNER SETS SAIL FOR GREAT NEW DESTINATION; HOW GARDNER SOLD NEW DEAL TO FDR; GARDNER ONCE PLANNED TO RUN FOR SENATE

Shelby, N. C.—On Feb. 6 the lead story in this column began: "Today O. Max Gardner sets sail for his new post as American Ambassador to the Court of St. James."

This writer has never made a correction with more sorrow and regret, but that column should have read: "Today O. Max Gardner sets sail for a great new destination to serve at the Court of his Maker."

And it should have continued: "Max Gardner in life seldom had time to do the things he wanted to do. He was too busy doing things for others. He was not so well known to the Nation, because he spent so much time working for his friends.

"Max Gardner was the type of man who, when he sat down for a visit, wanted to know all about the other fellow's problems, never mentioned his own. When Harry Hopkins was having trouble getting confirmed as Secretary of Commerce, it was Max Gardner who sat up long midnight hours preparing him for the Senatorial cross-examination. When Stuart Symington was having headaches as War Surplus Property Administrator, it was Max who gave him wise and patient counsel. And when this column was sued by ex-Congressman Sweeney of Ohio in one of the biggest libel suits in history, it was Max Gardner who spent long and tedious hours battling that suit.

"Max Gardner was offered many high offices, but turned most of them down. He loved people more than position. In fact, he hesitated a long time before accepting the proffered post of Ambassador to London.

"I was scooped on his appointment. Max had asked my advice about taking the plunge into diplomacy—a new field for him. This tied my hands regarding any public comment. My advice, I'm sure, made little difference, but I felt that our relations with Great Britain never were more important, and that now more than ever we needed in London a blunt-speaking bona fide American, not a social-whirler, to interpret the people of the USA to the people of Great Britain.

"A few weeks earlier, Max sold his North Carolina rayon mill. He had built it years before, when rayon was new and had a highly hazardous future; so in many ways he hated to part with it. But his son, who had managed the mill, was dead. With his passing something went out of Max's life and finally he sold out.

"I remember the day Max deposited the check in the bank. With some pride he showed me the deposit slip—in seven figures.

"'You're looking at a real live millionaire,' he said whimsically. 'And I've no idea what to do with the money.'

"Yet in making that money, Max had never deserted his creed that it pays dividends to look out for the other fellow. His mill was the first in the south to adopt the minimum wage; and last year while northern labor leaders were battling with U. S. Steel and General Motors for wage increases, Max voluntarily increased wages in his mill. He had found it always paid him dividends.

HOW NEW DEAL BEGAN

"Nor did Max, despite his wealth, ever desert his belief that the world must move forward to more liberal things. He always believed in the creed he expressed in a letter he wrote Franklin Roosevelt when FDR was Governor of New York and Max was Governor of North Carolina.

"'The American people are on the move,' Max wrote. 'If I were you I would become more liberal, because I tell you the masses are marching and if we are to save this Nation, it has got to be saved by the liberal interpretations of the sentiments now ruling in the hearts of men.

"'I am satisfied we are in the day of a new deal and that many of our preconceived ideas and formulas are going to be thrown into the discard. We are more than blind if we think the American people can be hitched to the status quo. The camp fires of the past are now abandoned and the frontiers of thinking have extended beyond the limit heretofore held sacred by the conservative minds of this country.'

"Max believed that creed not only in 1932 when he wrote to Franklin Roosevelt, but to the very end.

"So, having sold his mill and deposited the money in the bank, Max decided he could devote the next years of his life to doing on a broader scale what he had been doing on an individual scale—bettering relations between people. He accepted the President's offer to become Ambassador to Great Britain.

"Just a few hours before he died, Max phoned me from New York to say good-bye. He was in excellent spirits and full of enthusiasm for his big new job.

"Only a few people outside the family knew that Max for many years had nursed a heart condition. That was why he did not run for the Senate in 1944. Bob Reynolds' term was up in that year, and though the two had been good friends and once shipped to Europe on a cattle boat together, Max was thoroughly disgusted with Reynolds' wartime isolationism—as were most of the people of North Carolina. All his friends urged him to run for the Senate, and he planned to do so.

"But at the last minute his doctor, in effect, said no. Max stepped aside and his brother-in-law, Clyde Hoey, won an easy victory.

Phants Face Loop-Leading Devils Here Tonight

SPORT SPINS - -

with

IRWIN SMALLWOOD

IT WILL BE interesting to watch tonight to see if history is going to repeat again this season its relation to the Duke-Carolina basketball series, more specifically in relation to the series for the past two years.

For two years in a row, Duke has defeated Carolina on the Woollen gym floor, and for the same two years, the White Phantoms have come back to pound the Dukes back in the return game in Duke's indoor stadium. And in addition to that, the favored team in the conference tourney has been upset, and the underdog has won.

In 1944-45, Carolina's young team was rated just a possible dark horse, behind the Dukes but the Tar Heels came through. And last year they were supposed to be a sure fire bet, and they were upset in the semi-final round by Wake Forest. And both seasons Carolina and Duke have divided their games, home and home.

What can all that mean? It could mean that Carolina is destined to fall before the Blue Devils tonight. But again it may be time for fate to change his ways. We are inclined to forsee the latter, meaning that it was time that the White Phantoms defeated Duke in Woollen gym.

Duke has been riding high this season and is in the right position for a defeat, and there's no team in the conference better situated to turn the trick than the Tar Heels, who have shown on more than one occasion this season that they are still a top-flight ball club, despite their losses.

Tonight will be Coach Tom Scott's first appearance against the Dukes since taking over the reins here at Carolina, and the genial Kansan has drawn a tough task in trying to knock off the high-flying Blue Devils. Scott, who has had to work constantly all season to build a team to fit his schedule, has just recently got the Phants working in his system with greater efficiency. And although he plays in the underdog role, his charges will be a strong threat indeed both to Duke now and in the Southern conference tournament.

Speaking further of the Duke game tonight, it will probably be a case again of the forward shooting twins of the Phantoms bearing the brunt of the attack. Meaning, of course, Big Bob Paxton and Wee Jim Hamilton, who have been the big guns offensively for the past few ball games. Hamilton is the high scorer on the Tar Heel team, and Paxton isn't far behind.

While on the subject of scoring, it might be well to note that Johnny Dillon will not be in the starting lineup again tonight. Dillon, whose lethal hook-shot won him All-American fame last year, has been in a slump for some time—the reasons for which are varied and complicated—and he will be used in a substitute role tonight as he was against VPI and Davidson over the weekend. He will, however, undoubtedly be used considerably throughout the game, and especially if his hook is effective against the Dukes. (Note: Two years ago, Dillon pumped in 20 points to lead Carolina to an upset win over the high-riding Blue Devils.)

Analytically, it is hard to tell just who will and who won't be in the scoring column as a star, but there's one thing that Carolina fans can count on, and that's the "Backboarding" of lanky Bob Paxton, the Spokane, Wash. senior who is a veteran of two years of Carolina basketball. Giving the compliments where they are the most due, it might be said that Paxton is the most valuable man on the Carolina team. In fact, if it came to a decision, we would without hesitation nominate ham-handed "Paxt" as the man-of-the-year on the White Phantom organization.

* * * *

THE SEATING setup tonight could easily turn into a real problem, but if the students cooperate with the gatemen it will all but eliminate any possibility of an over-capacity turnout. Reserve seats are going to be issued all spectators at the door tonight, and ushers inside will hold to the seating arrangement specifically. "We will need all the cooperation we can get," opined Ham Strayhorn, ticket director . . . Let's keep on the ball and avoid any confusion. Incidentally, the doors will open at 6:45 to keep down the rush, and tickets will be given out in the order you get to the gym, starting at the middle of the stands and working to the ends on both sides.

Phi Delts Cop Handball Title

The Phi Delt handball team walked off with the fraternity intramural crown yesterday afternoon by topping the Kappa Sig outfit by a 2-1 count.

The winners copped both doubles engagements to gain their triumph. Adlick and Henderson captured one duo victory over Spaugh and Gilliam and Webster and Strayhorn teamed for the other win over Stanley and Brenneger. Walker turned in the lone Kappa Sig success in a singles clash with Crocker.

In the basketball world, KA No. 3 and St. Anthony's rolled up the high scores of the afternoon, the former topping Phi Kap No. 2 by 33-24 while the latter was defeating Chi Phi No. 1, 33-25. Sigma Nu No. 2 downed Beta No. 2 27-17, Delancy Maulers turned in a 21-16 victory over Graham. Sigma Nu No. 1 tripped Phi Kap No. 2 by 23-19 and Phi Delt No. 3 nipped Pi Lamb No. 2, 22-20 in other clashes.

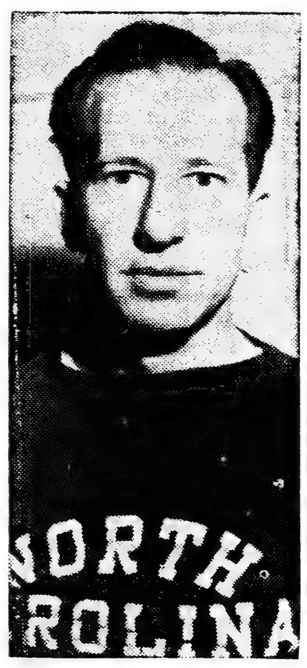
Nearman Starts at Center In First Meeting of Year



Ancient Rivals Battle at 8 o'Clock; Tar Heels Seeking Sixth Circuit Win

By Bob Goldwater

Carolina's White Phantoms take over the underdog role once again this evening when Duke's league-leading Blue Devils invade Woollen gym in the first clash of the annual two-game series between the two rivals. The opening jump will be at 8 o'clock.

Gunning for their sixth Southern conference success and 12th of the campaign, the Scottmen will be up against a team that has swept through eight straight loop encounters to remain undefeated in league competition. Both teams feature several outstanding pointmakers and a high-scoring battle is expected to result.

Coach Tom Scott is expected to start the same quintet tonight that opened Friday and Saturday evenings against VPI and Davidson. This means that Sherman Nearman, 18-year-old freshman from Charleston, West Virginia, will start at the pivot post with John Dillon also slated to see a lot of action. Coach Scott has stated that he would start Nearman for "defensive reasons," believing that the six-foot, six-inch center might be better able than Dillon to guard the Duke scoring aces.

Carolina Starters

The rest of the starting lineup will have Bob Paxton and Jim Hamilton, Carolina's two high scorers, at the forward posts and Norm Kohler and Jim White filling the guard berths. Jim Hayworth, Taylor Thorne, Dick Hartley, and Dan Nyimicz are the most probable reserves.

Hamilton currently leads the locals in the conference scoring column, having rolled up a total of 97 points in seven loop contests to rank eighth in the circuit. Paxton is second in scoring for the Phants.

For the Blue Devils, Coach Gerry Gerard is expected to open with Bubber Seward and big Ed Koffenberger at the forwards, six-foot, five-inch Ben Collins at center, and Garland Loftits and Dick Gordon at the guard slots. Sam Rothbaum, Doug Ausbon and Carl Sapp will be the chief reserves.

Koffenberger, leading the conference in scoring with an eight-game total of 143 points, will be the player that the Phantoms will have to curb if they are to pull an upset. The Wilmington, Deleware, star needs 23 points to break the Duke all-time scoring record of 317 tallies.

Boxers Start Work For Citadel Clash

Begining a new week of drills in preparation for their coming tussle with The Citadel in Charleston on Saturday, Coach Mike Ronman's Tar Heel leatherpushers settled down to some hard work in yesterday's drill session.

The team was in good contition after their scrap with the Maryland Old Liners last Saturday and Coach Ronman expressed his satisfaction as to the chances in this week's tilt. With the National collegiate boxing matches coming up in March, the team strengthened their drive to smooth out the wrinkles which showed up in the weekend's fracas.

Bob Bragaw, 175 pound puncher, looked impressive as he fought to a draw on Saturday. Bob, in his initial season, has rapidly developed into one of the squad's biggest assets. Ronman praised his work in the ring and added that he expected a great deal from him.

The Blue Bombers will be gunning for their second win in five outings, come Saturday's jaunt to Charleston.

Grapplers Meet Duke At Durham Tomorrow

Coach Chuck Quinlan takes his grunt and groan specialists to Durham tomorrow afternoon to oppose Duke in quest of their fifth straight conference victory.

Duke and Carolina were co-champions of the conference last year as a result of split dual decisions.

The Tar Heels will be favorites as a result of their shutout triumph over Washington and Lee last Saturday. Duke was handed a smarting defeat at the hands of VMI 20-6 the same day.

Co-Captains Dick Seaver and Tommy Hearn, along with Tom Urquart and Oscar Gupton, will be out to preserve their undefeated string of four straight victories.

PHANTS PLAY TECH FRIDAY

Next tussle for the Carolina cage quintet following tonight's clash with Duke will be Friday evening when the Phantoms oppose Georgia Tech in a non-conference tilt. It will be the final home appearance of the season for the locals.

Snavely Greets Large Turnout Of 117 Gridmen

Pritchard, Davis Report for Work

It was back to the fundamentals of football for some 117 grid hopefuls yesterday afternoon, as the 1947 edition of Carolina's football squad answered Coach Carl Snavely's call for the opening of winter practice.

Coach Snavely, along with assistants Max Reed, Crowell Little, Toby Webb, and Tuck McConnell, moved his squad through a brisk workout to keep it warm in the chilly winter weather.

A lot of old faces were in evidence as the Tar Heels started their limbering-up drills. Charlie "Choo-Choo" Justice and Walt Pupa led a corps of passers tossing strikes down the field to a hoard of ends and backs.

The main idea behind winter drills is the work with the scores of new men out for grid practice, Snavely said yesterday. Included among the candidates on the field were Bill Pritchard, who was injured at Navy last year, and George Davis, cousin of Duke's Jap.

The Tar Heels started yesterday with a passing drill for the backs and ends, while the linemen were pushing the charging machine up and down the field.

The squad was then split up into pairs to go over basic form in the use of the shoulder block and blocking technique on passes and punts.

THE WAY TO HER HEART WITH DANZIGER VALENTINE CANDIES

British Girl Changes Mind About Romances

Superior, West Virginia—An international lovelorn letter is in the mail today.

It begins, "Dear Mother," and says in effect, "don't you think a woman has a right to change her mind?"

On that letter depends the happiness of pretty young Eileen Edwards, the British blond who switched GI romances.

Romance number one started in London when boy—Arnold Buesing of Nebraska—met girl. Buesing paid Miss Edwards' fare to North Carolina, where she's been staying with his relatives. What he never counted on was his intended bride meeting another American, Theodore Crabtree, and finding romance number two.

Miss Edwards fled to Crabtree's home. But her intentions of marrying him hit a snag when local authorities discovered she's only 17, and must have the consent of her parents.

Neither a cable nor a trans-atlantic telephone call persuaded the Edwards family to approve Eileen's marriage. So today Eileen's hopes for the future are wrapped in an airmail envelope winging toward London.

Ask Tabling

The committee didn't mention the racial issue one way or the other, but Hill and Morrison brought it up and asked that the proposal be tabled.

Former Legislator Victor S. Bryant of Durham said the committee didn't intend to provoke debate on the racial issue, and State Representative Frank Taylor of Goldsboro said there was no intention to educate the two races together. But Morrison and Hill prevailed, the latter criticizing what he called "the influence of sociologists on University President Frank Graham." Graham was present, but said nothing.

The "Whitest of White" Pigments from Black Ore

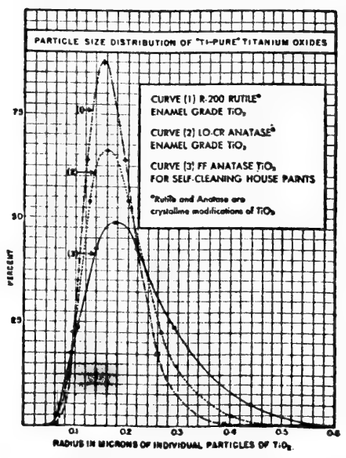
It is a strange fact that the ninth most prevalent element in the earth's crust should have been regarded as "rare" for over a hundred years after its discovery in 1791. But that is the story of titanium, actually more abundant than zinc, copper, lead, tin, and nickel combined. One of the factors that have kept titanium from being better known is the difficulty of handling some of its compounds commercially.

If, as a student, you were to look up the equations for the manufacture of titanium oxide pigment, you might find something like this:

$FeTiO_3 . nFe_2O_3^* + (3n+3)H_2SO_4 \longrightarrow Ti(SO_4)_2 + FeSO_4 + nFe_2(SO_4)_3 + (3n+3)H_2O$

$Fe_2(SO_4)_3 + 2H^+ \longrightarrow 2FeSO_4 + H_2SO_4$

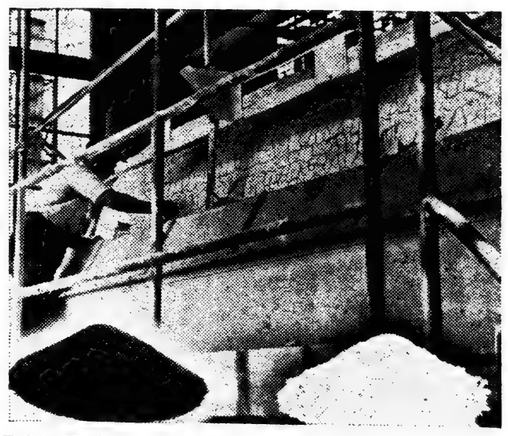
$Ti(SO_4)_2 + (x+2)H_2O \longrightarrow TiO_2 . xH_2O + 2H_2SO_4$



$TiO_2 . xH_2O \longrightarrow TiO_2 + xH_2O$

*—The exact composition of ilmenite varies with the source of the ore.

From these equations, the manufacture of the "whitest of white" pigments from black ilmenite ore appears to be chemically simple and straightforward. However, the processing required to obtain industrial titanium oxide of sufficient brightness, hiding power and fineness is more complicated than one would anticipate.



Controlling a Metastable System

The final product must have a particle size averaging 0.2 microns in radius and varying between 0.1 and 0.5 microns.

To attain this end in a metastable system that is ready to go in the wrong direction at any time requires exceedingly rigid control conditions throughout.

The essential steps in the operation are: 1) The careful solubilization of ilmenite in concentrated sulfuric acid to avoid hydrolysis. 2) The complete reduction of any ferric iron to facilitate purification of the solution, with removal of any unconverted residue and colloidal slimes. 3) Crystallization of 70 per cent of the iron as $FeSO_4.7H_2O$—a critical operation in which temperature must be kept low and wild seed crystals avoided. 4) Hydrolysis around 105-109° C.—the most important step of all—because the initial particle size and pigment properties of the final product depend on concentration, temperature, time of hydrolysis, intensity of stirring, and presence of foreign materials. In this operation it is not unusual to talk in terms of parts per million, rather than the usual analytical accuracy of 0.01-0.02 per cent. 5) Varying salt treatment of the precipitate, depending on the impurities. 6) Calcination between 960-1000° C. to obtain the desired particle size. 7) Grinding to give the proper aggregate size. 8) Treatment of the dried pigment in various ways depending on end use; e.g., in the automotive, rubber, ceramics, paper, linoleum, printing, or other fields.

Wide Diversity of Research Problems

Long and patient research was necessary to develop the manufacturing techniques now used. Some of the problems demanded technical skill of the highest order from the colloid chemist, the physical chemist, the analyst, the crystallographer, the physicist, and other specially trained men. A wide variety of instruments, such as the petrographic microscope, the electron microscope, x-ray diffraction unit, ultra-centrifuge, and spectrophotometer were used in this work. Finally the metallurgist, the chemical engineer, the mechanical engineer, and the industrial engineer had to design equipment to handle this extremely corrosive system economically.

The manufacture of titanium pigments is another example of the problems that constantly challenge chemists, engineers and other specialists.

Truman Figure Cut 6 Billion By Committee

Congressional Group Recommends Budget

Washington, Feb. 11—(UP)—The joint congressional budget sub-committee has recommended a federal budget of $31,500,000,000 for the 1948 fiscal year. This is $6,000,000,000 below President Truman's request.

The recommendation of the sub-committee now goes to the 102-man full joint budget committee, which is required by the new congressional reorganization act to present its recommendation to congress by Saturday midnight.

See Tax Reduction

Committeemen say that this should allow about $3,500,000,000 for tax reduction and a like amount for partial retirement of the national debt. But this is provided that congress extends the estimated $1,130,000,000 in expiring luxury taxes.

Palestine Is Alarmed By Haifa Explosions

Jerusalem, Feb. 11—(UP)—Palestine was thrown into alarm tonight by reports of explosions rocking Haifa. However, police explain that they had dropped a so-called "precautionary" depth charge. They deny there was any trouble.

British Leaders Warn Blackout May Spread

London, Feb. 11—(UP)—The British government warns that the industrial black-out, which already has idled some 5,000,000 workers, may spread throughout the entire country within three days. The official announcement says Britain is barely holding her own in the fuel crisis.

Nation-Wide Cold Wave Beginning to Subside

Chicago, Feb. 11—(UP)—The cold wave which covered more than half of the nation has begun to subside. Factories closed down by the gas shortage have begun to re-open. Nearly all of the 200,000 idle workers are back on the job.

Lilienthal Approval Urged by Patterson

Washington, Feb. 11—(UP)—Secretary of War Robert Patterson has urged the senate to confirm the nomination of David Lilienthal as chairman of the Atomic Energy commission. Lilienthal's former TVA superior, Dr. Arthur Morgan, has opposed the appointment.

'Dahlia' Suspect Freed By Los Angeles Police

Los Angeles, Feb. 11—(UP)—Los Angeles police have dismissed Corporal Joseph Dumais as a suspect in the "Black Dahlia" case. They say they have evidence the soldier was at Fort Dix, N. J., the day of the murder.

Hoover Promises Aid To German Populace

Stuttgart, Feb. 11—(UP)—Former President Herbert Hoover has told German food officials that he will recommended to President Truman every possible aid for the Anglo-American zones. Hoover has left Stuttgart for Vienna on his food survey.

Students Will Have No Choice In Selecting Time of Classes

Method Much Fairer, Committee Explains

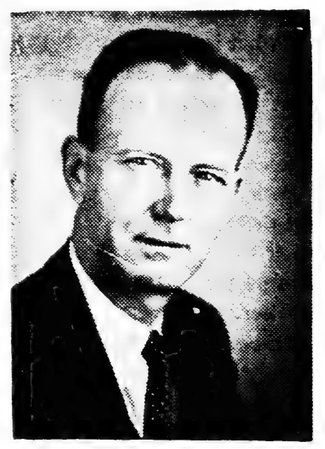
By Ed Joyner

A new system of registration will go into effect tomorrow when students in the school of commerce start registering for spring quarter classes. The new system, devised under the direction of Edwin S. Lanier, central records office head, will cut to less than five minutes per student the time of waiting the Memorial hall registration line.

Radically different from previous systems in that the student has no choice of class hours, the new registration plan is designed to take as little of the students and advisers' time as possible, reduce waiting lines, and give all students an equal chance of getting good schedules. Heretofore those registering last had little chance of getting the classes they needed.

New Procedure

Briefly the new registration procedure is this: On designated dates students will go to their advisers or deans to get their "Green Forms" prepared and approved. This form will show only the courses the student is to take. No hours and no section numbers will be indicated. The student will list alternative courses for use in case one of his approved courses is clffosed out.



Each student will then take his "Green Form" to Memorial hall and exchange it for a receipt card which will tell him when to return to pick up his class tickets. This will take only one or two minutes.

Pick Up Tickets

After all "Green Forms" are in, clerks will pull class tickets for the courses listed. Tickets will be pulled from all sections of a course rather than from one section until it is exhausted. At the designated time the student will pick up his tickets, which will show the time and section of his classes. This will take less than three minutes of the student's time.

Although the student cannot choose the time schedule for his classes he

Special Session Of Legislature To Meet Tonight

To discuss the recently recommended constitutional amendments, the Student Legislature will meet in special session at 8 o'clock this evening in Gerrard hall, stated Speaker Charlie Warren.

Main item likely to be debated is the bill to amend the student council set-up. The change would remove the council's appellate power in honor and campus code cases.

At the last meeting the student council measure was tabled in order to give legislators more time to study the bill, which was proposed by Dewey Dorsett, who spoke for his committee on revision.

Working during the summer and fall, this group drew up a series of recommendations to revise the constitution to make it "a living document."

Among other proposed amendments to be discussed is the bill to amend the legislature's power to categorize offenses against the honor code. Many other purely mechanical changes to the document will probably not come up tonight, but will be tabled until a

All Students Asked Double Meal Price In Cooperation with WSSF Campaign

Donations Here Hit $456 Mark

"Take a fellow student to dinner" cards will be given to each student today at mealtimes. Walt Stuart, World Student Service fund co-chairman, announced that the cashier at Lenoir hall will take double the price of the meal directly, but that at the Carolina Inn and the N. C. Cafeteria, a box will be provided for the extra money.

Money actually collected to date comes to $456, and WSSF officials feel that if the rest of the students respond as well as shown thus far, the goal of $5,500 will be reached by the end of the week. Solicitors are asked to turn in promptly all money collected in order that the thermometer at the YMCA may keep rising, the chairman said.

Need Greatest in Europe

According to the central committee, appalling need for food, clothing, medicine and supplies is reported from Poland, Hungary, Greece, Austria, Yugoslavia and Germany. The most distressing need in Europe is now in these countries, and here the relief work of the Fund will place major emphasis for the coming months.

It is only through the giving of college students where materials are plentiful that WSSF can carry on its important work, the chairmen said, and only through cooperation of each student can the goal be attained.

UVA Will Entertain Carr Coeds Tonight

Tonight the UVA has invited the coeds of Carr dormitory to an open house at the Veterans club beginning at 8:30.

Pinky Barnes will officiate over the floor show and Bob McDonald will add support from his spot behind the piano. The voices of Phyllis Isenhour and the Glen Penland trio are also included in the entertainment. Niel Creighton, with his drums, will round out the program.

Farlow requested the escort committee to be on hand by 8:15 so they may call at Carr dormitory by 8:30. All veterans on the campus are cordially invited to attend said President Roy Moose.

Victory Village Co-op Plan Wins Support of Trustees

By Ken Rothwell

Establishment of a co-operative grocery store at Victory Village will not be opposed by the University board of trustees, according to an announcement made by Chairman Tom McDade at the buying club meeting Monday evening in Bingham hall. McDade indicated that the proposal had come before the board at its meeting in Raleigh on Monday.

"It makes us very happy that the University has evidenced its concern for the student veteran by taking this step. We appreciate their co-operation and hope to demonstrate this by establishing a service at Victory Village that will be of genuine value to the married veteran on campus," said McDade.

Climax of Long Struggle

Action on the part of the board marks the climax of a long struggle on the part of several veterans here to obtain University support for the co-op. Organized last fall to combat the cost of increased food prices the group is now fully incorporated and has been operating until now as a buying club, until a store could be obtained.

The organization re-elected Tom McDade as its chairman for the ensuing year and Dr. Frank Kottke was re-elected treasurer; Mrs. Charlotte Hayes, secretary; and John Campbell, Dr. B. M. Lear, and the Rev. Charles Jones were selected as board members.

Coker Offers Garden

In addition Dr. Lear announced that Dr. W. C. Coker had offered the use of some of his property as a garden for the purpose of growing fresh vegetables for use by the membership.

Co-op officials indicated that until the exact nature of the trustees' action is known, (other than that they would not oppose establishment of a store) exact plans and details for the Victory Village project cannot be made public. Several expressed hope, however, that the store would be in operation in the not-too-distant future.

CCC to Meet Tomorrow In Graham Memorial

At an executive meeting of the Carolina Conservative club held Tuesday, four committees and chairmen for each were named: membership, Miles Smith; publicity, John C. York; finance, Meek Carpenter; program, Paul Mullinax.

The next meeting of the CCC will be held tomorrow night at 8 o'clock in the Roland Parker lounge of Graham Memorial. Main discussion will include the pros and cons of the CCC actively entering student politics. All students interested are cordially invited to attend.

Students Must Sign For Pre-Registration

General college students are asked to make appointments for pre-registration by signing appointment sheets at the information desk in South building beginning today, announced Dean Spruill yesterday.

Phi Shows Strong Opposition To Student Council Changes

Strong opposition was displayed against President Dewey Dorsett's proposed Student council amendment to the Student Constitution Monday night at the Philanthropic Literary society meeting.

A substitute resolution, introduced by Al Lowenstein, passed the entire Assembly by a vote of 14-6. The measure approved the amalgamation of the Student councils in cases involving acts of the legislature, violations of the Honor Code, and questions of constitutionality, agreeing that the elimination of the appeal feature would be advisable.

Dorsett asked that the right of students to appeal from Men's Council and Women's Council, to the Student council be stricken out. The appeal would be the only change in the Student council. He maintained that the right of appeal is a detriment.

Al Lowenstein agreed with Dorsett that the appeal must go. He proposed that the Women's Council and the Men's Council try members of their respective sexes who have violated the Campus Code and that the Student Council try all violators of the Honor Code.

University Officials Approve Trustee Action

Johnson Resolution Given Endorsement

By Sam Whitehall

University officials yesterday expressed themselves in complete accord with the action of the Board of Trustees Tuesday in tabling a resolution by Trustee John W. Clark of Greensboro which would have fired Dr. Guy B. Johnson of the sociology and anthropology department.

Speaking in the absence of President Graham, University Controller W. D. Carmichael, Jr., said: "Johnson is simply on leave of absence from the University and we have always assumed that he will return here at the end of his leave."

Maynor Issue Cause

Carmichael conjectured that what had started the race discussion at the trustees' meeting was the appearance of Negro singer Dorothy Maynor here under the sponsorship of the Council for Religion in Life at which time Negroes were in the audience. Clark had also attended a bi-racial religious service in Greensboro last Sunday during which Johnson advocated more equality of the races.

Investigation revealed that the $30,000 grant from the Rosenwald foundation, which Clark moved to reject on the charge that the fund is being used to promote racial "conglomeration" in the South, will have no connection with any racial matter. The grant will finance a study of the development of social anthropology in the South, to be made by Dr. John P. Gillin, professor of anthropology in the department of sociology and anthropology.

At the present time there are three Rosenwald fellows studying at the University, none of whom is dealing with racial matters.

The Older Generation

Two great North Carolinians reached a high point in their careers as public servants during the recent meeting of the University Board of Trustees.

Josephus Daniels, 84, former ambassador to Mexico, Secretary of the Navy under Wilson, and editor of the Raleigh News and Observer, and Cameron Morrison, 77, former governor and U. S. Senator, took the floor and fought for something which every right-thinking citizen concedes to be just; the right of all races and religions to live with friendship toward each other.

These two statesmen branded the charges made at the Trustees meeting for what they were. They pulled no punches. Both men, born and raised in the South, know what is right and just, and recognize the duty of one man to another. They did not advocate social equality in every respect by tomorrow morning at eight o'clock. They just drew the line between what is right and what is wrong.

Both of these men are what we would call "aged." Both are what we would expect to be "conservative." But whatever agility of body they might have lost through the passage of time has been compensated by an increase in wisdom.

Both of these men stood up when the going was tough and had their say. They spoke their convictions. They spoke them when the "younger generation" was silent. We should take note of that, because it is the difference between theory and practice.

There is a fine line between legitimate, responsible criticism of racial relations and race hatred. Sometimes, one masquerades for the other. It takes a discerning eye to tell them apart.

It takes a courageous man sometimes to stand up for a principle. That's the difference between great men and little men.

When That Day Comes

This newspaper has been accused recently of being too liberal, of keeping all conservative elements off our editorial pages.

Now, ridiculous as we think these charges are, we agreed to publish this editorial saying we will welcome any conservative columnist who wants to write for the DTH. If he can write a good column, we will print it. Whether he be liberal or conservative has nothing to do with the decision as to whether or not his work will be printed. No one has, or ever will be, turned away from our offices because of his beliefs, political or otherwise.

The charge against us says our editorials reflect the University in a bad light because we are too liberal. In fact, we were requested to stop expressing our own opinion in this column if our opinion doesn't agree with that of the majority of the student body on every controversial issue.

This is a student newspaper, but it is a newspaper's duty to show the way, not to follow the crowd, be it a country weekly or a metropolitan daily. We do our best to cover the campus news and we interpret it as our editorial board sees it. Naturally, controversy will arise on every issue.

But when the day comes that we have to stop expressing our own opinion and begin serving as a mouthpiece for any majority or minority group, that day will see a change in the editorial staff of this newspaper.

It's Not Much

American college students spend $17,800,000 yearly for fraternity fees and dues.

American students spend $38,700,000 yearly for college football.

The WSSF needs only $1,000,000 in its current drive. American students can afford to help.
